
RECIPROCITY SAID TO BE FAR IN THE FUTURE

Sir Wm. Mulock Thinks Canada would be Wasting Time Chasing for It

Toronto, Dec. 20.—A press representative was at the Union Station last night when Sir William Mulock, Postmaster-General arrived from New York city. Sir William has just returned from Hot Springs, Va., looking hale and hearty, and as to the health of Premier Laurier, he stated that Sir Wilfrid had been greatly benefitted by his visit to Hot Springs, the rest and open air having proved most helpful. The weather at Hot Springs has within the last few days become wet and blustery, interfering with outdoor exercises, and many of the visitors are leaving. It is probable that Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier will go as far as St. Augustine, in Florida, for a few days returning to Canada about the first of the year.

Postal Pointers.

The reporter referred to an item which appeared in one of the Toronto papers on Thursday to the effect that Sir William had been inspecting the New York post-office.

"Yes," replied the Postmaster-General. "I returned via New York for the purpose of making some investigations in regard to the working of the pneumatic tube system in force there, and I had an interview with the New York officers in regard to the matter."

"For what purpose."

"For the purpose of considering whether it would be advisable to introduce the system into Canada."

"Have you reached any conclusion?"

"No final conclusion."

"What do you think of the system?"

"It serves an excellent purpose, but there is, I think, one very serious defect in the New York service. Suppose there are a number of sub-offices on the line of the pneumatic tube; there is no arrangement by which the mail matter can be despatched to the various branch offices except by interrupting all the mail matter and sorting out what belongs to the particular branch, and forwarding the balance. It is a very serious defect, and efforts are now being made to overcome it."

Sir William was asked if in the course of his stay in the United States he observed any interest being taken in Canadian affairs.

American Eyes being Opened.

"Yes," he replied, "the people of the United States appear to be fully aware that Canada is coming to the front. I met leading men from many parts of the Union, and could readily see from conversation with them that Canada is now being regarded as a land of great promise. A prominent banker referred with apparent regret to the emigration to Canada of Western United States farmers."

Asked about reciprocity Sir William said: "As far as I could judge American sentiment on this question is determined very largely by considerations of individual personal interest, unless it be at points along the border, like Boston, or Detroit, where public opinion is in the formative state. But, as I say, so far as I have been able to judge, the United States idea of reciprocity would be an arrangement whereby they would gain everything, and surrender nothing."

Reciprocity Far Off.

"Then," was the query by the interviewer, "do you see any immediate prospect of reciprocity?"

"I do not," replied Sir William. "There must be give and take in reciprocity. What sort of reciprocity would it be if it was all give and no take? For the present, I do not think Canada should follow any will-of-the-wisp idea of better markets in the United States, but pursue her present course of developing markets elsewhere. It will be time enough to negotiate with the United States when they are prepared to deal with us on a fair and equitable business basis. I do not recognize any such disposition at the present time."

GUATEMALA ERUPTION

The Sufferings of the People are Very Great

Guatemala City, Guatemala, December 21.—It is probably due to some Government instructions that the papers here have said nothing with reference to the eruptions of the Santa Maria volcano, which can be considered, on account of its magnitude, as a national calamity. The losses suffered by German capital only are not less than $6,250,000, consisting of houses and machinery destroyed and the destruction of the present coffee crop. The total damage amounts to a fantastic sum. The volcano is still active and a new eruption is feared at any time. The suffering is indescribable, besides the corn and wheat fields ruined.

BURNED TO DEATH

Mr. John Hall, Who Lived Alone Near Poucher's Mills

Tweed, Dec. 19.—A shocking tragedy occurred about half a mile southeast of Poucher's Mills, on Friday morning last, when Mr. John Hall was burned to death in his own home. The unfortunate man, who was about eighty years of age, lived all alone, his family residing in other places. The fire was discovered between the hours of 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning, and is supposed to have originated in some way from the stove. The charred remains of the old gentleman were found in the ruins, the body being burned beyond recognition. Deceased is survived by his widow, one son, Mr. Robert Hall, postmaster at Poucher's Mills, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Latta, who also resided at the same place. There is also another son in Manitoba. Deceased was well known in the neighborhood.

On Thursday evening, the night before the fire, Mrs. Latta was at the home of her father and wanted him to come and stay at her place, as the night was very cold. He declined the invitation, but said he would go there in the morning. This was the last that was seen of him.

GREAT TEA WAREHOUSE

The Proprietor of Red Rose Tea Erecting a Large Block of Buildings in St. John N B

Mr. T. H. Estabrooks has purchased the Wilson and Scovil lots on Mill street, opposite Rankine's biscuit factory; and G. Ernest Fairweather, architect, is preparing plans for a five or six warehouse to cover the whole of the lots. The price paid for the lots is not stated, but it is understood to have been a large fortune.

When the new warehouse is erected, Mr. Estabrooks will have about three times the space he at present has in the big warehouse on North Wharf, and he will have the largest and best equipped tea blending and packing establishment in Canada, if not in America.

Two and a half years ago Mr. Estabrooks occupied only about half of the big warehouse to which he had moved on North Wharf, but the growth of his tea trade has been so great, especially since he entered the market of Western Canada, that the whole building is too small and he has been compelled to secure larger quarters. The new departure is a very important event in the Canadian tea trade, and the new warehouse will be a notable addition to the big commercial structures of St. John Star.—St. John Star, Dec. 6.

London, Dec. 21.—The testamentary bequests for religious, educational and charitable purposes in England during the last year exceeded $22,000,000.

Ballot Stuffing at Ottawa

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—Sir John Boyd, president of the Provincial High Court, has been requested to nominate a judge of the county court here to investigate the alleged charges of ballot stuffing and impersonation which are said to have taken place in Ottawa on December 4, when the liquor act was voted upon. As soon as the judge has been chosen he will issue a summons for each of the parties charged with the offence. Subsequently, the investigation will take place.

BOER SURRENDER CLAIMS TOTAL 450,000,000

Further Grant of $5,000,000 Suggested for Relief of Loyalists

London, Dec. 20.—It is understood, says a Johannesburg correspondent, that the burgher claims for compensation under article X of the terms of surrender, amount to nearly $450,000,000. The correspondent suggests the grant of a further $5,000,000 for the relief of the burghers who surrendered under Lord Roberts's proclamation and remained loyal to Great Britain.

London, Dec. 20.—In referring to the report that the United States has intimated that it will not recognize the pacific blockade of the Venezuelan ports as applicable to American shipping, a Berlin correspondent recalls Prince Bismarck's principle in regard to Africa: "Great Britain's friendship is more important to us than the whole of Africa." The correspondent says that probably few Englishmen would not acknowledge that the friendship of America is immeasurably more important than the whole of Venezuela or any number of opportunities for co-operating with Germany."

London, Dec. 20.—There has been a sudden renewal in the demand for coal for the United States this week as a result of cold weather and the inability of American mines to meet the demands. Agents on this side have been making very large purchases for prompt shipment, and have had difficulty in securing ocean carrying accommodation at anything like rates current a week or a fortnight ago. An indication of the extent of the demand is the fact that a definite announcement is made that thirty large tramp steamships have been chartered during the week to load full cargoes of coal. They will carry in all about 120,000 tons and their charters provide for prompt clearance, none having later loading date than January 15. Freight rates have risen to $1.75 per ton and $1.85 per ton is bid today for December boats, which is a good indication of the urgency of the demand. This compares with the rate of $1.50, which was accepted for the steamer Inchmore, chartered early this month to load at Blyth for Boston. These rates are, however, all below those at which the steamers were chartered early in autumn, when rates ranged as high as $2.25 per ton.

London, Dec. 20.—A special correspondent of The Times, in a letter on the opening of the Assouan dam on December 10, says that after arrangement was made for the Duke of Connaught to perform the ceremony, the Khedive gave it to be understood that he ought, as sovereign of the country, to take a leading part. This was awkward, says the correspondent, because it was very difficult to relieve the Duke of Connaught of Connaught of the function, after he had been invited to perform it as the representative of King Edward. A diplomatic compromise was discovered. The Khedive requested the Duchess of Connaught to lay the last stone instead of the Duke. The Egyptian ruler unlocked the sluice gates, while the Duke of Connaught started the ingenious machinery by which the screens dividing the locks of the canal from the reservoir slide into the slits cut in the wall. All of the parties concerned were satisfied with this solution, says the correspondent, except, perhaps, the masons, who had hurriedly to alter one of the words engraved on the memorial stone from "Duke" to "Duchess."

London, Dec. 20.—An announcement that Count Lamsdorff, Russian Foreign Minister, will visit Sofia and Belgrade, before he goes to Vienna, illustrates, says a Vienna correspondent, the political range of the Minister's journey and makes Russia's relations with Servia and Bulgaria complimentary and not antagonistic to the Austro-Russian understanding. If Vienna were not Count Lamsdorff's goal, it would be impossible for him to visit Sofia and Belgrade without awakening such Austro-Hungarian differences as would undermine the Austro-Russian agreement in regard to the Balkans. The correspondent says that Count Lamsdorff will probably give to Sofia counsels of patience and prudence about Macedonia, to Belgrade a restorative contribution, to damaged Servian prestige, and to Vienna invaluable first hand knowledge of Bulgarian and Servian views. The date of the Minister's arrival at Vienna is uncertain, but it will probably be before the New Year.

London, Dec. 20.—M. Delcasse, says a Paris correspondent, has declined to stand as a candidate for the Senate, thinking, like his predecessor, M. Hanotaux that foreign ministers ought as far as possible to hold aloof from domestic politics.

New York, Dec. 20.—Three women were perhaps fatally injured and fifty-seven other passengers were bruised and badly shaken up in a trolley car accident in Weehawken at midnight. The occupants, mostly women, were cut and bruised, but not seriously injured.

The accident occurred at a point where the trolley company's tracks cross those of the Erie Railroad. When the trolley car reached the tracks the motorman stopped his car to allow a freight train to pass. The train consisted of nine cars and was moving along rapidly. The last three cars of the freight train broke loose some distance east of the crossing, and were not noticed by the train crew. After the six cars had passed by, the motorman of the car thought it was the last of the train and started to cross the tracks. When he got his car in the middle of the crossing the three freight cars which had broken loose from the train came rolling along, and before he could get his car over the crossing it was struck with terrific force by the freight cars. The trolley car was completely turned over and the passengers were thrown through the windows up against the doors and on top of one another. They were struck in the face by broken timbers, glass and everything else movable. Ambulances and physicians were summoned and a crowd which had collected about the scene started in to extricate the women who were caught in the wreck. What caused the train to become uncoupled is not known. The trolley car was completely wrecked. Traffic was blocked both on the railroad and trolley lines for nearly two hours.

Postmaster General in New York

New York, Dec. 21.—Sir William Mulock, Postmaster-General of Canada, called upon Postmaster Van Cott at the general postoffice yesterday, and spent about twenty minutes inspecting the pneumatic tube service. He is considering installing a similar system in Toronto.

MONROE DOCTRINE A BACK NUMBER

That is What Henry Watterson Thinks—Advocates Breaking Loose From It

Louisville, Ky., December 21 — Mr. Henry Watterson, in Courier and Journal advocates the breaking loose from the Monroe doctrine. He says this is as good an opportunity as another for the Government of the United States, and back of the Government for the people of the United States, to consider the Monroe doctrine, its origin and meaning, its import and intention, with the serious purpose of readjusting, if need be, to the prevailing national and internal conditions. It was a noble association, it was a timely declaration, yet it took no account of Imperialism in Brazil nor of Royalty in Canada; perhaps because we had little to fear from the Portuguese, while England was our actual ally. It is not a part of an enlightened self-respecting sagacity to begin to cast about us and see where we are at, and to revise our position with a view of adjusting it.

A Landslide in Spain

Barcelona, Dec. 21.—A land slip occurred on Monday in the neighborhood of the Commune of Bergea. Several houses disappeared. The inhabitants fled to the heights of the town. The landslip is attributed to the mining of coal in the vicinity of the town.

KILLED BY GAS

FAMILY AT LUNCH WHEN GAS TANK WENT OFF

Roof Was Blown Out—Mother Blown Through the Side of the House and Found on the Road

Fort Lee, N.J., Dec. 21.—By the explosion of gas tank yesterday the residence of John Puglughi was demolished, his six children instantly killed, and his wife so seriously injured that her recovery is despaired of. The dead are: Ida Puglughi, aged four years; Tillie, twelve; Irene ten; Adeline, seven, and George, five years.

The mother was found 200 feet from where the explosion took place, her right arm almost torn from her body.

Just returned from school, the children were at the lunch table when the explosion occurred. The roof of the house was blown out. An adjoining cottage was also partially destroyed. The debris immediately took fire and the bodies were badly charred.

Mrs. Puglughi, who was waiting on the children at the table was blown through the side of the house and was found in the road. The father was away from home.

THE GRAND TRUNK'S BIG PACIFIC SCHEME.

The Official Gazette will To-morrow Publish the Application of the Pacific Branch of the System

PETERBOROUGH SO BE ON THE MAIN LINE.

The Midland to be Used to Reach the Main Line at Port Hope or Belleville—Wide Powers Asked for New Line

Ottawa, Dec. 19—The Grand Trunk Pacific is giving notice in to-morrow's Official Gazette of the application it will make to Parliament next session for the right to build from the present Grand Trunk System in Ontario westward through the fertile plains of Manitoba and the Territories, on to the Pacific coast.

The present notice does not give the public any more information with regard to the location of the system than Mr. Hays statements contained. This is because according to a Grand Trunk official, the promoters do not wish to tie themselves down to a given route till their surveys have been made. The notice is for power to build from Gravenhurst westerly and northerly to either the Pine River or Peace River pass through the Rocky Mountains, and thence to Port Simpson on the Pacific coast. The right is also sought to construct branches to Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, and other such points as the company may desire to tap. The location of these branches, as well as of the main line would have to be sanctioned by the Minister of Railways at Ottawa before work began. This is the practice with all new lines.

Gravenhurst, the eastern terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific, is half way on the present G.T.R. branch from Toronto to North Bay. Presumably the new line would strike off from there instead of North Bay, because the former would give a little shorter cut.

In reply to a question whether the Western traffic to the seaboard over this new system would not be carried by a direct line to Montreal and Quebec, an official of the company says the intention is to utilize the Midland connection down to the Grand Trunk main line either at Port Hope or Belleville, from which there is now a double track to Montreal. This means there will be no Grand Trunk line through the Ottawa Valley, at least for some time to come.

The applicants will also ask Parliament for the right to build and operate their own steamships and generally all powers incident to their main undertaking. It is the intention to apply for every right that has been given to existing Canadian railways. This would allow them power to develop the resources of the country through which they are to pass.

Are Willing to Arbitrate.

Partial Responses from Great Britain, Germany and Italy

Buenos Ayres, Argentina, Dec. 20.—A manifesto had been addressed to Argentine young men, inviting them to form a voluntary crops called the Legion of Argentine Volunteers to go to the sisters of their sister republic, Venezuela. Buenos Ayres newspapers continue their pessimistic comments on the Venezuelan imbroglio. They fear that European intervention may be regarded as a precedent, endangering the integrity of South American republics. They deny the right to resort to force to recover claims for injuries suffered by foreigners during revolutions.

Difficulty in Way to Settlement.

London, Dec. 20—With the growth of the belief that the crisis in the Venezuela embroglio is passed and affairs now in a fair way to successful arbitration, public interest in the question is simmering.

The most probable solution suggested by men of experience is the direct payment of an indemnity of a moderate amount for damages for the seizure of British and German vessels, and the submission of all other claims to a mixed international tribunal. The idea advanced by some leader writers that the United States Government shall provide a guarantee for the payment of the award, is not entertained in any influential quarter in Britain.

The establishment of an international commission for the administration of the Venezuelan customs would be highly satisfactory so far as British interests are concerned, but it is not expected by city financiers having close relations with South America. They assert that the resources of Venezuela's customs are ample, under ordinary condition for meeting the requirements of a complete liquidation of the outstanding indebtedness, but that twelve months of peace are indispensable before the revenue from exports and imports will have adequate volume for that purpose. What is needed is a guarantee of honest, financial administration at Caracas, and that can hardly be arranged by Minister Bowen, persona grata as he may be to all the parties interested.

A press despatch states that Germany has accepted the arbitration proposals of Venezuela, though the reply has not yet been transmitted through Minister Bowen. It is held back for a few days in hope that President Castro may yield still further.

The German cruiser Falke yesterday captured the Venezuelan schooner Victoria. After cutting down her mainmast, thus disabling her, the Germans abandoned the vessel. The action has caused great indignation among the Venezuelans.

London, Dec. 20 —The official proclamation of the blockade of Venezuelan ports was gazetted this morning, and became effective to-day. The text of the proclamation is as follows:—

"Foreign Office, Dec. 20, 1902.

"It is hereby notified that as the states of Venezuela have failed to conform to the demands of His Majesty's Government, a blockade by His Majesty's naval forces of the ports of La Guaira, Carenero, Guanta, Cumana and Carupano and the mouths of the Orinoco is declared, and such blockade will be effectively maintained from 20th of December, subject to the allowance of the following days of grace:—

"For vessels sailing before the date of this notification from West Indian ports and ports on the east coast of the continent of America, ten days for steamers and 20 days for sailing vessels.

From all other ports — twenty days for steamers and forty days for sailing vessels.

"For vessels lying in the ports now declared to be blockaded — fifteen days.

"Vessels which attempt to violate the blockade will render themselves liable to all measures authorized by the laws of nations, and by the respective treaties between his Majesty and the different neutral powers."

REVOLUTION IS STRONG.

Panama, Dec. 20 — News received here from the Venezuelan frontier is to the effect that the revolutionary movement against President Castro is now more powerful than ever. Gen. Matos is said to be at the head of a strong army, and to be on good terms with the representatives of the foreign powers. It is believed among the Venezuelan revolutionists that the present movement against Castro will be successful.

A DOURO WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss Martha Leahy and Mr. Wm O'Toole

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Joseph's Church, Douro, on Dec. 16, when Wm. O'Toole was united in marriage to Miss Martha Leahy, daughter of Mr. John P. Leahy, all of Douro. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Father Kiefty, in the presence of the friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of castor broadcloth, trimmed with white satin and silk applique and wore the conventional veil and orange blossoms. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss B. Leahy, who was prettily dressed, while Mr. E. O'Toole discharged the honors of best man. After the wedding ceremony the bridal party drove to the residence of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served. The presents received by the young couple were numerous and costly, among them was a beautiful gold bracelet the gift of the groom. The Times extends its hearty congratulations.

Woman Horse Thief Sentenced

Sherbrooke, Dec. 21.—Perhaps the first penitentiary sentence ever passed on a woman in this district was pronounced by Judge Mulvena, in Magistrates Court yesterday, when he sent Mrs. A. Kenaston, of Barford, Que, to Kingston for two years. The woman had been convicted of stealing a horse at Compton. She had previously committed other offences. Sentence was delayed some time, but the Judge concluded that there was nothing to do but to send her to the female ward of Kingston Penitentiary where she would be properly looked after.

Trial of Col. Lynch

London, Dec. 20—The antiquity of the statutes of the British law is well brought out in the Lord Chief Justice's charge to the Grand Jury in the case against Colonel Lynch. An Irish member, who has never taken his seat in Parliament is indicted for high treason under a statute enacted in the middle of the fourteenth century. The anomaly presented by the case will be that trial of an Irish member for aiding and abetting the enemies of the King when the treasonable offences of thousands of British subjects in Cape Colony have been condoned by Sir Gordon Sprigg and his Dutch political allies.

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND

Ottawa, December 21—It is the intention of Hon. John Costigan to present to Parliament next session a resolution reaffirming Canada's sympathy with the Irish cause. Mr. Costigan says, "My resolution will not differ materially from that which has secured endorsation in previous sessions, only we deem it wise that the men who represent the Canadian public opinion at Ottawa, should renew their expression of sympathy with the cause of Home Rule and the right of the Irish tenantry to the ownership of the soil they have tilled for so many generations. The land question will probably receive special mention in my resolution. That is a very live issue [illegible]

ENGLAND'S GIFT TO EGYPT

The completion and dedication of the great dam at Assouan, by which the arable area of Egypt will be greatly increased, raises the question whether British rule in Egypt is not amply justified by the results. That question would be answered in the negative by Frenchmen, on the ground that England's title to permanent control in the Nile Valley is indisputably bad. Nor is there any doubt that when after the suppression of the uprising headed by Arabi Pasha, the English undertook the restoration of order in Egypt they promised to withdraw, as soon as tranquility should be established. That promise was more than once repeated, and many years have elapsed since the peace of Egypt proper was disturbed, or the regular enforcement of the laws obstructed. Nevertheless, England had continued to maintain a military force in the Nile country, and to treat it as if it were a vassal State. Admitting that England's title to Egypt is open to dispute on technical grounds, we must, at the same time, acknowledge that, like other titles, it may be mended by prescription, and that it is in a fair way to be confirmed by prolonged occupation, and also to be consecrated by inestimable services.

When England assumed control of Egypt the task of providing the interest on the debts due to foreign creditors and also the money indispensable for the local administration seemed impracticable, notwithstanding the relatively exorbitant taxes wrung from the fellaheen, or peasant cultivators of the soil. At that time nobody dreamed that not only could these two objects be attained, but that a surplus would also be forthcoming for the development of the country by means of public works. All this has been accomplished, however, and, meanwhile, the burdens of the taxpayers have been not aggravated, but sensibly diminished. While, as yet, no notable addition to Egypt's cultivable area has been made, the public revenue and the surplus of native products available for export had been increased immensely by the ceaseless application of thrift, probity and sagacity, with the result that not only were the claims of foreign creditors punctually met, as regards interest and sinking funds and the cost of an improved administration defrayed, but sufficient funds were left at the disposal of the British supervisors to impart a powerful stimulus to agricultural and manufacturing industries, and to create a native army qualified for self-defense and for the recovery of dismembered territory.

It was by means of this well-organized and disciplined force that Gen. Kitchener dispelled the threatening cloud that had hung over Egypt since the conquest of the Soudan by the Mahdi and his successor, the Kulifa Abdullah. When we bear in mind the brevity of the term in which these achievements have been performed, and remember, also, that, instead of being wrought at the expense of the taxpayers they have been accomplished under a fiscal regime which has made the tillers of the soil more prosperous than they have ever been in the six millenniums of Egyptian history, we find it hard to overrate the magnitude of the country's obligations to Great Britain. Had the British troops and the British officials been withdrawn after the rehabilitation of the Khedival finances, the readjustment of the fiscal system on sound principles, the invigoration of native industries and the reconquest of the Soudan, England would have earned a memorable place in the long list of rulers that have wielded autocratic power in the Nile Valley.

It may be questioned, however, whether all of England's preceding services to the Egyptian people would have gained so lasting a place in history as is likely to be conceded to the vast increase of their arable area by the huge dam built at Assouan which will render practicable the irrigation of more than a million acres hitherto cut off from cultivation. This is an engineering achievement which for magnitude and utility has no parallel, unless it be one furnished by Egypt herself; the colossal reservoir constructed by a Pharaoh of the Twelfth Dynasty in the Oasis of Fayoum. It is tolerably certain, however, that the cubic contents of the Lake Moeris, which Herodotus described, was very much smaller than are those of the enormous basin created by the works at Assouan. It is, indeed, susceptible of proof that, at a very remote epoch, the breadth of the valley watered by the Nile was very much greater than it was when the Pyramids were erected; but there is no reason to believe that, at any time during the historic period since the accession of the First Pharaonic Dynasty, the natives of Egypt have ever possessed so much cultivable soil as they will owe henceforward to the fertilizing hand of England.

BIGGEST SIGN IN THE WORLD

New Yorkers who are used to big things, have been astonished during the past week by a painted sign at the corner of Broadway and Spring street, covering the north side of two eleven-story buildings. This sign covers 15,416 square feet of space and is by far the largest advertising sign ever painted. The picture is the well-known figure of "Sunny Jim," who for so many months has testified to the goodness of "FORCE," not only over the entire United States, but in the United Kingdom, as well.

In this picture, "Sunny Jim" is 112 feet 6 inches in height. His hat is 17 feet 6 inches tall and 15 feet broad. His nose is 10 feet long. His ear is 3 feet 9 inches high. His arm is 17 feet long; his legs 60 feet long. His thumb extends over a space of 5 feet. The height of his collar is 12 feet 6 inches, and his tie is 7 feet 6 inches in height. The buttons on the coat are 3 feet 9 inches in diameter, and his cuff buttons are 3 feet 6 inches in length. "Sunny Jim's" feet are 20 feet long, and the cane which he carries is 50 feet in length. His dog which sports along by his side, is 42 feet 6 inches in height.

With this enormous sign, the reading matter is very brief and fills but a small part of the space. It is as follows:

"Vigor, Vim, Perfect Trim,
'Force' made him 'Sunny Jim'."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A bailiff in Hamilton seized the mayor's chair for a debt against the city. That was a horse on the mayor.

Perhaps J. Bull and W. Hohenzollern have stirred up a wasp's nest of South American republics.

Collinwood, a railroad suburb of Cleveland, has just voted out saloons on a pledge from the Lake Shore management to locate $1,000,000 railroad shops in the town. There is a temperance lecture in this which greatly outweighs all the professional harangues about the evils of the drink habit.

FOR THE MAYORALTY.

Card to the Electors of Peterborough

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

In response to the numerous representations which have been made to me upon the subject, personally, by requisition, and through the press, I place my services at the disposal of the public as a candidate for the Mayoralty at the approaching municipal elections.

My association with the important municipal advances which the Town has been making during recent years, will enable me to give continuity to the aggressive forward policy which the Council has sought to pursue, and to bring experience and information gained therein to bear upon the work and problems which still more immediately confront us.

While I cannot lay claim to all the qualifications which have been flatteringly ascribed to me, such capacity for the office as I do possess is cheerfully placed at your service, and I ask your sympathy and support in the effort to maintain the position and standing, and advance the welfare of our already prosperous and progressive Town.

Respectfully yours,

G. M. ROGER

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25

July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1906	145,000

or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years........ $670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—

Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $30,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's shares common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

BUY! WHY?

BECAUSE

THE SOUR LAKE OIL CO.

Has placed four-fifths of its stock in the treasury for development work; and because

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines, and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $50 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $25 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to instal either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Price is now 25 cents a share, and we offer 50,000 shares at this price, but it may be advanced by January 1st, 1903, to 50 cents a share.

STOCK MARKETS

Some Good Issues Worthy of Consideration

New York, Dec. 20.—Now that the stock market storm has subsided and the prospects for good financial weather are again improving, it might be wise to notate a few specially good bargain offerings in the current market. The ones today we cull from the prime gilt edged issues and in every instance are stocks which should they decline any after the consummation of your purchase you may be certain will rise again, and that very speedily. We note with special favor Illinois Central, New York Central, St. Paul and Pennsylvania. Illinois Central has declined from 152 to 140. New York Central from 170 to 150. St. Paul from 198 to 167, and Pennsylvania from 170 to 150. At present time all of these stocks are selling somewhat higher than the low prices notated, yet far from the figures commensurately in accordance with their intrinsic values and far below the prices they would be quoted at were it not for the turbulence. The market has just passed through turbulence and distrust we are, however, leaving behind us; confidence and hope are directly ahead of us. The two latter states will grow with improving prices. We are just emerging from the baneful influences which were potent in undermining values. Philip King, the eminent financial writer of the New York Sun, whose weekly advices for some weeks past have been most conservative and precautionary last Monday reviewed the situation with much satisfaction, summing up with the conclusion that the worst was now over and that such people as would come into the market now, would fare far better than those who waited for a still further clearing of the financial atmosphere. The London Statist mirroring the opinion of Thread and Needle street, London, our speculatively inclined British brethren took a decidedly favorable view of the situation, commending American stocks to English speculators. As a result London has been a heavy buyer upon balance. The stocks we have enumerated are strictly speaking giltedged and market leaders. We will the coming week enumerate some of the medium priced shares we deem good to purchase at present, giving cogent reasons for our belief. You will make no mistake in purchasing at present time the issues mentioned in this letter.

Summary—The market today was fairly strong. A particular buying movement developed in Texas Pacific which carried the stock up over a point with lively trading. Considerable demand existed for Reading common stock, looks like a splendid purchase. Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were very strong, as were St. Paul and Baltimore and Ohio. Among the industrials Sugar over shadowed the balance, being aggressive on the uptack. Steels maintained their strength of the past 3 days. About 11.30 Texas Pacific more than lost its entire gain. Reserves decreased of about quarter of a million. After the holidays the market will be higher, so buy stocks the coming week. Sales 290,000.

The beautiful electrical display in the stores of Creesman and Turnbull is exciting much interest and much favorable comment. Mr. Creesman's store is particularly fine. ORDINATION

Rev. T. J. Crowley, Receives Holy Orders in St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday

One of the most solemn and imposing ceremonies in the ritual of the Catholic Church was performed on Sunday morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, when the sacrament of Holy Orders was conferred on Rev. J. T. Crowley by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor.

The newly ordained priest is a native of Peterborough, and has been pursuing his studies at the seminary in Montreal for a number of years past. He is a member of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society, and a deputation consisting of the officers and standing committees of that body was present at the ordination.

Father Crowley officiated at vespers this evening, and his first mass will be celebrated this morning at 8 o'clock.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien addressed the congregation in the morning on the position which must be occupied by one taking up the duties of the priesthood and of the life of hardship necessary to one who would properly fulfil the duties of the sacerdotalstate, citing examples of the sacrifices which must be made in the daily life of a priest. He congratulated the parents of the young priest on the honor which became theirs through him.

This evening a presentation will be made to Rev. Father Crowley at the T. A.S. rooms, and a musical programme will take place in connection.

OBITUARY

Death of Mary Jane Meharry, Wife of Mr. Wm. Ayers

There passed away on Saturday evening at the age of 51 years, at her residence, Antrim street, a highly respected and esteemed resident of Peterboro in the person of Mary Jane Meharry, wife of Mr. Wm. Ayers.

The news of Mrs. Ayres death came as a shock to her many friends—she having been ill only a few days, having attended church last Sunday in her usual good health. Deceased was a life long member of the Methodist church, having joined the church 34 years ago and was an earnest and zealous worker of the George street congregation. It was only last week Mrs. Ayres was called to mourn the death of her mother, Mrs. Letitia Blackstock Meharry.

She leaves a husband and family of six children to mourn her loss, three children having predeceased her a number of years ago. Those living are—F. S. Ayres, at home; Florence E., wife of S. H. Might, Calgary; Mary L., Calgary; Jenny W., at home; W. F. Ayres, of Calgary, and H. C., of Washington, U.S. and seven sisters.

She was married to Mr. Ayres 32 years ago, having been a resident in town for the past 11 years, during which time she had won many warm friends by her genial and kind manner.

Much sympathy is felt for those who are left to mourn her. The funeral will take place from the family residence on Tuesday afternoon.

A Natural Barometer.

"It is going to rain within six hours," said the man, with provoking deliberation. The sun was shining brightly, and only a few floating clouds broke the clear blue of the broad sky. "Rain," said the other, derisively, "and out of that sky? You're a pessimist. You always carry an umbrella."

"I'll bet you a good dinner that it will rain within six hours," the first speaker replied, with imperturbable good nature and gravity. The bet was made, and the dinner was paid for by the man who doubted. It rained in less than four hours.

"Now, if you will come around to my rooms I will show you how I knew it was going to rain," said the prophet, who was with honor in his own country. So there they went. Now, the prophet was an original sort of chap, and had fastened upon the walls of his room many strange things of the sea and forest and field. On the floor were flung skins of bear and deer and mountain lion, and on the wall near a window, stretched from the top of the high wainscoting to within half a foot of the floor, was the grewsome skin of a giant diamond back rattlesnake. The prophet pointed to it and said: "There's my secret."

The skin was dripping wet. The sweat, so to speak, stood out upon its scaly back in huge drops, which would swell and swell and silently run together in little streamlets, which in turn would rush down in an avalanche of other drops and reach the floor with a splash like a great tear. Everything else in the room was dry as the humid atmosphere of a city after a thunderstorm would allow.

"That's my barometer," said the prophet. "I killed the snake myself in Florida and had it stripped. The skin is not tanned, but just preserved, like rawhide. I had noticed in some of the coasting boats along the Gulf shore little strips of snake skin hung up in the cabin. The captains had told me that they could always tell when a squall was coming by watching this skin. I have had that for three years now, and it has been far more accurate than the weather observer. No matter when the first indications of a storm make themselves felt in the atmosphere, whether it be night or day, summer or winter, the faithful skin shows it by beginning to sweat. If the storm passes off the drops dry up and the skin crisps and shrivels until it is more like sandpaper than anything else. In the winter, of course, the sweat is not so profuse, because the air is drier than in summer.

"Why the snake skin should be so sensitive to changes in atmospheric conditions I do not know. I have asked expert snake handlers and students of reptile life, but they were as much at a loss as I was. I do not know, either, whether any skin but that of the rattler will yield to humidity or not. I know that the Florida boatmen use the rattler's skin exclusively for their cabin barometers. There's something grewsome and mysterious about it, I'll admit, but it tells the truth as accurately as the most expensive glass that was ever constructed; and all it cost me was a bullet from a rifle."

The Joys of Golf.

Sarah Battle commended whist above all other games of cards, because it was such a "solid game," writes D. C. Campbell in "Scottish American." Had she known anything about golf she might have placed it above all other outdoor sports, for the selfsame reason. So solid indeed are the joys of golf that they partake more of the nature of substantial and enduring benefits. The old alchemists wasted a great deal of time and money in vain experiments to discover the elixir of life. A number of Spanish gentlemen, headed by Ponce de Leon, went on a fruitless quest through Florida in the hope of finding a fountain whose waters would repair the ravages of time, and rejuvenate the human frame. They might have saved themselves a great deal of trouble. The only true elixir of life is golf. It lengthens the span of human life, and preserves, as far as is possible, one's health and strength undiminished; nay, it not only preserves health but is pretty certain to restore it. If you are weakly, "throw physic to the dogs" and try golf. If it doesn't cure you your case is a desperate one, and you might as well set about making your will. It is the greatest antidote to the inroads of time known to mankind.

The ingredients of this elixir are these: Sunshine, pure air, rational exercise devoid of fatigue, rest of mind and freedom from care, and very generally fine scenery, to say nothing of the extraordinary fascination of the game. If you can beat these I should be very much obliged to you for the prescription. A friend of mine, who keeps some Turkish baths, told me that he could always tell the regular bathers. "They look," he said, "as if they had struck more sunshine than the average individual." I was very much struck with the phrase, and although not in a position to give an opinion as to its truth when applied to Turkish bathers, I do know that it is absolutely true of golfers. They look as if they had struck more sunshine than other men, because, as a matter of fact, they have struck more.

WHEN LIFE'S AT STAKE

The most timid man will take any chance of escape. The slender rope dropped down the precipice, the slippery log over the abyss, anything that offers a chance of life, is eagerly snatched at. The end the man seeks is safety. He cares nothing for the means to that end.

There are thousands of men and women whose lives are at stake, who are hindered from accepting the one means of safety by foolish prejudice.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been the means of restoring health to many men and women whose hollow cough, bleeding lungs, emaciation and weakness seemed to warrant the statement of local physicians—"There is no cure possible." Why should prejudice against a put-up medicine hinder you from trying what has cured thousands of suffering men and women?

"Only for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I think I would be in my grave to-day," writes Mr. Moses Miles, of Hilliard, Uinta Co., Wyoming. "I had asthma so bad I could not sleep at night and was compelled to give up work. It affected my lungs so that I coughed all the time, both day and night. My friends all thought I had consumption. My wife had taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it had helped her so much she insisted on my trying his 'Golden Medical Discovery'—which I did. I have taken four bottles and am now a well man, weighing 185 pounds, thanks to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; you lose.

AMERICAN INVASION OF THE NORTHWEST

"The Land of Promise," Says one of Chicago's Greatest Newspapers

A GREAT FUTURE ASSURED FOR THIS COUNTRY

Winnipeg the Chicago of the Dominion—The Rush to be Great Next Year

Chicago, Dec. 22.—The Herald in speaking of the American invasion of Canada, says:

We used to think of Winnipeg as buried in snow and packed in ice, and lost in some interminable forest. It is in the open country, a beautiful and fertile prairie—on the high tableland between the commingling waters of the Red river and the Assiniboine, on the very site of old Fort Garry—famous in the frontier days of the Hudson's Bay Company—and most strategic in the two rebellions of Louis Riel and his half-breed warriors.

But Winnipeg is not the north pole yet, for happy, genial summer shines upon this ambitious, bustling city of of 60,000 people. The wide and noble streets give the city a very proud and aristocratic appearance like the city of Washington, with its avenues and boulevards. We verily believe the broad streets make the city proud. They certainly give it a metropolitan air. The public buildings are very fine, and some of the branch banks (nearly all the banks are branches, children of the strong mother bank "down East") have elegant stone buildings that would honor any city.

CENTRE OF A BIG DOMAIN.

This is the hope of the city, which is already, and which must be in the future, the wholesale and distributing centre for this mighty domain. Manitoba has about 25,000,000 acres of plow lands. Only 3,000,000 have been plowed, and last year and this also with increased railroad facilities it was impossible to move the wheat. Elevators full to the top, cars loaded, and then all through the wheat lands the sacks corded up in huge piles by the railroad tracks awaiting the cars. I never knew what a railroad meant to a country until I stood on the rear platform of a Canadian Pacific train speeding thousands of miles across a wheat paradise—worthless and uncultivated and uninhabitated were it not for that one simple narrow iron highway, those two iron rails some five feet apart, that narrow highway that opens up millions of acres to the farmer pioneer. That single track carries tens of thousands of people back and forth across the continent, and loads up the wheat and oat harvests and the herds of cattle grazing on those boundless prairies and unloads them in the markets of the world. Ho, Canadian Pacific Railway! Ho, mighty Canadian Northwest!

THE NEW NORTHWEST.

Winnipeg is East. On to Regina, and thence north 240 miles to Prince Albert, and then west of Regina on the main line to Calgary, just under the majestic Rockies, and thence north 192 miles to Edmonton, on the bluffs of the great Saskatchewan river, an old outpost and fort on the frontier life—not very long ago, but to-day one of the finest places for mercantile business I have seen for many a day. The amount of trade—the monthly or yearly sales of many of the stores and hotels in Edmonton, 200 miles north of the main line of the C.P.R., would put to the blush many of our stores and hotels in cities of 50,000 or 10,000 people. They are discovering at last that Canada is big enough to have a national life of her own, independent of America; a new world life of her own, independent of the government at Washington. The air from Winnipeg to the coast is surcharged with sentiment, "Canada for Canadians"—and this sentiment is rapidly growing "down East."

God bless the Canadian Northwest. Her people are a class of noblemen. High-spirited, broad, generous, stirring and whole-souled. They see a thing going on there under their very eyes that would sorely try anyone. And yet they are brave and magnanimous, truly heroic. They see the mighty money-maker of the world, the omnivorous American, going in there, and where the Canadian has toiled a life time for a living they see this dynamo of an American rushing in, seizing the opportunity, rushing through the open door, getting rich in a year and going back, many of them, to the States, or if not, building some big plant and living there in wealth and power.

THE MOVEMENT NORTH.

The Canadian government reports that 30,000 Americans have moved into Canada this present year. They expect 50,000 next year. They are going from the Dakotas, Kansas, Nebraska, and even from Chicago—men are going to settle west of Winnipeg. The mighty tide is rising, and next year the stream will be bank full! Some say on both sides of the boundary. If we cannot annex Canada we will assimilate her or absorb her or swallow her.

All the time peaceful conquest of immigration and of commercialism is going on, capital from the States is pouring in there, and is being invested in city and real estate, in farm lands in railroads and in mills and factories and in mercantile lines of every form.

CONQUEST OF CANADA URGED BY FRANCE

Would Pay the United States to Lose Her Navy to Get the Dominion

BRITISH AND GERMAN HATRED.

Views of French NewsPapers on the Venezuelan Situation—Emperor William is Harshly Criticized

Paris, Dec. 22—In France the feeling is decidedly against the idea of the Anglo-American blockade, which, by affecting French as well as other ships, would bring the foreign trade of Venezuela to a deadlock, besides impairing, if not destroying, the revenue receipts upon which France holds her first mortgage. Ernest Judet, the political editor of the Petit Journal," declares that Germany, without consulting the rest of Europe, has framed a great issue of antagonism between the old and new world, and that no matter what the outcome may be Europe cannot congratulate herself upon the champion who, with such undue precipitation, has dared to speak and act in her name. Emperor William, says M. Judet, sought to inflict a serious breach in the Monroe doctrine, but in reality he is about to add new strength to that doctrine and consecrate it by the success of an enormous precedent.

The Petit Journal publishes copious passages from President Roosevelt's speeches and writings, showing that the United States Government would, in case of extreme emergency, risk war with both England and Germany rather than take back water on the United States principle of a refusal to permit any European military occupation of South American territory. The Petit Journal even goes so far as to show that in the event of such a war the American conquest of Canada would more than compensate for the probable loss of the American navy. The Petit Journal declares that the English nation realizes this, and consequently deeply regrets the heedless rapidity and brutality shown by Emperor William, and is really anxious for arbitration. The Petit Journal's conclusion is that the Monroe doctrine wielded by a serious, cool-headed Administration such as now exists at Washington, is a weapon which is likely to inflict cruel humiliation on those who have so imprudently sought to elude its obligations. Already the United States by the refusal to allow the blockade, leaves to England and Germany only two horns of a dilemma in case of President Castro's resistance in extremis, namely, a downright withdrawal or backdown, or else war in a waste, roadless company, as capable of defence as the Transvaal. M. Judet asks whether Emperor William has not, after all, found in Venezuela what Napoleon III. once met in Mexico—a check which marked the waning of his star.

MORE NIAGARA POWER

Location Has Now Been Fixed For a Third Plant

Toronto, Dec. 22— The third power company is now asking leave to take power from Niagara Falls, and at a meeting of the provincial cabinet yesterday it was decided to have a meeting of representatives of all the parties interested at the parliament buildings at 2.30 p.m. to-day, when the location for the new company will be decided upon. Premier Ross when asked if there was room for a third power plant replied that there would be room for at least three more such plants on the Canadian side.

NOT AN ACRE MORE FOR BRITAIN

Responsibilities Now Beyond Organization for Defence Says Beresford

London, Dec. 23.—There were some of the notable sayings by prominent men during the week:

"As a British subject I do not want to see an acre more added to the British Empire, as our imperial responsibilities are enormously in excess of our organization for defence."—Vice-Admiral Lord Charles Beresford.

"The Government to-day is deeply impressed by the fact that the English-speaking people all over the world could, if they chose, maintain the peace of the world."—The Rt. Hon. W. H. Long.

CHOATE SAW KING GEORGE

Cordially Received by the Ruler of Greece—Expects to See the Sultan

London, Dec. 23.—Joseph H. Choate, the American Ambassador, and his family, while at Athens, were the guests of the British Minister. They met King George and all the members of the royal family. They will probably meet the Sultan in Constantinople, and it is also thought that they will be received by the Khedive in Egypt.

All the members of the party are well and are enjoying their holiday. Private letters received from Mr. Choate say that he was much gratified at the cordiality of his reception by King George. The Ambassador is not troubled about political affairs and gets no despatches in regard to Venezuela.

THE LUMBERING INDUSTRY

The Busiest Season Ever Known in the Northern Woods

Reports received during November by the Department of Crown Lands, Ontario, indicate that the present has been the busiest fall season yet experienced in the history of the Ontario lumber woods. In all portions of the lumbering districts more men are in the woods than were ever before reported, and limits on which no cutting has taken place in several years are being worked in order to meet the demand for lumber arising out of the increased scale of building operations projected for the coming year. The October rains are reported as having interfered to some extent with the work, but the most serious difficulty confronting the lumbermen during the present season has undoubtedly arisen out of the scarcity of experienced hands available. In spite of the high wages offered, operators have been compelled in many cases, to accept for service in the woods men and youths almost wholly unacquainted with the work of logging and road-making. Wages run from $25 to $35 per month and board, the former figure, until recently, being considered a high wage for a shantyman.

Mill men in Victoria, B.C., are complaining of a shortage of logs, though some of the mills have been as yet seriously inconvenienced. Reports from the upcoast logging centres in British Columbia state that only a few of the camps are working to their full capacity, and that the contents of many storage booms have been cleaned up, the presence of snow and slush resulting in a general suspension of work.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL

Election by Acclamation in Four of the Divisions

A Sharp Contest in the Norwood Division—Warden Eastland Retires in the North--Dr. Jeffs Again in the Field.

Yesterday the nominations for the County Council took place, and resulted in election by acclamation in four out of the five County Council divisions. The following are the names of those elected, and the candidates.

FIRST DIVISION.

Comprising Otonabee and Ashburnham. Nominations took place in the Town Hall Keene, and resulted in the election of Mr. R. A. Peck, and Mr. Thos. Johnston, Reeve of Otonabee.

Mr. Wm. Anderson, M.P.P., was also nominated, but retired.

At the conclusion of the time for receiving nominations, Mr. Archie Weir, of Ashburnham, was called to the chair, and addresses were delivered by the newly elected members and others.

SECOND DIVISION.

Comprising the townships of South and North Monoghan and Ennismore.

As predicted by The Times Messrs. Geo. W. Fitzgerald and T. M. Hunter were elected by acclamation. Mr. P. Costello, of Ennismore, was also nominated, but retired. The nomination meeting took place at Bridgenorth.

At the conclusion of the nominations, the nominating officer, Mr. George W Bennet, was called to the chair and short speeches were made by several of those present, including the newly-elected members. Mr. Wm. Collins, who was also present, paid particular attention to the beet sugar question, as also did Mr. Bennett and several others.

THIRD DIVISION.

Comprising townships of Harvey, Cavendish, Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos.

In this Division Warden Eastland has retired, notwithstanding the strong pressure which was brought to bear on him to remain.

At the nomination meeting held in Apsley yesterday Mr. Robert Shaw, and Mr. John Monogue of Chandos, were elected by acclamation.

Mr. David Campbell, who was present, was strongly urged to stand, but declined in favor of Mr. Monogue, whom he thought deserved promotion after his long service as Reeve of Chandos.

The Times is indebted to Dr. Bell, of Apsley, for the result, which was telephoned from Burleigh yesterday.

FOURTH DIVISION.

Comprising townships of Belmont, Methuen, Asphodel and villages of Norwood and Havelock. The following is a list of the candidates:

J. B. Pearce, Norwood.
Wm. Dusk, farmer, Asphodel.
Thos. Curtis, merchant, Havelock.
Dr. Jeffs, Havelock.
S. S. Joyce, harnessmaker, Havelock.
Robt. Anderson, farmer, Belmont.
James Andrews, farmer, Asphodel.

From the above it will be seen that Dr. Jeffs is again a candidate. A spirited campaign is now on in the east.

FIFTH DIVISION.

Comprising townships of Douro, Dummer and the village of Lakefield. Nomination meeting was held at Town Hall, Douro, and resulted in the election by acclamation of Mr. Dennis Meloney, Reeve of Douro, and Mr. Richard Crowe, of Dummer.

No more popular choice could have been made. Mr. Meloney has been very successful as Reeve of Douro, and will be a valuable addition to the County Council, while Mr. Crowe is an experienced member of the County Parliament.

CLOSE TO ANNEXATION

What Reciprocity Treaty with Cuba Means

Washington, Dec. 23.—The President sent to the Senate the reciprocity treaty recently negotiated between the United States and Cuba. The treaty was received by the Senate in Executive session and was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations without being read.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, referring to the treaty, says: Not only have the Cubans proved themselves amenable to reason so far as regards reciprocity, but as soon as the malign influences of European Governments were withdrawn they also began to see a new light on the subject of coaling stations. There has been great opposition among the Cubans, largely on sentimental basis, against any grant to the United States for a coaling station of land on the shore of Havana Bay. President Palma has represented that it would be a constant humiliation to his people to see a foreign flag floating over an independent plot of ground within sight of his own palace. President Roosevelt and his advisers here have come around to this same way of thinking. They do not desire to humiliate the Cubans in any way, and it has now been practically agreed that so far as the north shore of Cuba is concerned only one coaling station will be asked for, and it will not be at Havana. It may be on the shore of Nipo Bay, on the extreme northeastern coast, or possibly in the vicinity of Matanzas. So far as the south coast of Cuba is concerned, the United States will be granted opportunities to establish at least one and probably two naval stations. President Palma has intimated that as soon as the reciprocity treaty is ratified he will be ready to agree to anything reasonable in the way of coaling stations, providing Havana Bay is eliminated from the problem. He will also negotiate a treaty with the United States putting into solemn form the conditions of the Platt amendment, and thus notifying all the nations of the world of the peculiar relations existing between the United States and Cuba. When this is done, coupled with the close commercial relations established under the reciprocity treaty, there will be established a connection between United States and Cuba which will be as close as anything could be short of actual annexation.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING OF FIFTEEN SAILORS

Adrift for Three Days and Four Nights in a Small Boat

Boston, Mass. Dec. 22—The fishing schooner Manhasset arrived here early today having on board ten survivors of the wrecked schooners, Frank A. Palmer and Louise B. Crary, which were in collision Wednesday night off Thatcher's Island. Eleven sailors were either killed in the collision, drowned, or exposure. After the accident fifteen or more men from either vessel took to a small boat.

The Louis B. Crary was a five-masted, and the Frank a Palmer a four-masted schooner. Both were coal laden bound for Boston. At 8 a.m. yesterday when the Manhasset was forty-five miles of Highland Light, the lookout sighted a small boat flying signals of distress in a heavy sea. The Manhasset changed her course, and bore down on the distressed little craft, which proved to be the Crary's boat. Of the fifteen men who had started four were dead, and one crazed by exposure, Saturday night shouting at the top of his voice that the police were after him, jumped over board and disappeared. The ten survivors were in a pitiable condition, and several of them may die. All were frost bitten, and some probably will have to have their feet and hands amputated.

The Manhasset came into the harbor early this morning showing signals for assistance and by the time she arrived at a wharf ambulances were ready to transfer the sailors to the hospital. Only six of the men could be removed however. They were taken to Relief Hospital. The other four were in such a critical condition it was not thought advisable to remove them from the vessel.

How It Occurred.

From what could be gathered by the crew of the Manhasset it appears that the collision occurred at 1.30 o'clock on Wednesday evening, several miles off Cape Ann. The night was clear, but a stiff gale was blowing, and the sea was running high. The members of the Palmer's crew claim that the Crary was on the wrong tack, and in attempting to cross the Palmer's bow struck her on the bow, cutting her nose squarely off. The vessels became entangled in the wreck. The anchor and bowsprit of the Palmer sank away from the wreck, while the anchor of the Crary was entangled in the fore-rigging of the Palmer and broke off the foremast. The vessel began to fill.

The Palmer's men managed to lower a boat. There was no time to procure provisions or additional clothing. As the men cleared the wreck of their vessel they saw the Crary's men in the same plight that they had been, and made room for as many as could reach the boat. Fifteen were in the small craft when it finally pulled away. Both captains were among those who thus escaped. A few moments later both schooners went down carrying with them six men. For the survivors a battle which lasted three days and four nights had begun. One-third of the number succumbed in the fight, and of those who finally reached shore, none was able to tell the story.

The Louise B. Crary was comparatively a new vessel. She was built at Bath, Me., in 1900, and was one of the finest five-masters on the coast, having a net tonnage of 1,996. Her captain W. H. Potter, hails from Orient, Le. Her cargo of 3,700 tons of bituminous coal was consigned to this port. The vessel was only partially insured, while her cargo was fully covered.

The Frank A. Palmer was the largest four-master ever constructed. She was built at Bath, Me., in 1897. She sailed from Newport News Dec. 6th, with 4,700 tons of coal for Boston.

VENEZUELAN BLOCKADE WAS BADLY CONSIDERED

Looked Upon as a Great Help to Dutch and English Smugglers

Paris Rejoices Over the Humberts—Report of Their Arrest Received with Much Satisfaction

Caracas, Dec. 22—Leading foreigners in Caracas regard the blockade of Venezuela undertaken by Germany and Great Britain as a badly considered measure. The action of the foreign powers in coming here to collect their claims by blockade is looked upon as a great help to the Dutch smugglers in Curacao and English smuggler sin Trinidad, whose only industry is evading the payment of custom duties. During the last forty-eight hours fifteen schooners knowing about the blockade of the Venezuelan custom house, have sailed from Curacao for the Venezuelan coast, with provisions that will no pay duties. No end of stuff will follow. The result of the blockade will be to annoy foreigners who all sustain the Venezuelan treasury. It will stop trade and increase in value twenty-five per cent. food which is not essential for the poorer classes, who eat cord, but for the rich and foreigners who eat flour imported from the United States. Most of the goods imported come from England, Germany, France and United States, so that the first sufferers from blockade will be foreigners.

London, Dec. 22—The whole of Paris, says a correspondent in the French capital seemed turned upside down by the news of the arrest of the Humberts in Madrid. Papers were bought up as soon as they could be issued from the press. Paris burst with laughter, says the correspondent. It was deeply and heartily amused; it was the most docile and the most governable Paris has ever seen. For Paris is only dangerous when bored, and Paris on Saturday was everything but bored. At the Ministry of Justice champagne was opened. At the Prefecture of Police, the officials congratulated themselves. At Theatre Francaise, where a dress rehearsal was going on, the spectators left the house between acts, and on returning brandished the first papers on which they had been able to lay their hands, in the hope of obtaining fresh details of the arrest.

London, Dec. 22—The affairs of the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs, says a Shanghai correspondent, are attracting serious attention within and without the service. It is generally recognized that the recent actions of certain powers are calculated gravely to affect the future of the Administration. The correspondent says that widespread discontent which has existed for some years has now become accentuated in all ranks of the service. The Peking Inspector-General's staff does not include an Englishman, and in spite of the preponderance of British trade, only four Englishmen have been appointed to the service, out of thirty-five new appointments since June, 1897. Moreover, adds the correspondent, British influence in matters connected with service is outweighed in Pekin by that of the powers with small commercial interests in China. Unless present conditions are remedied, the fulfilment of the pledge that the successor of Sir Robert Hart, Director of the Service, shall be an Englishman, will be jeopardized. Moreover, the continued efficiency and cohesion of the Administration are dependent on the removal of existing grievances.

New York, Dec. 22—Lord Rosslyn, after perfecting the "system" which he guaranteed can break the bank at Monte Carlo, confesses that he lost $1,650, to card players on the Etruria. Some men allowed the Earl to play in a poker game with them. Later the man with the system lost $2 more. He places the latter transaction under the heading, "rubbing it in." When the Earl arrived yesterday on the Cunard liner, he caused the arrest of Jerome McKay, a passenger, whom he charged with fleecing him out of the $1,650.

FEAR THAT CANADIANS MIGHT BE HEMMED IN

By Hordes of Boxers Who are Reported to be Again in Revolt

Shanghai, Dec. 22— Excitement has been caused by reports from Shensi that the notorious General Tung-Fu-Hsiang is mobilizing 10,000 well-equipped troops at Kan-Su, and buying large quantities of grain and fodder. It is stated that he is preparing a big move in conjunction with Prince Tuan, another notorious hater of foreigners.

Four thousand Imperial troops who have been disbanded from the Imperial command, are said to have gone to join Tung-Fu-Hsiang. Friendly officials have warned the missionaries and other foreigners to leave Kan-Su. It is believed that the Dowager Empress and Yung-Lu, first Grand Secretary, are secretly encouraging the rebels and supplying them with money.

Dr. Stevens of the Methodist Foreign Missions stated this morning that Methodist missionaries had just left Shanghai, calmed by letters from friends stating that the rumored Boxer outbreak was not so serious as depicted "Our missionaries," said he, "are not in the Province that is reported to have been affected; but are over at the worst in Szchuan; for should an outbreak occur, our people would not be able to escape through Thibet, or through the other western border lands, but would have to return through the scene of hostilities."

Permanent Cure for Neuralgia

Experienced sufferers state that no remedy relieves neuralgia so quickly as a hot application of Polson's Nerviline, the strongest liniment made. Nerviline is certainly very penetrating, and has a powerful influence over neuralgic pains, which it destroys almost at once. Nerviline is highly recommended for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica and Toothache. Better try a 25c. bottle, it's all right.

London, Dec. 22—A despatch from New Marghelan, Russian Turkistan, reports that the recent earthquake at Andijan killed 2,500 people in and near that city and destroyed 16,000 houses. The rumblings continue. The authorities so far have not been able to cope with the destitution of the starving unsheltered populace.

MR. CLERGUE AND THE TARIFF

A statement has been widely circulated that the steel-rail works at the Soo of the Consolidated Lake Superior Co., better known as Mr. Clergue's Company, had to close down recently because there was no protective Canadian duty against foreign rails. We understand that Mr. Clergue himself made this statement, in connection with a reported contract made by Mackenzie and Mann for rails from Germany at a much lower price than rails can be got for them.

If Mr. Clergue made the statement that his trouble was lack of protection, either that statement was not true, or another which he certainly made is not true. He telegraphed to the Philadelphia directors of his company that the rail mill had been temporarily closed because of the failure to receive pig iron, which must be secured from other sources until the company's new pig iron furnaces are ready.

But Mackenzie and Mann also announce that they did give their contract to Mr. Clergue to begin with, but that his delivery was so unsatisfactory that they had to cancel it.

This is a pretty combination of facts to be used as an argument for a higher tariff. Mr. Clergue got a rail contract at his own price, failed to fill it because he could not get pig iron, which is enormously protected and bonused in Canada, and the protectionists cry "Behold the need of more protection!" Delightful logic! If there had been no tariff against pig iron, Mr. Clergue could have got it cheap and made his rails. Here is how the protective tariff came in, if it came in at all—the protection on pig iron killed the steel-rail manufacture.

FREE RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

The rural free delivery of mail matter has been attended with so much success wherever the system has been tried in the United States that it is now proposed to add to it a money order service for the benefit of farmers. Already rural carriers are empowered to receive and distribute registered letters. This has been of considerable advantage, particularly to those living in the country, who wish to send out matter which it is desired shall be transmitted and delivered as promptly as possible. At present it is necessary for those who have no accounts at the bank either to go to a post office, sometimes a long distance, to get money orders or to send money in a letter, at the usual risk. The extension of the money order system to the United States rural free delivery bureau beginning with the first of 1903 will obviate much of this difficulty. It will not, however, answer all of the arguments brought by the supporters of the post check plan. There is and will be still need of the post check scheme or some similar plan for the easy and cheap transmission of money, particularly in small sums of, say, $2 and less. In his annual report for 1902 Postmaster General Payne says in reference to the question:

I urge upon Congress the importance of passing some law, so that our people may have the advantage of it at as early a date as possible. Hundreds of thousands of letters carrying small amounts of silver or postage stamps are transmitted every year through the mails. These letters are a constant temptation to those handling them, as it is easy to identify letters inclosing currency.

With the extension of the rural free delivery services to remote parts of the country, Mr. Payne declares "the use of postal checks would go far to provide the relief so urgently demanded."

In the Dominion no attempt has yet been made toward the commencement of the rural free delivery of mail, not to speak of a rural money order system.

There was some hope that the P. M.-General would see his way clear to employ the surplus which he takes the credit of having saved to make a start in this direction. But circumstances have lately occurred which may postpone any improvement in the postal conveniences of the country for years to come.

The judgment in the case of Hargraves at Winnipeg, has tended to unsettle the financial state. Upon his superannuation, Mr. Hargraves sued for an increased allowance on the basis of the annual increases allowed by the Act, but which had been withheld by Mulock. The court awarded Hargraves the amount of his claim. It follows that all the officials who have been superannuated in Mulock's time will enter similar suits if not settled with. And if these claims are paid, it follows the the annual increases which were withheld will have to be paid in future, in justice to the men, and to avoid future law suits. This will be such a drain upon the alleged surplus of the post office, that as said above, all improvements, such as free rural mail delivery, which may have been contemplated, will be laid over by the postal department.

A GUILTLESS CROMWELL

The most interesting thing about General De Wet's book on the Boer war is the biography that may be picked out of it by a careful reader. The last thing De Wet seems to be thinking about is to exploit himself; but he cannot hide the fact that he is by far the biggest figure in the scenes he is describing. The thing second in interest is the extraordinary constitution of the Boer army, which explains at once the tenacity of the war and the marvellous achievements of its last commander.

It was the most democratic army of modern times and realized Napoleon's boast that every soldier carried a marshal's baton in his knapsack. The promotions in it were remarkable, as elderly commanders were removed by death and capture; but none was so remarkable as that of De Wet. He left his farm to enter the war as a private, was elected vice commandant on the verge of hostilities, and took command of 800 men by reason of the illness of the commandant a few days before the battle in which he saw action for the first time in his life. Six weeks later he was made commander of a brigade, and began the meteoric career which left him with the reputation of the first military genius of his time.

History will bracket De Wet with Cromwell for sudden development of the most remarkable military talent without training or experience. One day a farmer who never had seen either battle or strategy, the next saw him baffling the proudest soldiers of Europe in manœuvres or defeating them in the field. This man failed in nothing that he undertook, and who dares say that he could not have handled a larger army or ruled the nation? So far as he went, his career is a parallel to Cromwell's. The armies they commanded were singularly alike, and the nation Cromwell ruled, if we include only the puritans who took part in public affairs under the commonwealth, was singularly like that made up of the Boer burghers, leaving out of account the English population they excluded from public affairs. It is a fair conclusion that nothing but the enormous resources of the British Empire and its command of modern means of transportation and warfare prevented the development of a nation as great as the English commonwealth, with De Wet as protector.

Polling on the First Wednesday in January

It is understood that the bye-elections to fill the seats recently vacated by the courts for North Perth, North Norfolk and North Grey, will be held on Wednesday, January 7th. The nominations will take place on December 31st. Two of these seats, North Perth and North Norfolk, were carried in the general election on May 29 by the Conservative candidates, Mr. J. C. Monteith having a majority of two in North Perth and Dr. F. P. Snider a majority of 3 in North Norfolk. In the previous Legislature both these seats were held by supporters of the Government. In North Grey, which was held by a Conservative in the last Legislature, a Government supporter was returned in May last by a majority of 8.

A ROMANCE.

Hilda's lip only curled in scorn at the demonstration, and Jupiter snorted in terror. He was almost maddened with fear already at the great black stumps and logs rolling around him, and his slender ears were strained backward, and his large eyes glared glassily, as he breasted the raging flood with his double burden. But Hilda's voice and touch still soothed the terrified creature into comparative calmness, and, swimming strongly and fiercely against the swift tide that tried its utmost to sweep them over the fatal falls, the shore was reached at last; and a dozen pairs of hands were waiting to lift the heroic girl from her saddle and lead her up the bank, where she shook herself free from them all, and ran to lay her face against Jupiter's neck, who, poor fellow! was shaking the water from his glossy black coat impatiently, but stood still and uttered a whinny of loving greeting, as the gentle hand of his mistress smoothed his thick black mane.

"Hilda!" exclaimed her sister, approaching hastily; "you are as white as death—you are going to faint!"

Hilda's dark eyes, that had suddenly closed, opened hastily again, and she tried to lift her left hand, that hung limp and helpless by her side.

"No," she answered; "I am not faint; but my hand pains me. It was sprained by the log that struck me in the water. Will some one lead Jupiter away? It is almost time for the evening express train, and he is terribly afraid of an engine."

"Great Heaven!" said some one, shuddering. "Only think if the train had come along while you were in the water! You would inevitably have lost all control of Jupiter. He could not have stood it. Did you think of that?"

"I thought of everything," she answered, calmly; but they saw that her lip quivered a little, and her cheek grew a shade whiter.

"I owe you my life," said Courtenaye, approaching, in his dripping garments, and standing before her with bowed head, as before a queen. "It was a heroic deed!"

"It was nothing," she answered, turning from him coldly. "I am not afraid of anything."

"But you will suffer me to thank you?" he urged, following her, as she walked away as if she did not desire his company.

"You owe me no thanks," she answered; and Miss Aylesford, listening curiously, heard her add, in a meaning tone, and with a bitter little laugh, "I was only paying a debt of honor. It was my revenge!"

CHAPTER III.

The Aylesfords at Home.

"No temple can match with a glory so solemn,
The forest cathedral that rises around;
The tree's stately shaft for the fair marble column,
All veined with the sunlight, and gracefully crowned."
—Mrs. Osgood.

"Oh, dear, if I only had not sprained my wrist! I feel like a poor little bird in a cage!" exclaimed Hilda Aylesford, impatiently, as she paced up and down the long, low piazza of her mountain home.

It was the morning after the great rise in the New River, and Hilda's sprained, aching wrist was goading her almost past endurance.

Young, spirited, full of bounding vitality, she had scarcely ever known an ache or pain, and it was very hard to be restrained of her liberty on this particular morning, when she was longing to spring on Jupiter's back and gallop down the mountain to view the river, which, rumor said, had risen steadily through the night, overflowing its banks in many places, and causing terrible devastation and ruin. But the feverish state of her wrist and arm had incurred the doctor's dictum of confinement to the house, whereat Hilda chafed and fretted like some wild, caged creature.

Her sister, Florence, sitting near, and looking extremely pretty in a light blue morning dress, with a rose in her fair hair, looked up from her graceful embroidery at the impatient speaker.

"Serves you right!" said she, coolly. "A more foolish, unlady-like escapade I never beheld!"

Hilda turned on her half-angrily.

"Would you have had the man to drown?" said she.

"I had no objection; he was a total stranger," said Miss Aylesford, indifferently. "Besides, he showed no more sanity in getting into the difficulty than you showed in getting him out of it."

"Which, being interpreted, means that we both were a pair of lunatics," commented Hilda, as she stopped in her rapid walk, and looked out through the fine grove of trees that stood round about the house like giant sentinels of the forest.

Without pausing for Florence's reply, she continued, abruptly:

"Well, here comes my partner in the loss of reason. You can air your opinions for his benefit as well as mine."

Miss Aylesford started forward in a hurry, then went back to her graceful pose in the low rocking-chair. Her quick glance had shown her the two Englishmen riding up to the house under the guidance of a small urchin in a ragged hat and corduroys.

Her eyes returned to Hilda, sweeping her comprehensively from head to foot.

"And you are a fright, as usual," said she.

"More frightful than usual," answered Hilda, shedding back the disheveled locks from her brow with one small, brown hand. "It isn't so easy to make a toilet with one's left hand in a sling. You might have helped me, Florence; I have helped you often enough."

"I had enough to do to dress myself," said the sister, carelessly, as she rose and glided forward to receive the two gentlemen, who had dismounted, and were approaching the house.

Her smile was dazzling, her voice was full of sweet solicitude, as she inquired after Mr. Courtenaye's health.

"I hope your wetting in the river did not make you ill, sir?"

Mr. Courtenaye smiled down at the fair, girlish face, and assured her that he had suffered no inconvenience from that source.

"And your poor arm?"

The blue eyes looked shyly up as if deprecating her own gentle anxiety;

THE POOR MAN'S OPPORTUNITY

Honestly Managed Mining Companies will Bring Fortunes to the Investors.

Whenever a new mining company enters the field, incredulous smiles have met the bearer of the stories of the wealth likely to occur to investors; capitalists have always been timid with regard to taking stock in them, and yet within the past two years it may safely be said that millions of dollars have been made by investors in mining stock, and most of this have been made by investors of limited means, who had the courage to invest when a reasonable opportunity was presented.

THE ELECTRIC SPARK GOLD MINING COMPANY'S property is surrounded by some of the BEST MINES IN GILPIN COUNTY; they are the Clay County, Tarriff, Williams, Washington, Justice, and others, completely surrounding our property, which have produced an enormous amount of wealth, and which most of them are producing handsomely to-day.

The veins on our property are true fissure veins, of which no shaft on any fissure in this county has even been sunk to the bottom, although there are several shafts down on these veins of from 1,000 to 2,300 feet. Gilpin County is the smallest county in Colorado. The entire county is a mining camp, and is the richest spot of its size in this country. Here is where Senator Teller and hundreds of others made their fortunes. With a little more development work we will have one of the great producers of which this camp is famous; this is not guesswork, as we have made carload shipments to the mills and the smelters, which have been very satisfactory.

INVESTIGATE THIS PROPOSITION, and if you have a little spare money you will surely invest. A small block of stock is for sale at 20 cents per share.

Certificates written for from 100 shares up; samples of ore for the asking.

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mile on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunnison Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 15 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 200 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 100 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 87 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 6 ounces or $40 to $120 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore ranging from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $500 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

25 CENTS PER SHARE—PAR VALUE $1.00

BUY! WHY?

BECAUSE

THE SOUR LAKE OIL CO.

Has placed four-fifths of its stock in the treasury for development work; and because

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

Make remittances and inquiries direct to

Colonial Securities Company,
62 Wall Street, New York City.

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines, and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all horning more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $[illegible] and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $[illegible] per ton, and never less than $11.[illegible]. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to instal either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

STOCK MARKETS

These Two Pacifics

New York, Dec. 22.—Prominent upon Wall street's bargain counter at the present time are the shares of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Railway Companys. Both stocks are down considerably from their last high point. Union Pacific having sold in September up to 112 1-2 and Southern Pacific above 81. Both stocks have an excellent fractional, as well as 100 share market at all times are Union Pacific. Both are splendid trading favorites, and are selling below their intrinsic values. Union Pacific will show nearly 12 per cent. earned for the current year upon its common stock, while Southern Pacific will show nearly 6 per cent. net earned for its shareholders, despite the fact that it is expending millions of dollars upon its property, all of which is being charged to operating expenses instead of to capital account. It is destined to be the Pennsylvania of the west, and will ultimately be a six or seven per cent. dividend payer, and command an according price in the stock market. The large amount of Southern Pacific over half of its issue is owned by Union Pacific, will very shortly materially increase the income of the latter. Last year Union Pacific sold at 133, and it is worth more today than it was then. The ebb and flow of the financial tide in Wall street caused Union and Southern Pacific to make frequent ups and downs within a radius of one and one half to three per cent., which caused both to be especially attractive to traders, who, if they will judiciously take advantage of these market movements, can steadily mark down the original cost of their holdings. A scale system of trading in them will prove most effective in producing profits. We will in tomorrow's letter describe a scale system, applying it theoretically to these two issues in such a manner as should prove profitable. It will illustrate most graphically a method of trading systematically in stocks which move the markets like St. Paul and Union Pacific. In closing we commend these two issues for immediate purchase, realizing as we do their merits and relative cheapness. Fears of high rates for money between now and the new year are lessening. The recent decline in the grain market is increasing our exports of corn. The market is booked to work higher. The tendency today leaned to the bull side. Stocks were up in London and opened accordingly here. St. Paul was the leader, advancing about three points from Saturday's closing prices. Missouri Pacific and Baltimore and Ohio were specially strong. Sugar touched 130 5-8, while copper gained two points. The entire market was very strong all day with excellent buying well distributed. The closing was practically at the top price of the day. The market is going higher, and is consequently a good purchase, specially upon reactions. Money closed at 6 per cent. Sales 748,500.

Mrs. Whitby, wife of Mr. Charles Whitby, of the Stanley Piano Works, and their two children were yesterday discharged from the Nicholls Hospital, where they had been since Oct. 21st, suffering from typhoid fever. The happy Christmas season will be more joyous to them than usual, after their suffering and separation. He is evidently impressed with the country in that portion of Canada and bespeaks for it a promising future. There is plenty of employment, and good wages are paid in all departments. Brick layers he states, receive $6.00 a day, and there are plenty of building operations going on.

In the assembly hall of the T.A.S. last evening Father Crowley was presented by the Society with a beautiful pair of gauntlets with collar to match.

Those occupying the platform besides the chairman, were Father McColl, Dr. O'Brien, Father O'Brien, Father Crowley and Mr. Hampden Burnham.

A nicely worded address was read by Mr. D. Devine, Father Crowley replying with a few words of thanks and also of congratulation to the society. Short speeches followed from the gentlemen named above, all of whom spoke most highly of the young priest.

SERGEANT TOM MILLER

Back from the War—After Three Years Active Service

The Times joins in extending a hearty welcome to Sergt. Tom Miller, son of Mr. F. W. Miller, who for the past three years has been on active military service with the 1st Batallion, Scots Guards, in South Africa. Sergt. Miller arrived home yesterday morning. He served six years and 70 days in the British army, three years of which was spent in South Africa. Sergt. Miller has altogether seen 10 years of soldiering, having been connected with the Canadian militia for some years, previous to joining the 1st Scott Guards, from which regiment he has just received his discharge.

Sergt. Miller has 8 bars of which he can boast. Six of these are for active service and two for the King's Medal for guerilla fighting. Sergt. Miller has quit soldiering, however, and will henceforth engage in civil pursuits. He is in the best of health and active service must have agreed with him to the fullest extent.

WHERE THEY STAND

Hotel Men Will Support Aldermanic Candidates Friendly to Them

The Times is assured that the temperance people will at an early date next year petition the Council to reduce the number of liquor licenses. It is not in the interests of the town that any further reduction be made, as the hotel accomodation now afforded is not too great, especially when there is a crowd in town. Indeed we think that it might be with advantage increased. Frequently the hotels are "full up" with guests, and it is sometimes difficult to obtain lodgings.

The hotel men we understand, will take no active part in the election, but an effort will be made to find out on which side candidates for aldermanic honors favor and they will support by their votes and in a quiet way work for only these men who are opposed to a reduction of licenses.

MR. RODDY HONORED.

Court Littlejohn Manifests Appreciation of His Service

Mr. Thos. H. Boddy, the popular ticket agent of the C.P.R. was on Saturday night convinced that this is a season of pleasing favors. For some years past he has been entrusted with arrangements for the annual excursion of Court Littlejohn, C.O.F., over the C.P.R. and so excellently had he invariably performed this service that the members of the Court took pleasure in manifesting their appreciation thereof. Accordingly, it was with some degree of surprise that Mr. Boddy was, on Saturday night, at his office, presented with a very fine smoking outfit, consisting of a very handsomely carved pipe, gold mounted, and an elegant tobacco pouch with his monogram. Accompanying the gift was the following address.—

Dear Mr. Boddy.—It is with pleasure we present you this solid comfort outfit on behalf of Court Littlejohn, No. 88, C.O.F. In our many years' dealings you have treated us on the most sterling business principles, the fountain of which we believe to be your good head and good heart. We trust that, from this token of our esteem, you will draw inspirations through a long life of prosperity and happiness.

Signed on behalf of the Court.
W. KEMP, Chairman.
M. McCLELLAND.

Mr. Boddy expressed his appreciation of the kindness done him, and his gratitude for the gift.

TEACHER REMEMBERED

Mr. John Roszel was Presented with an Address by His Pupils

Mr. John Roszel, son of Peterborough's Chief, who has been for some time past teaching at Cold Springs, was on Friday night presented with an address and a handsome writing desk. The presentation which took place during the course of a concert held there, was made by Miss Hilda Shaughnessy, while the address, which was as follows, was read by Mr. A. Holden:

Dear Teacher,—We, the pupils of this school, under your charge and faithful tuition for the past year, were hoping that the kind and amiable relations existing between us, would not have been interrupted so soon; it was therefore with deep regret that we heard of your intentions to leave us. But we cannot allow you to go without saying that we are sorry, very sorry, to part with a teacher who has been so genial in his intercourse with us, so gentle to our faults, so considerate of our dispositions and thoughtless actions, many times, no doubt, trying enough to your patience.

Yet you were at all times unremitting in the earnest performance of the many duties that fell to the lot of the conscientious teacher. We know you will be glad to hear that we know that we are better boys and girls because of your example when among us, and the pains you have at all times taken to advance our interests.

We are too young to think much about the future, but we hear of the ups and downs of life, and think they are such that we may not all meet again.

We ask you therefore to accept of this writing desk. We do not expect that you will attach any importance to its intrinsic value, but we want you to accept it as a small memento of our kind regards for our future welfare and the place that you hold in our affections.

Hoping that we may always have reason to cherish kindly feelings and pleasant memories of each other, we wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the school,

Minnie Lynch, Sidney Reid, Elsie Frost, Wilbert Brown, Gladys Woolley, Arthur Holden, Ruth Waldie, Norman Welch, Addie Dickson, Ernest Kinney, Essie Doyell, Ernest Pelton, Hilda Shaughnessy.

Mother's Girl.

There exists often a very beautiful companionship between the mother and her daughter. The intimacy is frank, free and sympathetic. But some day the mother feels as if something had chilled this intimacy. The child is silent and sad, and seems to shun her mother instead of seeking her.

This change very often occurs when the young girl is crossing the border line of womanhood. She is morbid, nervous, fearful, as she enters upon this new experience.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription at such a time will do more than restore the normal balance of mind and body. It will establish the womanly function upon a basis of sound health, as well as improve the appetite, nourish the nerves, and promote the general physical health.

"Two years ago my daughter's health began to fail," writes Mrs. Dan Hall, of Brodhead, Green Co., Wis. "Everything that could be thought of was done to help her but it was of no use. When she began to complain she was quite stout; weighed 170—the picture of good health, until about the age of fourteen; then in six months she was so run down her weight was but 120. I felt I could not give her up as she was the only child I had, and I must say, Doctor, that only for your 'Favorite Prescription' my daughter would have been in her grave today. When she had taken one-half bottle the natural function was established and we bought another one, making only two bottles in all, and she completely recovered. Since then she is as well as can be."

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR THE MAYORALTY.

Card to the Electors of Peterborough

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

In response to the numerous representations which have been made to me upon the subject, personally, by requisition, and through the press, I place my services at the disposal of the public as a candidate for the Mayoralty at the approaching municipal elections.

My association with the important municipal advances which the Town has been making during recent years, will enable me to give continuity to the aggressive forward policy which the Council has sought to pursue, and to bring experience and information gained therein to bear upon the work and problems which still more immediately confront us.

While I cannot lay claim to all the qualifications which have been flatteringly ascribed to me, such capacity for the office as I do possess is cheerfully placed at your service, and I ask your sympathy and support in the effort to maintain the position and standing, and advance the welfare of our already prosperous and progressive Town.

Respectfully yours,

G. M. ROGER

EXCURSION TO BERLIN!

Farmers should be interested in the fact that an opportunity will be given them to thoroughly investigate the merits of the beet sugar industry as it is carried on at the large factory in Berlin. A special train has been secured for on or about December 30th, which will go and return the same day. The rate will not be higher than $2, return. The hour of starting will probably be about 6.30 a.m and of returning about 10 p. m.

—The man who has done his Christmas shopping may be known by the air of sweet content he wears; while the man who hasn't yet bought looks as if he were in a state of mind.

—The town of Orillia is making a successful demonstration of the benefits of municipal ownership of public utilities. The revenue from the electric light and waterworks plants last year was $11,893, whereas for 11 months of this year it is over $16,000. Operating expenses last year were $8,757, while this year they have been only $7,657, including nearly $2,000 of an overdraft from last year.

—Owen Sound, Ont., seems to be distinctly in favor of municipal ownership. The ratepayers there last week carried by large majorities by-laws in favor of purchasing the electric light and gas plants. They also voted in favor of giving exemption from taxation and free water to the new linseed oil industry which is to be established there.

A New Avenue of Pleasure.

My friend was holding a book not quite three inches from his nose, says a correspondent, and rapidly turning the leaves. I suggested that he do his dusting at a rather greater distance.

"You have made a slight mistake," said he. "I am not house-cleaning. I allow dust and cobwebs on my bottles only—not on my books."

"Then this rite of yours—" I began.

"That is the word," said he, pausing a moment to taste what I had said. "It is a rite, and only the elect, the knowing, are worthy to witness it."

"Seal me of the tribe," said I.

"I fear you could not understand," answered he, shaking his head doubtfully. "But listen, I was perfume hunting on the works of Charles Lamb. You came upon me as I was enjoying the aroma of Volume III.—the first Elia essays, you will remember. The two volumes of letters are also rather rare, but somehow this is the most delicate in odor of the entire set. Try it," he added, generously, handing over the volume. I sought to remember how he had held it.

"Nearer the nose," said he; "you're quite out of range." I adjusted the book to his satisfaction.

"And now you're ready for turning." I passed the three hundred pages rapidly in review before my waiting sense of smell.

"Your thumb touch is not delicate," exclaimed he with some impatience. "You bear on too hard. Just see how you've blunted the edge of the leaves. They should be sharp as a razor. Once again." I exerted myself to please him.

"That's good," said he. "Isn't it delicious?"

"I was so busy with the machinery of the thing that I forgot to try for the scent," I had to confess in some embarrassment. "And now, finally." This time I had mastered the mechanism, and was receptive to the message of the leaves.

"Well," said he, as I hesitated.

"Why, I got a subdued dusty and musty odor," replied I. "What else, indeed?"

"I, too, had to serve my apprenticeship," said he, in a tone of disappointment. "But if you have the stuff in you, there will come a time when this will be to you the rarest fragrance. Nature is well enough in its way, with flowers and foliage and the breath of cattle, but this is altogether finer, and makes its appeal to a more highly developed sense. Take the Bohn Library—publishers of Addison, Ricardo, Adam Smith. Of course, each book of theirs gives out its own peculiar whiff, but everything they publish comes up to a high standard. You appreciate that this perfume is not something applied to the completed book, as your maid puts cologne on her pocket-handkerchief. It is the very essence of the book. It is the product of binding, and leaves, and cover, and print—the perfect blend of the workmanship. Only the English can come at it. American books have too businesslike a smell. They are done in haste—machine made, and not put together by loving hands. I can always analyze the odor of these into its separate elements. The glazed paper, the glue, are irrepressible."

"It must take long training," said I, making ready to depart.

"The time is well spent," replied he, as he took down a volume of "The Spectator," and lovingly sampled it.

A Campaign in Which Money Will be the Only Weapon Permitted or to be Used

It Is Proposed Purchase the Holy Land From the Turks and Present It To the Jews

Greenwich, Conn., December 24. — The hearts of those who believe in the romantic side of existence will stir with a strange thrill at the story of a young man of quiet life and studious habits whose plan to purchase Palestine from the Turks and transform it into a Christian republic is becoming a topic of interest here and abroad.

Arthur Smedley Greene, is a young artistic designer who has devoted all his spare time to the study of the life of Jesus of Nazareth. Remembering the fruitless previous efforts to wrest the land where the Divine One lived and died from the Turk Mr. Greene boldly announces himself as the originator and head of a movement to accomplish, with the aid of the united people of Christendom, what armies of mailed men and religious enthusiasts have failed to bring to pass.

"While we carefully treasure, adore and venerate the birthplaces and tombs of our great warriors, poets and rulers," he says, "we look with apathy upon the home and tomb of the Man of Nazareth."

Much disturbed in mind, and in a constant state of prayer that guidance might be vouchsafed to him which would direct him aright, Mr. Greene sat in a solitary room in Greenwich one evening, after a hard day's work. Suddenly his surrounding faded, and before his gaze were spread the fertile plains, winding rivers and sacred mountains of Palestine.

In swift review there passed before him scenes of the long ago, and he saw the mighty deeds done on that land of legend. He saw the shepherds heard the chanting angels, and behold the gleaming star which guided the wise men to the manger. In his ears rang the immortal Sermon on the Mount; the Cross; the humiliation of death and the triumph of the Resurrection passed before him.

"Then," he said, with great simplicity of manner, "the scene changed, and I saw Peter the Hermit arousing Christendom to a bloody and fruitless war for the tomb of our Lord. I saw the flash of scimetars and the flag of the Crusaders. I saw the merited failure of a bloody combat to win the land of the Prince of Peace. I saw the wandering millions of the children of Israel, and felt all their vain longing. Suddenly a great white light obliterated the panorama. Like Paul, I cried: 'What wilt Thou have me to do? Swift came the answer, clear and distinct, 'Redeem the land of the Christ, and would that all men should be free.' "Then," continued this modern seer, "I saw, as plainly as I see you, a beautiful, saintly looking flag floating over me. It was the Nazarene blue, with a cross and crown, and the Star of Bethlehem shining. Below, while I looked, a second star formed, brilliantly, and I knew without words that it was the star of promise: If I go I will come again."

PROMISES MUCH WEALTH.

Since he began to work for his idea letters have poured in on him with offers of assistance, and to-day, a few months from the time of his beautiful vision, Arthur Greene finds himself busy with the organization of an international society, which will speedily inaugurate the great work.

Wealthy people have promised aid and incorporation papers are being prepared, which will be a guarantee by reason of the names of the signers, of honest and practical management of funds. National banks will be used for deposit, and every protection which the law of Christian nations can furnish will be thrown around the project. Entirely unsectarian in character, embracing, as it does, the dearest wishes of Catholic, Protestant and Hebrew, it is expected that this bloodless "Twentieth Century Crusade for Palestine" will accomplish what previous efforts have failed to achieve.

Governments will not be asked to act as Governments, but all the people of all the Christian nations will be welcomed into the ranks of the International Crusade. Special deputations will wait upon all Christian sovereigns and the Presidents of the United States and of France. Arrangements will be made for an interview with Pope Leo and the great leaders of thought in the world. Young Arthur Greene will himself appear in all the great cities of Europe and America, bearing the flag of the Crusade. Men and women of great prominence are already behind this work, and the officers of the chartered association will be those whose names are guarantees of probity. Mr. Greene has been requested to address the International Peace Union of Philadelphia, but declined for the present.

TO BUY PALESTINE.

Richard Gottheil, President of the American Federation of Zionists, has written to say to him that he thinks "it would be well for the Christians to buy Palestine and present it to the Jews as a recompense for 2,000 years of persecution." One of the most celebrated and picturesque lecturers in the United States has been engaged to speak to the people.

The early months of the new year will witness the formal opening of the "New Twentieth Century Crusade for the possession of Palestine." The scheme includes the restoration of its seaports, the reclaiming of arid lands and all that modern engineering and agriculture can do. Nothing so picturesque and romantic has engaged public attention since the strong arm of Uncle Sam reached out to wrest Cuba from Spain. There is this difference—all nations and all people who worship one God and believe that the divine spirit dwelt in Jesus of Nazareth will be interested in this movement. There will be no armies save those of peace; no battles save those of persuasion; no flag except the blue of Nazarene, with its white field and its two silver stars—the one of Bethlehem and one of the "Second Coming."

It remains to be seen how the modern world of commerce and money getting will receive this young crusader.

He is in earnest and has set to work in a practical manner. Personally Mr. Greene is modest and of unassuming manners. About 30, fair, with blue eyes, light hair and a slight figure, he is the exact opposite of the old crusaders. Always with him will be the large and beautiful blue flag, with the white field and two stars.

Excellent Showing in the Minister of Finance's Statement

Rome, Dec. 23.—The statement of Signor Carcano, Minister of Finance, issued to-day is an excellent showing. The budget for 1901-02 which included the expense of the China expedition, shows a surplus of 32,000,000 lire. The surplus for 1902-03 is estimated at 16,000,000 lire and for 1903-04 at 4,000,000 lire.

The economic development of the country, the statement says, shows progress.

U. S. OFFICERS ARRESTED

Charged With Smuggling Liquor Into Porto Rico,

San Juan, P. R., Dec. 24.—B. F. Butler, Supervisor of Elections; Commander G. W. Mentz of the United States Marine Corps and J. A. Brennan were arrested today by United States Commissioner Anderson on the charge of having smuggled sixty-four cases of liquor from St. Thomas by the United States tug Uncas and the lighthouse tender Laurel.

There will be preliminary hearings in these cases on Monday and Tuesday. All the accused were released on $2,000 bail.

The charges were preferred by Customs Inspector P. M. Mattleson. This sort of smuggling has been going on for a long time and it is alleged that other arrests will follow. The liquors were used at the Century Club, of which Mr. Butler is an officer and Brennan the steward.

A PLOT TO GRAB SOUTH AMERICA

What a Prominent American Sees in the Venezuelan Rupture

IS FAMILIAR WITH THE COUNTRY

And Has No Doubt That Germany is Putting Up a Huge Job on the United States

New York, Dec. 24.—Emory C. White, a cousin of Gov. Albert B. White of West Virginia, and for twenty years the head of a house which has extensive interests throughout South America, has just returned to this city, having been with his family in different South American countries steadily for two years.

For many years Mr. White has been regarded as an authority on South American affairs. He considers the present situation in Venezuela is ominous in the extreme. He declares that Germany's attitude toward Venezuela is part of a carefully laid plan to get a foothold somewhere in South America, and that there is no turning back until the Monroe Doctrine has been shattered.

Mr. White says that in 1896 Germany had all of South America carefully mapped, and that her line of action, in the event of hostilities, has been decided on.

She has placed Venezuela, he says, in a position where the best settlement she can make is to give Germany a mortgage on the country on which she cannot even pay the interest. Between owning the country by conquest or owning it by an irremovable mortgage, Mr. White can see little difference.

REALISTIC GHOST DOINGS

The Reproduction of a Tragedy Interrupts a Honeymoon

Kokomo, Ind., Dec. 23.—Ghosts broke up the first day's housekeeping of a bride and groom here. Yesterday Charles Abney and bride moved into a house where murder had been committed. Three years ago Herman Schultz, a returned Spanish-American soldier, was murdered at a dance in this house by Arthur Woolford, who is now serving a prison term for the crime. Since the tragedy the house has had numerous tenants, none of whom remained longer than a few days.

Yesterday Abney and his bride moved in. To-day they moved out. Last night, soon after the couple retired to bed, the doors of the house opened and there was the noise of entering of guests. The room was filled with invisible guests. Presently a squeaky violin was heard, accompanied by the clatter of feet and the swirl and swish of skirts around the room. Voices revealed a quarrel of two men over a girl, each claiming her as a dancing partner. Then followed a pistol shot and the noise of the victim falling to the floor. The ghastly affair was a faithful reproduction of the dance and tragedy of three years ago in which the young soldier lost his life.

Schultz, the victim, was a member of Company L, 158th Indiana, Regiment. Jacob Harness, an uncle of Judge B. Harness of the Howard Superior Court, occupied the house at the time of the murder. He soon moved out, as did all other later tenants. All the neighbors certify to mysterious visitations, and frequently ghostly apparitions. Abney and his bride remained in the house but six hours.

Dresden, Saxony, Dec. 23—The Crown Princess of Saxony fled from her home on the night of Dec. 11, according to the Dresden Journal. She is said to have suddenly, in a state of intense mental excitement, deserted her family at Salzburg, and to have gone abroad.

Saxon court functions for the winter have been cancelled, including the New Year's reception.

Prince Friedrich August, Crown Prince of Saxony, was married November 21, 1891, to Princess Louise of Tuscany. They have five children.

A HORRIBLE TRAGEDY AT MIDDLEPORT, ONTARIO

Wesley Watson Instantly Killed by His Brother Had Returned Home to Spend Christmas

Brantford, Dec. 23—A horrible tragedy occurred about 9 o'clock this morning at Middleport, about 12 miles from this city, Wesley Watson being shot and instantly killed by one of his brothers. Accurate details of the awful affair are lacking, no report of it having been made to the police up to noon, but the story is a very unusual one. Two brothers, Samuel and James Watson, run the the farm near Middleport, and the third brother, Wesley, has made his home in Detroit for some time past. Last night he came home, unexpectedly, it is supposed, to spend the Christmas holidays. The brothers at home, both men over thirty years of age, heard him approaching the house, and apparently they became possessed of the fear that they were about to be attacked by burglars.

Report has it that they ran upstairs and getting out of a window went to the house of a neighbor where they spent the night. About 9 o'clock this morning they returned, armed with a shotgun. Wesley had gone into the house, and finding no one there, went to bed. When his two brothers opened the door of the room, in which he was sleeping, he raised himself in the bed. They failed to recognize him. Instantly they aimed the shotgun at him, and the contents lodged in his face, killing him instantly. The story of the terrible affair was brought to the city first by Mr. James Jamieson, who lives about half a mile from the place where the shooting occurred. It is not known yet what action will be taken.

Russia Has to Spend Millions to Relieve Distress

St. Petersburg, Dec. 23 —The Russian government has drawn up a comprehensive plan for feeding the people who are today in a state of semi-starvation as a result of crop failures and generally relieving the distress which is at present widespread throughout the government of European Russia and some districts of Siberia. The sum of $3,331,500 has already been expended in relief work, but further great sums will be necessary to support the people of the afflicted districts and enable them to resume farming in the spring.

MR. L. J. COSGRAVE

Well-Known Brewer Mentioned for Appointment to the Senate

Toronto, Dec. 23—Mr. Lawrence J. Cosgrave, whose name is now being canvassed for one of the vacancies in the Senate, is three weeks more than 60 years old, having been born on December 6, 1852. Mr. Cosgrave attended the Toronto Separate School, and afterwards a course in St. Michael's College. He left school when young and immediately entered the brewery which his father has established on Niagara street in 1863. He has remained in the business ever since, and became head of the concern 15 years ago. The success which attended his efforts in business are well known.

BRITISH COLUMBIA AND THE DOMINION

It Is Said that the Province Has Defined the Ottawa Government

All Over the Admission of Japs Into Who are Regarded as Bad as Chinese

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—The obstinacy of the British Columbia Government threatens to get Great Britain into dispute with Japan.

For many years past the increasing Japanese immigration has been a source of trouble to the Government and people of British Columbia. They attempted in vain to obtain legislation by the Dominion Government against the admission of Japanese immigrants. Then they legislated against it themselves, but having no constitutional authority to do so, their enactment were disallowed.

An appeal was made to England by both British Columbia and Japan, and the latter being on most friendly terms with Great Britain the decision was against British Columbia. Nevertheless the British Columbia Legislature, recently enacted a law to provide against the admission into the country of any immigrants who could not speak one European language. This was also disallowed at at Ottawa on December 5, and notice to that effect was forwarded to the Lieutenant Governor.

It now seems as if the British Columbians were determined to set the Canadian Government at defiance, for official information has been received to the effect that nineteen Japanese have been arrested and jailed in the Pacific province, under the provisions of the statute which has been disallowed.

Orders have been sent from Ottawa to Victoria, for the release of the imprisoned Japanese, and a conflict of authority is feared. The Japanese Government is understood to be in communication with Great Britain on the subject.

Railroad Employees Demand an Increase

Rat Steals $1,000—Disbanded a Regiment

New York, Dec. 23—A rat yesterday stole a one-thousand dollar bill from C. H. Landell's pharmacy, Avenue D and Thirty-second street, Bayonne. The bill was received by Mr. Landell on Friday, too late to be deposited in the bank, so he placed it in his waistcoat pocket, and made a number of his friends feel ill by showing it to them.

When he awoke yesterday the bill was gone. There was no sign of burglars and a thorough search of the store was fruitless. In the storeroom, however, the druggist saw a rat dart into a hole. While plugging up the hole he caught sight of something green, and fished out his one-thousand-dollar bill. Then his heart beat normally.

New Orleans, Dec. 23—The first Regiment of the Louisiana State National Guard has been disbanded by order of Adjutant-General Jumel for failure to comply with the laws and regulations governing the guard.

The Louisiana Guard has been in a state of disintegration for some time. The Spanish war hurt it by taking off most of the companies which entered the Volunteer service. The recent street car strike completed the wreck, as many of the soldiers refused to turn out against the strikers. One entire company of the First Regiment of Wwing Guards, resigned in a body rather than serve.

Chicago, Dec. 22—About one hundred and fifty thousand employees on the railroads running out of this city, all members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Order of Railroad Conductors, are affected by the demand for a 20 per cent. increase in the wages of passenger and freight conductors and brakemen. The trainmen give as their reason for asking for an increase in wages the fact that trains are much heavier now than in former years, and that more hours are required to run a given number of miles. It is asserted that the work of conductors and brakemen has been almost doubled.

Sydney, C.B., Dec. 20—It was rather an amusing sight yesterday to see a number of loosely attired Celestials endeavoring to master on Wentworth Creek, the graceful art of skating. Johnnie's little feet were incased in the usual felt-soled shoe, covered with a rubber, and then the hockey skate was lashed thereto with strong cords. Just as he was prepared to make a masterly glide the little feet would become unmanageable, and after going promiscuously through the different attitudes of several Dutch rolls he would end up in a somersault as ungraceful as it was disappointing to the knight of the washtub. The exhibition was witnessed by a large number and the Chinamen seemed well pleased that their performance was attracting such attention.

CHRISTMAS MAIL BURNED

One Load Takes Fire and Only a Few Pouches Saved

Syracuse, N.Y., Dec. 24—Official report of the burning of a car load of Christmas mail enroute for the west was made here at 3.45 o'clock today by the crew of mail clerks arriving here from New York on the fast mail, No 3, on the New York Central, which left New York at 8.45. Only 30 or left New York at 8.45 Only 30 or 40 out of seven or eight hundred pouches were saved, the burned mail being for Chicago and points further west, including the Philippines and Fiji Islands. The mail was in a storage car which carried no clerks. The crew was on the car behind and discovered the fire between Peekskill and Highland. The car was left burning at the latter station.

How the Political Slate Stands.

Now that the dates for holding the bye-elections have been fixed it will be interesting to know how how the political parties stand in Ontario.

Only three elections have been voided. One protest, East Middlesex, will be decided on Monday next, Dec. 29th, when the rota judges will determine whether Dr. Routledge, the Liberal member elect, is entitled to hold his seat.

Although the petitions in Lennox and South Oxford were dismissed by the election courts, they are not yet finally disposed of, appeals to the full court of appeal having been entered on certain specific charges, in each of which trial judges disagreed. The chief justice of the court of appeal has notified the solicitors for both sides that these cases must be heard in the above order, commencing on Wednesday, January 7, 1903, at 11 o'clock, at Osgoode Hall. Arrangements have been made to ensure a full bench. Here is how the parties stand:

Liberals	48
Conservatives	46
Vacant ridings	4
	98

North Renfrew was rendered vacant on the death of J. W. Munro shortly after his election by a Liberal majority of 250. A somewhat peculiar technicality prevents this seat from becoming legally vaided until the legislature meets. Before the riding can be officially declared open it will be necessary for two members of the legislature to notify the government, and this cannot be done until parliament opens, as, until the elected candidates are formally sworn in they are not de jure members of the provincial parliament. Both sides are of course preparing actively for their new trial of strength.

In North Grey the same candidates are again in the field, G. M. Boyd for the Conservatives, and A. G. McKay for the Liberals.

In North Norfolk the Liberals have selected Mr. A. M. Little as their candidate. Dr. Fred. S. Snider, the Conservative candidate, was elected by 30 votes in May, but was unseated by the Courts. It is expected that the election here will be close.

The last election in North Perth was very close, J. C. Monteith, Conservative, defeating John Brown by only two votes. He was unseated on scrutiny.

Archbishop Temple's Death.

Most Prominent Figure in the Anglican World Crosses the Bar

London, Dec. 23—The Most Rev. Frederick Temple, Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of all England, who had been ill for some time past, is dead. The Archbishop passed away quite peacefully at 8.15 o'clock, in the presence of his wife and two sons. His death was anticipated for some days, and only his remarkable vitality enabled him to counteract his extreme weakness. The final collapse occurred about 6 o'clock and he was unconscious toward the end. The Prelate died of old age. The pathetic scene in Westminster Abbey at the coronation of King Edward was one of the earlier indications of his failing strength. Then came the collapse in the House of Lords at the conclusion of a vigorous speech in support of the education bill. He had not left his bed since. He will be buried at Canterbury. The Bishop of Winchester is considered likely to be his successor.

The Most Rev. Frederick Temple, D.D., LL.D., Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of all England, was a son of Major Octavius Temple, late Governor of Sierra Leone, and was born in 1821, in Santa Maura, Ionian Islands. He was educated at Tiverton Grammar School, and at Balliol College, Oxford, where he took his B.A. degree in 1842, as a double first class. He was ordained in 1846 and was appointed Principal of the Training College at Kneller Hall in 1848. This position he resigned in 1855. In 1858 he was appointed Head Master of Rugby School, on the resignation of Dr. Goulburn. In 1860 an essay on "Education of the World" was regarded by many as covering of German rationalistic tendencies. In 1868 he strongly supported Mr. Gladstone's measure for the disestablishment of the Church of Ireland, and Mr. Gladstone nominated him for the Bishopric of Exeter. His appointment caused considerable commotion in clerical circles at the time, as the Church of England clergy had strongly supported the claims of their sister church of Ireland. His consecration was opposed by Bishop Trower, and counsel having been heard on both sides the election of Dr. Temple was confirmed by the Vicar-General. In 1861 he published his sermons preached in Rugby Chapel, in 1858-60. He was elected Brampton Lecturer at Oxford for 1883 and his lectures were on "The Relation Between Religion and Science," which were subsequently published. On the death of Dr. Jackson in January, 1885, Dr. Temple was appointed Bishop of London, and in 1896 he succeeded Archbishop Benson in the See of Canterbury. To the surprise of many, after his appointment to the See of London he was a disciplinarian and a conservative in matters affecting the standard of clerical education, and since his appointment as Archbishop he had been the champion of orthodoxy. In 1897 along with the Archbishop of York, he issued a learned and lengthy reply to the Pope's Bull on Anglican Orders. The significant motto of the reply was "Give Peace in our Time, O Lord." In 1898 in Maidstone Parish Church, when speaking on ecclesiastical matters, he said—"The sacramental is the order of the Church; the teaching must be to a large extent the voice of the individual." He married in 1876, Beatrice, daughter of the late Right Hon. W. L. Lascelles.

Risk of Complications with Other Powers--Real American Objection to Roosevelt Acting as Venezuelan Arbitrator

London, Dec. 23—The Times says today editorially:—"The real American objection to President Roosevelt acting as arbitrator in the Venezuelan matter probably is the dislike of seeing him take steps involving the risk of complications with other powers. The maintenance of the Monroe doctrine must tend to involve a measure of responsibility for those upholding its doctrine which of necessity implies duties as well as rights on part of those asserting it. We do not pretend it can make the United States of America in any way responsible for the misdeeds of the South American Republics, but it does seem to us to impose moral obligations on the United States of America to see that those Republics do not profit by their own wrong doing."

Struggle Over the Presidency

London, Dec. 23—A correspondent at Athens says the King in opening the Chamber on Monday, alluded to the general unsatisfactory condition of the country, and appealed to the Chamber for the support of measures for improving the public administration, satisfying the wants of the army and navy of Greece, and developing the productive forces of the country. In his plea for support the King stated that funds would be provided for the purposes stated, by the curtailment of unnecessary expenses and efforts to conduct the Government without fresh loans or additional taxes. Before the arrival of the King a scene resulted over the disputed Presidency of the Chamber. Until the President is elected, the Presidency belongs to the oldest member. The claim of seniority was advanced by both the Delyannist and Theotokist faction. The keys of the house were in the hands of the Theotokist party last in power, who refused to surrender them. The Delyannists, in the hope of forestalling the Opposition, entered the House at daybreak through the back window, aided by the Police and fire-escape ladders. Once in possession they installed their candidate as President, and prepared to maintain him in authority. When the Chamber assembled a scuffle ensued. The Theotokists, after protesting in vain, departed before the arrival of the King.

Europe Astonished at England.

London, Dec. 23—A correspondent in Berlin today in referring to the German comments on the general hostility displayed towards Germany in connection with the difficulties in Venezuela says that so far as he can judge, the European press is not hostile to Germany, but is astonished at England's co-operation with Germany at such a juncture in such a cause. The correspondent adds that it is accepted as a cardinal fact that the maintenance of the ties uniting England and America in a relationship unparalleled in the whole world is one of the sacredest duties of the English-speaking race. It appears to be understood by the greater portion of Europe, he continues, that it would not be English to encourage any third parties to encourage any third parties to tamper with the peculiar community of sentiment uniting America and Great Britain. It is the idea, perhaps mistaken, that British statesmen have not been quite careful enough to vindicate these elementary principles which excites the most surprise.

Tolstoi is Seriously Ill.

London, Dec. 23—A St. Petersburg correspondent states that according to a telegram from the wife of Count Leo Tolstoi, that famous philosopher and author is again seriously ill. For two days he has been suffering from a severe fever. The cause of his illness at present is unknown.

SENT SEVERED HAND BY MAIL

Pension Exhibit Which Startled Representative Brown of Wisconsin

Washington, Dec. 23.—Representative Brown of Wisconsin has three hands. The third one came to him this morning through mail. When he called at the House post office for his mail the clerk handed him a small package which looked much as if it might contain a Christmas present from an admiring constituent. Mr. Brown apeared to be pleased and walked smilingly away to his committee room. There he carefully unwrapped package and to his horror and amazement found packed in a roll of cotton a human hand. The Congressman dropped the package and gave vent to an expletive.

A letter explained the matter. The hand came from one of Mr. Brown's constituents, Adam Gosbrge, who is an old soldier and wishes to have the hand exhibited as evidence before the Pension examiners. He was shot while in the army, and as a result of the injury the hand was amputated several years ago. Gosbrge has since preserved it in alcohol. Mr Brown has placed the "evidence" in cold storage.

CHILD LIFE INSURANCE

Life insurance for children is a large business in Pennsylvania. The commissioner states that there are held at present risks on the lives of three million persons under the age of twelve years. In Philadelphia alone more than 240,000 infants are insured. As a result of these disclosures, a bill is to be introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature, with the purpose of limiting this class of insurance. The measure will provide that a policy must not be issued upon a child under eight years of age. With most parents who insure the lives of their young children, the purpose is, of course, to provide for the payment of funeral exenses in case the little one should die, and that may be regarded as the nature of wise foresight, but the Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner points out that there is always a temptation in the way of little children. The Missouri Statute, in substance, declares this clause to be without effect, and the statute is now upheld by the highest court.

It is already the rule with some of the old line companies, and will likely become the almost uniform rule not long hence, to eliminate the suicide clause as a defence against the payment of life insurance.

SOME YANKEE MINISTERS AND SANTA CLAUS

From Hamilton, Ohio, comes the startling news that Santa Claus must go. The Hamilton Ministerial Alliance, after a brilliant debate on the Christmas tree and other barbarous impositions upon Sunday school children, resolved to turn out Santa Claus.

Once upon a time there was a bull, and a very bossy bull at that. He knocked the fence of a choice vegetable garden into the garden, walked in and proceeded to partake of all the good things over-ground. The gardener rushed over to the homestead and complained to the farmer of the bull. "Turn him out! Turn him out immediately!" roared the farmer. "Nothing would please me more than to obey your order, sir," said the gardener, "but the trouble is he won't go!"

The Hamilton Ministerial Alliance is in a fix exactly similar to that of the poor gardener. It may "resolute and resolute," till the crows get gray, but it will never disturb a drum, a bugle or a doll on Santa's back or close up the top of a single chimney. Santa Claus every year will continue to bring joy to the hearts of the children, and when they are happy, what matter about the rest of us. Let the drums roll, let the bugles call, let the dolls say "Mamma," and let us all shout "Long Live Santa Claus!"

SCIENCE IN CENTRAL AFRICA

The British South Africa Company is about to expend $85,000 to give the British Association a free trip to Central Africa, that scientific body having accepted the invitation to hold its meeting in 1905 at Victoria Falls on the Zambezi River. The South Africa Company will have a hotel ready for the occasion.

A few days over forty-eight years ago Livingstone discovered these falls. With his sublime faith in the future of Africa he believed that the region thereabouts was marked for special development. He saw there the elements of material progress, such as water power, coal, abundant vegetable products, cattle and intelligent though barbarous natives. Let us see if his dream is coming true.

"I hope God will in mercy permit me to establish the Gospel somewhere in this region," he wrote from the Upper Zambezi. This very year Lewanika, the King of that country, when in London to attend the coronation of Edward VII., asked for more teachers and artisans so that all of his people may learn to read and more of them be able to build frame houses and work iron.

Not far from Victoria Falls Livingstone found the only indication of coal yet revealed in tropical Africa. The British are now preparing to mine the coal. The railroad from Cape Town and Bulwayo is, day by day drawing nearer to Victoria Falls where the South Africa Company is preparing to turn the vast water power into electricity. Livingstone was not the half-cracked enthusiast that many persons believed him to be.

England's men of science will see at Victoria Falls one of the wonders of the world. The broad Zambezi suddenly seems to vanish into the bowels of the earth. A wide crack in the hard basaltic rock was opened, ages ago, from bank to bank. Nowhere else is a great river suddenly seen wholly to disapear in a narrow, rocky chasm. At the bottom of this deep rift in the rock engulfed waters emerge through a narrow gullet on the left, which is thirty-six times narrower than the river above the falls. Any geologist would jump at the opportunity to study this remarkable freak of nature.

The hotel will be built for the permanent convenience of all visitors to this wonderful region. Africa is no longer the Dark Continent.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

In response to the numerous representations which have been made to me upon the subject, personally, by requisition, and through the press, I place my services at the disposal of the public as a candidate for the Mayoralty at the approaching municipal elections.

My association with the important municipal advances which the Town has been making during recent years, will enable me to give continuity to the aggressive forward policy which the Council has sought to pursue, and to bring experience and information gained therein to bear upon the work and problems which still more immediately confront us.

While I cannot lay claim to all the qualifications which have been flatteringly ascribed to me, such capacity for the office as I do possess is cheerfully placed at your service, and I ask your sympathy and support in the effort to maintain the position and standing, and advance the welfare of our already prosperous and progressive Town.

A ROMANCE.

their sweet solicitude deepening as he answered that his arm had sustained some injury, and surgeon had found it necessary to reset it that morning.

He then hastened to present his friend, Sir Wilfrid Hale, to herself and Hilda, who had been hanging back, with a somewhat cold and indifferent air. She rallied, however, at Florence's side look of displeasure, and, coming forward, allowed the visitors to shake the slim tips of her fingers, while she answered to their inquiries that she was as well as usual, and her wrist not so very painful.

Mr. Courtenaye turned to Florence then, and preferred a somewhat surprising request:—

"I should like a private interview with your father, Miss Aylesford, if he is at home."

"With papa? Oh, certainly. John," said she, turning to a white-aproned old negro servitor, who was passing through the hall, "John, take these gentlemen's cards to my father in the library, and conduct them thither."

The "library" meant a large, airy room, with windows opening on the long piazza. It was a parlor and sitting-room also, perhaps, for only one end of it was occupied by the book-cases and desks; the other end held a small cottage piano, a pretty sewing-chair, and was ornamented with pictures, vases of flowers, and a round table, littered with fashion magazines, a little work-basket, and a few drawing materials. The visitors failed to take in these details for some time, however, so completely did their host absorb their attention.

Mr. Aylesford was a tall, spare man, perhaps fifty years old, cleanly shaven, with blue eyes and gray hair. He was dressed in simple, dark habiliments, with spotless linen, like a gentleman, and bore himself with a rather pompous air. He advanced to meet his visitors, flourishing their cards in one hand, and cordially extending the other.

"Sir Wilfrid Hale, Mr. Courtenaye," said he, with insinuating suavity, "I have the honor to welcome you to the poor abode of a reduced gentleman."

The English visitors returned this somewhat pompous salutation rather stiffly, with the proverbial reserve of Britons, and accepted the chairs the obsequious attendant placed for them. After he had quietly withdrawn, and they had briefly discussed the event of the evening before, and warmly commended Hilda's heroism, they entered upon an important business matter that had prompted their morning call.

Meanwhile Hilda had gone back to her restless tramp up and down the length of the piazza, and Florence to her rocking chair in a spasm of curiosity. There was a vast difference in the two girls both by nature and education. Florence had been given the combined advantages and disadvantages of a modern boarding-school education. Hilda had only picked up knowledge from her father's heterogeneous collection of books, with the airy daintiness and fickleness of the tiny humming-bird that flutters from flower to flower. She had absorbed some good, and perhaps some evil, in that desultory course of reading; but evil, when it touched her, was evanescent as the fleeting mists of her mountain home, and melted in the sunshine of her native purity. So their different rearing had only widened the palpable unlikeliness of the blonde and the brunette. Florence was the apt pupil of coquetry, dissimulation, and art; Hilda the frank and heedless child of nature.

"Hilda, I do wonder what they can want of papa!" exclaimed Florence, moving her chair a little nearer in the line of Hilda's weary march. "As sure as you live, Hilda, that affair of yesterday is going to make your fortune. Yes, indeed, the old man means to adopt you for his heiress, or the young one means to settle a fortune on you."

Miss Aylesford's eyes shone wide and blue with excitement. Her sister stopped, looked at her a moment, then laughed outright. She had a very musical laugh— all natural mirth sounds sweet— and the gay, incredulous chime rang out mockingly.

"Then he would be a fairy prince, would he not, Flo?" said she, and the clear, high voice, and the witching diablerie of the laugh floated through the open window to the hearing of the gentlemen, provoking a pleased smile on the lip of Sir Wilfred Hale, while his dignified friend actually glanced toward the window, as if the sound had a luring spell.

"Hilda, if he does you must give me a new piano— you will, won't you? You were always generous, though you have so little to give. And some new jewelry— I dote on handsome jewels, but poor papa has so little to spend on me. And we can travel and live in the great cities—I hate this dull, mountain home. Oh, you will be able to do so much for poor papa and me! And it will be such a pleasure to you—won't it dear?"

Florence had risen, and was walking up and down by Hilda's side, with her arm about her neck. She knew as no one else did the key-note to Hilda's nature, though she never touched it save for some wheedling, selfish purpose. The wild nature that harshness and injustice could never tame melted into sweetness at the touch of love. She turned around, with a great dew of tenderness in her large black eyes, and clasped her arms about the fair dissembler's neck.

"Florry," said she, "you know I would give you anything I have — though it is little enough, Heaven knows— when you are good to me. I would not accept anything from these gentlemen if they were kind enough to offer it to me — not a penny for myself. But if they forced it upon papa — and you know that might be easy enough with him— you might have it all freely, you and papa."

Florence turned round and kissed the smooth olive cheek so near her own— a Judas kiss, whose duplicity Hilda's innocent soul could not fathom.

"You dear, generous little soul!" said she to Hilda.

So they walked up and down, talking very amiably together, Florence building some very fine chateaux en Espagne out of very uncertain material, until Hilda took a fancy to go down and look at the gentlemen's horses, and Florence returned to her embroidery.

But in a moment a joyous laugh floated back to her, and she glanced up. Her sister was sitting in Mr. Courtenaye's saddle. She leaned over possessed herself of the straw hat of the waiting- boy, and set it jauntily back on her head.

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organised to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are :—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey :—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles ; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows :—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows :—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25

July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows :—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years	$670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000 00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's share common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

BECAUSE

THE SOUR LAKE OIL CO.

Has placed four-fifths of its stock in the treasury for development work; and because

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines, and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz, and quartzite, all horning more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $60 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $35 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Price is now 25 cents a share, and we offer 50,000 shares at this price, but it may be advanced by January 1st, 1903, to 50 cents a share.

BARGAIN DAY

Your opportunity for making a conservative investment or judicious speculative purchase is right now. Present market, with conditions for the future as favorable as they are, and with prices down to $10 to $20 per share, the reason for the decline, being principally behind instead of ahead of the market, make stocks most attractive at present. We will be pleased upon inquiry to notate briefly our reasons for an advance in price; also to name the stocks we believe will make the most decisive and best advances.

Let us send you a copy of our 400-page "Guide to Investors," also our up-to-the-minute "Daily Market Letter." STOCK MARKETS

A Scale System

New York, Dec. 23.—We announced in Monday's letter that we would apply the scale system of trading to Union Pacific and Southern Pacific in our Tuesday's letter, so we take up the subject as promised. These two stocks are especially good for profitable operations based on the system mentioned, owing to their usually regular fluctuations of 1-8 at a time, rising and falling in this manner with the ebb and flow of the tide of speculation. If you will note the fluctuations of these two stocks during any given period, you will observe the general fact that after movement in either direction of from two to three points they will turn in the opposite direction usually, regaining from one third to one half of the previous extreme fluctuations, even if the movement in the given direction be unfinished. To make this clear, we would say suppose Union Pacific were in the process of declining, and in two or three days trading had declined from 103 to 100, even if the downward movement were not over the stock would be likely to advance from 100 to between 101 and 101 1-2 before it fell materially below 100. The scale system which causes you to make a purchase after a two to three point decline, or to make a sale after a two to three point advance, would enable you to catch a profit of one point to a point and one half. Suppose you had a two hundred dollar account with us and were waiting an opportunity to work in this manner in Union Pacific stock. After the decline from ten per cent. to say par or par and a half, you would purchase ten shares in the market. Should the stock still decline, to say 99, you would purchase 10 shares more, if before a recovery set in the stock continued to decline you would then buy twenty shares at say 97; in four cases of five you would be able to sell the entire amount of stock thus purchased at such a price as would net you a profit upon the complete series of transactions. This admits of a steady fall in Union Pacific from 103 to 97 or six points. If you take the quotation list you will find that in four cases out of five at any given period you may select, covering any kind of market existent, Union Pacific will not move six points in either direction without once or twice moving in the opposite direction. We will continue this subject tomorrow at least to the extent of third its previous movement.

Summary—We trust our strong tip in these letters will prove beneficial to you and that you availed yourself of them. We are still bullish upon these two stocks, but as we said a few days ago we now prefer buying the A. C. P. to sugar. They are both good to purchase on reactions. The market's principal strength was centered in L. N., Reading and Illinois Central. L. N. rose nearly 3 points, then lost it. Reading was bid up to 64 5-8, while Illinois Central was in good demand, crossing 145. The market was reactory, due to profit-taking, notably in stocks which have made the best recent advances. The decline which was a small one was not unexpected. Stocks are in purchase on the reaction. Movements will be more or less small and concentrated pending the holiday, and prices will show material improvement directly after the first of the year. Money closed last loan 6 per cent. Sales 581,800.

Will Go to Winnipeg

The members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Lindsay and citizens generally of that town are grieved at the announcement made yesterday by by the pastor, Rev. J. W. MacMillan, that he had decided to accept the call to St. Andrew's, Winnipeg. Mr. MacMillan's many friends in Peterborough will also regret his departure.

TERRIBLY SUDDEN DEATH

A Fourteen Year Old Son of Mr. W. H. Gray Passes Away

The public will sympathise with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gray in the loss they have sustained through the death of their son, Harold, which sad event occurred yesterday morning. The lad who was 14 years of age, was stricken with pneumonia on Friday last, and succumbed to the terrible disease at 1.30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Of a kind and obliging disposition, Harold was a general favorite with his playmates and others, who will greatly miss his pleasant face and cheerful voice. The funeral will take place this afternoon from the family residence, 510 Water street, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF FEVER

Death of Katie Elliott Last Night of Scarlet Fever

The citizens will deeply sympathise with Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Elliott, of 100 London street, in the death of their darling little daughter Katie, who passed away last night, about 8.30, of scarlet fever, aged 8 years. This is the second death in the family from this dread disease, the first, a child three years of age, having passed away only a few days ago. Katie was a winsome child, dearly beloved by her playmates and friends, by whom her death will be deeply felt. The Times joins in extending its heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family. Another child, who took the fever, is happily out of danger.

Inland Wireless Telegraphy

The announcement of the successful transatlantic wireless telegraphy, by Sig. Marconi makes the question of inland telegraphy by the same method a prominent one. A company was incorporated some time ago in Canada by Marconi for this purpose. Mr. W. Barwick, of Barwick, Aylesworth, Wright & Moss, Toronto, is the solicitor for the company, and attended to its incorporation under Ontario charter for operation in the Dominion. Mr. Barwick when asked whether any thing was being done in the way of arranging for the operation of the company, said that nothing new had occurred since its incorporation. It is probably now, however, that with the perfection of the Atlantic system, the establishment of an inland system will be taken up and vigorously carried out.

CORDAGE WORKS VISITED

By Mayor and Members of the Council with Prominent Citizens

The Cordage Company's plant was visited yesterday by Mayor Denne, and members of the Council, together with several prominent citizens. The visit was in accordance with an invitation of the President who provided several sleighs in which the party drove down to the works. The party was made up as follows:—His Worship Mayor T. H. G. Denne, Aldermen R. Clinkscale, and R. Shortly, Messrs. Peter Campbell, Manager Bank of Toronto, John Crane, Manager Ontario Bank, W. H. Hogg, Manager Bank of Montreal, D. Hugh-s-Charles, Manager Canadian Bank of Commerce, R. M. Hamilton, Assistant Manager Bank of Montreal, T. F. Matthews, of the George Matthews Company, Limited. G. Fessenden, Principal Collegiate Institute, C. H. Beck, Vincent Eastwood, James English and Wm. Fair.

At the works the party was personally conducted through by Mr. Adam Hall, President, and Messrs. Holmes, Coulthard, Fowler, of the Company's staff, who were most courteous in their efforts to explain the details of the manufacture of the Company's splendid brands of twine, etc.

The visitors expressed themselves as highly pleased with the completeness of the establishment and the facilities for producing the best twine in the Dominion. It is an industry that the town may well feel proud of.

Hearts That Are Stormed

Ferrozone is precisely what to take. It gives you an appetite and a digestion that will look after everything that is eaten. Ferrozone improves nutrition, makes rich vitalizing blood, and is positively the most powerful restorative and strengthener known to science; it improves the nerve tone, regulates the heart action, makes the feeble strong and the sick well. Ferrozone will do you untold good and costs only 50c., at druggists, or Polson and Co., Kingston, Ont.

EXCURSION TO BERLIN!

Farmers should be interested in the fact that an opportunity will be given them to thoroughly investigate the merits of the beet sugar industry as it is carried on at the large factory in Berlin. A special train has been secured for on or about December 30th, which will go and return the same day. The rate will not be higher than $3, return. The hour of starting will probably be about 6.30a.m. and of returning about 10 p. m.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured

With LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

BEET SUGAR AT WHITBY

Public Meeting Favors the Enterprise—Excursion to Berlin

Whitby, Dec. 23 — The establishment of a beet sugar factory here was considered at a public meeting held here last night. Members of the County Council, which is in session were present, also a fairly representative gathering of some of the business men of the community. The opinion was that the local requirements to assure the investment of about three-quarters of a million dollars, six-sevenths of which will be supplied by New York capitalists, who Mr. F. Howard Annes has interested in the enterprise, can be satisfactorily met. It was decided to run an excursion to Berlin the first or second week in January.

THE AX of toughest steel becomes dulled by constant use and must have a new edge if it is to do good work. Constant work dulls a man as it does an ax, makes him sluggish of body and dull of mind. He needs a tonic, something that will restore the keenness of mind and activity of body.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery puts new life into weak, worn-out, run-down men and women. It strengthens the weak stomach, purifies the blood, and effectively stimulates the liver. The whole body is built up with sound, solid flesh by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

"I was confined to my bed for four months from January 1st, 1899, and commenced to take your medicine January 26th, 1899," writes Mrs. Sallie L. Sheppard, of Poplarbluff, Mo. "I took eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, four of 'Favorite Prescription,' two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' and one bottle of Doctor Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed, as a liniment. Indigestion, obstinate constipation, and hardening of the liver was my trouble. I am at this time able to do almost any kind of house work. Your medicine saved me from my grave. Thanks to you for the benefit. My case was hopeless when I began taking your medicine."

Don't be fooled into trading a substance for a shadow. Any substitute offered as "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery," is a shadow of that medicine. There are cures behind every claim made for the "Discovery," which no "just as good" medicine can show.

Biliousness is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year to All

THE QUEENSHIP WAS DETESTABLE

Why the Crown Princess of Saxony Left the Court

HUSBAND LOATHSOME TO HER

Charged Him With Infidelity Intemperance and Cruelty—Would Not Heed Her Mother

Dresden, Dec. 26—Further particulars regarding the flight of the Crown Princess of Saxony show that her determination to leave the Court was announced to her husband early in November, after one of their frequent violent scenes. She confided her intention to separate herself utterly from the Court and "all its wretchedness" to two or three of her intimate friends, and discussed with them the She told members of her entourage the artificial etiquette of the court, and the "forced companionship of a man who was loathsome to her." The Princess wrote to her mother at the end of November that it was her purpose to leave the Crown Prince and give up the prospect of the Queenship, which, instead of being attractive, the Princess frequently said was detestable to her. She told members of her entourage she was going to visit her parents at Salzburg. The letter of the Princess to her mother brought the Archduchess immediately to Dresden. She implored her daughter to reconsider her determination and make the best of an unpleasant situation for the sake of her children, and see as little of the Crown Prince as permissable. The Princess replied according to one of her confidants, that she would see nothing of "that beast" that the tutelage of her children was largely taken out of her hands, and that she could not bear to see them spoiled by the "hypocrites of the court."

Her Complaints

What she complained of in the Prince was his intemperance, his infidelity, and, as her parents affirm, his cruelty of disposition. They affirm that he has had for years a liaison with an actress named Basie, and it is creditably reported that at a review of troops at Grimma, a couple of years ago, the Prince fell from his horse, intoxicated, in front of his regiment. However true these incidents may be, the court and all Dresden knew that a chasm separated the affections of the Crown Princess from the Crown Prince. Although he seemingly had genuine admiration for his wife, the Prince did his share of quarrelling and often tried to impose his will upon her, but he always hoped she would in the end humble herself.

The circumstances of the Princess' flight are still obscure here. The only fact that seems clear is that the King and Crown Prince know where she is, and are in communication with her, but it is learned she is absolutely inflexible.

The man in this case who is associated by gossip with the Princess is a handsome Frenchman, who was tutor to the Princess' children. He was peremptorily discharged by order of the Crown Prince Dec. 8 The tutor has disappeared and now the Princess has disappeared. Hence, it is inferred that they are together somewhere.

The Crown Princess has a lively Viennese manner. She was independent and high-spirited and was inclined to ridicule the observances of the little Saxon court, which takes itself most seriously. The Crown Prince who has recovered from the injury he recently sustained while hunting, drove out today with two of his sons.

Vienna, Dec. 23—The flight of the Crown Princess of Saxony is the absorbing topic of the day here. All kinds of sensational reports are in circulation. When she left Salzburg, accompanied by her brother, Archduke Leopold Ferdinand, the Princess went to Munich.

Geneva, Switzerland, Dec. 23 — The Crown Princess of Saxony is here under the name of Fraulein Von Chen. Her brother, Archduke Leopold Ferdinand and Professor Giron are at the same hotel. The Archduke has assumed the name of Dubarlanio. The party are living quietly and propose to spend Christmas here.

CHRISTMAS 1902

A CHRISTMAS FABLE

With a Moral Which Our Lady Readers should Profit By

Once there was a Happy Family in Peterborough who had a Cook who was too Good to be True. Her Name was Nellie and she had come from downtrodden Europe, where Cooks had no such Rights as they enjoy in this glorious Canada of ours.

The Family used to declare that Nellie was the best single-handed, home made Biscuit artist in the Business, bar none. Her Cream of Tomatoes made an awful Hit with the Company and Dues it is Nellie was very hard to beat.

All the Members of the Household thought so much of Nellie especially when they remembered some of the Blacksmiths who had officiated at the Range that they wanted to give her a Merry Christmas. They wanted her to be satisfied with her Place and stay on forever.

Therefore it came about that each of them, when he or she went out to do his or her Christmas shopping, thought to Itself: "There is poor Nellie. She has no Relations on this side of the Water, and if I don't give her something she'll be left entirely."

So Mother gave Nellie a swell Imitation Lamb's Wool Jacket and Father bought her a Gold-filled Watch that pinned on the front. One of the Boys gave her some White Gloves and another fixed her up with a Brooch that if it had been real Turquoise would have cost $60. The Girls clubbed together and gave her a $25 Rhestine Belt with Box Plaits.

On Christmas morning the grateful Nellie came in to thank them, but she broke down and wept into the biscuits.

"It's a Cinch," said the Family. "We have her dead to Rights."

A few Days after that Nellie attended the Annual Ball given by Slavonic Pleasure Club. When she swept into the Hall room with her Rhestine, her Imitation Lamb's Wool, the Brooch, the Watch and the Gloves, she had the Upper G.G.C. Club held to a Tie, at least.

A Butcher named Johnson hung around her all Evening and soon began coming over to the House. He offered Nellie a Home and took her away.

It was Six Months before the Family found another Girl, who Could cook biscuits.

Mr. L. D. Lebeiller will Spend the Winter in Quebec with Friends

Mr. L. D. Lebeiller has disposed of his residence on Lansdowne avenue, and he will spend the winter with relatives in Quebec. Mr. Lebeiller has resided in Peterborough for 30 years, and has been quite successful in business as a meat merchant. He has within the last year or two erected seven houses in Peterborough and has always laboured in the interests of the town. He is now taking a well deserved rest, and previous to his departure from Peterborough for the winter, he was given a hearty send-off by his friends. He was made the recipient of an address, in which they expressed the hope that he may have continued prosperity in the future.

WERE AT WATERLOO

Two Women Who Witnessed the Battle of Waterloo are Still Alive

London, Dec. 23—Consequent upon the published comment that the race if Battle of Waterloo survivors on both sides who were actually combatants is absolutely extinct, an inquiry was recently made respecting reviving eyewitnesses. Among these two women have been located. Barbara Moss, who saw the battle from a British wagon, resides at Havenden, in Kent, and is 98 years old.

Madame Marie Theresa Dupois, of Chapelle-lez-Herliament, near Charlerol, is, however, a good nine years her senior, and yet far more vigorous. She is a magnificent specimen of Walloon womanhood. At the time of the famous battle she was a buxom lass of 12 and did a roaring trade in cheap cigars and ardent spirits with the French soldiers. Mme. Dupois saw the battle raging from the hills to the south and on the following day aided in comforting the wounded.

There are still living also three survivors of the historic ball on the eve of Quatre Bras—Lady de Ros and her sisters, Lady Louisa Tighe and Lady Sophie Churchill.

WOMAN LED BANDITS

Carried Off $150,000 From Rich Russian Land Owner

St. Petersburg, Dec. 23—News has just reached here that the band of brigands which has been terrorising the central provinces of Russia for the past five weeks attacked the house of M. Mucielwic, a wealthy land-owner, in broad daylight, intimidated the inmates and escaped with silver, jewels and money to the value of nearly $150,000.

The report that the leaders of these desperadoes is a woman is confirmed by M. Mucielwic, who describes her as above the medium height, a daring horsewoman and a crack shot. She and her fellowers were masked, so the description goes no further. So far all efforts to capture the outlaws or to discover any clew to the identity of them have proved fruitless.

THE SULTAN HAS LOST HIS HEAD

Despite the Counsel of His Chiefs He Has Given Orders to Spare No One at Taza

Tangier, Morocco, Dec. 23—The Imperial troops have been totally defeated after a sanguinary battle with the rebels, headed by the pretender to the throne. The latter decapitated forty of the Sultan's soldiers. Their heads are now adorning his tent.

Imperial reinforcements have been sent to attempt the capture of Taza, the headquarters of the Pretender. Incensed by the successes of the rebels the Sultan has ordered his soldiers to spare no one at Taza in spite of the advice of the chiefs, who counselled him not to indulge in excesses.

VEREGIN PACIFIES THE DOUKHOBORS

Immigration Agent Thinks His Influence Will Do Good and Quiet Fanatics

Modern John the Baptist is Found in Distant Russian Community of West

Winnipeg, Dec. 24.—"John the Baptist," the now famous Doukhobor leader, is found. The fanatical general was located in the village of Terpania, where he is in an unsettled state of mind and still imbued with the idea that the Messiah is wandering on terra firma in the vicinity of Winnipeg, calling to His true followers to leave all and follow him.

C. W. Speers, Dominion Government colonization agent, arrived here yesterday after a trip through the Saskatchewan district. The above is the gist of his story regarding the Doukhobor leader. Mr. Speers says that the man is undoubtedly "batty" and is one of those on whom Peter Veregin will have to use his influence for good, if he is vested with any. The village of Terpania has a Doukhobor population of 1,700, and of this number only seven were affected with the religious craze. They went to Yorkton and became infatuated with the insane notions in spite of all their fellow villagers could do to the contrary.

Regarding the visit of Peter Veregin, the Siberian exile, Mr. Speers said: "His influence will be great and his advent will be welcomed by the Russian communities in the west. How far he may be instrumental in persuading them to desist from or relinquish their faith I am not in a position to say. In my experience I found them rather self-willed. They only resigned their allegiance to the movement when they were suffering and disappointed by the non-fulfillment of prophecies which they believed to be infallible.

COUNSELLED FROM SIBERIA.

"I am persuaded that Veregin will do good. In many important matters relating to former movements and government they have consulted him and looked on him as a man of superior judgment. The confidence they have hitherto reposed in him will have a potent influence in bringing about peace and contentment. I believe the influence will be required with but a small minority of the people.

"Veregin spent sixteen years in the penal settlements in Siberia, where he was sent by the Russian authorities for exerting great influence over the Doukhobors. While in exile they found means of communicating with him and he has on numerous occasions advised them."

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Miss Maggie Edwards of Otonabee and Mr. Fred Doughty, Town

On Tuesday last a very pretty home wedding was solemnized at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Charles Edwards, Otonabee, when his daughter was united in marriage to Mr. Fred. Doughty, son of Mr. W. J. Doughty, Peterborough. Rev. Mr. Seccombe, of Keene, tied the nuptial knot, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of white organdie, trimmed with lace and the customary veil, and was assisted by her cousin, Miss Beagie Edwards, who was daintily attired in a dress of pink silk, trimmed with white-over-lace, while Mr. Percy Doughty supported the groom.

After a sumptuous wedding dejeuner, the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to western points, and on their return will take up their residence in Peterborough, where Mr. Doughty is associated in a large business with his father.

The presents were numerous and costly and showed the high esteem in which the young people are held. The groom's gift to the bride was a magnificent silver service. The Times extends its hearty congratulations.

The Annual Address

The circulation of The Times has become so great throughout the town and Ashburnham, that it has been next to impossible to handle it from the office. We therefore let the contract by the year to Mr. Geo. Lawson, who has, with a number of boys, been doing the work for the past year or more. We greatly pride ourselves on the way the paper has been delivered and if our patrons feel as we do, they will remember the carrier today, when he presents his annual address.

Will Go to Winnipeg

The members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Lindsay and citizens generally of that town are grieved at the announcement made yesterday by the pastor, Rev. J. W. MacMillan, that he had decided to accept the call to St. Andrew's, Winnipeg. It is said that Mr. MacMillan will probably preach his farewell sermon early in February, and enter upon his duties in Winnipeg shortly after. Mr. MacMillan's many friends in Peterborough will also regret his departure.

ON CHRISTMAS MORN

Once in royal David's city
Stood a lowly cattle shed,
Where a mother laid her baby,
In a manger for His bed;
Mary was that mother mild.
Jesus Christ her little child.

He came down to earth from heaven,
Who is God and Lord of all,
And his shelter was a stable,
And his cradle was a stall;
With the poor and mean and lowly,
Lived on earth our Savior holy.

And through all his wondrous childhood,
He would honor, and obey,
Love, and watch the lowly maiden
In whose arms He lay;
Christian children all must be
Mild, obedient, good as He.

And our eyes shall see Him,
Through His own redeeming love;
For that child so dear and gentle
Is our Lord in heaven above;
And He leads His children on
To the place where He is gone.

Not in that poor, lowly stable,
With the oxen standing by,
We shall see Him; but in heaven,
Set at God's right hand on high;
When like stars His children crowned,
All in white shall wait around.

A CHRISTMAS SUGGESTION

It is always in order, we should think, to propose something which will add to the great happiness of the great Christmas holiday, which is supposed to be and was originally designed to be the most happy day of all the year. It is a matter of common knowledge, however, that happiness is not universal on Christmas, and there is much lack of it, in fact, where the means is not wanting to provide what is usually considered its certain basis. The truth is that there have come into the modern observance of Christmas day elements of selfishness which show the very reverse of the spirit which originally glorified the celebration. It has become a day of presents that are inspired by anything except the spirit in which the great Christ-life was given to the world upwards of two thousand years ago. In this day, these presents are given very frequently because presents are desired in return, or in return for presents already given, or from a reluctant sense of obligation, or from a spirit of pride. Giving under motives of this kind does not include blessing and cannot produce joy. Some measure of sacrifice is involved in every gift, and often the sacrifice is greater than the gift-bearer can well afford to make. If these sacrifices were unselfishly made, with a view to producing happiness, the happiness resulting from them would be greater on account of the sacrifice and its extent would be measured by the extent of the sacrifice. Unfortunately, under the selfish inspiration and motive for gift-giving, only happiness and misery result, and there seems to be more of it with each recurring Christmas.

Why should not each reader of the Times get a little, and as much more as possible, of the real joy that belongs to the day by giving at least one offering, and many more if possible, that will carry with it love and blessing? The suggestion we have to make is that every person in Peterborough pick out some worthy object of need and give to that object as Christ would have given nearly two thousand years ago—a basket of provision for a poor widow, warm clothing for needy children, a ton of coal for some unfortunate family that cannot afford to pay the high prices of this year, an overcoat for some little fellow who has to go to school half-clothed through no fault of his own, a tonic of delicacies for a sick man, a bunch of flowers for an invalid girl, a check for some beneficent institution, or even a word of encouragement and hope, if there is nothing better in stock, for the way-worn and unfortunate. It is true that there is not now so much need as usual because work has been more plentiful and wages better, but the Master spoke truly when he said, "The poor ye have always with you." At its brightest and best, the world has its unfortunates, and there is always a wide range of need of love and tenderness and sympathy. Even if this need were reduced to a minimum, a man with plenty ought still to give for his own blessing. He ought to give in recognition of his own relation of stewardship. He ought to give because every time he does give for a good purpose and out of a good motive, he becomes thereby in his own life and purposes a better man.

Why not have a sincere, old-fashioned celebration of a day that is really glorious for what it means to the human race? Why not make it a day that truly celebrates the idea and fact of our human brotherhood?

In such a celebration there would assuredly be so enlarged a measure of real happiness as to make us want to have that kind of a Christmas every day, and that kind of a Christmas every day, with its elimination of selfishness, would tighten this old world up with a glory it has never known before, and would make it entirely unnecessary to put all our talk of heaven in the future tense.

REALISTIC GHOST DOINGS

The Reproduction of a Tragedy Interrupts a Honeymoon

Kokomo, Ind., Dec. 23.—Ghosts broke up the first day's housekeeping of a bride and groom here. Yesterday Charles Abney and bride moved into a house where murder had been committed. Three years ago Herman Schultz, a returned Spanish-American soldier, was murdered at a dance in this house by Arthur Woolford, who is now serving a prison term for the crime. Since the tragedy the house has had numerous tenants, none of whom remained longer than a few days.

Yesterday Abney and his bride moved in. To-day they moved out. Last night, soon after the couple retired to bed, the doors of the house opened and there was the noise of entering of guests. The room was filled with invisible guests. Presently a squeaky violin was heard, accompanied by the clatter of feet and the swirl and swish of skirts around the room. Voices revealed a quarrel of two men over a girl, each claiming her as a dancing partner. Then followed a pistol shot and the noise of the victim falling to the floor. The ghastly affair was a faithful reproduction of the dance and tragedy of three years ago in which the young soldier lost his life.

Schultz, the victim, was a member of Company L, 158th Indiana, Regiment. Jacob Harmon, an uncle of Judge B. Harmon of the Howard Superior Court, occupied the house at the time of the murder. He soon moved out, as did all other later tenants. All the neighbors certify to mysterious visitations, and frequently ghastly apparitions. Abney and his bride remained in the house but six hours.

FOR THE MAYORALTY.

Card to the Electors of Peterborough

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

In response to the numerous representations which have been made to me upon the subject, personally, by requisition, and through the press, I place my services at the disposal of the public as a candidate for the Mayoralty at the approaching municipal elections.

My association with the important municipal advances which the Town has been making during recent years, will enable me to give continuity to the aggressive forward policy which the Council has sought to pursue, and to bring experience and information gained therein to bear upon the work and problems which still more immediately confront us.

While I cannot lay claim to all the qualifications which have been flatteringly ascribed to me, such capacity for the office as I do possess is cheerfully placed at your service, and I ask your sympathy and support in the effort to maintain the position and standing, and advance the welfare of our already prosperous and progressive Town.

Respectfully yours,

G. H. ROGER

A Lunatic Who Eats no Lunch.

A recent article in a Philadelphia periodical discusses at length the personality of George W. Perkins, the partner of J. Pierpont Morgan. Mr. Perkins, who is a comparatively young man—forty years of age—was selected for this exigent position by Pierpont Morgan for his great ability—physical as well as mental ability. His biographer says:

"He is just under six feet, powerful, takes much outdoor exercise, and eats a great deal of dinner. But he is not one of those madmen who in the middle of the day fill themselves with food which prevents their brains from acting and which the struggling brain prevents the stomach from digesting."

That a business man should abstain from "filling himself with food" at midday is indeed unusual. The belief that we all need three solid meals a day dies hard. "Food and Feeding," by Sir Henry Thompson, one of the great physicians of England, has for years been a standard on dietetics. It has gone through many editions. It is written on the generous English plan, for in England they seem to get away with larger quantities of beef and beer than the average man can assimilate. In Merry England, the traditional three meals a day are often supplemented by a hearty luncheon called "five o'clock tea," and a late supper as well. Contemplating these gastronomic feats of his British brother, the gaunt American can only regard him with unenvious admiration.

In the earlier editions of his book Sir Henry advocated "moderation." British "moderation" seems to mean feeding not more than four times a day, and not eating more than four courses for each meal. But with the flight of years, Sir Henry has modified his ideas. He no longer considers it wise for a man to fill himself full up to his neck. In the latest edition of his book he admits that a man may struggle along on three meals a day, instead of five, and still retain his health. This is a distinct concession.

Medical writers say that a well-known English physician took as his sole nutriment, during the last sixteen years of his life, three pints of milk daily. Yet on this diet he not only sustained life, but was able to perform all the duties of his arduous profession.

How suicidal this would seem to the average business man in this country, says the "Argonaut." That gentleman rises in the morning; he eats either "mush and milk," or porridge of some kind concocted of the new breakfast cereals, with thick, clotted cream; he follows this with a couple of eggs, boiled or poached, with ham or bacon; if he is really hungry, he may, perhaps, take a couple of chops; he will follow with a large cup of coffee, and top off with some buckwheat cakes and maple syrup. He goes to his office and spends a busy forenoon; at one o'clock he goes to his club or his favorite restaurant, and takes a "light lunch"; it probably includes soup, a bit of fish, an entree, and perhaps a slice of the joint; he may take a vegetable or a salad, and perhaps some dessert—say, a pudding or an ice. In the Eastern States, if he lives in the Great Pie Belt, he finishes his lunch with pie. In the darker parts of the New England Pie Zone, pie is eaten for breakfast.

With this mysterious mass of viands under his belt, the business man goes back to his office and endeavors to labor. But mental labor is difficult when so much digestive labor is thrown upon his system. He returns to his home at nightfall with a partially digested luncheon, and there partakes of a heavy dinner. Dinner is the meal of the day. If he is a prosperous person, it will consist of at least soup, fish, entree, vegetables, joint, and dessert. He may take a little red wine with his dinner, and if he and his wife have an anniversary or a birthday, he will add to it a little champagne. Then he retires to his couch, and has bad dreams. He wonders why.

Pierpont Morgan's partner, who skips luncheon in the middle of the day, would doubtless be looked upon with horror by most business men. If the average business man confined his luncheon to a glass of milk and a biscuit, his partner would ask him if he was "not feeling well," while his wife, if she knew it, would grow seriously alarmed, and send for the doctor. So the business man on this continent goes on eating three square meals a day, and digging his grave with his teeth.

Justice Mixed With Humor.

In a small town in the United States lives an elderly German, who, because of the high esteem in which he is held in the community, has been elected justice of the peace. The old gentleman was recently called upon to decide a most perplexing question.

One of his neighbors is the possessor of a dog. The dog, although not actually vicious, delights in running out of the gate and barking savagely at passers-by. This had been the source of great annoyance to the neighbors, especially to one, who vowed to get even with "the pesky critter." Recently this neighbor was returning from a shooting trip, gun in hand. He was set upon by the dog, whereupon he raised his weapon and fired at the brute. His aim was not very good, and the dog ran yelping, minus his caudal appendage.

The owner of the dog had his neighbor haled before the old justice on a charge of cruelty to animals, and the court-room was crowded with the partisans of both men. The justice heard the charge, and then the defence that the dog was a dangerous animal and a menace to the neighborhood. The old German thereupon cleared his throat and delivered the dictum:

"Der man—he has been guilty of gruelty to animals." And one side of the court-room applauded the justice of the decision.

"But der tog—he was a vicious tog." And the other side voiced its approval.

"I will fine der man five tollars." Another murmur in the court-room.

"But I will gif him anodder shot at der tog." And both sides cheered.

To dress really well one needs a little more than one has.

THE POOR MAN'S OPPORTUNITY

Honestly Managed Mining Companies will Bring Fortunes to the Investors.

Whenever a new mining company enters the field, incredulous smiles have met the bearer of the stories of the wealth likely to occur to investors; capitalists have always been timid with regard to taking stock in them, and yet within the past two years it may safely be said that millions of dollars have been made by investors in mining stock, and most of this have been made by investors of limited means, who had the courage to invest when a reasonable opportunity was presented.

THE ELECTRIC SPARK GOLD MINING COMPANY'S property is surrounded by some of the BEST MINES IN GILPIN COUNTY; they are the Clay County, Tarrif, Williams, Washington, Justice, and others, completely surrounding our property, which have produced an enormous amount of wealth, and which most of them are producing handsomely to-day.

The veins on our property are true fissure veins, of which no shaft on any fissure in this county has ever been sunk to the bottom, although there are several shafts down on these veins of from 1,000 to 2,300 feet. Gilpin County is the smallest county in Colorado. The entire county is a mining camp, and is the richest spot of its size in this country. Here is where Senator Teller and hundreds of others made their fortunes. With a little more development work we will have one of the great producers of which this camp is famous; this is not guesswork, as we have made carload shipments to the mills and the smelters, which have been very satisfactory.

INVESTIGATE THIS PROPOSITION, and if you have a little spare money you will surely invest. A small block of stock is for sale at 10 cents per share.

Certificates written for from 100 shares up; samples of ore fo the asking.

The Electric Spark Gold Mining Company

A ROMANCE.

"These are very fine horses," she cried. "I mean to try the mettle of the bay one. Only a half-mile, Flo, and back again in a minute. It cannot hurt my wrist;" and she was off like the wind, a willful, disobedient elf.

The gentlemen were waiting for her when she rode back, Mr. Courtenaye's tall head bent over Florence, as she aired the gushing coquetries of a fresh boarding-school miss for his delectation. Sir Wilfred stood by his horse, talking to Mr. Aylesford, and Hilda was surprised to see her father draw his handkerchief over his eyes in a somewhat affected way.

"This has been too much for me," she heard him say, in a subdued voice. "The revival of old memories, the suddenness of the change, unnerves me; but I will duly prepare the child for the separation, and to-morrow I will present you to the heiress."

"Florence was right. Sir Wilfred means to adopt me," thought Hilda, in such a plight that she forgot to apologize for taking the horse—forgot to wish the gentlemen good-morning, even—but ran away up stairs to her own room, buried her hot face in the pillows, and would not even look up at Florence when she followed her.

"Papa would not tell me a word, Hilda," said she, poutingly; "but he is in great excitement over something, and says he will tell us this evening the business on which the gentlemen called."

That day was a long one to both the girls; long to Florence because of her consuming anxiety, and to Hilda because of her painful wrist, and the irksome confinement indoors, coupled with a little nervous dread of what was coming. It waned to a close at last, however, and after tea Mr. Aylesford summoned his expectant daughters to the library, closed the door, and, with a mysterious air, began the promised revelation.

CHAPTER IV.

A Strange Story.

"Most delicately, hour by hour,
He canvassed human mysteries,
And trod on silk as if the winds
Blew his own praises in his eyes."
—Alfred Tennyson.

"Florence, my love," Mr. Aylesford commenced, "whose picture is that which you wear around your neck?"

Florence's fingers were idly toying with a pearl-studded locket worn about her throat on a black velvet ribbon. She answered at once, in some surprise:

"That of my Uncle Guy Aylesford, who died in my infancy."

"And you, Hilda?" said he.

She wore a locket, also, that was the exact counterpart of her sister's, and at her father's words she touched the spring and looked at the lovely face it revealed with a sort of loving pride.

"My Uncle Guy's wife," she answered, simply.

"I have never spoken to either of you, my dears, of Guy Aylesford, beyond the mere fact that he once existed," said Mr. Aylesford. "I must speak more fully of him now."

He paused, cleared his throat affectedly, drew his handkerchief across his eyes, and continued:

"I was my father's only child, the dying legacy of my young mother, until father married, twelve years later, the wealthy young widow of a cousin of his, also named Aylesford. The beautiful widow had a son, also, by her first husband—a boy of two years, named Guy—your uncle, my children, but not a blood relation, as you see—only akin by marriage."

"But, papa, what has this story to do with the Englishmen's visit this morning?" exclaimed Florence, somewhat impatiently.

Mr. Aylesford frowned at this interruption.

"I shall come to that in good time," said he, pompously. "You will kindly permit me, Florence, to continue my story in my own way."

Florence flushed angrily, but said no more, and the gentleman went on:

"No children were born of that marriage, and ten years later both my father and step-mother died of a malarial fever in the Southern city where they then resided, leaving me the guardianship of the boy, Guy, who was then at college. He, of course, inherited the whole of his mother's property, which was quite considerable. I was then twenty-two years of age, had received a mercantile instead of a college education, and was engaged in a growing and prosperous business with my father. His death left me at the head of the firm, and I did my best to manage my money and that of Guy (which was mostly invested in our firm), to the best advantage. Within a year of Guy's majority, he graduated, and with my sanction went abroad for a foreign tour. He was young, brilliant, exceedingly handsome, and I allowed him a generous supply of money. He obtained an entree into the best society abroad, and in a year eloped with the youngest daughter of an earl, who disowned and disinherited her for her disobedience."

Mr. Aylesford paused and remained silent a few minutes, as though lost in some painful retrospection. His listeners waited impatiently, Hilda's dark eyes beaming with interest.

"The youthful husband and wife traveled over Europe ten months," resumed Mr. Aylesford; "then Guy brought his prize home to America, and demanded from me, in his hasty and impetuous fashion, an immediate settlement of his claims against the firm, as he was then of age, and wished to have the exclusive control of his money. Alas! a great financial crash within the week had consumed his whole investments like a devouring flame, and left him penniless. I had to tell him the truth, but I was not prepared for the wild burst of rage with which he received my ill news. He accused me of villainy and theft. He would not believe my assertions, refused to accept my proofs, but swore that I had defrauded him of his birthright, and appropriated it to my own uses."

Again Mr. Aylesford paused, sighed heavily, and resumed his story, but it was noticeable that he avoided the eyes of his listeners, and looked away out of the window, as he continued:—

"We were alone in my private office at the store, and from abusive language Guy Aylesford proceeded to blows. Seizing some great, heavy implement lying near, he dealt me a blow on the head that felled me senseless to the floor, and thinking, I suppose, that he had killed me, he fled through the open window."

"The wretch!" exclaimed Florence, with a shudder.

"When I came to myself," said Mr. Aylesford, in the tone of a martyr, "my clerks were gathered around trying to restore life in me. My first inquiry was for my would-be murderer, and I learned that he had escaped. I would gladly have shielded his name from obloquy, but it was too late. The city and country rang with the story, and public execration crowned his name. His lovely young wife went into the wildest hysterics on hearing the news, and that night, amid her wild ravings of agony, a little girl was born to the dishonored name of Guy Aylesford. But his wretched wife never knew that she had a child! She went mad from its birth, and was so very violent that we were forced to confine her in a lunatic asylum. A few months later her shattered mind and broken heart found rest—in the grave!"

The speaker paused and bent his head upon his hand in apparent deep emotion. When he lifted his head again he looked at Hilda curiously from under his drooping lashes. She was strangely affected by his tragic story. Her face had grown very pale, her dark eyes beamed with interest, and two unconscious tears were rolling down her cheeks.

"What became of the child, papa?" asked Florence, carelessly.

"My wife took the little one," said Mr. Aylesford. "We had several children of our own to love, and we adopted this one into the tender brood as one of our own. Years later, when cruel death had taken all but one of our own children, we were glad, indeed, that we had kept the poor homeless little orphan as a companion for our sole remaining girl, though misfortunes overtook and impoverished us. No one in the country, to which we removed later, and where my wife died, ever knew that the daughter of poor Guy was not our own by the tie of blood as well as of affection. But you understand now, my dears, that only one of you is my daughter—one of you is the child of the man and woman whose pictures you have worn around your necks from childhood!"

Both girls sprang to their feet, and stood gazing at Mr. Aylesford, as if stunned by the suddenness of the revelation. At length Florence found her voice.

"Papa!" she exclaimed, excitedly, clinging round his arm, and looking beseechingly up at him, "which child am I?"

"Oh, Heaven!" breathed Hilda, clinging to a chair, with half-closed eyes and parted lips, like one about to faint.

Mr. Aylesford shook his head as he looked at them both.

"You must wait a little, my dears," he said, in a voice apparently broken with emotion. "I will keep the secret until to-morrow. I want to call you both my daughters until then."

"Oh, I hope I am not the child of that bad and wicked man!" exclaimed Florence, passionately.

Mr. Aylesford looked at her affectionately.

"I have told you only the dark side of the story yet," said he. "There is a reverse to it. The proud Earl of Devon—the grandfather of one of you, my dears—has been bereaved of his remaining children and their descendants by the relentless power of death. He is alone in his old age, with none to succeed him save distant relatives, and has at last forgiven poor Guy's wife, and commissioned his friend, Mr. Courtenaye, to seek her and restore her to her father's arms. It is too late for her, poor creature! but Mr. Courtenaye assures me that the earl is ready to give her child the place in his heart once filled by her mother."

"The granddaughter of an earl!" exclaimed Florence, clasping her hands in rapture. "Oh! that makes a vast deal of difference. I hope—I hope it is I!"

Hilda said nothing. She still clung to the back of the chair, listening eagerly to Mr. Aylesford, but smiled a little as Florence turned toward her with the question:

"Don't you wish it might be you, Hilda?"

"Yes, I wish so," she answered, frankly and simply.

"But I am going to be the one!" cried Florence, in sudden passionate excitement. "I feel it here!" laying her hand on her breast; "I feel that I am the lonely orphan of that most unfortunate young pair. Is it not so, papa?" she cried, appealingly.

Mr. Aylesford stood still, without looking at either. He seemed troubled, agitated, absorbed in some perplexing thought.

"To-morrow!" he answered to Florence's eager urging. "Wait until to-morrow, my dear, impatient children. Our English visitors will return in the morning, and I will then present to them the granddaughter of the Earl of Devon."

Florence pleaded, but she could not shake his resolution. He would not reveal the secret yet, and both girls went away to their rooms, to toss all night upon sleepless pillows.

CHAPTER V.

My Lady.

"Cecil, mon ami, I presume there can be no question as to which of Mr. Aylesford's daughters you would prefer as the earl's granddaughter?"

The soft September sunshine sifted goldenly down through the overhanging branches of the trees that shadowed the leaf-strewn mountain road, where our two English friends were riding on horseback toward the home of Mr. Aylesford.

Sir Wilfred Hale's remark, made half in jest, yet with a spice of earnest, elicited no reply for an instant, save for a momentary shade of unaccountable annoyance that overspread the blonde features of handsome Cecil Courtenaye.

He turned hastily as Sir Wilfred repeated the query that was half an assertion.

"I do not know why you should take so much for granted," he said, with an air of hauteur that was rather becoming than otherwise to his finely molded and aristocratic features. "I am not conscious of having indicated any preference of either."

"And yet," said Sir Wilfred, laughing, "though you disclaim having indicated a preference, you have betrayed it to me in what I may call a negative way."

"Explain yourself," said the young man, and his friend wondered at the petulance of the tone in which the words were spoken.

"You remember our conversation the day before yesterday, Cecil, when Hilda Aylesford was climbing the cliff? You know you thought she was unwomanly—nay, you even disclaimed all prettiness in her, and vowed she must be the descendant of some sturdy old North American Indian. Of course I know that such a girl could not be your choice for Lord Devon's heiress. Quite naturally, then, I deduct the inference that your preference is given to the 'fair one with the golden locks.'"

Cecil Courtenaye flicked away a stray fly from his horse's ears, turning his face quite away from his friend's view to hide the sudden flush that rose over his cheek.

"Yes, I said some very rude things then I know," he answered constrainedly, "but that was before Hilda Aylesford saved my life, remember."

"You wish to intimate that circumstances alter cases," said Sir Wilfred, pleasantly.

"Something like that," was the answer, given half reluctantly.

"I am glad to hear you admit it," Sir Wilfred exclaimed, heartily. "To my mind the little dark-eyed Hilda is worth twenty of the other girl, with her airs and graces."

"And yet," said Cecil Courtenaye, with a slight laugh at his friend's frankness, "we cannot but admit, mon ami, that Miss Florence would do the honors as the earl's granddaughter far more gracefully than the brusque, uncultured little rustic, Hilda."

"That may be your opinion, Cecil, but I am far from admitting it. We have seen Florence at her best, but Hilda only at her worst, barring the dauntless heroism of the act by which she saved your life. She heard your uncharitable opinion of her that day, and I can see that she takes a malicious pleasure in appearing rude and ungracious in your eyes."

"It may be so," said Cecil, with a slight air of chagrin, while an almost inaudible sigh drifted across his lips.

"I am sure it is so," said Sir Wilfred. "She dislikes you, and shows her mind quite candidly. I admit that I admire her all the more for that frank exhibition of womanly spirit. But 'pon honor, Cecil, should she prove to be the earl's granddaughter, a few years of culture will make of the 'little rustic' a woman so beautiful and spirited that you may possibly repent having earned her scorn."

Cecil did not answer, save by a quickly suppressed sigh. Perhaps he repented it already.

Sir Wilfred glanced at him curiously, but could make nothing of his calm, composed countenance. He wore his usual expression of gravity, commingled with slight hauteur, and showed no sign of what was passing in his mind.

"One hardly knows what to think of the fellow," Sir Wilfred said, to himself, with a slight shrug of the shoulders. "Does he like Florence, or Hilda, best, I wonder! Well, it would be hard to say. He is noncommittal on the subject. Yet I should think him a dused prig if he liked that vain little Florence the best. Why, her whole soul is not bigger than a butterfly's."

With this brief summary of the beauty's worth, the Englishmen rode on in silence, until an abrupt turn in the road brought them out upon the level plateau upon which Mr. Aylesford's house was situated, and they saw that gentleman sitting out on the piazza, and the two girls strolling about the large, grassy yard under the shade of the trees.

It was a pretty picture, as he said. Both girls were dressed in white, and their snowy robes contrasted exquisitely with the green grass and the brilliant colors of the autumn flowers that bloomed luxuriantly around them.

Florence stood beside a late-blooming rose-bush, her white arms half lifted toward a bud at the top, the loose white sleeves falling back and revealing their rounded contour and the pretty gold bracelets that encircled them. Her golden hair was arranged on the top of her head in a mass of elaborate puffs and braids, and pale blue satin ribbons fluttered here and there among the frills and laces of her white robe.

She looked very sweet and innocent in that graceful attitude, with smiles curving her red lips and a gentle welcome shining in her blue eyes, and neither of the gentlemen was blind to the fact of her beauty and grace; but their eyes rested on her only a moment, then turned to Hilda, as she stood beneath a tall, stately tree, with the bright autumn leaves fluttering down about her and tangling themselves in the long dark tresses that floated loosely to her waist, free and unconfined, save for a narrow band of scarlet ribbon. Her dress was white, but simple in make and material and she wore no ornament, save the gold locket on the velvet band at her throat.

Florence's sunny, welcoming smile had no reflection on Hilda's face. Her thin, childish features were tinged with an unwonted gravity, and her large black eyes sparkled with excitement and expectancy.

Thus they stood, the blonde and the brunette—Florence smiling and beautiful, with a stray sunbeam shining on her golden hair; Hilda, pale and quiet, with that half-pathetic gravity about her, and the melancholy autumn leaves falling down in her hair and dress.

Mr. Aylesford laid aside the book he was reading, and went down the graveled path to meet his visitors. Florence, perceiving the movement, fluttered to his side and linked her arm in his; but Hilda, either through haughtiness or timidity, remained motionless in her place. Her dark eyes regarded them attentively, but that was the only sign by which she recognized their presence. She was swayed by some strong excitement, her form trembled, her cheek paled, and her slim, brown fingers played nervously with the pearl-studded locket at her throat; but from the slight distance between her and the others, she appeared quite self-possessed and indifferent.

Mr. Aylesford glanced toward her with a slight, nervous cough, then, drawing Florence's hand more fondly in his arm, walking on down the path.

Greetings were formally exchanged; then Mr. Aylesford took Florence by the hand, and said, proudly:

"Sir Wilfred Hale, and you, Mr. Courtenaye, it gives me much pleasure to present to you Lady Florence, the granddaughter of the Earl of Devon."

In the midst of the congratulations that followed, Hilda stole light-

Inland Wireless Telegraphy

The announcement of the successful transatlantic wireless telegraphy, by Sig. Marconi makes the question of inland telegraphy by the same method a prominent one. A company was incorporated some time ago in Canada by Marconi for this purpose. Mr. W. Barwick, of Barwick, Aylesworth, Wright & Moss, Toronto, is the solicitor for the company, and attended to its incorporation under Ontario charter for operation in the Dominion. Mr. Barwick when asked whether anything was being done in the way of arranging for the operation of the company, said that nothing new had occurred since its incorporation. It is probably now, however, that with the perfection of the Atlantic system, the establishment of an inland system will be taken up and vigorously carried out.

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to min and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000

Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's share common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont ;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada ; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President o the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time ;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop ; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality ;

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines, and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say :

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $30 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $25 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,

The Finest Newspaper Office on Earth.

The Washington "Star," a paper almost unknown in Europe, has the glory of possessing the finest newspaper office in North America. The "Star" is remarkable for three things. First, it has only a circulation of 35,000 a day; secondly, it publishes no Sunday edition; and thirdly, although its circulation is comparatively insignificant, it has so many advertisements as to stand among the few dailies at the top of the advertising field. Instead of a Sunday paper, it publishes a Saturday magazine supplement. Although it has so small a circulation, it has made sufficient profit to build a much finer newspaper office than anything to be seen in New York. It is, indeed, according to a writer in "Caxton's Magazine," one of the finest public buildings on earth. It is built of smooth-faced marble in the French Renaissance style; it is nine stories high, and the only office with which he can compare it is the marble palace of the "Herald" buildings in New York. From attic to basement everything is marble. The entrance hall is a lofty marble chamber, elaborately carved, and with abundant bronze work. Round the walls are a series of seven symbolical frescoes painted by Mr. Dealman, who painted many of the frescoes in the Washington Library. Four of them symbolize the day's history, news-gathering, the editorial function, and advertising. The proprietorial consulting-room is fitted up as an old Dutch sitting-room 200 years old. In every room it is the same. Mosaic floors, marble pillars and fine bronze work, silver shower baths, explain how it is that this edifice is said to be the most costly office-building in the world. The newsboys are as carefully studied as the editors. The compositors have quarters which a merchant prince in London might envy. Every comp. has his own cupboard, and is provided with shower and other baths. Even the lavatories have mosaic floors, plated pipes and marble walls. Once a printer enters the "Star" office he regards himself as settled for life so long as he keeps up to his work. He is cared for when sick, and pensioned when old. In the proprietor's opinion the expenditure on the details necessary to enable comps. to keep themselves clean and comfortable is well-invested money. The composing-room is, for daintiness of detail, more like a lady's boudoir than a printing room. Yet it is a place where very solid and smart work is done. An elaborate system of pneumatic tubes reduces speaking and writing to a minimum. Every reporter has a roll-top desk, a swinging chair, and a Remington typewriter. There is a club on the premises for the benefit of the staff.

Historic Last Words.

At my entrance, Caxton turned from a large tome which he was reading, with a slight air of interruption.

"Sorry to interrupt you," I apologized.

"Oh, I suppose that's all right," he responded with returning cordiality. "In fact, I'm rather glad you've happened in, as I want to voice a kick which has occurred to me from reading this book."

"Just what is your author?" I asked.

"Why, it's a collection of deathbed utterances made by some ingenious hack. He's patiently ferreted out all the last words of history. And I tell you the way they all affect me. All these final speeches are shot through with egotism. It is strange that when a man is about to step out into the infinite his thought should only be of himself and his own petty part in the world drama. Words from a deathbed have weight. It is a pity that all on record should be tainted with conceit. The pronoun of the first person infects all dying utterances.

"'We have this day kindled a fire,' say the dissenting martyrs. Nathan Hale irritates us with his 'I regret I have only one life.'

"'Roll up the map of Europe,' are Pitt's last, and the colossal conceit of them is not to be surpassed. It is strange that in the moment of supreme vision all sense of perspective should be lost. Why should all the swan songs of literature and history focus attention on the singer?"—N. Y. "Tribune."

A Missionary Story.

A missionary returned from Equatorial Africa told this story at a club the other night:

In this man's territory there was a chief who had resisted every appeal to make him a Christian. He was the biggest man in a sort of confederation of savage tribes, and the missionary knew that if the big chief were once converted the effect would be felt by every native within fifty miles. So the missionary kept after him month in and month out, in face of every kind of indifference and rebuff.

At the end of two years the missionary was all but ready to give up, when one day the miracle came to pass—the big chief's heart was touched by the truths of Christianity. The missionary redoubled his efforts, and in two months more the big chief offered himself for baptism.

It looked like a great victory won, until, in examining the new convert, the missionary discovered that according to the chiefly prerogative he had two wives. The missionary expressed his horror, indignation and grief to the chief.

He explained to him how the state of polygamy was a barrier to anyone who wished to become a Christian. Then he prayed with him, and the chief departed, weeping over his unfitness.

But a month later he came again, joyous, devout, and, throwing himself at the missionary's feet, asked for baptism.

"My brother," said the missionary, "I cannot baptize you while you are the husband of two wives."

"No two wives, just one wife now," said the chief.

The missionary raised him to his feet. Here was the true penitent.

"My brother," said the missionary, "you make my heart glad. And what did you do with your second wife?"

"Um," answered the chief. "She no good; me want be Kistian; me eat her."

Curious Bits of News.

General Booth has recently acquired thirty thousand acres of land in Western Australia, where he will establish a great Salvation Army agricultural and industrial colony, which he will populate from the London slums.

M. Berthelot expresses the opinion, in the Paris "Temps," that the time will come when chemists will be able to prepare more digestible and nutritious foods than we now derive from the animal and vegetable world directly; but he does not believe that it will be possible, as some suppose, to concentrate nutriment enough for a meal into a few capsules.

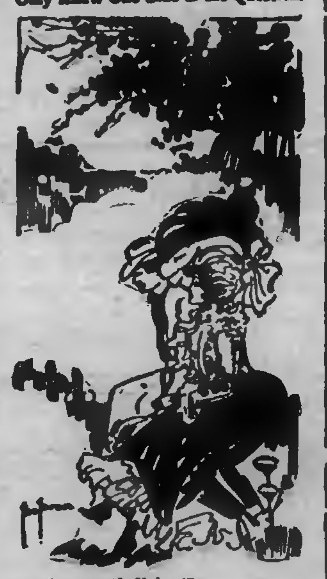
Over one-half of the total length of the Cape to Cairo railroad has already been built. Rails have been laid from Cape Town to a point within 200 miles of the banks of the Zambesi, a distance of 1,500 miles, and from Cairo to the junction of the Blue and White Nile, 1,400 miles from that city. The gap between the two terminals yet to be filled is 2,800 miles. The Bulawayo-Beira Railway, 500 miles in length, joins the system with the port of Mombasa on the eastern seaboard.

A woman of Elizabeth, N.J., has a poodle with a diamond set in one of its front teeth, and all over the country there are dogs and cats whose open mouths reveal bridge work, gold crowns and other examples of good dentistry. But the filling of the teeth of horses is comparatively new. Yet, new as it is, already a number of thoroughbreds have undergone it, and in the finer stables of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago many horses can show glittering gold teeth. It is said that a horse in W. C. Whitney's stables was the first in the world to have a tooth filled.

A London physician of large practice asserts that, owing to his extremely sensitive sense of smell, he can foretell the coming of death forty-eight hours. He says that when a patient comes within two days of death a peculiar earthy smell is emitted from the body. When the fatal disease is slow in its progress the odor makes its appearance as much as three days beforehand; but when the disease is of the galloping kind the doctor says he receives much shorter warning. He attributes the smell to mortification, which begins within the body before life is extinct. Dogs are thought to have this sense, for hunting hounds have been observed to begin a mournful baying a day or two before their masters died.

A "sweethearts' trust" has been organized by the young women of Fremont, Neb., and as a result there is consternation among the men. The new "trust" is known as the Young Women's Reform Union, and Miss Elizabeth MacKenzie is at its head. Hereafter, if a man who is known to them is seen entering a saloon or is caught doing anything against the moral code of the trust, he will be immediately blacklisted by his fair associates; that is, his best girl will refuse to have anything to do with him unless he immediately mends his ways. He will also be barred from parties, and will be snubbed if he meets any of the members of the union on the street. Thus far the union has been getting along with remarkable success. It has been in existence only a few weeks, yet in that time a dozen men classed as moral delinquents have been outdoing themselves in their efforts to have the blacklist against them removed. The club was formed as the result of a revival meeting held there recently by the Rev. Mr. Williams, who hurled his entire vocabulary at saloons and drinking men.

Only Knew One Side of the Question.



"Is life worth living?"
"Never having died, I cannot say."

Caught on the Fly.

Brevity may be the soul of wit, but a story published in the New York "Tribune" shows that some men can be both long-winded and witty. The story has to do with a minister of the old school, and with the poet and banker, Edmund Clarence Stedman, and two New York millionaires, who were his companions on a fishing trip in Northern Maine.

The New Yorkers entered the little backwoods meeting-house just as the preacher began his sermon. He continued speaking for two hours, and finally, when it got late in the afternoon, and he showed no sign of stopping, the vacationists began to get uneasy and wonder if they would get out of the woods before dark. At last they felt that they could stay no longer, so they rose, and started to file out.

The thread of the parson's discourse snapped off short.

"Under the circumstances," he said, grimly, "we will interrupt our sermon and take up the collection at this point."

Inflected English.

While he was being shown about Chicago by the mayor of the city, the French ambassador, Monsieur Cambon, expressed his thanks, says the New York "Times," and added:

"But I am sorry so to cockroach on your time."

"Oh," answered the mayor, "don't think of that. But you don't mean cockroach, Monsieur Cambon; it's encroach you mean."

"Oh, is it? I see—a difference in gender."

Don't Be Too Modest.

Here is some advice for those who would succeed and yet are in doubt as to the wisdom of being too aggressive:

Advertise yourself. Life is a keen competition and it behooves every man to put his best foot forward and to flaunt his merits in the public eye. The modesty of greatness is all trash. There is no such thing. Greatness knows the necessity of holding the center of the stage as much as possible and seldom overlooks an opportunity to do so. The man who has in him all the elements that make success asserts himself on every occasion. In every company he does something to focus attention on himself for a while. He strives to make an impression so that he will be noticed and talked about. He is aware that the public memory is short and that the world must be reminded continually of the existence of its celebrities.

A young lawyer, by nature modest and retiring, made up his mind six months ago that modesty did not pay. He was conscious of his ability, but his light was hidden. He saw men of less mind and learning making their way better than he, and he resolved to imitate them and push himself forward. He joined half a dozen organizations, including two fraternal orders, a church society, a social club, a camera club and a political club. He attended every meeting and spoke on every question. Having thrown off his natural diffidence he expressed very positive opinions in a very loud voice. He had been in the habit of using an ordinary conversational tone in speaking, but at the birth of his great resolve he pitched his voice several tones higher and kept it at that pitch. He became disputatious and intolerant in debate. He took a front seat always and ceased to feel humiliated when rebuked for going too far and not minding his own business. He rather relished a quarrel, for it caused talk and spread his name among the people. He developed a marvelous ingenuity for getting his name into print. Whenever he commenced an action at law he went after the reporters and told them all about it. Whenever he made a speech he sent a copy of it to all the newspapers. He counted that week lost in which he was not mentioned once or twice by the press.

This work has told. While a few sneer at him the great majority take him at his own valuation. The front seat, to get which he used to go early to meetings, is now reserved for him, and he may go late. He who had trouble catching the chairman's eye when he wished to break into a debate is now called on to address those present. He is consulted on all measures for fear he would oppose them in the assembly. The prominence which he formerly seized as though he were stealing it is now freely given as his due. His practice improves because he is talked about. People go to a lawyer whose name is in the papers every day just as they buy a soap whose name is on every dead wall. They may know nothing about the lawyer as they may know nothing about the soap, except the name, but they employ the lawyer as they buy the soap. Why? One must probe deep into the human mind to find the answer, but no matter what the answer the fact stands.

Sorrow or Self-Pity.

A man seldom feels less confident of his ability to say the right thing neatly than when he sits down to compose a letter of condolence. One can scribble off the usual friendly letter without much care or premeditation. A business letter may be modeled on set forms and requires little brain energy. A letter of congratulation may trip along gaily, saying nothing in particular. A letter accepting or declining an invitation sometimes exercises the invention, but never taxes the mind very heavily. A love letter is usually written with amorous spontaneity and, like other kinds of folly, is easy to the true lover. When it is labored it rings false. A letter proposing marriage demands more thought and courage in the sending than in the writing. But a letter of condolence must appeal at once to the mind and to the emotions. It must not be too familiar nor yet too formal. It must sound sincere and yet it cannot be sincere, for the arguments one makes in a letter of condolence are the trite reasoning which is always brought out in the time of bereavement and which neither consoles nor comforts those who are genuinely mourning. Putting these consolatory arguments on paper, one is aware that they are dictated rather by custom than by his own opinion, and that they will have as little effect on the bereaved family as they would have on him if he were sorrowing over the dead body of one he loved.

The hackneyed arguments of consolation are levelled at the wrong point. They deal with the state of the dead one and bid the mourners mitigate grief with the thought that the lamented one has gone to a world that is fairer than this, and is in a condition of beatitude. But the root of grief is not anxiety for the state of the dead. It is rather self-pity. Tears are shed because one whose company gave the mourner pleasure has departed and will not come back. Religion and philosophy both hold that the state of the dead, in most cases, is better than that of the living. The dead do not need pity. They have no regrets at leaving this world. If death ends all, then the dead rest sweetly in oblivion and are as little affected by care or sorrow as they were ten thousand years before they were born. If there is heaven hereafter, as all creeds hold there is, then the dead man, if he lived honestly and well, is better off than he was here below. The only logical ground of pity for the dead, therefore, is fear that the soul may have gone to hell; and what sorrowing survivor will admit that his grief is based on that fear? Do not the friends of saints mourn as loudly as those of sinners?

There is no shame in acknowledging that the so-called sorrow for the dead is only pity for the living. Love bereft of its object will mourn its loss and its grief will be commensurate with the strength of the attachment. When the mourner becomes used to the loss his grief abates according to the rule of kindly Nature. But who is bold enough to make this argument in a letter of condolence?

"What did you get out of your garden this year?" "Not a day went by that I didn't have one of my neighbor's chickens for dinner."

"How is Ann Matilda making out as postmistress at Elm Crossroads?" "Getting along fine. To-day she read twenty postals, held nine letters up to the light, and opened four newspapers."—Chicago "News."

London, Dec. 24.—The prevalence of appendicitis in London has induced Lloyds to issue insurance against it. For a premium of five shillings a man is assured that if he has to undergo an operation he has all his medical expenses paid up to £100 sterling, and even for death under or after the operation £100 sterling will be paid. A large number of appendicitis policies were issued this week. The premium is the same as was charged for insurance during the smallpox epidemic of 1901.

Sydney, C.B., Dec. 23—It [illegible]

an amusing sight yesterday to see a number of loosely attired Celestials endeavoring to master on Wentworth Creek, the graceful art of skating. Johnnie's little feet were incased in the usual felt-soled shoe, covered with a rubber, and then the hockey skate was lashed thereto with strong cords. Just as he was prepared to make a masterly glide the little feet would become unmanageable, and after going promiscuously through the different attitudes of several Dutch rolls he would end up in a somersault as ungraceful as it was disappointing ; to the delight of the spectators. ITALY HAS A SURPLUS

Excellent Showing in the Minister of Finance's Statement

Rome, Dec. 23.—The statement of Signor Carcano, Minister of Finance, issued to-day is an excellent showing. The budget for 1901-02 which included the expense of the China expedition, shows a surplus of 32,000,000 lire. The surplus for 1902-03 is estimated at 16,000,000 lire and for 1903-04 at 4,000,000 lire.

The economic development of the country, the statement says, shows progress. [illegible]

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mile on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunniston Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 15 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 6 ounces or $40 to $120 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $500 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

25 CENTS PER SHARE—PAR VALUE $1.00

In one payment, or 20 per cent. down and the balance in four equal monthly payments, for necessary expenditures and improvements on a shipping mine.

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

Fried sweet apples are good for liver or kidney trouble.

Pour vinegar over fresh fish to make the scales come off easily.

Beating stewed apples till fine and smooth with Dover beater, instead of rubbing through strainer. This will apply to any soft fruit.

Bedroom floors may be kept cool and fresh by wiping them daily with fresh water. Microbes, moths or other insects are thus destroyed. Salt and camphor in cold water is an excellent disinfectant in bedrooms.

In rooms that lack sunlight it is astonishing to see how a strong, bright yellow color of just the right shade, introduced by means of a cushion, or chair, or hangings, will give brightness and life that are almost sunny in effect.

Parsnip fritters may be made by scraping and boiling three or more parsnips until very tender; then, having mashed and seasoned them with salt, pepper and butter, make a pint of batter, add the parsnips, and fry a tablespoonful at a time in boiling lard.

When the glass globes of the chandelier have become smoked and grimy soak them in hot water, to which a little sal soda has been added. Then put some ammonia in hot water and scrub the inside of the globes briskly with a stiff brush, whereupon rinse thoroughly and wipe.

One-half cupful of butter, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of sour or buttermilk, one teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in boiling water, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, two eggs, about five cupfuls of sifted flour, or enough for a moderately thick batter. Cream the butter, sugar, molasses and spice; set the mixture on the range until lukewarm. Add the milk, then the beaten eggs, the soda, and last the flour. Beat hard for five minutes. Bake in small tins or a single cake, as preferred. It is excellent either hot or cold.

Cheese custards served with thin bread and butter sandwiches are often given as a separate course before dessert. Into a cupful of warm (not hot) milk stir one teaspoonful of cornstarch until dissolved, two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, half a saltspoon full of white pepper, a few grains of cayenne, a quarter of a teaspoonful of mustard, and salt to taste. Heat carefully in a double boiler until the cheese is dissolved. Add four eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately until light and brown. The mixture should be baked separately, for each person, in paper cases or pattypans, and eaten as soon as done. All cheese dishes should be served very hot.

New Form of Goose Culture.

A North Dakota farmer has discovered a new way of increasing his flock of geese without going through the usual formality of buying or hatching them, and yet he does not steal them. As the story goes, there is a great sand bar near the home of the farmer. This piece of land projects into the Mississippi river, but in such an exposed condition that a hunter cannot reach it without being seen. For many seasons the bar has been a favorite resting place for flocks of wild geese on their long flights to the far north. Recently the farmer in question saturated several pecks of corn with alcohol and distributed the "doctored" grain over the surface of the bar. The first flock of geese that alighted eagerly gobbled up the corn and soon became decidedly intoxicated. Some of them rolled over and went to sleep, others squawked absurdly and staggered about the bar, and still others tried to fly, but only plunged around in the air awhile and again alighted on the strip of the sand.

The farmer, who had been in hiding, watching the effect of the scheme, rushed to the sand bar and captured nearly the entire flock. He now has plenty of geese.—Exchange.

Fertile Eggs.

When a hen steals her nest and is allowed to sit, the result is usually a large hatch. When hens have been fed carefully and have produced eggs for a long time, it is folly to expect good results from setting such eggs. Nature causes the female to become "broody" when her nest is full of eggs; therefore, the first twelve or twenty eggs laid are strongly fertile, and will produce healthy chicks. The result is less satisfactory as the number of eggs increases. I have experienced this, and do not breed from my layers.

The best results are obtained by mating two or three-year-old females with yearling birds, keeping such fowls back until you wish to mate. Breeding fowls can be allowed to run at large or mated with one male; partial confinement with more than one male will lead to trouble and lack of fertility.

Do not blame your incubator or the place where you set your hens; the trouble can be further off.

Eggs that do not test strongly fertile at the end of seven days, will not give a big hatch or healthy chicks.

Thirty years of experience has taught me that the key to the situation lies in the caption of this short letter.—D. B. Howatt, in Country Gentleman.

Anecdotal.

A Paris journal relates that Prince Metternich once asked Jules Janin for his autograph. Janin took a sheet of paper and wrote over his signature: "Good for a hundred bottles of Johannisberg, to be placed in my cellar." The prince sent them.

The Kaiser can not only speak English perfectly, but he can jest in our language. When he gave a special audience to Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan he asked one of the ladies of the party what she thought of the German Ocean. She replied that the voyage on it had been very rough. "I am sorry," said the Kaiser, glancing at Mr. Morgan; "but the next time you visit us I shall pour oil on the waters—Standard oil!"

Thomas A. Edison has a keen sense of humor, and never fails to use it when an occasion presents itself. For instance, just before he went on a recent trip to Florida, he called his manager to his room and said: "I always notice that you look very well when you work hard." The manager looked up, wondering what Mr. Edison would say next. "Now, I am going away to Fort Myer. I hope you will enjoy good health while I am gone."

A popular captain's wife was more than usually anxious over the safety of her husband, and accordingly handed a parish clerk a slip one Sunday morning, bearing the words: "Captain Wilson, having gone to sea, his wife desires the prayers of this congregation on his behalf." Unfortunately, by the misplacement of the comma after the "sea," the congregation were told that "Captain Wilson having gone to see his wife, desires the prayers of this congregation on his behalf."

During his exile at Elba, Napoleon related that one day his mother's mother was hobbling along the street in Ajaccio, Corsica, and that he and his sister, Pauline, followed the old lady, and mimicked her. Their grandmother, happening to turn, caught them in the act. She complained to Mme. Letitia. Pauline was at once "spanked" and disposed of; Napoleon, who was out in regimentals, could not be handled. His mother bided her time. Next day, when her son was off his guard, she cried: "Quick, Napoleon! You are invited to dine with the governor!" He ran up to his room to change his clothing. She quietly followed, and when she judged that the proper time had come, rushed into the room, seized her undressed hero before he guessed her purpose, laid him across the maternal knee, and belabored him earnestly with the flat of her hand.

One day David Col, the Flemish genre painter, was asked by a peasant to paint a portrait of his father. The young artist said that he would be delighted, and enquired when the father would be able to give him a sitting. The peasant replied, "Oh, he is dead." "How would you have me paint his portrait?" asked the artist, somewhat amused at the peasant's naivete. "Look here, sir," said the peasant, "this picture on the easel—whom does it represent?" "St. Anthony." "You are sure it is St. Anthony?" "Yes." "Did he come here to sit?" "Of course not." "Then, you see, you are quite able to make a dead man's portrait." Col, who asked no better than to earn money, yielded, and, after making enquiries concerning the old man, set about painting the portrait. The peasant, seeing it for the first time, fell on his knees and cried bitterly. "Why do you cry?" asked the painter. "Because my father has grown so ugly."

A good story on Sir William Mulock is being told in Toronto, and is circulating round his constituency of North York. The Postmaster-General has been busy in the Old Country booming Canada up hill and down dale, in season and, according to this story, out of it. Imbued with a desire to test the colonial knowledge of the ordinary Londoner Sir William took a friend along the Strand with him and cast about for three likely subjects. The friend, a distinguished London lawyer, was unwilling to believe that English people were as ignorant on matters Canadian as Sir William represented. The first person accosted had never heard of Canada, and said so shortly. The second was anxious to assist the befogged stranger, and ruminated, but finally had to admit that he was unable to give the locality of Canada. He was sure that it was nowhere near the Strand, as he had lived around those parts for nearly seventy years. This encouraged Sir William. Changing his question a little, he went up to a cockney flower-girl. He asked her if she was familiar with Ottawa. "Familiar with who?" she asked. "You go 'long or I'll smack your dirty face."

Minister Wu-Ting-fang promises to write two books on America when he returns to China, whither he has been called to take charge of the work of revising and codifying the laws of his country. His experiences in the United States have been many, and some of them unique. On one occasion he and Carl Schurz were both to make addresses before a university audience. Schurz had spoken to the students before, and when they saw him on the platform they called out, "Schurz!" "Schurz!" The Chinese Minister, conscious that his silken blouse, worn outside his trousers, might have awakened what he knew to be the easily provoked irreverence of undergraduates, mistook the salutation for "shirts." Whereupon he rose, bowed and smilingly adjusted his robes, displaying the evident comfort he enjoyed in wearing them. Now the students took up the cry in earnest, and "Schurz" readily became "shirts." The uproar of their merriment rang lustily throughout the auditorium. Even the bland and philosophic Minister Wu began to display embarrassment. "Don't pay any attention to them," whispered Mr. Schurz; "they mean me." "Oh, is that all!" exclaimed the Chinese Minister, and sank back into his chair, vastly relieved.

Dinner Invitations.

"I find with men it succeeds better to ask them personally to come to dinner," said a fashionable young matron the other day. "In the first place they are not so apt to refuse, and secondly, you get an answer at once, which saves a lot of worry." "But it is so awkward for a person to be asked point blank; he is obliged to accept whether he wants to or not," returned her companion. "That is just what I want," laughed the young matron, "it is the men I need, and if they come, I do not care if they feel it obligatory or not." Hostesses who do not desire to be considered bores, however, should avoid giving invitations in person. Many men complain of the use of the telephone in delivering invitations as giving them no time to make up their minds, or to concoct a plausible excuse should they not feel inclined to accept.

BARGAIN DAY

Your opportunity for making a conservative investment or judicious speculative purchase is right now. Present market, with conditions for the future as favorable as they are, and with prices down to $30 to $20 per share, the reason for the decline, being principally behind instead of ahead of the market, make stocks most attractive at present. We will be pleased, upon inquiry to notate briefly our reasons for an advance in price; also to name the stocks we believe will make the most decisive and best advances.

Let us send you a copy of our 400-page "Guide to Investors," also our up-to-the-minute "Daily Market Letter." We proffer our services as commission stock brokers, carrying upon moderate margin stocks in multiples of 10 shares; grain in multiples of 1,000 bushels; cotton in multiples of 100 bales. Correspondence solicited.

STOCK MARKETS

New York, Dec. 24.—Continued from yesterday's letter. The exact reverse action applied if you are selling short upon an upward movement. The stock rises from 103 to 105 1-2 and 106 you sell ten shares, between 108 1-2 and 109 you will sell ten shares more, then if it continues to advance to between 110 and 111 you sell 20 shares more; buying in the entire amount of stock sold whenever it reacts to such a figure as will net you a profit upon the entire transaction. If you will take your pencil and the fluctuations sheets showing the daily movements of stocks you can theoretically try the system for any particular period that you may select and thus without any risk to yourself test to your complete satisfaction the merits and suggestions. You will find you select any five different periods and apply theoretical test that four times out of five it would have proven profitable and any method of trading that will win the preponderance of times will win out in dealing in Wall street. We suggest that you take a file of quotations sheets and try the experiment. If you find it to work well, then actually apply it to your market trading in a small way, gradually increasing your ventures as you find it profitable and accustom yourself to the many little side matters which will occur to you from time to time. Experience will bring to your mind many additional improvements to the method which cannot be satisfactorily outlined theoretically. The fact that these two stocks fluctuate as they do make them especially attractive for trading in after the manner outlined. If the proposition is not absolutely clear to you write us asking for explanation as to any point not sufficiently plain, and we will be pleased to endeavor to enlighten you. In starting the method we would suggest awaiting an opportunity to trade upon the bull side of the account inasmuch as the two issues are inordinately cheap at present. One point more, after closing out a successful trade made in this manner resume your position in the same manner after the first reaction of any a point and one half from the previous high point, thus recovering your position in the stock and thereby benefitting should the general market tend be upward. If it not be upward then following the system as outlined should enable you to get away with a profit.

Summary—To-day's market was holiday in character. The transactions were the feature. Brooklyn Rapid Transit rose four points. Metropolitan more than recovered its dividend and Manhattan was strong. There was no seeming pressure discernible all day, and the buying was oft the kind described as good. We are still bullish and commend sugar and copper. The market closed very firm and indications point to a higher market after Christmas. We desire also to extend to our patrons the compliments of the season, also our thanks for the favors extended to us. It will be our constant endeavor to faithfully serve them in conscientious service and unbiased advice at all times. Sales 363,200. Money closed 6 per cent. Wishing you all a most merry Christmas. TEACHER REMEMBERED

Miss Middleton of Elmdale School was the Recipient of a Presentation

On Friday afternoon a number of the parents and friends assembled at Elmvale school to bid farewell to their teacher. At the close of a programme prepared by the pupils for their annual closing, the following address was read:

Dear Teacher, — It is with pleasure we meet here this afternoon and look back on the many pleasant memories we have of the past year in our intercourse with you as teacher.

We have also deep feelings of regret, as we have come to say good-bye and to wish you every success in your future field of life. We cannot let you go without telling you how much we have appreciated you personally, and as a willing and efficient helper in our school.

As a slight token of our sincere friendship we ask you to accept this silver sugar bowl, tea spoon holder and spoons, to remind you of the days you spent at Elmvale school. May God's richest blessing go with you, and may He guide and protect you in all your ways.

Signed on behalf of the school,
MAGGIE LYNCH,
BERTHA ARMSTRONG.

The teacher although taken completely by surprise, found words to thank her pupils for their kind remembrance, and regretted having to part with such dear friends. The afternoon was brought pleasantly to a close by the distribution of some good things to eat.

EXCURSION TO BERLIN!

Farmers should be interested in the fact that an opportunity will be given them to thoroughly investigate the merits of the beet sugar industry as it is carried on at the large factory in Berlin. A special train has been secured for on or about December 30th, which will go and return the same day. The rate will not be higher than $2, return. The hour of starting will probably be about 8.20 a.m. and of returning about 10 p.m.

THE GERMAN EMPIRE'S FUTURE IS VERY DARK

The Banks Bulge With Money Which the People Cannot Passibly Borrow

The Workingmen Seldom Have Meat for Food No Improvement of Conditions in Sight

Berlin, Dec. 25.—The approaching dawn of another year finds Germany still plunged in the depths of industrial distress and financial gloom.

Tens of thousands of men and women are already oppressed by the highest cost of living the fatherland has known for many years, are confronted with the prospect of another workless year.

Scores of factories and mills are working at far below their capacity, and only the abnormal export demand, notably from the United States, and especially in the iron trade, enables a semblance of activity to be kept up. Perhaps not a single German industry is capable of sustaining itself by the purely domestic trade, which is unquestionably as depressed today as the darkest hours of the crisis which began eighteen months ago.

To make this picture blacker, no one pretends to hold out the hope of an early return of better times. The banks are bulging with money, but it is hoarded with miserly conservatism. An atmosphere of scepticism and uncertainty shrouds every sort of enterprise, particularly anything bordering on expansion or new departures.

BANKS' VAULTS CLOSED TO THOUSANDS.

Numberless concerns which have heretofore obtained needed support from their bankers find themselves shut off from fresh advances. To avoid failures and protect previous loans, the banks have found it necessary in many instances to take over the debtors' properties. Such a transaction has just been completed between one of the great electrical companies and its Berlin financial connection.

All the great joint stock companies will pay reduced dividends for the current year. Many have worked at losses running into tens of thousands of dollars. The great shipping lines, headed by the Hamburg-American, present gloomy balance-sheets. The overseas traffic for 1902 has been a record of deficits and disappointments.

Altogether Germany's position is regarded as fully as bad as a year ago, when the wisest authorities predicted that the storm had spent its fury, and that 1902 would be a year of reconstruction and revival.

THE RICH ARE MONEY HOARDERS

Berlin affords scant evidence of being the capital of a country bending beneath and burden of two years accumulated depression. The great shops are alive with Christmas buyers, but purchases are sadly curtailed. The rich with bank accounts no longer yielding regular incomes have become money savers along with the middle classes, while the workpeople and the poor, satisfied to obtain such luxuries as meat, form no part of the holiday throngs.

Above the whole situation loom three giant bogeys aggravating the strained position. Foremost stands the uncertainty with reference to the commercial treaties. Next comes the fear of an impending American crash which shall swamp the fatherland with low-priced manufactures.

Last, but not least, is the apprehension held in high circles that Mr. Chamberlain will eventually forge a Zollverein into being and enclose the British Empire, so long a rich field for commerce, behind an impenetrable fiscal wall.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 25.—It is reported that 400,000 persons in Finland are destitute and starving, Pastor Francis of the Anglo-American church says the conditions are worse than they were in 1867, when 100,000 persons died. He has issued an appeal for assistance, and will try to feed and clothe the school children of four Finnish parishes.

GERMANY HATES THE MONROE DOCRINE

It Was Never More Emphasized in Germany Than at Present

A Growing Feeling of [illegible] the United States is Apparent [illegible] Fatherland

Berlin, Dec. 25.—"Now for a test of the Monroe Doctrine!"

Thus may be expressed the thought which has been in all German minds during the last few days, inspired by the unexpected silence of the United States Government while the German fleet is sinking Venezuelan war vessels and the allies are destroying Venezuelan property. There has been a distinct revival of spirit since my letter of last week noting the feeling that the Kaiser has gained no more than temporary support as a result of his visit to England.

That feeling was mainly engendered by the cordial attitude of France and England toward each other on the arbitration question. Officialdom is still uncommunicative, but the press echoes public sentiment when it now see in the friendly overtures of France a disposition to join all Europe in making use of the opportunity to see whether the United States will stake all in support of her contention that the Western continent is for Western nations only.

With characteristic impulsiveness many Germans are already anticipating the arrival in Carribean waters of addition German and English warships, and squadron from the French and Italian, and perhaps the Russian navies. Never before has the deep hatred of the Monroe Doctrine by the mass of Germans who approve the Kaiser's colonization policy been so clearly illustrated. Little else is talked about, though, of course, in diplomatic circles there is an appearance of serene ignorance that anything unusual is going on.

ON CHRISTMAS MORN

Once in royal David's city
Stood a lowly cattle shed,
Where a mother laid her baby,
In a manger for His bed;
Mary was that mother mild,
Jesus Christ her little child.

He came down to earth from heaven,
Who is God and Lord of all,
And his shelter was a stable,
And his cradle was a stall;
With the poor and mean and lowly,
Lived on earth our Savior holy.

And through all his wondrous childhood,
He would honor and obey,
Love, and watch the lowly maiden
In whose arms He lay;
Christian children all must be
Mild, obedient, good as He.

Not in that poor, lowly stable,
With the oxen standing by,
We shall see Him; but in heaven,
Set at God's right hand on high;
When like stars His children crowned,
All in white shall wait around.

AROUND THE WORLD

How Christmas is Celebrated In Foreign Countries

QUAINT MIXTURE IN RUSSIA

Burning of the Christmas Log in Norway—Hilarity in Old Mexico

In damp, foggy old Britain the spirit of Christmas has been kept alive as heartily as in any part of the world, but thanks to English novelists, it's celebration is as well understood in America as in the motherland.

Christmas in Russia, is a quaint mixture of the sacred and profane, a blending of the past present and future, which produces a curious mixture of pain and pleasure. Christmas eve is the close of a long and rigorous fast, for none but the deepest-dyed sinner would dare to satisfy his hunger or slake his thirst ere the twinkling light of the first star bade his crucified appetite appear.

One can imagine how incongruous such a Christmas appears to an American, where the festive season, is not unusually, in its preliminaries, a little the antithesis of a fast. In one particular alone does the Russian Christmas resemble the American and that is in the extravagance of its present giving, for in both countries the habit seems to be carried to the point of a vice.

There is one conspicuous feature about the keeping of Christmas in Norway which I have never seen in any other country. It is the burning of the "great log of Christmas," a most quaint and interesting custom. Before sunrise on Christmas morning the head of the family precedes his family into the forest, where he at once proceeds to cut down a fallen stump. This done, he raises his hat to the log, turns towards the east, crosses himself and utters the following words: "Give to me and to Christmas abundantly, O God." Should the log then by any chance fall the wrong way than another is cut, unless they choose indeed to remain unlucky for the coming year, and perhaps for many following ones. Smaller logs are provided for each member of the family, and each draws his own back to the homestead, where they are leaned against the wall, the cut ends being exposed. Should one of these logs have stood the wrong end up the whole thing must be repeated or else little luck may be expected from the fates by any member of the family. It is not until the fire is lighted that the anxiety of the little family is entirely over. After the great log has once been placed upon the hearth one must be very careful not to speak of witches, for they supposed to be hovering around to snatch at any excuse to mar a happy Christmas.

Really about the jolliest place to spend Christmas is on the American continent in old Mexico. There one hears nothing of penances, little of prayer, but observes an immense amount of hilarity, which is almost universal, with the exception, naturally, of the solemn observances in the churches which are unusually grand, coming to a climax with the solemn midnight mass at the Cathedral. Rather oddly the Mexicans have a Christmas tree observance closely resembling that of the German. Santa Claus is as much a reality in Mexico as he is in Germany. Every family, has its tree, upon which things are hung, and when Santa Claus calls, as he comes in the shape of a masked personage dressed up to resemble the bounteous old character, he simply takes the presents from the tree and distributed them to those who have a right to them. This system is so much superior to that of the Germans which calls for a midnight trip down and up a sooty chimney in white robes, that it recommends itself highly to persons of other nationalities. Naturally no public holiday in Mexico would be complete without bull fights, cock fights and some of the brutal pastimes in which the people are addicted.

The Parisian takes Christmas languidly and gracefully, but scarcely enters into it with the vim of his Berlinese brother. He is a creature of different mould and temperament, and perhaps after all really means to understand Christmas as well as his Teutonic neighbor, but he makes little fuss over it, has no quaint customs to observe and affects no unusual routine that would make it a particularly distinctive day.

One has to go to the nooks and corners of the world, it would seem, to ferret out interesting observances of the great Christian holiday — to find those people to whom the glad clarion of the Christmas bells brings a thrill of realized hope and pleasure which no mere pen can describe.

In the Balkan peninsula there are many quaint observances among the Servians, Roumanians, and especially among the Montegrins, that strange race of proud and haughty beggars, whose people remind you of nothing so much as "supes" in the comic operas.

Every Christmas night the Montegrin kindles a fire on the ample hearth, which is built of contributions in the shape of lighted pieces of stick from each member of the family. Above the blaze of this fire dangles a long kettle chain which becomes intensely heated as the fire grows stronger on every night except Christmas. Of course, no one ever tries to prove that it does not follow the ordinary rule on this particular night, because faith may be stronger but skin is tender. You dare not tell a Montenegrin peasant that the chain grows warm, under penalty of being looked up as a dog. If you argue gently with him he will explain to you why it does not follow natural laws on Christmas night. His explanation is that a chain of similar character hung over the fire built in the stable at Bethlehem, and that when Christ was born the Virgin mother grasped it for support. It became cool instantly, so that her sainted hand should not be burned and that is why kettle chains in Montenegro never grow hot now on Christmas nights.

WELL FED HOGS PAY.

Many Need Not Be Kept a Full Year and They Will Bring a Good Price.

Owing to the unprofitable expense of roofing and more space than is absolutely necessary, one of the great problems in the interior arrangement of farm buildings is the economizing of room. Such being the case, every practical device possible should be sought after, and when one is discovered that answered the purpose fairly well it ought never to be forgotten.

This is highly applicable to the horse manager shown herewith, for not only is it convenient and economical, but just the thing wherever the space for a horse stable is small, as usually occurs when the stalls are arranged across one end of the barn, or if so that the horses face the barn floor.

As can be seen in the illustration, in place of the commonly wide and deep manger construct a through (1) about a foot wide and the same in depth, using hardwood boards for the purpose if possible. In front of this, away from where the horse stands, insert iron rods or tough wooden poles (2) the full width of the trough and just far enough apart so that the animal can get its nose between them to pull out the hay or fodder placed for it by its keeper upon the slat support (3). And how is this held in position? Why, by being hinged at the bottom and supported from above at regular intervals by being attached to wires or ropes (4) arranged there for this purpose.

Thus you see it is a very simple device, and yet possessed of numerous advantages in that it saves space, wastes little or no feed and has no hateful corners in which the refuse parts of the feed may collect. The fact is, if this affair faces the barn floor all seed and chaff must fall through the slat support onto the same, and as this in turn may be scraped up and fed to the cows, not a single thing edible need to be wasted.

Provided corn fodder is at any time largely fed, all one has to do is to let down the slat support from the top occasionally and out upon the floor will roll the stalks, whence they can be easily conveyed to any spot desired, which, of course, should not be the manure pile, since cornstalks are always a nuisance in dung of any kind, unless it be a mulch designed for some special purpose.

And how about the economizing of room? Why, if the manger is next to the barn floor, when drawing in hay or the like drop down the slat support from the top, leave it so, and it will be entirely out of the way.

As to the material for constructing this support, generally speaking it is best made of halfinch boards four inches wide, and in fastening it at the bottom so that it will swing up and down use common four-inch strap hinges, these serving the purpose almost as well as iron ones.

Talk on Fruit.

Plums and poultry go well to-gether. The poultry clean out the curculio and thrive on them, and plums thrive a good deal better without them.

A great many of the diseases of trees and plants are diseases of weakness and can be prevented by thoroughly good culture and manuring such as will keep the tree or plant in a vigorous growing condition. This is practicularly true with the diseases of small fruits.

Rely on well known varieties of small fruits, but keep in touch with the testing of new ones. Every fruit grower can afford to do a little of experimenting, perhaps, but he should take care to do no more than he can afford to see fail. If somebody comes around with something very remarkable for sale, let his talk go in at one ear and out at the other.

Never allow a fruit tree to overbear. Nothing is gained and much is lost by neglect to this. A tree will give in fewer fruits all the yield by measure that it can give without injury to itself. The fruit will be larger, better developed and of better quality. Overbearing one season is a draft on the future resources of the tree which it will not recover from for several years if at all.

Turkey Culture.

I prefer the Bronze turkey. The public wants a turkey weighing 7 to 10 pounds and with a yellow skin. The first eggs I set under a hen, the next setting the turkey takes and as a general thing she will bring off a brood in the Fall. If warm quarters are provided they are easily raised, and bring a good price in the Spring when there is a scarcity. The best thing I find for lice is ashes and sulphur, mixed and put in the coops, and I always put a little epsom salts in the drinking water about twice a week for the health of the bird. They have their freedom as soon as they are strong enough to run around. Little turkeys do much better with an old turkey. A hen mother will run the legs off from little turkeys, whereas an old turkey will hardly stir out of her tracks until her little ones are good and strong; then she is a great rambler. The best thing I find for food is what we call Dutch cheese, an egg boiled hard and black pepper mixed with it and plenty of rum. Toward Fall they will naturally turn their heads in the direction of some neighbor's corn or buckwheat field and will be in fine condition by Thanksgiving.—Mrs. Charles Smart in Farm and Home.

"To say a pleasant word to anyone was almost impossible."

"I was troubled with female weakness for eight years; and suffered more than I can tell," writes Mrs. Gust. Moser of Ovando, Deerlodge Co., Mont. "My disposition was affected to such an extent that to say a pleasant word to anyone was almost impossible.

"I had two operations performed by one of the most skilled surgeons of the West, but did not get relief. Then, against my doctor's strict orders, I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and also followed the advice given in the Common Sense Medical Adviser.

"I continued this treatment for three months, and to-day am as healthy and well as a woman can be. I cannot thank Doctor Pierce enough for his kind letters to me."

Womanly diseases, as a rule, spoil the "disposition," because of the extreme nervousness and suffering they cause. Happiness as well as health is restored to the woman whose diseased condition is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

After eight years of suffering and two fruitless operations, three months' use of "Favorite Prescription" restored Mrs. Moser to perfect health. This great remedy for woman's ills, establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Filtered Milk.

William Carry, an old north Texas dairyman, who has traveled extensively abroad, says, according to the Dallas News, that central depots where milk is received and filtered before being taken to the consumer are now a feature of several European cities.

Large cylindrical vessels are divided horizontally near their centre by compartments containing sand of three successive degrees of fineness, the coarsest being the lowest and as the milk arriving from the country is poured through a pipe into the bottom of these vessels it rises through the sand filter and is run off by an overflow pipe into a cool cistern from which it is drawn directly into locked cans for distribution.

The sand is renewed each time the filter is used. The dirt is separated from the milk, the number of bacteria is reduced to one-third and an astonishing quantity of mucus and slimy matter is removed, the loss of fat being very light.

Rapid Milking.

It is a common mistake to suppose that the faster a cow is milked the better is the milk product drawn from the udder. It is certainly not so until practice has acquired, and the muscles of the hand have been trained so that the teats may be compressed gently and without apparent effort. The pulling and hauling worries the cow, and often causes her to hold up the milk so that no one can rapidly draw it. As a rule cows should be milked always by the same person. If a change is made the cow at once discovers it and makes the milking harder.

The operation of milking, if gently performed, is a pleasure to the cow. This pleasure promotes milk secretion, so it is not an absurdity to say that a good milker will get more milk from a cow at the same milking than an unskilful one could get, though each secured all that the udder would afford to him or her. The change from one milker to another is never made without some loss. Therefore where a large herd of cows have to be milked, and several milkers are employed, each milker should have assigned to him the cows he shall milk, instead of milking one or another indiscriminately. The cow will discriminate, even if the milker does not.—American Cultivator.

Cracked Wheat For Young Chicks.

Some cracked wheat should be given to chicks even before they are a week old, says an exchange. It is the best exercise their digestive organs can have. Whole wheat will be eaten when the chicks are ten days or two weeks old and should always form a part of their ration. It is especially valuable to make them feather quickly, by giving the grain containing just the kind of material necessary for feather production. Where wheat is largely grown, the fowls find enough scattered grains about the barns or stacks, so that young chicks hatched in mid-summer will become full feathered before winter, and make early spring layers.

The hog that stands square and strong upon its feet should be chosen for a breeder in preference to a [illegible], [illegible] animal.

HE LIBERALS NOW HAVE A MAJORITY IN SENATE

lthough Only one It Is Enough to Give Them Control of the Chamber

Death of Senator Primrose Party in Power Gets Control of Upper Chamber

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—Years ago, when Wilfrid Laurier was returned to wer, there were nine Liberals in Senate, out of a total house of 81. death of Senator Primrose, which curred on Tuesday at Pictou, Nova otia, leaves the Liberals in a ma- ity in the Upper Chamber. The nate now stands 41 Liberals and Conservatives, a majority of one the government.

This does not show the real strength the government, because there are number of Opposition Senators , by reason of age and infirmity, are not able to attend.

The death of Senator Primrose was not expected. A letter was received from him last week at the Senate. He was then in good health. The deceased Senator was a native of Nova Scotia, where he was born in 1830. He was therefore 72 years of age at the time of his death. He was one of Sir John Thompson's first appointments to the Senate, where he took an active interest in all matters that came up for discussion, but more particularly in subjects which interested the Maritime Provinces.

RINGS OUT MANY SCOTCH LABORERS

obert Adamson Arrives With ardy Contingent—Number Falls Short

uth Africa Takes Away Many From Great Britain—Wages High in England

Winnipeg, Dec. 26.—A handy look- g lot of Scottish laborers, number- r 132, arrived in Winnipeg yester- y, fresh from the old country, in arge of Robert Adamson of Virden. This was the fourth party, a total mbering 485 men. Mr. Adamson has ought out within the past two ars.

"When I first commenced this ork," he said to a reporter for the imes who met the train by which e party arrived last evening. "I ad considerable difficulty in convinc- g farmers here of the worth of this ass of labor.

"They will be no use for the first ear," was usually the reply I got. t was all I could do to place eighteen f them the first year I started. Ex- erience has taught them a different story, and to-day, although I have 132 with me, I could place many more."

PAY HIGH IN BRITAIN.

"Had you any difficulty in securing men in Great Britain?"

"Yes, I found the wages paid to farm laborers had gone up considerably. They run about $250 per annum.

"Another influence against me was the demand from South Africa. When I was in Dundee, I found that hundreds were leaving, and they all had situations provided for them before they left.

"South Africa is much spoken of throughout the whole of Great Britain, and it will compete with us in the immigration field."

"Where are these men you have brought out from?"

"Some from Aberdeen, others from Forfar, Inverness, Perth, Argyllshire, and Bute. I expect others to follow later in the winter, as I left an agent there to work for me."

Mr. Adamson will return to the old country next March for another contingent.

THE METROPOLITAN BANK

W. D. Ross of Finance Department Assistant General Manager

The Metropolitan Bank, which is about to open a branch in Peterborough, in order to cope with its extensive organization program and be in a position to give attention to business offered, has decided to immediately engage the services of an Assistant General Manager. For this post the bank has succeeded in securing Mr. W. D. Ross. Although Mr. Ross is a comparatively young man, he has an exceptionally good chartered bank training, having entered the services of the Bank of Nova Scotia at its New Glasgow office in May, 1883; six years later joining the staff at the General Manager's office, and in 1892 re-entering the New Glasgow office as accountant. In 1893 Mr. Ross was appointed Manager at Stellarton. Assistant inspector of the bank in 1895, and one year later Manager at New Glasgow. Four years later, or in 1900, he was appointed Manager at Charlottetown branch, from which position he resigned in 1901 at the request of Hon. W. S. Fielding to enter the service of the Finance Department of the Dominion of Canada at Ottawa. The temptation to join the staff of the Metropolitan Bank as Assistant General Manager has proved greater than prospects in the civil service. Mr. Ross since entering business at the age of fifteen has, with the exception of the present year, spent his whole life in active banking business. He will assume his new duties on the 1st of January. The bank will have their Peterborough branch open early in January.

IRRIGATION IN THE TERRITORIES

Big Scheme is Being Developed by Magnates of the Canadian Pacific

Will Give Thousands of Acres of Arable Lands—Plains Not Complete Yet

Winnipeg, Dec. 26.—The irrigation of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for reclaiming arid lands in the western country is not yet fully developed and the particulars of the work will not be given out to the public until all the plans are matured. The scheme is in the hands of William Whyte, assistant to the president of the C.P.R., A. F. Griffin, head of the the land department, and other high officials of the road. It is expected that all the plans will be ready by the middle of next month.

NEW BRANCH LINES

These important works will include the extension of branch lines of the railway into new territory and they will open up new stretches of wheat producing country.

Mr. Whyte was asked as to how matters stood by a reporter for the Times last evening, but he replied that at the present time he could make no statement.

"There are several other things that depend upon the irrigation works," answered he. "Until these are arranged for I can say nothing."

He would not say what these other matters were.

"Will the Dominion government be asked to subsidize the scheme at the next session of parliament?" he was asked.

SUPPLY OF WATER.

The important irrigation works which are now under consideration, embrace two and a half million acres of semi-arid lands lying in the district between Calgary and Medicine Hat. The water will be obtained from the Bow river, which will give ample fall to supply the irrigation canals. The money to be expended in these works will run into the millions of dollars, as it costs $3 an acre alone to convey the water from the Bow river to the arid plains. These lands, when irrigated will be transformed into fertile areas, fit for all kinds of cereals as well as for root crops.

This has been amply proved by the experiments made by Mormon settlers who are rapidly becoming rich from the magnificent crops they raise on these irrigated lands. The work will be under the supervision of Mr. Dennis, late of the public works department at Ottawa, who has given especial study to irrigation and hydraulics.

A CHRISTMAS WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss Mary A. Bradley and Mr. Joseph Arthur Ash

On Christmas morning, at ten o'clock, a very quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at George street Methodist church, when Miss Mary A. Bradley, daughter of Mr. James Bradley, was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph Arthur Ash. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. J. P. Wilson, Mrs. Moart playing the wedding march.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of white organdie trimmed with lace and insertion, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. She was given away by her father. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Bertha M. Bradley, who was similarly attired, and carried pink carnations. Mr. W. Greer, of Cobourg, supported the groom.

After the ceremony the bridal party returned to their home, 655 Aylmer street, where a sumptuous wedding dejeuner was served. The happy couple left on the G.T.R. for the West. On their return they will take up residence on Macdonald street.

The presents were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held by their many friends. The Times extends its hearty congratulations.

A NORTH MONAGHAN WEDDING

Mr. James F. Akey, of Town, Joins Ranks of Benedicts

"Fairview Farm," the home of Mr. J. Giles, North Monaghan, was the scene of an interesting event on Christmas Day when his daughter, Miss Irene, was united in marriage to Mr. James F. Akey, of Peterborough. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. W. L. Armitage, rector of All Saints' church. The bride was charmingly attired in a suit of blue lady's cloth, trimmed with white silk and velvet, and was attended by her sister, Miss Evelyn. The groom was supported by his brother Mr. Charles Akey.

The newly married couple will reside on Dalhousie street, Peterborough. The Times extends its congratulations.

MR. C. N. BROWN HONORED

The Secretary of the Curling Club Caned on Christmas Day

On Christmas afternoon at the close of curling, the members of the Thistle Curling Club, presented Mr. C. N. Brown, with a handsome gold-headed cane as token of their appreciation of services rendered in the past.

Mr. W. G. Ferguson, in a short speech, reviewed the long connection of Mr. Brown with curling in Peterborough and Mr. J. S. Knapman made the presentation.

Mr. Brown, replying, expressed his gratitude for their kind remembrance and following him Mr. R. Neill made a brief speech in keeping with the occasion.

POST OFFICE TOO SMALL

People Protest Because of the Crowding on Rush Days

For some time there has been a feeling of discontent amongst business people and others over the post-office, which is far too small to accommodate the crowds who go there for their mail. Every night at six o'clock there is a crush around the wicket, while on holidays, it is difficult to gain admission to the building at all.

On Christmas day those who had business in the post-office came out puffing and in bad temper. Many there were who would not wait for their turn at the wicket, and the weak had no chance at all in the crush.

The building is too small for the business to be done, and the sooner steps are taken to bring the matter to the attention of the Government the better. We would suggest that the matter be taken up by the Board of Trade with Mr. McClelland, who will, we are sure, do all in his power to get a new post-office.

PRICE OF COAL

The Outlook for Cheap Coal Not at All Encouraging

Mr J. H. McClellan returned on Wednesday from Buffalo, where he had been to see after coal. It was with the greatest difficulty that he secured a few cars. Mr. McClellan found the coal situation most serious. He was shown a letter from one of the largest coal operators in the United States, written to his brother in Buffalo, in which the former said that he was of the opinion that hundreds of people in the United States would be compelled to burn their mahogany furniture to keep from freezing, before the winter was over.

Mr. McClelland yesterday got four cars of coal which cost him on the track in Peterborough, $11.25 per ton. This he sells at $12—barely cost. He is determined to take care of his customers throughout the winter, and if any man can get coal, Mr. McClellan is that man. He has now enough to keep the wolf from the door, metaphorically speaking, for a couple of weeks.

He was told that Canada would not get more than half the supply usually sent in during the winter months. When the fact that there is no coal on hand is considered, this will mean that about one-third supply. Perhaps the worst feature of the whole situation is the scarcity of steam coal, which will greatly hamper manufacturers.

LINDSAY LABOUR PLATFORM

The Labour Unions of Lindsay Have Entered Municipal Politics

At a recent mass meeting of socialist and labor organizations the following platform was adopted.

1st—All municipal business should be transacted in the offices owned by the town.

2nd—No municipal commissioners should be elected or appointed to do town work. All such business should be done directly through the council of the town.

3rd—Instead of special commissioners an expert superintendent for water, heat, light, road, etc., to be engaged at a reasonable salary, who shall discuss all business of his department with the council and from whom alone he shall take all instructions.

4th—The council shall, as soon as practicable, establish coal and wood yards and municipal ownership of light, heat and water supplies.

5th—The people should have direct control, through their representatives in the council, of everything in connection with the municipality.

6th All coal sold inside the corporation should be weighed and all wood measured by the market clerk or other proper official, and a certificate given of the weight.

7th—No public money or public support should be given to anything in which the people have not direct control.

8th—No grant, gift, loan, or transfer should be made to any board, company, institution or individual without first being subjected to a vote by the people.

9th—All municipal work being done by day labor instead of by contract.

10th—Term of all yearly municipal service should expire on the 31st day of January each year.

WEATHER NOTES

Saturday—Northwesterly winds; continued cold.

Very low temperatures have occurred during the past few days in Manitoba and from Ontario to the Maritime Provinces the weather has been fairly cold. There has been a considerable snowfall at some points in the Ottawa Valley, and light snow flurries have been prevalent in Ontario and Quebec.

The coupons are coming in thick and fast these days, showing that our readers are manifesting an interest in civic affairs. Both the Mayoralty and Aldermanic list contains the names of men who would fill the respective offices with credit alike to the town and to themselves. Messrs. Shortly and Fair are making an exceeding close run with Ald. Roger for the Chief Magistrate's position, and it seems that a Mayoralty election this year is not at all improbable. As for the Aldermanic elections, a glance at the list will show that the subscribers to this g.f.j. are bent on having a wide-awake and progressive civic board.

A "South-Warder" writes:—"Enclosed please find ten ballots for Mr. C. B. Robertson, as alderman. Mr. Robertson has had municipal experience, and made an excellent representative. I hope he will consent to run, when I am sure he will be elected by a good majority."

A citizen writes:—"I send more coupons for Mr. R. F. McWilliams for Alderman. If he will accept of nomination I consider his election a sure thing."

A merchant writes—"I am pleased to note Mr. A. W. Cressman's position in your list for Alderman. I only endorse the sentiments of a large number of ratepayers when I say he would prove a valuable acquisition to the Council o 1903."

A merchant writes—"I vote for Ald. Roger for Mayor. His election is sure even if he should have opposition."

PARTNERS SHOT EACH OTHER

Had a Duel Locked in a Room—One Dead One Dying

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 26.—Information reached here from Searcy, Ark., this afternoon that Orlando Miller and D. Mahan, merchants of West Point, Ark., and partners in business, locked themselves in a room and settled their business troubles with pistols.

Miller shot Mahan over the ear, killing him instantly. At the same second Mahan shot Miller over the heart and the surgeon says that Miller cannot live many hours.

COAL SUPPLY

Many Collieries are Still Idle on Account of Floods

Pottsville, Pa., Dec. 26.—The Philadelphia and Reading R. R. Co., in order to increase the supply of anthracite coal in New York and Philadelphia, has issued orders that no family in this section be permitted to purchase more than one ton of coal at a time. All employers of the company have been limited to one ton a month.

The collieries which were flooded by the rains of last week are still idle, and in consequence the anthracite production has been considerable decreased.

KEEPS PRINCE OUT OF BUSINESS

King Edward Won't Let Francis of Teck Become a Stock Broker

London, Dec. 26.—A story is printed to the effect that the King has vetoed a proposal by Prince Francis of Teck, a brother of the Princess of Wales, to become a stock broker. The firm of Panmure, Gordon & Co., offered the Prince £3,000 a year to enter into a partnership. Other prominent firms have since offered much higher figures, there being a keen contest to secure his services.

The King, however, would not hear of a brother of the future Queen assuming such a position, which would be in any case a delicate one, and which would become impossible in the event of the Prince of Wales becoming sovereign.

CHARITY FOR KRUGER

The British People Have Treated the Old Man Generously

London, Dec. 26—W. L. Alden, the noted literary critic, writes as follows —"Mr Kruger's book has probably received better treatment in England because it is the work of an enemy than it would have received had it been the work of a friend. England is in a magnanimous mood, and the Boer generals when they landed here were received with as much enthusiasm as Kitchener himself. But if Kruger's book were to be judged solely on its merits, I doubt very much if it would have received the favorable reviews which it has so far received. It is the work of a cunning and ignorant old man, and those facts stand out on nearly every page. Of course it has a certain interest as the work of a man whose name has for the past four or five years been in everybody's mouth, but it seems to be decidedly dull, and is, in short, just such a book as Kruger might have been expected to write."

CALLS KAISER A PARVENU

Paris Paper Says He Wants the World to Know He Has a Navy

Paris, Dec. 26.—Commenting on the Venezuelan affair, the Petit Journal says the Kaiser evidently set great store on involving King Edward in his schemes, but there is no proof that the King did not see this from the first. By hanging back and refusing to go hand in hand with the Emperor the King has given the Kaiser a disagreeable lesson.

The Matin expresses the opinion that Germany and the Kaiser are behaving like parvenus who, having made a great deal of money in a short time, want everybody to know it. Germany now has a navy which she is using to astonish the world in general and the weak nations in particular.

MR. JOHN CORKERY IS NOW MAYOR OF PETERBORO

He was the Unanimous Choice of the Council Last Night

To Succeed Mayor Denne, Resigned—Mail Delivery to be Asked for—Free Library for Peterborough

At the Council meeting last night Mayor Denne handed in his written resignation, which was accepted. On motion of Ald. Roger, seconded by Ald. Rush, Ald. John Corkery was the unanimous choice of the Council for Mayor for the balance of the year 1902.

Ex-Mayor Denne's reason for withdrawing from municipal office is that he has accepted a position with the American Cereal Company, which will call him away from home too frequently to allow of his attending to the duties of Chief Magistrate in that thorough and efficient manner which has characterized all his proceedings while enjoying the public's confidence during the past eight years. His object in retiring before the end of the year is that he may be eligible for election as a Waterworks Commissioner for 1903. In this respect he has only acquiesced to the urgent demands of a large majority of citizens, who recognize, that having been Mayor, when the waterworks was taken over by the Town, since which time he has acted with Messrs. Matthews and Hill as Commissioner, his services are indispensable during the forthcoming term, especially as a reorganization of the water rates are now under consideration by ex-Mayor Denne and his exceedingly capable colleagues.

Then, again, questions may arise from time to time during the next year in connection with the purchase of the water works by the Town, on which Mr. Denne will be better qualified to advise than one who had not served on the Civic Board at the time of such purchase. It is admitted by thinking men that in the interests of the Town, the three present commissioners should be re-elected for 1903.

Ex-Mayor Denne's flour and feed business will be conducted by his brother, Mr. Roland Denne, who was for eight years with Messrs. Richard Hall & Son. Mr. T. H. G. Denne will enter upon his duties with the American Cereal Company at the beginning of next year.

The Town Council met in special session last night to wind up the business for 1902.

A by-law to authorize the borrowing of $5,000 to pay for extensions of the water works system during the past year passed its several readings.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. Morrison, a resolution urging that a general mail delivery by carrier be established at once, and that the Town Clerk take the necessary steps in connection with this matter at once.—Carried.

Council then adjourned.

THE RING.

Tom Sharkey has just emerged from his retirement and wishes to fight again. Some time ago Sharkey announced that he had quit the ring, but the introduction of a championship possibility in the person of Jack Monroe, the Anaconda miner, who succeeded in staying four rounds with Jim Jeffries, caused the ex-sailor to change his mind and appear on the fistic horizon again. In an interview yesterday Sharkey stated his willingness to meet either Monroe or Jim Jeffries in any sort of bout for a purse and side bet limited from $1,000 to $5,000.

LACROSSE.

A cable despatch to a morning paper from London, England, reads—

"A strong team of lacrosse players drawn from England and Ireland will probably visit Canada in 1904. The project has been favorably received, and inquiry into the possible playing strength of such a team suggests that little difficulty will be experienced in raising a strong side. The trip may be made either in April, or at the end of July, according to the arrangements concluded in Canada for the championship league games there.".

The project to bring a team of lacrosse players to Canada from the Old Country in 1904 was mentioned in The Times some time ago. Mr. J. Melrose Macdonald, the able secretary-treasurer, of the Toronto Lacrosse and Athletic Association, is conducting the negotiations from this side of the Atlantic. He said today that he has been communicating with the English and Irish Lacrosse Associations, but that he has received no definite assurance that a team will come, though he believes that the trip will be arranged.

THE GROWING MARKET IN CHINA

The increasing importance to foreign nations of the Chinese market is shown by a report on the foreign trade of China for the past year furnished by Mr. Jamieson, the British Commercial Attache in China, and published by the British Foreign Office. Comparing the figures for the year with those of 1896, the year in which trade recovered from the war with Japan, it appears that while the total trade in 1896 was just over 54 millions sterling, it amounted last year to very nearly 69 millions, the imports having increased by 6 1-2 millions sterling. The value of merchandise imported to China last year was over 29 1-2 millions, of which 14 3-4 millions represented the value of cotton goods, over 4 3-4 that of opium, 2 1-2 kerosene oil, nearly 2 sugar, over 1 1-2 metals and over half a million woollen goods. In spite of the steady increase in the cultivation of native opium, the Indian drug continues to hold its place, and the import last year was almost exactly the same as in 1897. While the main staples of the import trade, except kerosene and sugar, have to a great extent remained stationary, certain articles included under the head of sundries show great increases. Chief among these are flour, matches soap, cigars and cigarettes, aniline dyes, perfumery, paints and umbrellas. The figures relating to these show a gradual change in native taste and a growing tendency to absorb more articles of Western production.

The total exports of China last year were valued at just over 25 millions sterling, of which silk amounted to 9 and tea to 2 3-4 millions. The statistics show that the low exchange has had the effect of stimulating exports, and it has been said that but for the fall of silver many articles now in the export list would never have found their way there, and that a rise in exchange would cause them to disappear altogether. Mr. Jamieson concludes his report with some suggestions for the expansion of trade with China. He thinks that a wider field is opening for machinery, owing to the increasing establishment of [illegible] and flour mills, the adoption of foreign presses for dealing with bean products and the use of engines to assist in various kinds of local manufacture on a small scale. He also suggests experiments in the manufacture of such articles as hats and shoe uppers for the millions of China and the imitation of Chinese table accessories in electro-plate and similar importations.

There are indications that China will become an important market for Canadian products. Canada could supply China with an almost unlimited amount of flour, and the increase in the flour importations of China and the fact that that country is establishing flour mills show that the consumption of flour is increasing. The Chinese are likely to show an increasing liking for flour products and as to how, the Chinese Consul General at San Francisco has pointed out, China is too densely populated to spare much land for wheat growing. In China land must be cultivated like a garden to produce adequate results, and wheat is not a suitable product for such cultivation. Whatever wheat China absorbs must be imported, and most of it will probably be imported in the form of flour. When the Siberian railroad is completed Siberia will be a competitor with North America for the Chinese market for wheat and flour, but North America would have the advantage of ocean carriage instead of a long haul by rail. There is likely to be a great market for American flour in China and Canada should be able to obtain a considerable share of that market. And among the many other articles which China is increasingly importing there are many which Canada is well qualified to supply.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The sanitary condition of the French army was brought before the French Senate the other day by M. Gotteron, who stated that, while since 1870 Germany had lost only 13,000 soldiers from disease, France has lost 99,000. Gen Andree, in reply to this startling declaration, acknowledged that in France the military mortality was 4.17 per 10,000, whereas in Germany it was only 1.41. Tuberculosis and typhoid fever, he said, were the principal factors. In the barracks, he added, many reforms had been affected in the past ten years, but many municipalities failed to provide good water. He should endeavor as far as possible to withdraw garrisons from such towns. As to tuberculosis, Germany exempted weakly conscripts, a course which favorably affected the statistics, but the malady, in any case, was more frequent in France than in Germany. Conscripts, moreover, had to join the regiments on November 15, when a change of climate, diet and habits was most undesirable, the this imprudence had to be dearly paid for.

FOR THE MAYORALTY.

Card to the Electors of Peterborough

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough ?

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

In response to the numerous representations which have been made to me upon the subject, personally, by requisition, and through the press, I place my services at the disposal of the public as a candidate for the Mayoralty at the approaching municipal elections.

My association with the important municipal advances which the Town has been making during recent years, will enable me to give continuity to the aggressive forward policy which the Council has sought to pursue, and to bring experience and information gained therein to bear upon the work and problems which still more immediately confront us.

While I cannot lay claim to all the qualifications which have been flatteringly ascribed to me, such capacity for the office as I do possess is cheerfully placed at your service, and I ask your sympathy and support in the effort to maintain the position and standing, and advance the welfare of our already prosperous and progressive Town.

Respectfully yours,

G. M. ROGER

What to do With the Jews

Almost as tenacious and inexplicable as the racial peculiarities and general characteristics of the Jewish people themselves are the prejudices and antagonisms with respect to them cherished and often manifested by other people in various parts of the civilized world. One might think that in our day of tolerant and enlightened thought, when the contributions which the Jews have made and are making to science, literature and art, to industrial wealth and financial progress, are coming to be recognized at their full value, that at this time the blind and unreasonable hatred of the race which formerly obtained would lessen and vanish away. And so it has, in a great measure, in most enlightened communities; in others, it seems to remain in full force.

Just now a new anti-Jewish movement seems to be sweeping over parts of Europe, more especially in the East. Fifty thousand Jews have, it is stated, been ordered to quit the mining province of Russia, and to reside within the pale after sacrificing their occupations and their property. In Roumania, also, they are being forced to emigrate by a series of laws which practically deprive them of all means of subsistence. They have absolutely no rights, and live at the mercy of a population which hates them to such a degree that their Parliament has declared all Jews to be foreigners, although they have been resident for centuries. Neither Germany nor Austria will do anything for them, and it seems impossible for Western Europe, which is more tolerant, either to protect them or to find them a new habitat.

The problem, then, what to do with the Jews, appears, from a European point of view at least, to be almost as insoluble as the problem of the colored race in America. One thing seems clear, that it is not to be solved by wholesale emigration or colonization, such as the Zionists propose, any more than the negro difficulty can be cleared away by a like process. The only rational solution now presenting itself in either case, thinks "Leslie's Weekly," is that lying through education of the right kind, through development to a higher, broader, more tolerant and humane plane of life and thought for all classes concerned; a slow process, it is true, but apparently the only one that holds out any promise of success.

Ungenerous Winners and Bad Losers.

Gentle reader—as the old-school editorial used to address you—have you ever played checkers with an opponent who, when he had gained a slight advantage over you in the number of pieces, traded one for one, mercilessly, until he had brought your ratio of strength to a point where your defeat was inevitable. His play was strictly according to Hoyle. You could not frame a non-demurrable complaint against him. And yet you raged inwardly against his policy and called it unsportsmanlike.

Well, there are people who play the game of life in that same way. Many of them are very respectable people, too, go to church every Sunday, treat their families kindly and obey the law. They are very companionable, jolly fellows, often, but beware of them in any little game of business or politics. Don't let them crowd you into a corner or get the better of you by one piece or obtain a chance through your negligence to slip a king into the square between two of your pieces. Don't endorse any little notes for them or go on their bonds or make oral contracts with them or work with them or for them without having had a definite understanding, provable by witnesses and writings, concerning your share of the profits or spoils.

They will not cheat you any more than old Shylock would have cheated Antonio, but they will have the full amount of their bond, though it cost your heart's blood. They will stay within the limits of the law and will give you justice, but if you cry to them for mercy you will waste your breath. They will take advantage of technicalities, and they will laugh at appeals to their generosity. "Business is business," they will say. "There is the letter of the bond." There can be no withdrawing a move once made when they are in the game.

This policy is very exasperating to the losing player, whether the game be checkers, business, politics, high finance, diplomacy or anything else, but, after all, it is perfectly fair. It is nature's own way of playing the game of existence. Readers of Huxley recollect his famous illustration of the struggle of existence as that of a man playing chess against an automaton which never makes a misplay and never overlooks one committed by its opponent. If we look without prejudice we see that Shylock was in the right. Whatever generous impulses we may have, we have no right to grumble because another holds us fast to the terms of our contract or the rules of the game.

Meaner than the checker-player who trades one for one when he has more pieces than his opponent is the man who always asks odds, who whines for mercy, who will not take his medicine like a man, who is willing enough to play, but weak-hearted when the game goes against him. We like to see a man generous in victory, but we admire far more the man who is game and patient in defeat. Men despise an exacting, hoggish winner, but a whimpering loser disgusts them.

A Philanthropic Miscarriage.

A man died recently in America and left half a million dollars to establish a home for—indigent women, he is alleged to have meant, but he wrote, instead, "indignant" women. Now the lawyers are vigorously fighting the will on the ground that its essential provision cannot be carried out legally. But why? Surely they cannot prove that there are no indignant women to advantage by the bequest. Nor will any sane and honest man contend that it would not be a good thing to provide a home where such might foregather, as occasion arose, to give vent to their indignation. Now that the lawyers have hold of the estate, it is useless, of course, to ponder its eventual disposition; but the probabilities are that the devisor had in mind, and really intended, as a boon to his fellow-men, a retreat for indignant ladies. If he had meant "indigent" he might have said so.

"I saw Johnson going home with my new book under his arm."

"Yes. Just built him a house and his wife wanted some bric-a-brac in red and gold to scatter around." [illegible]

Recollect this property is producing a profit to-day of not less than $60,000 annually. By "profit" we mean over and above all expenses.

References back of the mine and its managers are the best in the State of Oregon where the property is located.

We personally examined this property thoroughly, and believe it to be one of the coming heavy producers of the Eastern Oregon Gold Fields.

Has placed four-fifths of its stock in the treasury for development work; and because

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all horning more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $50 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $25 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,
(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Golf and Stained Glass.

The aesthetic portrait painter and the enthusiastic golfer sat before a blazing wood fire in the lounging-room of the country club. Having nothing in common they had tried in vain to entertain one another, and were now at a conversational standstill. A burst of sunlight streaming in through the stained glass window bathed the men and all about them in a flood of red, white, blue and yellow, causing both to look up, and giving the artist an inspiration.

"Did you ever follow up the evolution of the stained glass window?" he asked.

"No. I can't say that I ever did," replied his companion, bored but resigned.

"Well, the art in its inception dates back to the reign of Caligula, A.D. 37, but up to the beginning of the nineteenth century the colors were laid on with paints for the most part. Since the discovery of the art of staining glass by the use of chemicals while in its molten state, and of other modern processes used in connection with it, the making of stained glass has taken tremendous strides, opening up an entirely new field for the exercise of artistic genius which is being generally taken advantage of. For instance——"

"No. I never thought of that," interrupted the golfer, "but, you know, the game of golf dates back to——"

"Oh, golf be hanged!" exclaimed the artist, impatiently. "You don't seem to think of anything else."

And he went out to admire the beautiful October landscape, while the other man started to find someone who would play nine holes with him, muttering as he walked along: "Golf is a darn sight better fun than stained glass, anyway."

Rockefeller's New Hair.

The Chicago "Record-Herald" declares that a new growth of hair adorns John D. Rockefeller's head. A few months ago, the multi-millionaire lost every hair on his head, lost his eyebrows, his moustache, became as bald as the mirrors in his drawing-room. He was extremely sensitive about his remarkable lack of hair. To wear a wig would have been to reduce infinitely the chance of growing new, true hair of his own. He suffered from what the dermatologists call "allopecia areata." The dermatologists call the soft, downy hair that now decorates his head "lanugo," from the Latin lana (wool). Usually when this much-desired "lanugo" appears it is white. So when the bald spots in which it springs are small it gives the patient's head a strangely mottled or piebald appearance, as contrasted with his natural hair, which may be black or brown or red. But Mr. Rockefeller's head is not piebald; it is covered with silky, white hair. Soon, if it thrives and grows, it may become pigmented. The only discouragement about the growth of the silky hair is that in persons over fifty years of age there is no certainty that it will flourish. Many cases have been known of "allopecia areata," where the hair has revived and has become pigmented with the old-time colors. But these cases have been, in nearly every instance, in persons under fifty, and generally under twenty years of age. There have been a few rare cases in people more than a half century old where the delicate hair has become stout and healthy, and grew until death.

A Summer Idyl.

"It was one of the hottest nights last season," he said. "The missus and children were at the seashore, and I was alone in the house. To gain a little coolness I opened the doors through all the rooms on the second story and dragged up my bed to the front window. Just as I was feeling the relief, and was dropping off into a most delicious slumber, a prolonged and melancholy yowl awoke me. Again and again it was repeated. I recognized the sound only too well—it was a dog serenading the moon, which was at its full, and I knew by experience that such concerts usually lasted hours. Rising on my elbow, I could see across the street, and there in a patch of silvery light on a balcony sat a small white fox terrier, with nose uplifted, enjoying a very ecstasy of woe. 'Flora!' called a coaxing voice from the window. 'Come here.' Flora paid no attention, whereupon a white form appeared, and, leaning out, made a grab at the small offender, who retreated to the other end of the balcony out of reach and renewed her music, unheeding the dulcet endearments of her mistress, who tried to induce her to re-enter the house. A second window was opposite Flora, and the white form reappeared at that and cautiously reached out an arm to seize the dog, who, however, gained the other point of vantage and continued to bay to the moon. This puss in the corner business was continued several minutes, Flora scampering from end to end of the balcony, evidently enjoying her triumph, while still continuing her music. By this time heads appeared at the windows of several other houses, and the situation became desperate. 'Dear Flora! Pretty Flora! Here's a nice biscuit for Flora!' called the soft voice, but Flora would not be cajoled. Finally, to the relief of everyone, Nemesis appeared. When Flora made her last skip from her mistress a tall figure in pink pajamas appeared at the other window, stretched out a long masculine arm and seized the wicked Flora by the scruff of her neck. 'Ki-yi!' yelped the little animal; but the master of the house, incensed at being aroused from his slumber to catch a pet dog, had no compassion. That a well deserved punishment was inflicted we all heard with satisfaction. Then quiet reigned and we returned to our couches and interrupted repose."—N. Y. "Tribune."

Regarded in Different Ways.

That one can obtain more favors by "jollying" than by being brusque is just as true as "one can catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar." The New York "Tribune" cites a case in point:

Two young men employed by the New York Life Insurance Company have lived in a boarding-house in West Twenty-third street for some time, and one has the reputation of being a "jollier," while the other is quick spoken and of a bearish disposition. The young men are friends and usually breakfast together. Their respective standings in the estimation of the dining-room maid may be judged from the way in which that damsel shouted their orders—both had requested steaks—down the dumb-waiter shaft recently:

"A nice beefsteak, a trifle rare, for Mr. Wood. Some meat for Baldwin."

Hardships of the Educated.

Expatiating upon the hardships of the educated youth, a contemporary intimates that this is a bad time for the college man who goes out into the world to find something to do. Taking into consideration the fact that this is what is popularly known as the "silly season," it is not surprising to find intimations of this nature in ordinarily sane quarters. Viewed, however, as a proposition worthy of serious consideration, it is not difficult to substantiate a claim to the contrary effect, and to say positively that for the man who is really educated there has never been a time richer in opportunities than this. Of course if a man spends four years in college storing his mind with useless knowledge it is not at all likely that his B.A. will help him much in getting himself established in life, and the chances are that without material assistance from his parents he would stand an excellent chance to be reckoned among the idlers. But the other man, the man who knows what he wants to do and fits himself for it, and is persistent and conscientious in his work, need have no fear that the world will be lacking in rewards for him when the harvest time comes. The melancholy fact that our colleges are turning out sciolists by the dozens, men who half know a lot of things that have no practical value in the pursuit of fame and fortune, does not alter the other fact that the well-trained student who has gone at his work seriously, and with a particular object in view, finds always a ready market for his energies. The whine that we get from the so-called "educated" man is not from educated men at all, but from those who confound the possession of a degree with education; who think that because they have fulfilled the academic requirements of the college they are therefore educated. These men may possess a vast amount of information, but they are no more educated necessarily than a man who possesses a complete tool-chest is by virtue of that possession a good carpenter. To have the finest set of tools in the world is a hollow mockery to the man who does not know how to use them; and these wailing youngsters who plunge into the whirl and eddy of life with a store of information that they do not know how to avail themselves of are in an equally sad case. But the fault is not with their times: it is with themselves—or perhaps with their parents, who have failed at the proper time to observe their bent, and to direct their energies in the channels most fit for their fullest development.

An Athletic Fallacy.

Commenting on the recent defeat of Walter J. Travis, the golf champion, by Louis Napoleon James, the New York "Evening Post" says: "With all friendly feeling for Mr. Travis, most golfers will rejoice in his defeat. It is only human nature to wish to see a tradition of invincibility broken, and for three years past Mr. Travis has been invincible. He was and is the finest example of what are called the older players—that is, those who had reached full maturity before handling the driver or the iron. It was felt, and justly, that the younger players, who had learned their full swings during the flexible period of boyhood, must very soon assert their superiority. This has been done by Mr. James, a Western player. But Mr. Travis has not fallen before demonstrating the hollowness of several athletic fallacies. It is often said that, athletically, it is all up with a man beyond thirty who has not previously been an athlete. Proverbs to this effect abound. It is said, for example, that a man may ride beyond thirty, but never acquires 'a seat,' and in general the man of thirty as a beginner in sports has about the consideration that Dr. Johnson gave to the preaching woman. Mr. Travis, by learning a very difficult game, beyond the fatal year, and by carrying off for three years running the championship honors against all comers, has done much to commend himself to his contemporaries—even to those who by no means covet distinction on the links. It is a comfort to have those wretched proverbs about the thirtieth year disproved."

Irish Politics.

The tragic times in Ireland, when peasant was at open war with landlord and all were at war with English rule, are relieved by many good stories. As Mr. Michael MacDonagh says in his book, "Irish Life and Character," the mercurial Celt is whimsical even in time of trouble.

When Mr. A. J. Balfour, the present Premier, was Chief Secretary for Ireland, he met Father Healy at a dinner in Dublin.

"Tell me, Father Healy," said Mr. Balfour, "is it true the people of Ireland hate me as much as the Nationalist newspapers represent?"

"Hate you!" replied the priest. "If they hated evil as they hate you, Mr. Balfour, my occupation would be gone."

Yet it was Mr. Balfour who a few years later had accomplished much toward the pacification of Ireland. His name became amusingly prominent in Irish families. A gentleman driving into the town of Westport, County Mayo, was stopped by a pig which ran in front of his horse. An old peasant shouted across the ditch to a boy who was watching the pig stupidly:

"Arrah, Mick, will ye stir yerself? Don't ye see Arthur James runnin' away?"

Struck by the name, the gentleman asked the old man about it, and found that in gratitude to Mr. Balfour, who had been the means of getting them the pig, the peasant had given the animal his name.

It was not long since the young women in the cataloguing department of the Astor Library were laughing at a beginner there who catalogued Greek roots under "botany." But some of the mistakes made by beginners elsewhere are just as amusing. Many years ago a young woman who had not yet learned all the intricacies of her work was cataloguing a set of works under "mill." So she wrote:

"Mill on Liberty."
"Ditto on the Floss."

That is one of the historic mistakes that librarians quote, and a newer one is just as amusing. This was the result of a young librarian's inexperience, and read:

"Lead—See Metallurgy."
"Lead—Kindly Light."
"Lead—Poisoning."

A Laughter-Cure For Drunkenness.

In a recent lecture at Chicago University, Professor William N. Guthrie declared that laughter and comedy made be made to play an important part as curative and remedial agents, even to the point of protecting humanity from the liquor habit. Says the Chicago "News" (July 7), in a report of the lecture:

"Drunkenness, of course, is due only in part to discouragement or desperation. But for the considerable number who drink because they feel dejected and seek a quick and easy way of throwing off their depression, there is a much larger number who drink either because they have nothing else to do or because they crave some excitement to relieve the monotony of their lives. Drinking is a great time-consuming habit, and the man who would shake it off usually finds that the reform leaves him with an undue amount of leisure. One chief trouble with the efforts to suppress the evil, perhaps, is that while the drinker and his friends make brave efforts to stop the bad habit, they do little or nothing toward putting a new and wholesome habit in its place. It is in this stage that his bored feeling and his depression recur with greatest effect. Professor Guthrie's address contains a hint for the despondent person. Let him surround himself with the influences which make for comedy and laughter. Let him seek cheery companionship or attend amusing entertainments. The chances are that he will find the time slipping by so pleasantly that he has forgotten his depression and much of his craving for artificial excitement. Good fun and good cookery—the one to occupy the depressed man's mind and the other to steady his nerves—might be made to do a great deal toward suppressing the liquor evil."

That Professor Guthrie is a valuable press agent for the comic opera and vaudeville companies is asserted by the Chicago "Record-Herald;" but after following out this light vein for some time it becomes more serious and says:

"There really is a scientific or physiological basis for Professor Guthrie's cure for alcoholism. The general assumption is that men resort to alcoholic stimulation to make them feel happier than their normal condition would justify. They drink to drive away the 'blues' and to induce a feeling of temporary mental elation. If this feeling of mental buoyancy and cheerfulness can be induced by some other means than alcoholic stimulants, it is clear that the desire for intoxicants will be lessened.

"This is the argument of Professor Guthrie, and it seems sound and logical. The 'horse play' of John Slavin or Montgomery and Stone may not fertilize the mind as does 'The Second Mrs. Tanqueray,' but it is more certain to Keeleyize the desire for strong drink."

He'd Never Thought of It.

The camera fiend was getting ready to go into the woods, his present fad being the photographing of young birds in their nests, for the purpose, as he explained, of illustrating the "life history" of the feathered songsters.

"My friend," said one of the group on the portico, "I know you to be a man of humane instincts, and that you would hesitate a long time before you would kill an innocent thing like a wood thrush, a young robin or any other harmless bird. Nor would you cause them pain, much less a lingering death, if you knew it. Now, the fact is, you are almost certain to do all these things in your pursuit of the photographs of very young birds."

"I don't see how," was the incredulous rejoinder.

"Then I'll take the liberty of explaining. In almost every instance you find it necessary, in order to get the proper light upon a nest, to cut away some of the limbs that surround it. In doing this you are almost certain to frighten the mother bird, sometimes to so great an extent that she leaves the nest never to return, which means death by the torturing process of starvation to her little brood. Even if this does not occur, the removal of the twigs and the leaves upon them deprives the growing youngsters of their natural protection from the burning sunbeams or the cold, driving rains, and death comes to them in that way. Or, escaping this danger, they fall victims to hawks, owls or other birds of prey; your handiwork, by rendering the nest more conspicuous, having contributed to this result."

"By jove, I never thought of that," said the man with the fad, "but now I see that it is true. I'll do no more of it."

And he kept his word.

Do Tobacco and Cheese Cause Cancer?

Of all the ills that flesh is heir to there is none more justly dreaded than cancer, a painful and lingering disease for which no adequate remedy has yet been found. It will be remembered that in an address before a medical congress a year or so ago, King Edward of England expressed the hope that a diligent effort would be made to discover some means of checking this dreadful malady. Recent investigations point to the conclusion that one of the causes of cancer is improper food and drink. That cancers of the lips and mouth are caused by excessive smoking is now a fact established by the case of General Grant and others, and it has been intimated that cancer microbes have been found in certain vile-smelling foreign cheeses for which some fashionable people profess to have a great liking. So far as the malady is traceable to causes like these the remedy to be applied is simple and easy, viz., to smoke moderately, if at all, and to let all mouldy and decayed articles of food alone, no matter if gourmets pretend to like them.

Theory and Practice.

"Papa," said the sweet girl graduate, "wasn't my commencement gown a whooperino? I had the other girls skinned alive!" "And this is the girl," said papa, sadly, "whose graduating essay was 'An Appeal for Higher Standards of Thought and Expression!'"

District Attorney Jerome of New York, whose father, Lawrence Jerome, was a celebrated wit of his day, says that on a certain occasion, when he was a little chap, he was riding on his father's knee in a Fifth avenue stage, every other seat being taken. At the corner a lady entered, and his father said to him in severe tones: "Why, Travers, my boy, I am ashamed of you! Why don't you get up and give this lady your seat?"

WERE AT WATERLOO

Two Women Who Witnessed the Battle of Waterloo are Still Alive

London, Dec. 25.—Consequent upon the published comment that the race of Battle of Waterloo survivors on both sides who were actually combatants is absolutely extinct, an inquiry was recently made respecting surviving eye-witnesses. Among these two women have been located. Barbara Moon, who saw the battle from a British wagon, resides at Gravesend, in Kent, and is [illegible] years old.

Madame Marie Theresa Dupois, of Chapelle-lez-Herlaimont, near Charleroi, is, however, a good nine years her senior, and yet far more vigorous. She is a magnificent specimen of Walloon womanhood. At the time of the famous battle she was a buxom lass of 12 and did a roaring trade in cheap cigars and ardent spirits with the French soldiers. Mme. Dupois saw the battle raging from the hills to the south and on the following day aided in comforting the wounded.

There are still living also three survivors of the historic ball on the eve of Quatre Bras—Lady de Ros and her sisters, Lady Louisa Tighe and Lady Sophia Churchill.

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment; it has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mile on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunnison Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 55 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 8 ounces or $40 to $120 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 8 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $500 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

A ROMANCE.

ly across the springing turf, and clasped her arms around the fair neck of the elated heiress.

"Florry, dear, I am glad you are going to be such a great lady," she said, kissing the smooth, peachy cheek.

Florence drew back from the loving caress of the girl she had all along believed to be her sister, and said, with a supercilious air and tone:—

"Oh, pshaw! Hilda, of course I know that that speech is all cant. You are only sorry that you are not in my place this minute. And now, while I think of it, you may hand me that locket, with my mother's miniature, that you have worn so long."

Even Mr. Aylesford, who considered Florence perfect in all respects, drew back aghast at the sudden rudeness and selfishness of the peer's granddaughter, but no one spoke, and Hilda silently untied the velvet ribbon around her neck, and drew from it the beautiful locket. A quick tear softened her proud, dark eyes as she touched the spring and looked at the beautiful face within. Impulsively she pressed her lips upon it, then shut it with a snap, and laid it in Florence's hand.

"My mother, the daughter of an earl!" exclaimed Florence, proudly, as she looked at it. "I will wear this henceforth, instead of my father's picture."

And suiting the action to the word she put in her pocket the locket she had worn, and substituted for it the one she had taken from Hilda.

CHAPTER VI.

A Mysterious Stranger.

"Pardon me, young lady, but will you tell me how you came by this locket?"

The speaker, a beautiful, sad-eyed woman, came up to Lady Florence Aylesford, and touched the golden ornament at her throat with one eager finger, while she uttered the anxious question.

The scene was on the lawn at the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs in West Virginia. The Aylesfords had arrived there that morning in company with the two Englishmen. They were on their way to New York, whence they would leave for England accompanied by Florence. Mr. Aylesford and Hilda had borne them company as far as the noted summer resort we have named. The whole party proposed remaining there a few days, and then they would separate — Hilda and her father to return to their mountain home, and Florence, under convoy of her new friends, to seek her grandfather's stately castle in England.

It was September, and the height of the season was over at the springs but the hotel and cottages were still filled with visitors who were loth to forsake the health-giving mountain breezes and the exhilarating waters. As the Lady Florence and Hilda walked about the green lawn that began to be lightly sprinkled now with bright-hued autumn leaves, the blonde and brunette attracted much attention. Florence's brilliant coloring and coquettish grace made her beauty noticeable everywhere, and Hilda, though unformed and childish, still gave such promise of future perfection in her free, proud bearing, and bright, dark eyes, that the gazers' eyes dwelt on her as admiringly as they did on Florence.

As the two girls paused near the spring, watching the animated throng moving over the lawn, they both observed a lady stop short in her solitary promenade and regard Florence earnestly. The next moment she stepped forward with the words we have already recorded at the head of this chapter:

"Pardon me, young lady, but will you tell me how you came by this locket?"

Both girls drew back in astonishment, and stared at the agitated speaker.

She was a woman in the prime of life, beautiful and stately, with finely chiseled, aristocratic features, and proud dark eyes. Her figure was slender and erect, her face still young and untouched by the finger of time, save for a pale, impassioned melancholy that brooded changelessly over its beauty. Added to this peculiarity was another. The silky, abundant hair, arranged in waving bands above her broad, white brow, was a beautiful silvery white. Not a single dark thread remained to hint of a time when those silky tresses had matched in color the proud yet sad dark eyes that rested so wistfully on the face of the beautiful blonde.

So awed and amazed was Florence by the grave, sad dignity of the beautiful stranger, that she could not answer insolently, as she was at first on the point of doing. She answered after a moment's thought:

"It belonged to my parents, madam, and contains my mother's picture."

"Your mother's picture?" The dark eyes looked at Florence strangely and keenly. "Will you allow me to look at it?"

Florence touched the spring and the lid flew open.

The mysterious stranger leaned forward and looked at the picture it disclosed.

She saw a fair, flower-like face, dark in the eyes and hair, the crimson lips dimpling into a happy smile, the whole sweet face instinct with youth and gladness. As she looked, a sigh—passionate, hopeless, profound—floated over the lips of the stranger.

"You say this is the picture of your mother?" she said, in a tone of incredulity, as she glanced from the picture to the fair, blonde face that in truth bore no resemblance to the dark-eyed mother she claimed.

Florence flushed resentfully.

"Yes, she was my mother," she said, coldly. "Why do you ask?"

"What was her name?" asked the lady, disregarding the question.

"She was Lady Ethel Lorne, the daughter of the Earl of Devon," was the proud answer.

The mysterious lady started as if some one had struck her a blow. Her beautiful, melancholy face was convulsed with emotion, but in a moment she recovered herself and said, in a voice that quivered with uncontrollable excitement:

"Pardon my seeming rudeness, but will you tell me your father's name?"

There was a moment's silence, then Hilda stepped forward, for she saw that her cousin was becoming so indignant at the stranger's persistency that she would not speak.

"His name was Guy Aylesford, madam," she said, in a soft, low voice.

The lady who had been regarding the beautiful blonde intently all the while, turned with a start and looked at Hilda. Her soft, dark eyes ran over the frank, spirited young face with its scarlet lips and great, starry dark eyes lighting the thin, childish face into beauty. A puzzled frown contracted her brows.

"My dear," she said, abruptly, "where have I seen you before?"

"Nowhere that I am aware of, madam," answered Hilda, simply. "I am Hilda Aylesford, Florence's cousin, and I have lived in the mountains ever since I can remember."

"Florence?" said the lady, inquiringly. "Is that the name of this young lady?"

Hilda bowed assent, while her cousin made a step forward as though she would move on.

"And she is actually Guy Aylesford's daughter?" exclaimed the stranger.

"Yes, madam," answered Hilda, with an unconscious sigh.

"Come, Hilda," said Florence, impatiently, pulling her by the arm, "let us go."

Hilda was about obeying the imperious mandate, and had already taken a few steps forward, when the sound of a low cry and a heavy fall startled her. She turned back quickly and saw that the mysterious lady had fallen on the soft turf, and lay there with her deathly face upturned to the light, its marble pallor rendered still more startling by contrast with her sombre black silk dress.

"Oh, Florence, she has fainted!" cried Hilda, running back and kneeling down beside the still form. "Lend me your smelling-salts, please."

She lifted the heavy head compassionately on her arm, and when Florence came back and gave her the restorative she asked for, she applied it to the nostrils of the insensible woman. A curious crowd began to surround them as the dark eyes flashed open with signs of returning consciousness.

"It is Mrs. L'Estrange," said one of the springs' proprietors, coming up. "We must remove her to her cottage. Her health is exceedingly delicate."

Mrs. L'Estrange put up one feeble hand and drew down to hers the tender, compassionate face bending over her.

"Hilda," she whispered, "will you slip away from your cousin and come to my cottage after dark? I wish very much to speak with you further."

Hilda readily gave the promise she asked, and the mysterious stranger was borne away on the arms of two gentlemen to the cottage she occupied.

CHAPTER VII.

"Because I Love You."

Hilda had little difficulty in obeying Mrs. L'Estrange's injunction to slip away from her cousin and come to her cottage after dark. Florence was extremely fond of society, and directly after dark she assumed her most elegant evening dress and descended to the spacious hotel parlor on the arm of her uncle, who was all obsequious attention, while she treated him in turn with a condescending affability tinctured with superciliousness. Hilda excused herself from accompanying them on the plea of having no suitable dress to appear in, and they readily accepted the apology and left her to her own devices for the evening.

When they were gone, she rose and paced restlessly up and down the floor of the small room.

"It is strange," she said to herself, sadly, "how completely papa is wrapped up in Florence. He cannot see, as I do, how scornfully she treats us since her sudden accession to fortune. He has always loved her best, always given her the best of everything, while I have been counted second from first to last. And it was the same with mamma while she lived. And yet I was their own child when she was barely a relation, and her father had wronged mine also. I never thought of it while I believed Florence my sister, but since I have known the truth it seems strange to me how papa could love her better than his own child, and give her the preference always."

She brushed away a quick-starting tear from her eyes, and took up a scarlet shawl lying on a chair, wrapping it about her head and shoulders.

"I will go and see Mrs. L'Estrange," she said. "How beautiful she is, and how much sorrow she must have known, for her face is so sad, and her hair is silvered before its time. She acted strangely, but I am sure she is good, and true, and noble. I loved her the minute I looked at her beautiful, sorrowful face."

She opened the door, glided through the long corridor, flitted down the stairway into the hall among the moving throng of pleasure-seekers, then out into the long piazza and down upon the lawn in the chilly September moonlight. No one knew her and no one noticed her movements as she went.

The cottages belonging to the White Sulphur Springs were some distance from the hotel, and set round about the beautiful pleasure-grounds in a kind of circle. Hilda had watched Mrs. L'Estrange when she went away that evening, and thought she could easily find the cottage she occupied. So she hurried fearlessly across the lawn, and struck into a path she fancied was the right one, her heart beating with a strange pleasure at the thought of meeting the mysterious lady again.

She paused after a little, and looked up at the row of cottages. They were all nearly alike, but selecting the one she thought Mrs. L'Estrange had entered that evening, she opened the little gate and went up the steps to the front door. Pausing a minute to take breath, she rang the bell.

The door opened, the fragrance of a cigar floated out on the air, and a tall, handsome young man confronted her.

"Miss Aylesford!" he exclaimed, in a tone of surprise.

"Mr. Courtenaye!" cried Hilda, starting back. "I— excuse me — I have made a mistake. I was looking for some one else."

She was turning to run down the steps as she spoke, and Cecil Courtenaye caught up his hat and rushed after her with an impetuosity quite unusual to his ordinary leisurely movements.

"Miss Hilda," he said, overtaking her outside the gate. "Let me ac-

Mahometan Women.

The fact that all Turkish women must dress alike in the streets gives rise to the impression of a sameness of character that does not in the least exist among them," says Mary Mills Patrick, president of the American College for Girls in Constantinople. "A superficial observer who meets these veiled figures in public places, shrouded in a mysterious costume that suggests great possibilities of beauty behind it, may wonder indefinitely what kind of a life these figures really lead, without any clue to the solution of the problem. Yet life in Turkish society is as real and varied as in America, and often far more dramatic.

"There are decided types among Turkish women. There is the butterfly, who lives for pleasure; the domestic woman, and even the strong-minded woman, and, in addition to these, a class exists not found in America, the women who belong to court society.

"The butterfly is often a Circassian woman, and was perhaps brought to Constantinople to be sold to the highest bidder, and throughout all her childhood was taught to look forward to a possible life at the capital, to be made gay and bright, with plenty of money and flirtation and social success. She has, perhaps, the bright blue eyes and golden hair that are so rare among the Turks to give her the place of eminence that she desires. Because of her beauty her husband showers her with presents and fills her life with pleasure. Her eyelashes and eyebrows are painted, but not very noticeably, and diamonds and other beautiful stones flash from her hands, her wrists, her neck, and her hair. The dress which she wears under her street robe is from Paris, and her shoes are low, even in winter, with pointed toes and very high heels.

"When she goes out she is accompanied by several servants and one or two eunuchs, to look after her comfort, and she drives in a beautiful private carriage drawn by Arabian horses, and has carte blanche in the shops to make as many purchases as she wishes of silks and satins and jewelry. When her blue eyes fade and her bright hair grows gray, will her power wane and her place be given to another? Perhaps not. That will depend on the characters with which she has to deal, the number of sons that she has, and her ability to keep the ascendency that her beauty has gained for her.

"The domestic Turkish woman presents a great contrast to the brilliant creature that we have just described. She is rather large and stolid-looking, careless as to her dress, and of a simple and amiable character. She has a very easy life compared with that of her American sisters. There is not much housekeeping in a Turkish house, and what there is is done by slaves and servants, who consider themselves permanent members of the family and realise what is expected of them. Rooms furnished with rugs and divans are comparatively easy to keep in order. There is a chef in the kitchen, who sends his best efforts to the dining-room in the men's apartments, a place seldom visited by the women of the household. Their own simple food is served to them at irregular intervals, when they feel hungry. There is perhaps a French governess to teach the children, who does not like the irregular life of the harem, and an exception is made in her favor, and she dines at the master's table, where the food is served more to her taste. Her apartments are, however, in the side of the house belonging to the women, which is entirely separate from the other half of the establishment.

"On bright days the domestic Turkish woman takes all her family to some place of public resort, where they sit in the sunshine all the day long, buy sweets of the ever-present street peddler, smoke cigarettes and drink coffee. They never endanger their nervous system by trying to catch any particular steamer either in going or coming, but start when the spirit moves, and wait at the landing for a convenient steamer, reaching home early or late, as it happens.

"Let us now turn to that product of modern progress, the educated Mahometan woman. She may be found here and there, perhaps in the harems of princes, or of pashas, or even sometimes in the middle classes of society, although she is not commonly found anywhere as yet. She reads English, French and German readily, with a good pronunciation, having the aptitude for languages usually found with Turkish women. She reads the daily papers, and has decided opinions in regard to all political affairs. The advanced Moslem woman has a private room, instead of living in the rooms with the other women, and in this room are found some unusual articles for a Turkish house—namely, a writing desk, some bookshelves upon which stand many of the new books of the day, and on the walls hang some really fine engravings.

"She longs to travel, but that is not yet allowed to a Turkish woman, at least, beyond the bounds of her own land. She has been to Egypt and Syria, but that does not satisfy her, and she even dreams of going to Paris and Berlin to work in the libraries there. She scorns the frivolities of ordinary society, and contemplates forming a club, where kindred spirits may discuss congenial subjects, but that has not yet been possible. Her influence in the press is already felt, and one may foresee that she will form one of the elements in the forces that are rapidly changing the conditions of Turkish life.

"Such are some of the phases of life among Turkish women. It is a life that has its romance and mystery, its commonplace side, and its features of progress, and is, after all, only the Eastern edition of the experiences that are common to the women of all nations."

The Latest.

Oyster Bay—It has leaked out that the Roosevelts breakfasted this morning, but the utmost reticence is maintained as to what they ate.

The President went out on horseback during the forenoon. A great crowd had collected. Mr. Roosevelt rode facing the horse's head. When the people saw this they broke into cheers.

The Roosevelts' cook shopped in the city to-day. She wore heliotrope de chine with a lace front and a small floral toque of violets. She shook hands warmly with all the press representatives, but asked to be excused from discussing politics at this time.

A cow belonging to President Roosevelt broke out of her pasture just at noon and was photographed in eighteen positions for the New York papers before she could be got back.

The late extras confirm the rumor that all is quiet at the Roosevelt home to-night, but quote no official authority.

Backed a Horse and Lost

"Did you ever back a horse in your life?" said Mr. M. Tooley, of the Queen's Hotel, to an Irishman who had called to have a "wee drop o' the crathur" to keep out the cold, the other morning.

Pat—"Yes, once, and only once."

"Did you win anything?"

"No, begorra; that I didn't."

"Why, how was that?"

"Well, you see, I backed the blessed horse through a shop window, and I had to pay five dollars."

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons free iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000

or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years........ $670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's share common rose over $70 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

Stocks—THE MARKETS OF THE WORLD—Grain

A POULTRY SCRAP BOOK.

"Proper and due proportions of care in the management of poultry is worth whole pints of medicine."

"Care means a naturally warm house in winter and plenty of shade in summer."

"It also includes proper exercise, clean water, grit, charcoal and a constant warfare waged winter and summer against vermin, principally lice."

"Medicine should only be needed in isolated cases. When a whole flock is sick or out of condition something is radically wrong."

"Sick fowls should immediately be put in a place out of sight and hearing of the rest of the flock, and they alone be given drugs."

"There is no sense and often much harm in drugging a whole flock to cure a few sick individuals."

"Medicine should never be given in water which is contained in metalic vessels."

"Warm mash in the morning, so much as will be eaten up clean and greedily in five minutes, wheat oats and buckwheat buried deeply in litter for all day exercise, and parched whole corn in moderate quantities just before going to roost, for lots of eggs."

"Green bone cutters, clover cutters and mills to crush oyster shells are indispensable to up-to-date profitable poultry keeping."

"You can buy your clover cut and your grit and oyster shells crushed. But green bone should be cut at home the fresher the better."

"It seems impossible that any one should feed tainted green bones to his poultry. He had better not feed any at all."

"If it would cost him twenty-five cents a pound to burn or bury tainted meat and green bones it would still be cheaper than feeding it to his fowls."

"The farmer that buys a green bone cutter had best first buy a clover cutter. Clover he usually has in abundance the year round and what he will feed his hens will never be missed."

"But without the cutter there are a great many chances the fowls will either not get any at all or waste more than they eat."

"Buy your stock from a live poultryman. Be slow in making crosses unless you know what you are after. But never use a male for breeding that is a cross."

"Don't think that pure bred chickens need to be crossed in any way to make them better. If you are not satisfied with the kind you have or the number of eggs they lay, dispose of them and get some other standard variety."

"Whatever else you do don't think that you can improve any kind of a standard variety by crossing. Or if you like the kind you have but are getting uneasy or a sort of feeling that you ought to do something, kill off all the males and buy new blood of the same variety."

"There is much to learn by close observation of the birds in the breeding pens. Do not be in a hurry at this time to dispose of all your old hens."

"Find out the best layers, the best all round and desirable hens and hold on to them for breeders year after year."

"There is money and much profit in holding on to this kind of an old hen."

"There are mongrel hens that lay as many eggs as the most prolific Leghorn but they can not be depended on to transmit the tendency to their progeny. This is where the mongrel fails."

Feeding Bees.

An important part of successful beekeeping is knowing how and when to feed the bees. Food in some form may be required in the spring to help on a colony to full strength in readiness for the honey flow, but it is often of supreme importance at the end of the season, so that there shall be surrounding the bees food enough to serve not only for their early wants but also through the early part of the year. The best bee food at all times is certainly honey, but in its place the only substitute admissible is cane sugar, pure, except for a proportion of one six of honey, fed in the form of syrup. Quite thick syrup answers well for fall feeding, but it should be given thinner in spring to prevent the necessity of the bees having to fly out for water. Very thin syrup should not be given at any time as it is liable to ferment and cause dysentery among the bees. A good rule for making syrup is to melt three pounds of cane loaf or white crystallized sugar in a quart of hot water for spring feed, and six pounds to the quart of hot water for autumn feeding, mixing in either case one-sixth by weight of honey. In fall, buckwheat honey may be used, but care should be taken not to have much such honey left in the brood chamber in spring for fear some may be taken to the supers when work commences. This sometimes occurs, especially when the colony has wintered on buckwheat honey.

A simple method of feeding is to place the syrup in a basin and place over it a thin piece of wood as a float, having a few holes bored in it about the size of a [illegible] end. This should be set on the top of the frames inside the hive, when the bees will soon store in the empty brood combs. They should be given enough in autumn to make their future safe—about 30 pounds to each colony in all—in time for them to have it ripened and sealed over before going into winter quarters.

VELVET BEAN PLANT.

The New Forage Plant and How Best to Grow It.

As many of your readers are largely interested this season in growing the new forage plant—the Florida velvet bean—and I have had a wide experience in the culture, I want to give them some points that will be of great value to them.

When it is possible it is always better to give the growing vine support to keep pods off the ground, thus largely increasing fruitage. To do this it is a good idea to mix corn with your bean seed, and the vine will cling to the stalk, giving it the necessary support. A full, well developed crop will give you from twenty-five to fifty bushels to the acre. The green forage is eaten ravenously by all stock on your farm, but I would not continue stock on it steadily for more than a week or so at a time, owing to its fifty-four per cent. of nitrogen. A few days off to other feed occasionally would be advisable. Should you want to sacrifice your bean crop you can cut the vine up at any stage of growth, and cure it as hay. All farm stock will eat it greedily; or, what would be better, plant a field later which you could use as a green forage for a time, and finally cut and cure it as a dry fodder. A good average acre will yield you nearly four tons.

When the bean is ripe in the fall pick it, but be very careful to place pods in an airy, drying place—a scaffold is best—for fear of heat and mould. Most all your stock will eat the hulls and all, but it is better to have them ground with hulls and feed equal part of bran shorts. This is excellent feed for new milch cows, increasing the flow of milk largely.

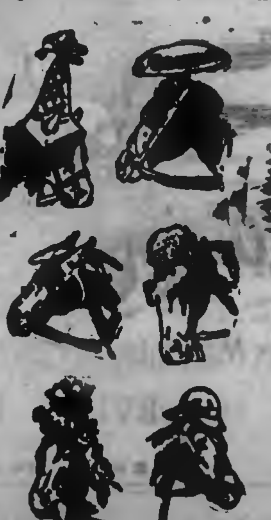
After picking your beans in the fall you will most likely want to turn your leaf and vine under for fertiliser. You will find vine exceedingly tough and leathery, and exceedingy hard to shell, and they can only be shelled at all excepting when pods are crisp dry from exposure to sun, and even then they often shell hard. If you want to practice economy and use your muscle freely, you can shell them fairly well by placing pods in a bag and pounding them all your might with a bludgeon. In this way a good strong man will pound out six or eight bushels in a day. With us we have passed that stage, and found a better way. We have a sheller—a two man machine—made specially for the business, that is capable of turning out from five to eight bushels an hour, the bean coming through sixty-nine to ninety-eight per cent. commercially clean. This is a labor saver to us, and one we appreciate, as many of us have, as we do, from ten to eighty acres of plants to sell.

That the Florida velvet bean is the coming forage and fertilizing crop of the country there can be no question, and as a fertiliser and an upbuilder of overworked land there is nothing that begins to equal it. It has grown steadily in popular favor here, and men who commenced to grow it in a small way are now growing fifty to eighty acres. It is certainly the finest all-around forage, feed, fertiliser, and shade for the sun-parched soil that can be placed upon the farm. With us it has been on trial for several years, but it is having a broader test the coming season, as I have sent it on orders to all the States of our Union, to Honolulu, Canada, the nineteen Central and South American republics, Austria, England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Germany, Italy, Egypt and to far away China and Japan.

Midsummer "Dreams" in Horses' Hats.

Here are the "Sunshade," the "Tin Bonnet," the "Garden Hat," the "Stanley," the "Sponger," the "Izaak Walton," and all the other correct things in equine headgear.

The Summer girl is not the only creature agitated about her Summer millinery. The draught horse is concerned about his, and often it is a toss up as to whose is the most weird.



Wild flights of fancy and striking originality are displayed in the headgear of the horse of the wholesale district. As for the beast whose pampered cousin reigned at the Horse Show, he cares not whether he wears a bit of wire with a cloth stretched over it, a sponge, or a "love of a thing in tulle and leghorn," just so he is protected from the scorching sun.

Gapes in Chicks.

Gapes in chicks is a disease which has existed on farms for centuries, and the annual loss of chicks from such cause is large. It seems to prevail mostly on old farms upon which fowls have ranged for years. Experiments made demonstrate that when chicks are kept on clean board floors and frequently on clean new locations they escape the difficulty. The Kentucky experiment station, after numerous experiments and comparisons, found that earthworms caused gapes in chicks, but whether there is any connection between earthworms and gapeworms is unknown. The soil and conditions favorable to the earthworm are the same for the gapeworm. On light, sandy soils, where but few earthworms are found, the chicks are seldom attacked by gapes.

BARGAIN DAY

Your opportunity to making a conservative investment or judicious speculative purchase is right now. Present market, with conditions for the future as favorable as they are, and with prices down to $20 to $30 per share, the reason for the decline, being principally behind instead of ahead of the market, make stocks most attractive at present. We will be pleased upon [illegible] to state briefly our reasons for an advance in price; also to name the stocks we believe will make the most decisive and best advances.

Let us send you a copy of our 400-page "Guide to Investors," also our up-to-the-minute "Daily Market Letter." We proffer our services as commission stock brokers, carrying upon moderate margin stocks in multiples of 10 shares; grain in multiples of 1,000 bushels; cotton in multiples of 100 bales. Correspondence solicited.

STOCK MARKETS

Better Prices Ahead

New York, Dec. 26.—The Christmas holiday is now a thing of the past, and our thoughts again revert to business, its prospects and the possibilities of money getting. As to Wall street and its stocks, the daily stock holder very tersely sums up the situation as follows: There are three courses which may be adopted: stocks may be sold, they may be bought, they may be left alone. Summed up, they are too cheap to be sold, they are cheap enough to buy, they are too tempting to let alone. There is little fear from anything at present, and there is a promising outlook. The lowest prices for a long time to come have been seen. Cuthbert Mills, that eminent writer of the New York Sunday Tribune, and those articles are commonly supposed to more or less foreshadow the views and interests of James R. Keene, last Sunday veered to the bull side of the account and took quite an optimistic view of the situation. The money situation has improved most materially, and will steadily continue to do so. This was the only effective weapon in the hands of the bears for the past sixty days, and is rapidly disappearing. Everything else having a bearing upon values leans most prominently to the bull side. These factors are bound to ultimately rule the security markets and the upbuilding process has already commenced. Prices ought to enjoy quite a material advance the biggest part of the coming year, and we firmly believe they will. The biggest fellows have the stocks, the public have but few. Business activities are right up to the high-water notch, while earnings continue to be unprecedented. We are just about to move the vast crop of last year, while prices for same are most excellent. It is generally understood that the Morgan party have already joined with others to quicken an export cotton movement; the recent drop in corn has greatly stimulated exports, while an enormous block in New York Central and Pennsylvania bonds has just been disposed of in Europe. The banks and trust companies have prepared for the heavy disbursements, and will not seriously disturb the money market. Stocks are a splendid purchase. Buy something.

Summary—Volume of business increased to-day, and the character of the buying was the kind characterized as excellent. The pools and wise acres are picking up stocks, preparing for an advancing January market. Sugar again touched 130, while A. O. P. crossed 60. We are bullish on these two issues, for considerably further advance. Steels were higher. Brooklyn Rapid Transit did not get materially higher than Wednesday. It will rest for a while, then go higher. The same remarks applies to Manhattan. Metropolitan was up over a point, St. Paul advanced over two points, while Illinois Central and New York Central were in lively demand, showing strong evidence of going higher. Louisville and Nashville was well bought, advancing two points. Buy Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, also Pennsylvania and the coalers. They will do better. We are decidedly bullish upon the market at present. Investment purchases after the first of the year will be at higher prices. Unusual market interest was exhibited for a stock market period between Christmas and New Years. We strongly urge you to buy the standard issues; they are going higher. Money closed 6 per cent. Sales 670,000.

HALF OUR ILLS ARE CATARRH.

[Letters From Two Prominent Men.]

CONGRESSMAN DUNGAN.

Congressman Irvine Dungan of Jackson, O., elected to the Fifty-second Congress as a Democrat, in a recent letter from Washington, D. C., says:

"I desire to join with my many friends in recommending your invaluable remedy, Peruna, to anyone in need of an invigorating tonic, and whose system is run down by catarrhal troubles. Peruna is a permanent and effective cure for catarrh and I would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to try this remarkable remedy."—Irvine Dungan.

Everybody is subject to catarrh. Peruna cures catarrh, acute or chronic, wherever located.

Hon. Thomas Gahan of Chicago, member of the National Committee of the Democratic party, writes as follows:

"I was afflicted with catarrh for fourteen years and though I tried many remedies and applied to several doctors I was not able to find a cure. I took Peruna for twenty-two weeks and am now entirely cured."—Thomas Gahan.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be glad to give you his valuable advice free.

The Matter of Postage

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—It will be remembered with what a flourish of trumpets the Grit press heralded the reduction of letter postage to two cents in Canada by Sir William Mulock, the Postmaster-General, but there was a sort of ominous silence about the same honourable gentleman raising the postage on all other mail matter. It was merely a specious pretext to boom the honourable gentleman while he was "robbing Paul to pay Peter." This must have been apparent to the minds of all those who sent Christmas boxes to their friends. I know of a case where upon inquiry it was found that it would take eighteen cents to send ten cents worth of candy. Thousands of dollars have thus been levied on Christmas gifts beyond the former charges. Most of the people were not aware that many of the parcels could have been sent much cheaper by express, besides ensuring safety in their delivery at the point of destination. I write this merely for the advantage of the uninitiated.

PRO BONO PUBLICO

29th, Dec. 1902.

A PRETTY WEDDING

Mr. John Cruikshanks, of Fraserville, Weds Miss Rachel Stewart

On Wednesday evening, the home of Mr. James Stewart, Fraserville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding when his eldest daughter, Miss Rachel Matilda, was united in marriage to Mr. John Cruikshanks, of Fraserville.

The bride, who was most becomingly gowned in white silk trimmed with chiffon and ribbon, was assisted by her sister, Miss Maude, who wore a dainty gown of white organdie, trimmed with Valenciennes lace and ribbon. The groom was supported by Mr. Will Cruikshanks, of Peterborough. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Mr. Kenny, of Millbrook.

After the ceremony the guests to the number of sixty sat down to a sumptuous wedding dejeuner. A large number of choice presents testify to the popularity of this happy young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Cruikshanks will reside in Peterborough.

Sickness steals more savings than the burglar. Slowly, coin by coin, the money that has been so hardly earned is paid out for drugs and doctors. Sickness is the worst enemy of the working man, and the common cause of the working man's sickness is disease of the stomach often involving the heart, lungs, liver, or kidneys.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will stop the stealing of the savings by sickness. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of heart, liver, lungs, kidneys, etc., when these diseases are caused by the diseased condition of the stomach and its allied organs.

"About ten years ago I began to have trouble with my stomach," writes Wm. Connolly, of 535 Walnut Street, Lorain, Ohio. "It got so bad I had to lay off quite often two and three days in a week, my stomach would bloat, and I would belch up gas, and was in awful distress at such times. I have employed and been treated by the best doctors in the city but got no help whatever. By some way or other I happened to get hold of a vial of your 'Pellets,' and I thought they helped me. It was then I wrote to you for advice. You told me that by my symptoms you thought I had liver complaint, and advised the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' in connection. These medicines I have taken as directed, and am very happy to state that I commenced to get better from the start and have not lost a day this summer on account of my stomach. I feel tip-top, and better than I have for ten years."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." Nothing else is "just as good."

THE VENEZUELAN AFFAIR AN INGLORIOUS EPISODE

London Papers Comment on Roosevelt's Refusal to be Arbitrator

Novel Scheme of a French Paper—Petit Bleu Offers 100,000 Subscriptions for Three Months Practically Free

London, Dec. 23.—The following are the newspaper comments on President Roosevelt's declination to act as arbitrator of the Venezuelan dispute. The Chronicle says: "We much regret the President's decision but from his own point of view he was probably wise. The world will now watch proceedings at The Hague with intense interest." The Daily Mail says: "Thus ends perhaps the most inglorious episode in which England has been engaged in recent years, an episode in which under no circumstances should we have had much satisfaction to gain, and in which by our blundering policy we discredited whatever justice there was about our case." The Daily News says: "The crisis through which we have passed has done much to enhance the reputation of President Roosevelt, it has done much, we hope, also, to make us understand the position of the United States and the essential friendliness of its people toward this country. The fact that no outbreak of feeling has occurred is most satisfactory."

ENTERPRISE OF A FRENCH PAPER.

London, Dec. 23.—A Paris correspondent of the Times says that Henri Deutsch, who was the donor of the $20,000 prize won by M. Santos Dumont, has transformed Petit Bleu by converting it into a journal "more American than all the American papers put together." The paper now has no opinions, but its ideal is that nothing should happen anywhere unechoed in its columns. The Petit Bleu is starting a novel scheme for advertising itself. It offers 100,000 subscriptions gratis for three months, subject to the payment of 20 cents for each subscription to cover postage. It is estimated that this will cost $100,000. There is, remarks the correspondent, an amusing list of persons entitled to subscribe under these conditions. It includes all the school teachers of Paris and its neighborhood, army officers, authors, magistrates, chemists, piano teachers, dressmakers and postoffice clerks.

MINISTER'S TRIP.

London, Dec. 23.—Referring to the journey of Lamsdorff, the Russian Foreign Minister, to Sofia, Belgrade and Vienna, the correspondent of the Times in the Austrian capital says that Austrian attention is concentrated on the proceedings at Sofia, which may vitally influence the Balkan situation. The visit to Belgrade is less interesting, since it realized that Russia wished to gain Servia some indemnity for the repeated postponement of King Alexander's and Queen Draga's visit to the Czar. At Sofia, says the correspondent, efforts will be made to impress Count Lamsdorff with the reality of the Macedonian grievances and questions will arise how to prevent Bulgaria from emulating Greece in defying the Sultan in order to rescue Ottoman provinces and [illegible] of Liberator for Prince Ferdinand. The correspondent remarks that the great difficulty of the situation in Macedonia lies in population. The Monastir contains a diversified mixture of Turks, Albanians, Bulgarians, Greeks and Servis, Mussulmans being in the minority of sixty thousand. Autonomy under a Christian High Commissioner or amalgamation with another Balkan state would result in a pandemonium of racial and religious rivalry.

RETURN OF THE HUMBERTS.

London, Dec. 27.—The Humberts are not expected in Paris before next Monday night, says a Times correspondent in the French capital. Paris papers are full of gossip in regard to the case, containing perhaps a modicum of truth. It is said that Romain D. Aurignac quotes Parayre as a man who has seen Crawford's supposedly mythical nephews, of the equally mythical American, who, Mme. Humbert claimed, left the fortune to her. Parayre, who has been arrested in Rouen, is suspected, however, of writing letters signed "Muller," in which the writer vouches for the existence of the Crawfords, representing himself as their secretary.

RESTORING PEACE IN MACEDONIA

London, Dec. 23.—A Constantinople correspondent of the Times says the Porte has communicated to the Embassies a telegram from Hussien Hilmi Pasha, stating that he is complying with the instructions in a circular sent to the Macedonian Valis. Several malefactors have already been arrested in Doubtnitza district and elsewhere. The Porte remarks that this affords conclusive proof of the Government's earnest purpose to restore tranquility in Macedonia.

RUPTURE IN JAPANESE GOVERNMENT.

London, Dec. 23.—In negotiating with the party leaders, says a Tokio correspondent of the Times, the Japanese Cabinet proposed to lower the land tax, and to make good the consequent deficiency by administrative economy and the reduction of State enterprises. The party leaders however, refused to accept this proposal, and the rupture is therefore complete.

WEALTHY OLD COUPLE SLAIN

Kept Money in a Safe in Their Farmhouse and It is Gone

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 29.—Judge J. A. Lewis, a pioneer 76 years old, and his wife, aged 60, were murdered on Friday night by robbers on their ranch near Almira, Lincoln county. The robbers brained the man with an axe and later murdered his wife beating her with a club.

The double murder had been coolly planned, the object being robbery. The couple were worth $50,000, and frequently kept large sums in a safe. It is believed that the crime was committed by visitors who came as if to transact business, the safe being found open.

How much money or other valuables the robbers secured is unknown. Last week Judge Lewis withdrew a considerable sum in gold from two banks, taking it home with the evident intention of loaning it on farm mortgages.

The bodies were discovered by a tenant of one of Lewis' farms. He found the body of Lewis lying face down with the head beaten in. The doors were all locked and everywhere there was evidence of a fearful struggle. The entire house had been ransacked. Mrs. Lewis' body was found in a pasture, where she was waylaid and killed with a club while milking the cows.

Though wealthy the couple were miserly and kept no help. They had no children. Lewis was formerly Probate Judge of Lincoln county.

THE GREAT CORONATION AT DELHI INDIA

When King Edward the Seventh Will Be Made Emperor of India

Over Four Millions Being Spent in the Great Durbar Which Takes Place New Year's Day

London, Dec. 29.—At noon on New Year's Day 8,000 persons, illustrious representatives of every race, creed and color, will assemble in a mighty arena beyond the walls of Delhi. Seated on glittering thrones, piled high on a dias draped in imperial crimson and gold, the center of that unparalleled assemblage, will be Lord Curzon, of Kedleston, governor-general of India, the British King-Emperor's direct representative; the King-Emperor's only living brother, Arthur, Duke of Connaught, at his right, and Lady Curzon, the viceroy's lovely American bride, at his left. For twenty miles around Delhi stretches to-day an ephemeral city of gay pavilions. For two brief weeks 70,000 persons will throng this mighty encampment. Already men have come from remote Thibet, from the mighty hills that uplift the roof of the world, and will rub shoulders with citizens of New York, Paris and Melbourne. Curious eyes of jealously guarded sultanas peep enviously from behind the curtains at the free beauty of girls from Washington ande Mayfair. Bicycles thread their way among camels and bullock carts. Motor cars will jostle with state elephants. Time will stand still, bewildered in this meeting place of all the centuries. Nothing like it has ever been seen before. The viceregal camp where Lord and Lady Curzon will hold court, is the chief glory of this wonderful encampment. A straight road three-fourths of a mile long and fifty yards wide leads to the state pavilions of white and gold. The largest of them is 186x60 feet. The drawing room is 80x36 feet, and a dining room 130x40 feet. Here Lord and Lady Curzon and their 125 guests dine. The tents are hung with the costliest embroideries that Indian looms can produce. They have been designed by Lady Curzon and are masterpieces of Oriental work. Lord and Lady Curzon will enter Delhi at 11 a. m. on Monday, December 29, seated in a golden howdah on the back of a state elephant. This elephant is the largest in India; it is worshipped by the natives as an incarnation of one of their lesser deities. Its mighty tusks are filed. Gold, silver, and precious stones gleam in the sunlight from its crimson trappings. A hundred elephants will follow in their train. Other elephants will raise their tusks and trumphet a salute as the god-beast goes by with his imperial burden. Beyond the city gates on a broad open space will be gathered all the princes and potentates of India, jewels worth a million gleaming in turban, on breast and in waistband. And these potentates will pass before Lord and Lady Curzon in review, making deep obeisance. At noon Lord and Lady Curzon will enter the arena to a fanfare of trumpets and take their seat on the golden thrones in the center of the crimson dais. A brilliant and distinguished staff will surround them as the lord will say: Edward VII. of England has deigned to take on himself the title of Emperor of India. Even the princes and people have it so." The mighty congregation will depart slowly. In the afternoon the people will assemble for the military review. The whole city and fort are to be illuminated. Every building will be outlined in dazzling light.

WHY GREENE AND GAYNORSTAY

Members of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Party Talk About the Case

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 29.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of Canada, who is now at St. Augustine, Fla., has been asked to give his views on the case of B. D. Greene, and John F. Gaynor, fugitives from justice in Canada, who have successfully fought against being brought back. Sir Wilfrid individually declined to say anything, but members of his official family were quite willing to talk about the case.

Arthur Dansereau, editor of La Presse of Montreal, declared that the authorities of the United States, who had the matter of extradition in charge, were probably to blame for the fact that Greene and Gaynor are now in Canada. He said:

"We have no desire to have these men with us, as they have been indicted for a serious crime, but as they were kidnapped from the very heart of the Dominion without so much as securing the courteous leave that our Government demands from all others, the people of Canada, particularly those of Montreal, felt that they had been outraged, and since then they have accorded these men the protection of the Dominion.

"I cannot say that the two men occupy a very desirable position in the eyes of the people, for as a matter of fact they do not, and if this little kidnapping episode had not come up life would have become so unbearably hard for them that they would have been glad to return to the States.

"If the United States should have the right to go into Canada and take men from our province to another would not Canada have the same right to come into the United States and take men from one State to another! For this reason, if for no other, it was fortunate that the men in question were not allowed to be extradited."

Mr. Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries for the Dominion smiled when he was informed of the conversation.

"Ridiculous case from start to finish," said the member of the Cabinet. "Will Sir Wilfrid talk?" he queried.

"No," returned the reporter, "not at all for publication, and mighty little otherwise."

"Well, I am of the opinion that your Government's representatives did not proceed as decorously as they might have," said the Minister.

Mr. Henri Laurier, brother of the Premier, said that he thought the action of the extradition proceedings was somewhat asinine.

THE PLAGUE IN MEXICO

Doctors Say That It Is The Disease That Has Appeared at Four Ports

Mexico City, Dec. 29.—The disease which has made its appearance almost simultaneously at Lapaz, Guaymas, Mulje, and Mazatlan, all situated on the Pacific coast of Mexico, is pronounced by competent medical authority to be the beubonic plague.

The special medical commission appointed by the Government has left beer to make a careful investigation.

At Mazatlan the death rate from the disease is from six to ten persons daily. Every possible precaution has been ordered taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

A BRIDE'S STRANGE DEATH

Mrs. C. D. Smith Was Found a Corpse in Toledo Union Depot

Toledo, O., Dec. 29.—The body of Mrs. C. D. Smith, a bride of four days was found last night in a room at the Union depot. A note and a revolver by her side seemed to indicate suicide, but the absence of her husband aroused suspicion. The woman is known to have had over $1,000 on her person, of which only $300 in checks was found. She was married last Friday at Monroe, Mich., to C. D. Smith, whom she had known but a short time. The woman was a widow with a small property. She had received a telegram to meet her new husband at the depot. Nothing has been seen of Smith, who is being looked for by the police.

THE SOO TRAFIC

Greatest Volume of Traffic in the Greatest Ship Canals of the World

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 29. — The greatest volume of commerce in the history of the greatest ship canals of the world is shown by the completed statistics of the traffic through the waterways at Sault Ste. Marie and Ontario for the present year, which amounted to 35,961,146 freight tons, exceeding that of last year (also a banner season) by 7,650,001 tons. It illustrates as nothing else can the great development that is being made of the great Northwest, whose products to a large extent find their way to the east via the Great Lakes route. Of this freight, the east-bound amounted to 30,275,989 tons, west-bound 5,695,197.

WASN'T EXPECTED

Husband Found His Wife in Company With Another—Result Wife is Dead

Newark, N. J., Dec. 29.—Returning unexpectedly to his home to-day Jos. Terry found his wife in company with Frank Brady. During the fierce fight which ensued, a revolver was discharged and the woman fell dead, shot in the left breast. Terry, when arrested by the police, at first said he did not know how his wife met her death, later he said she committed suicide. As there was no powder marks on the woman's clothing the police discredit his statement and believe one of the two men in an endeavor to shoot the other killed Mrs. Terry. Brady, who is from Mahopac Falls, N.Y., walked into the morgue later in the day and was arrested. He denied doing the shooting. Brady is said to own the revolver which was discharged.

TO LEAD HOLY WAR AGAINST CHRISTIANS

Morocco Pretender is Opposed to the Introduction of European Ideas

London, Dec. 27—A Times correspondent at Fez says he sent two natives to interview the Morocco pretender, who state that he did not claim the throne; his mission was to lead a holy war against Christians and to overthrow the Sultan's Government on account of its European tendencies. The rebels intended to nominate the Sultan from some Sherifian family, who would promise to continue th war against Christians. The messengers reported that rebels were very strong in numbers. The gates at Tase were hung with the heads of Imperial soldiers who fell in recent engagements. Two native declared that they recognized the pretender as Omar Zarahuni, who was formerly a soldier in the Sultan's army.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT

What Chief Clerk White Has to Say on Cause of Disaster

London, Ont., Dec. 27.—A terrible accident occurred at 10.10 last night at Wanstead, a station on the Sarnia branch of the G.T.R., being a head-on collision between the Pacific Express (No. 5), and an eastbound freight train.

The express was proceeding west at its usual high rate of speed.

The freight was moving slowly and was to have taken the switch at Wanstead to allow the express to pass.

Apparently neither of the engineers saw the danger in time to avert the accident, for the two engines came together near the west switch with a frightful crash, both being overturned into the ditch, and the baggage and express cars being telescoped into the smoker, with appalling results.

The wreck was complete, and it is thought that hardly a single passenger in the smoker escaped injury. The other cars of the passenger train remained on the track.

As soon as the accident occurred word was sent to this city and doctors were soon on the scene. The work of removing the dead and injured was then proceeded with.

Engineer Gillies of Sarnia Tunnel and the fireman on engine 369 of the express are among the killed. The remainder are passengers. Reports give the figures as 24 killed and 31 wounded.

Montreal, Dec. 27.—F. H. McGuigan, manager of the Grand Trunk, in discussing the wreck near London, said: "I cannot understand how the operator who is charged with the blunder came to make such a mistake. He is one of the oldest and most reliable men in the company's service. He went into the service of the Great Western in 1871, and has been with that company and Grand Trunk ever since. It appears he failed to give thie oder to the passenger train to meet the freight at the station."

Toronto, Dec. 27.—According to Chief Clerk White, who is in charge of Mr. Jones' office in the absence of his chief at London, the reason that the calamity took place was on account of the agent at Wsatford, A. Carson by name, failing to deliver orders which he held for train No. 5.

Engineer J. Gillies of Sarnia, on the freight train, and Fireman J. Ricketts of Sarnia, on the passenger train, were the first two names of the dead received at the office of Superintendent Jones this morning.

All the bodies are being taken to or are at London at present, and Master of Transportation Price of London, is with the undertakers carrying out as fast as possible the work of identification. Meanwhile the company is taking care of the wounded and injured, whose hurts are reported as mostly slight, and the officials are seeing that the unfortunates are being attended to in all ways regardless of cost.

Enquiries are numerous at the Union Station, and the city newspaper offices as to the dead and injured, and it will be consolation to some to know that all who were in the sleeping car escaped from the dire disaster; those who suffered were in the passenger coach next to the baggage and express car. Inside of two hours after the collision the Grand Trunk had eighteen physicians at the scene of the sad affair, three going from Strathroy, three from Wyoming, three Watford, and nine from London.

Notes Received from European Governments Are Agreeable

Approval of the United States—General Understanding that th Monroe Doctrine is not to Enter into Arbitration Question

Washington, Dec. 26 — President Roosevelt will not be arbitrator of the Venezuelan controversy. The whole vexatious subject will be referred for adjudication to The Hague tribunal. Epitomized, this was the situation as it had resolved itself at the conclusion of the Cabinet meeting today. The Venezuelan question was the principal and practically the only topic of general concern under consideration. Secretary Hay presented the net results of his cable correspondence with the Governments at London, Berlin, Rome and Caracas. In accordance with the suggestion made several days ago by President Roosevelt, through Secretary Hay, President Castro of Venezuela, was reported to have agreed to submit the difference between his Government and the European powers to the arbitration of the tribunal at The Hague. The European powers not only consented to submit the controversy to arbitration, but, while they had expressed a preference for arbitration to be conducted by President Roosevelt, they had assented to his suggestion that the matter be referred to The Hague.

The presentation of the case met the hearty approval of the members of the Cabinet. No fear is expressed by the Administration that the Monroe Doctrine will be brought into the controversy in any manner that might result in an embarrassing situation for the United States. Secretary Hay is preparing a note to the powers, in which the gratification of the United States Government is expressed for the course agreed upon by them in settlement of the pending difficulties.

No intimation is given of the conditions which may have been imposed by the European powers or by President Castro, precedent to the arbitration.

BASKETBALL

Two Matches in the Y. M. C. A. Saturday Night

The senior teams of the Toronto Central and Peterborough Y.M.C.A. played a basketball match in the gymnasium on Saturday evening. The outsiders were a much heavier team and the result was a win for them by a rather high score.

The teams were represented as follows:

Toronto—Defense, Smith and Henderson; forwards, Best and Hay; center, Harding.

Peterborough—Defense, Richardson and Campbell; forwards, Robertson and Miller; center, Hall.

The other attractions were an intermediate basketball match between the Beavers and Stars, a tumbling exhibition by the juniors, and vocal selections by Mr. J. Halpeny.

During the intermission at half-time in the senior match a cup was presented to the Harriers as winners of the series played at the Y.M.C.A. for the three months just closed.

HEAVY GUNS IN THE FIELD

Lord Kitchener Directing the Great Indian Manoeuvers

Sambhalka, Dec. 29.—The fine army of British and native troops destined to participate in the great review at the coronation durbar, and a portion of which is to act as the viceroy's guard, is at present employed in manoeuvers between Ambala and Delhi, which commenced on Nov. 28.

Lord Kitchener is directing the manoeuvers, and the Japanese Gen. Oku and a staff of officers closely follow the work done. The northern army, 25,000 strong, is concentrated at Ambala and the southern army, 12,000 strong, at Delhi.

The first heavy engagement occurred yesterday, when the northern army assaulted the southerners, who were strongly entrenched near Panipat, a historic battlefield of the Mogul era. The northerners, commencing before daybreak, carried two lines of defense, but were judged to have failed at the third. The southern army evacuated their trenches and retreated south during the night. The northerners are now in hot pursuit.

The chief feature of the manoeuvres is the use of cow-guns and long teams with the field army, the employment of war balloons, and the absence of tents.

CAN'T UNIONIZE TEACHERS

They Know When They're Well Off and Will Tell Would-be Organizers so

New York, Dec. 29.—The attempt of the Central Federated Union to organize a branch union of school-teachers, is not likely to succeed here, even if it has in Chicago. The principals of several public schools who were seen yesterday said that the teachers in the schools here are much better off than they are in Chicago. The teachers in all the five boroughs of the city have associations which protects them more effectively than a labor union can do. The city Charter has been amended through the influence of these associations, so that paid than in any other city, and, besides, the length of their service has teachers of all grades are now better been restricted and a retirement fund provided. A teacher who was graduated about a year ago said that the teachers would all decline to join a labor union.

ENGINE CAUSES TWO WRECKS

Runaway Locomotive Reverses Itself—Hits a Train Each Way

Indianapolis, Dec. 29.—One of the most remarkable wrecks in the history of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad occurred at Liberty early this morning, resulting in the death of Michael Foley, brakeman, and Dayton Osborn, fireman.

Engineer Callahan took out an engine to help push a freight over a heavy grade and when he returned to the switch he found that he could not reverse his lever. He jumped from his engine and it went down the track at a thirty-mile rate and collided with the engine of a fast freight going east.

The wild engine recoiled from the collision, whose force reversed the lever, and it started back at slow speed, but gradually increased till it was running at fifty miles an hour. An attempt was made to throw a switch and ditch the runaway, but it stuck to the main track and four miles east collided with the engine of another freight going west. The second freight was a double-header, and all three of the engines were thrown from the track by the force of the collision.

Queer Things in Kansas

Queer things happen in Kansas. A Witchita doctor is authority for this story: The patient had been on a big spree. He had been setting up the drinks to every one who wanted to irrigate, and had a roll which was so large that he had to have help to unwind it to get the bills off. He got the help. He also accumulated a wonderful and fight-producing jag. He dared another man to fight and the dare was accepted, and the inebriate was hit on the head with a club and otherwise was beaten. At the hospital the doctors were unable to discover exactly what was the trouble other than dozens of bruises and fractured ribs which they attended. After the man had been in the hospital a week it was found that his skull had been fractured and was pressing on the brain. By a very delicate operation the pressure was removed, and, to the astonishment of the surgeons, the man was still drunk and insisted on buying drinks for the crowd.

In New York the other day Judge Mayer threw out a case against a boy who had been "sweated" into singing a confession. There was no evidence against the lad, and in court he stated that he "confessed" after three-quarters of an hour's sweating, because he was assured that the sooner he did so the sooner it would be over. He protested that he was innocent, and the court believed him. The sweat-box is growing in disfavor, even in New York.

THE LATEST WONDER

Verily these are wonderful times. It is not many years ago—only about forty-four—that the Atlantic Telegraph Company succeeded in laying a cable between Europe and America. On the 17th of August, 1858, the extremities of the cable having been put in connection with the recording instruments, the following message was sent through the ocean in thirty-five minutes: "Europe and America are united by telegraph. Glory to God in the highest! On earth peace and good-will toward men." Messages and replies from the queen to the president of the United States, from the mayor of London to the mayor of New York, etc., followed. The people of this country were in a frenzy of enthusiasm, lauding the ocean telegraph as the greatest achievement of modern times and giving unbounded praise to its heroic projector.

Now, in the lifetime of many who can easily remember the beginning of cable communication across the Atlantic, a new and not less wonderful wonder is announced. Mr. Marconi tells the world that he has established wireless telegraph communication between Cape Breton, Canada, and Cornwall, England, with complete success. He has sent messages from the governor-general of Canada to the king of England and the king of Italy. A message has also been sent to the London Times.

We are so accustomed to wonders in these days that there will be no great excitement over this one. But it is indeed wonderful and its importance is so great and so far-reaching that it cannot be estimated. We are all in a hurry, but we can well afford to take a minute or two off in order to try to think what Marconi has done.

Three years ago the Methodist Episcopal church of America set out to raise $20,000,000 for a twentieth century thankoffering fund." The Rev. Dr. E. M. At midnight on December 31, 1902, in Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Springfield, Mass., the church from which the call for the movement was first issued, I am assured of the pleasure of announcing that the last dollar of the fund has been raised.

Benjamin W. Gist, a well-to-do farmer of Falls City, Nebraska, recently received a legacy of $40,000, and was so exasperated by the importunities of relatives that he finally drew his wealth from a bank in gold and distributed $20 pieces among the poor. When he met school children or old men and women in the streets he gave them pieces. Sometimes when he found a crowd assembled he sowed the pieces broadcast. His one desire was to get rid of the $40,000. He succeeded in giving it all away, and says he is well pleased.

The moose which were liberated at North Creek, in the Adirondacks, last spring, by the Hon. William C. Whitney are reported to be in dire straits for food. The snow has covered everything to a depth of several feet, and it is almost impossible for the moose to secure the forage that lies beneath it. Farmers who have watched the moose during the summer, and have guarded them from the probable mistakes of hunters, have provided hay for the animals, and have placed it at points where the moose are likely to reach it. It is considered remarkable that the moose should suffer in the Adirondacks, when it is taken into account that they were sent thither from Canada, where the climate is thought by Americans to be much more rigorous and the snow much deeper. Adirondack lumbermen think that in Canada the moose are able to feed on the branches of certain low trees which do not grow in the north woods of New York.

POST OFFICE TOO SMALL

People Protest Because of the Crowding on Rush Days

For some time there has been a feeling of discontent amongst business people and others over the post-office, which is far too small to accommodate the crowds who go there for their mail. Every night at six o'clock there is a crush around the wicket, while on holidays it is difficult to gain admission to the building at all.

On Christmas day those who had business in the post-office came out puffing and in bad temper. Many there were who would not wait for their turn at the wicket, and the weak had no chance at all in the crush.

The building is too small for the business to be done, and the sooner steps are taken to bring the matter to the attention of the Government the better. We would suggest that the matter be taken up by the Board of Trade with Mr. McClelland, who will, we are sure, do all in his power to get a new post-office.

[illegible] you." Perhaps I can help you to find the person."

"Pray do not trouble yourself," she answered, coldly, and hastening her steps at the same time. "I am quite able to find her myself, I assure you."

He half turned on his heel in anger at her words, then with a second impulse turned back and caught her hand, forcing her to stop still in the path.

"Hilda—child!" he exclaimed, "don't you know that propriety does not sanction this solitary promenade by night in a young girl like you?"

"It is not a promenade," she impatiently answered. "I am going to visit a lady."

"I did not know you knew any one here," he said, still holding her by the hand, though she struggled hard to free herself.

"Did you not, really?" she asked, in a half-sarcastic tone, annoyed at his persistency. "Well, since you appear so interested in my affairs, Mr. Courtenaye, I will inform you that it is an acquaintance I formed to-day."

"Ah! it was Mrs. L'Estrange," he said, for he, among others, had witnessed the lady's fainting spell, and seen her revived by Hilda's gentle ministrations. "Her cottage is in the next row, I will take you there."

"I prefer to go alone," she said, impatiently, walking quickly on as he released her hand.

A flush crossed his face in the moonlight, but he walked on calmly by her side.

"I am half tempted to let you go alone," he said. "If it were anybody but you, Hilda Aylesford, I would turn around and leave you after those insulting words! But it is neither safe nor proper for you to go alone, and I intend to see you safe to Mrs. L'Estrange's cottage, wait for you outside, and take you back to the hotel."

"You are very rude, sir," she answered, flashing her great black eyes up into his face. "I do not understand why you should take such authority over my movements!"

"Answer me one thing, Hilda. Does your father know of this moonlight escapade?"

"No, he does not, Mr. Courtenaye. If he did know I do not presume he would care. He is totally wrapped up in Florence, and heeds not whither I go, nor when I return. I do not understand why you, a mere stranger, should assume an authority over me that my own father does not care to exercise."

She looked up at him in the moonlight, her small, pale face framed in the [illegible] drapery of her shawl, and something in her dark eyes went to his heart as she spoke the half-defiant words. Mingled with her proud defiance he saw the pain and bitterness with which she acknowledged her father's coldness and neglect.

"Hilda, I will tell you why I persist in taking care of you," he said, abruptly.

"Pray do, I am most anxious to know," she said sarcastically, and without the faintest notion of what was coming.

"Very well, you shall know," he said. "It is because I love you, Hilda, that I would fain guard you as some precious jewel; because I love you and hope some day to win you for my wife!"

If the solid earth had yawned beneath her feet Hilda Aylesford could not have been more profoundly astonished than she was at those words from her companion. She started back in amazement, and Courtenaye saw how utterly he had taken her by surprise. There was a little rustic bench at the side of the path, under a tall, spreading tree, and no one was near. He took her hand and gently seated her.

"Sit here one moment, Hilda," he said, "I must speak to you."

Half mechanically she obeyed him. Surprise had deprived her of her usual ready forethought.

He sat down beside her and took her slim hand in both his slender, shapely white ones.

"Hilda forgive me for startling you so," he said, gently. "I did not mean to tell you so soon, but now that the murder is out, I must know my fate. Little one, will you love me? Will you marry me?"

She pulled her hand from his clasp, and sprang to her feet, while her black eyes blazed.

"No, no, no!" she cried, indignantly. "How dare you talk to me so! How dare you utter such a falsehood?"

"What falsehood?" he inquired, in perplexity.

"That you love me—you, you?" she exclaimed, scornfully. "Do you think I could believe you?"

He looked at the angry girl in [illegible] amazement.

"Hilda, why should you not believe me?" he said. "You are beautiful, noble and brave. You saved my life, though you would never even suffer me to thank you for that act of heroic daring! And now, Hilda, let me tell you that the life you saved is worthless to me unless you suffer me to devote it to your lifelong service. I do love you, and I ask you again—will you be my wife?"

"You think I have forgotten what you said about me that day," she said, scornfully. "But I remember it, every word, and I know you do not want such a wife as the girl you derided to your friend!"

"I was a fool!" he said, impetuously. "I have repented my folly in dust and ashes. I retract every word of it. I beg your pardon a thousand times for my egregious impertinence! Hilda, will you forgive me, and be mine?"

"No—a thousand times no!" she answered, turning from him proudly.

"Is this your final answer, Hilda?" he asked, in a quick, subdued voice.

"Yes, sir," she answered, coldly.

"Very well. There is Mrs. L'Estrange's cottage just ahead of us. Go in and make your visit. I will wait for you here, and see you safely back to the hotel."

She turned away silently, and he threw himself down on the rustic bench.

CHAPTER VIII.

A Fairy Godmother.

Hilda hurried away from her rejected suitor, her heart beating quick and fast with excitement, and ran up the steps of Mrs. L'Estrange's pretty little cottage.

The lady was evidently expecting her, for the door was opened, as soon as she rapped upon it, by a kind-looking, elderly woman with the [illegible]

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 1350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons [illegible] above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100,000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25

July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000

or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years........ $670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly [illegible] capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's shares common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

BUY ! WHY ?

BECAUSE

THE SOUR LAKE OIL CO.

Has placed four-fifths of its stock in the treasury for development work ; and because

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont ;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of Hon. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada ; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time ;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop ; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality ;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE ; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of [illegible] and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say :

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz, and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $50 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings oftimes running as high as $25 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire values of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Price is now 25 cents a share, and we offer 50,000 shares at this price, but it may be advanced by January 1st, 1903, to 50 cents a share.

The Growth of our Country

New York, Dec. 27.—A gentleman whose business calls him at least once every two years to cover the entire length and breadth of the United States, carrying him even into the innermost recesses of the western and north-western states, was proclaiming his astonishment at the rapid development of the various sections of our country, the improvement and manner of living, and the remarkable increase in wealth. No man who has remained at home the past five years, though thoroughly familiar with our entire country prior to that period, can appreciate the remarkable changes. The march of prosperity have left their evidences everywhere, making a most wondrous record. Railways which were practically bankrupt a comparatively short time ago, are now found to be in most magnificent financial condition, and fully the equal in equipment of our standard eastern lines. It is impossible to imagine their remarkable increase in the value traffic and earning power, due to the wondrous development of the sections of the country which they serve, and to appreciate the vast sums of money which have been expended upon them by the managers in the interest of their shareholders with a view to enhancing their earning capacity and handling inadequately the rapidly increasing traffice. This work has increased their values to a most remarkable degree. The roads of the south-west and north-west, if travelled over at present by a man who has not travelled on them in six years time, would appear to him to have passed under "The spell of an enchantress" and like the work upon Aladdins' palace, in the wonderful Arabian Nights story, the result of the wonders of magic. Such rapid progress has never been made before in any part of the world. In passing through our vast country, noting its increase of popularity, its varieties of industries, the rapid development of old enterprises, and creation of new ones, would make it patent to any man of ordinary intelligance, that we have only just commenced to expand in greatness and strength. It takes no practised eye to calculate the benefits to be derived and impetus which in the next three years will be given business through export trade with the Orient of our Pacific port. The sagacity and genius of capital and industry now in control and engaged in developing the resources of such properties as the Northern Securities Co., Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and other vast southern and western arteries, forsee what is yet ahead of us, consequently have and are continuing to invest millions in these enterprises. After a trip covering 20,000 miles through the United States, doing business with its people in its diversified sections, and witnessing their progress and increase of wealth etc., he returns a strenuous bull upon our country and its securities, fully expecting that the next three years will witness as great an advance in the price for American securities as took place the past three years. Those who can appreciate the marvellous growth of our country, its prosperity and likelihood to continue, and who will act in accordance with opinion formulated as mine has been, should make a great deal of money the coming year through judiciously buying American stocks.

Summary—Bank statement was without special benefit and the market was quiet and steady, selling off near the close. The market will all be higher next month. Buy stocks, especially upon concessions. Money closed 6 per cent. Sales 374,100.

The Band Hall

At the conclusion of Friday night's session of the Town Council, Alderman Batten, chairman of the Property committee, invited his colleagues up to the band hall to pass judgment on the manner in which he had expended the $100 appropriated for fitting up the premises to meet the requirements of the 57th Regiment Band. Bandmaster Glidden expressed his pleasure at the improvements made under Mr. Batten's supervision, and the visiting Aldermen were satisfied that the fullest economy had been exercised in every respect. Each bandsman has now a closet in which to lock up his instruments and paraphernalia, and when it is considered that these instruments are expensive and in them is invested a considerable amount of the town's money, Alderman Batten's action in arranging for their preservation and safekeeping should be fully endorsed by the citizens. The band hall is now comfortably fitted up; but it has one drawback—the ceiling is far too low. This fault, however, cannot very well be remedied in the present building.

FOR THE MAYORALTY.

Card to the Electors of Peterborough

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

In response to the numerous representations which have been made to me upon the subject, personally, by requisition, and through the press, I place my services at the disposal of the public as a candidate for the Mayoralty at the approaching municipal elections.

My association with the important municipal advances which the Town has been making during recent years, will enable me to give continuity to the aggressive forward policy which the Council has sought to pursue, and to bring experience and information gained therein to bear upon the work and problems which still more immediately confront us.

While I cannot lay claim to all the qualifications which have been flatteringly ascribed to me, such capacity for the office as I do possess is cheerfully placed at your service, and I ask your sympathy and support in the effort to maintain the position and standing, and advance the welfare of our already prosperous and progressive Town.

Respectfully yours,

G. M. ROGER

NEXT YEAR'S COUNCIL.

Last Counting of the Votes Before Nomination

DESIRABLE MEN IN THE FIELD

Mr. A. W. Cressman Once More Leads for Alderman

With Mr. R. F. McWilliams a Close Second—Alderman Morrison Third—The Choice of Our Readers is Worthy the Fullest Consideration Today

The leading candidates for Chief Magistrate are:

Ald. Roger	1165
Ald. Shortly	1120
R. Fair	1110

The leading candidates for Aldermen are:

A. W. Cressman	1050
R. F. McWilliams	1020
Ald. Morrison	970
Geo. Matthews	965
Robert Fair	950
E. F. Mason	930
Ald. Best	925

Saturday's voting did not make any material change in the position of the candidates. Messrs. Roger, Shortly and Fair still lead for Mayor. For Aldermen Messrs. McWilliams and Cressman have changed positions with the latter once more heading the list. Ald. Morrison has secured third place, and the g.f.l. hopes he will accept of nomination to-day. He is a young man of exceptional ability, and his work in the Council last year has proved him to be a valuable member of the town government.

A. W. F. writes: "Please record my vote for Ald. John Corkery (Mayor Corkery I suppose I should call him). I consider the honor bestowed upon him by his colleagues on Friday night, when they voted him into the Chief Magistrate's position for the balance of the year, sufficiently indicates that he has the fullest confidence of those with whom he has been associated in municipal affairs the past few years."

A member of organized labor says: "I vote for Ald. Roger for Mayor and Messrs. McGregor, McWilliams, Cressman, Morrison, Geo. Matthews, Robert Fair, Rush, Corkery, Best, and Shortly for Aldermen. These gentlemen have the necessary qualifications for the progressive town government we need next year."

A business man writes: "Please accept herewith coupons for Ald. Roger, Rush et al. Ald. Rush is a gentleman of unquestionable business integrity, whose sound judgment and wise counsel would be sorely missed from the board governing our town's affairs. I trust he will see his way clear to accept of nomination, in which event his election is in my opinion a foregone conclusion."

A west-ender writes: "The unremitting attention given by Ald. Batten to the Property department entitles him to the support of the voters at the coming election. I don't think we can find a more zealous official on the civic board than Mr. Joseph Batten."

A prominent business man says: "Enclosed find my coupon for Shortly for Mayor and ten names for Aldermen. If Messrs. A. W. Cressman, Geo. Matthews and Robert Fair do not enter the field in the coming election, a big proportion of the ratepayers will be very much disappointed."

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—The Y.W.C.A. rooms will be devoted to a reception on New Year's afternoon and evening, strangers being especially welcome.

—A case regarding wages for a young girl for picking peas for her employer was heard in the police court Saturday, but was adjourned for further evidence.

—Mr. Bradley, of Pontypool, is in Nicholls hospital suffering from a broken hip received on the slippery walks on Christmas eve. He was brought to town on Friday night.

—The 57th Regiment Band has been engaged to play throughout the dance of the Peterborough Golf Club to-night in the opera house. From the present outlook the affair will be a great success.

—The attention of the public is now being directed more closely to the need of a proper system for the distribution of milk in the town, and of a place where the cans may be sterilized. The number of cases of diphtheria and scarlet fever has increased considerably of late, though the milkmen take the best care possible under the circumstances.

—The first meeting of the A.R.M. Bible class for the new year will take place on Wednesday, January 7th. A Quaker Oats social will be held, after which will be a debate among the members. Mr. W. Warne has been appointed as president in the place of Mr. H. A. Pearson, who leaves town shortly.

A Nervous Woman

Will often feel compelled to stop the clock whose ticking seems unbearable to her. In such a nervous condition the woman needs a building up of the entire system. It is useless to attempt the cure of the nerves while the cause of the nervousness remains uncured. A very common cause of nervousness in women is a diseased condition of the delicate womanly organism.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures womanly diseases and the nervousness which they cause. It changes irregularity to regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It is a perfect tonic and nervine, tranquilizing the nerves, promoting the appetite and inducing refreshing sleep.

"When I first wrote you I had been in three different doctors and two of them said I would never get better without going to the hospital for an operation," writes Mrs. Selma Ericksen, of 496 Rice Street, St. Paul, Minn. "Was not able to do anything. If I would get up and walk to the kitchen and back I would have to lie in bed for a day or sometimes two days. Now I have used six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and six of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and the result is just wonderful. I was so nervous I had to have some one by my side all the time even in day time, and I could hardly eat anything. I took treatment from a doctor twice a week, and every time I would go there I felt so sick, but since I quit all the doctors and began taking your medicines I gained right along. I weighed 115 pounds when I began taking your medicine (in August) and now I am up to my usual weight 165. I am so well and feel as good as ever."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

CANADA'S GREAT BOOM IS UNDER FULL SWING

A Few Facts Regarding the Conditions Prevailing in the United States and Canada

It is Canada's Turn Now to Make Progress and Develop Its Great Resources

London, Dec. 31—The people of England are taking an increasing interest in the colonies, and Canada is receiving far more attention than was the case a few years ago. Articles dealing with the present condition of Canada and its future prospects are now of frequent occurrence in the British press. Not only the daily newspapers, but the magazines also, are devoting much attention to Canadian affairs. The people of the Mother Country are realising that Canada comprises the larger portion of the North American continent, and that it has before it a future of splendid possibilities.

In the Nineteenth Century Magazine is an article which deals with American and Canadian affairs, and in it the writer prophecies that "what the United States was to the nineteenth century Canada will be to the twentieth." He points out that the people of the United States are not homogeneous. The population of the States given as 76,000,000, includes 8,-800,000 negroes, and 627,364 Chinese, Japanese, Indians and Kanakas. Nor is this all—out of 76,000,000 described as Americans 10,460,000 are foreigners, and 12,000,000 are born of foreign parents. Turning to Canada, the writer discusses the emigration of western farmers to British territory. The figures, he says, when considered in relation to other features in the situation, suggest the rise to Canada as a grain producing rival of the United States. The article concludes as follows:

"For nearly fifty years the flow of emigration was southward and Washington was congratulating itself on the gradual realization of its traditional policy, the including of British North America in the union. And there was no denying it was justified in holding that view. A country with boundless resources, a virgin soil and a sparse population, which becomes commercially dependent on a vigorous neighbor allied to it in origin, blood, and language is almost bound to become politically dependent particularly when the way is being opened by the most enterprising of its sons. From this fate Canada was saved only by her faith in the future. That is to say, she saw the danger, and averted it by one of the most tremendous efforts ever made by a handful of people. Nevertheless until the early nineties emigration to the United States was one of the Dominion's greatest problems. With a population of a few million souls scattered over half a continent she was being drained of her young men to the same extent as an old and densely populated country like England. In 1882, according to American official statistics, though their correctness was denied with indignation at Ottawa, 70,219 Canadians settled in the United States. But when the American census returns of 1890 were published, it was clear that there was no need for exaggeration on the part of the Republic, so great was the influx of Canadians. There were 980,000 American citizens of British North America of British birth, and it was estimated that there were nearly as many more of Canadian extraction. It was a painful revelation for the Dominion.

"Since 1890, however, she has prospered by leaps and bounds. Consequently her children find it to their advantage to stay at home. For the tens of thousands who crossed the border during the early years of the last decade, there were 1822 at the end of it; in 1900, the figures fall to hundreds. So that the full import of American emigration to the Northwest is not understood until one realises that Canadian emigration to the United States has almost ceased. In other words the number of Americans who seek homes under the Union Jack is not counterbalanced by the number of Canadians who seek homes under the Stars and Stripes. The loss to the United States is thus a double one. Those Americans who like to talk of the Dominion as a few acres of snow around the pole, see in the American invasion of the Northwest a new way of annexing Canada. The settlers being credited with the deep design of carrying the American flag to the frozen one. The idea is absurd. There is no more political significance in emigration from the United States to Canada than there was in the emigration from Europe to the United States. As a matter of fact few of the settlers are American in the true sense of the term at all. They are either European or Canadian, or of European or Canadian parentage, and become British in the Northwest just as fast as the British become Americans in the Republic. What was sauce for the American goose is surely sauce for the Canadian gander.

"It must be remembered that inducements to settle in the Northwest are many. It is practically a virgin country; the soil is rich and for a physical reason the climate is more endurable than it is further south. The administration of law and justice compares favorably with that across the border, and some affirm it with greater emphasis than Americans.

Finally, Canada controls the quickest route to Europe, and cheap and rapid transit is essential to the farmer's prosperity. For the first time in the history of the North American continent more grain was carried last year to Europe by way of the St. Lawrence than by way of the Erie canal and New York, and American experts have prophesied that in a very few years the Dominion will outstrip the United States in the production of wheat. That sturdy, well-to-do American farmers would aid in its realisation was, however, not anticipated. But so it is. Hence the legend on the arch erected by the Dominion government in London for the coronation was no idle boast. "What the United States was to the nineteenth century Canada will be to the twentieth."

THE BRITISH NAVY TO BE REFORMED

Admiralty Orders Changes to Meet Important New Conditions

NOW KNOWN PLAN WAS WRONG

The New American Policy of Making Engineers Line Officers Adopted—Radical Change in the Education of Cadets

London, Dec. 31—Lord Selbourne, First Lord of the Admiralty, has issued a long memorandum detailing important reforms in the British naval department, which have been decided upon by the Admiralty. The changes, which are sweeping, if not revolutionary from a professional standpoint, become operative in July, 1903.

Lord Selbourne opens the memorandum with an interesting essay on the changes which have overtaken naval service and naval conditions since the introduction of steam and electricity, with special reference to the extraordinary progress in the past fifteen years which have now brought the navy to a critical period in its development.

He says that to meet the changes a change in the personnel is required. In the old days it sufficed if a naval officer were a seaman; now he must be a seaman, soldier, engineer and a man of science also. Officers of the navy have never borne a greater responsibility than at present. Their task will be impossible unless they keep abreast of the scientific, intellectual and physical progress of the age. There is danger lest insufficient importance be attached to study and the best value of what is called practical character be placed higher than it deserves.

With the view to evolving the highest type of naval officer it has been decided to revise the methods of education. Hitherto the conditions have been anomalous. The three classes of combatant officers, executives, engineers and marines, entered the service under different conditions, and underwent different training. The executive officers have not learned the use of machinery, engineers have not learned watch-keeping or navigation and marines have been so educated as to be positively useless afloat.

These anomalies will disappear. There will be one system of supplying cadets, one system of entry and one system of training. For about eight years all cadets will take the same course, which is specified in the memorandum. At the end of the course each cadet will become a sub-lieutenant, and will be entitled to choose in which branch of the service he will specialise. Thereafter his educational career will be prolonged considerably. Later the present old distinctions of the engineers will vanish and they will rank as executive officers and wear the same uniforms as the latter. Officers of marines will be utilized for executive duties while at sea.

Winnipeg Business Men Debate the Subsidy Question

Winnipeg, Dec. 31—A motion introduced by A. B. Bethune, protesting against the granting of governmental aid to the Grand Trunk or Canadian Northern Railways for transcontinental extension, was debated at the Winnipeg Board of Trade yesterday. The mover spoke at length, giving his reasons why aid should not be granted. He said another transcontinental road was not a necessity, what was wanted being improved conditions on the present system, more travel lines, and increased motive power. Further discussion was postponed until Friday next.

PUTTING UP BARS AGAINST CHINESE

Twenty-Five or Thirty New Inspectors For Canadian Frontier

MORE INSPECTION POINTS

Prevention of Chinese Smuggling Will be Transferred to Immigration Dept.

Montreal, Dec. 31—As a result of the recent trip of Mr. Robert Watchorn, chief immigration inspector of the United States to the Pacific Coast, The Treasury Department at Washington has decided to increase the inspectors on the Canadian frontiers by 25 or 30 officers between Montreal and the Pacific, which will bring the staff up to eighty men.

Finding the bars securely up in the eastern section, the undesirable immigrants find their way out west, and once having crossed the frontier, they double back to the Eastern States, where they find work.

The expense of travelling from the Atlantic seaports to Western points used to be prohibitory, but now these Europeans are willing to spend hundreds of dollars to get into the United States. There are several foreigners residing in the city who make a business of aiding these people to cross the lines. Two of them are now under arrest, and if found guilty, will be sentenced to long terms of imprisonment, as well as a fine. The openings just closed by Mr. Watchorn were at Emerson, Rosenfield, Estevan, Assiniboine, Elko, Alberta, Victoria, Vancouver, Huntingdon and Cloverdale, at which points two and three inspectors have been named. The United States authorities believe that to prevent their crossing will be more effective than arrests and prosecutions after the immigrants have worked their way in and that the knowledge that these points will be guarded in the future will have a deterrent influence.

It is believed that the Treasury Department will transfer the Chinese immigration question from the customs to Mr. Watchorn's department. At present it is said the Chinese are finding their way across the border in large numbers.

HUMBERT'S DAUGHTER FREE

Others Charged With Swindling Now in a Paris Prison

Paris, December 31—The Humberts and d'Aurignacs arrived here this morning and were conveyed to the Conciergerie.

Eva Humbert alighted first. She was weeping as she gave her arm to her mother, who was perfectly calm. Romain d'Aurignac and the others followed. They were as self-possessed as Mme. Humbert. Frederick Humbert would hardly be recognized; he showed plainly the traces of his recent illness in Madrid.

When the party reached the prison, Eve Humbert was released. At first she refused to leave her mother and M. Farre, the director of the Conciergerie, was obliged to intervene and separate them. The girl's grandmother was so affected that she went into hysterics. Eve demanded that she be allowed to see her mother every day. The officials refused to grant this request.

London, December 30—A despatch from Paris to the Evening News says the belief is gaining ground that the trial of the Humbert swindlers may end in smoke. Dr. Gilbert, of Madrid, expresses the opinion that Mme. Humbert is in a state of mind closely bordering on insanity, if she is not actually crazy. She is affected with monomania on the subject of the "Crawford millions" and is quite irresponsible for what she says or does.

AN INVASION OF CANADA

Pro-Boer Americans Had Decided to Come in Force

Monterey, Mexico, December 31—General Samuel Pearson, the former Boer commander, who is here, says that plans have been made for an invasion of Canada with an army of pro-Boer Americans, when a stop was put to the proceedings by the death of the financial backer of the movement. He says that had it not been for the death of Edward Vassar, New York, the invasion would have been made during March or April. Vassar had agreed to furnish all the money necessary to equip an army of at least three thousand men. He was a wealthy retired New Yorker, whose entire sympathy was with the Boers, according to General Pearson's statement.

POPE RECEIVED 32,000 GIFTS

Value of All His Jubilee Presents Estimated at $2,500,000

Rome, Dec. 31—In connection with the exhibition at the Vatican of the more valuable of the Pope's jubilee presents it is announced that the total number of gifts was 32,000. CANADA AND PROBLEM OF NAVAL DEFENCE

London Globe Correspondent Says There is Some Dissatisfaction

CANADA NOT DOING HER SHARE

Claimed Vigorous Statesmen are Needed With Backbone to Guard Imperial Interests

London, December 31—A correspondent of the London Globe, in an article entitled "Canada and Naval Defence," scores Canada for standing aloof from the general colonial sympathy with imperial aims and ideals. It says that what intensifies this feeling of disappointment is that this result is due to the virtual domination of Quebec in the councils of Canada, and the truckling to the ultramontane elements thereof. Statesmen, the article says, by adopting a manly, vigorous and straightforward policy would go far toward killing out such feeling and prove that Canada, as a whole, is as loyal and devoted as any part of Greater Britain. This article says that such a conclusion is not legitimately deducible from the circumstances of her refusal to offer a sum towards the Imperial navy and the defence of the Empire.

BIG FREEZE IN FLORIDA

Thousands of Fires Burning to Save the Orange Groves

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 30.—Thousands of fires are burning to-night throughout southern and eastern Florida in the orange groves to protect the trees and fruit yet unpicked from the threatened cold wave. Last night the thermometer was 24 in northern Florida and 30 at Tampa.

The Weather Bureau here issued warnings to-night to look out for colder temperature and this was carried by telegrams, cold-wave flags on locomotives, and by warning blasts from locomotives as they sped through the farming regions.

In some places the growers use large piles of pine wood, with damp wood mixed, producing a heavy smoke to cloud the grove in. In others, hundreds of little sheet-iron stoves are used, the fires being kept up all night.

COOKE SEPARATION SUIT

The Catholic Priest Loses His Case and Will Have to Divide Property

Ottawa, Dec. 31—Judge Rochon in Hull today gave judgment in favor of Mrs. Cooke, Buckingham, against her husband for separation. Cooke, who was at one time a Catholic priest, pleaded that his vows made a marriage null. The Judge held, however, that he should have come to the courts long ago and had his marriage declared null. Besides securing separation, Mrs. Cooke will receive her share of the property. Cooke, in pleading that his vows prevented legal marriage, tried to evade the division of his property.

Berlin, Dec. 31 — The Lutheran Synod of Saxony has issued a decree denying the Crown Princess Louise, who recently ran away with Prof. Giron, the privilege of praying in churches of that denomination in Saxony.

New Editor of the Globe

Rev. J. A. Macdonald, editor of the Westminster, will succeed Mr. J. S. Willison as managing editor of the Globe. The directors of the Liberal organ at their last meeting decided to offer Mr. Macdonald the appointment, and although not officially confirmed, it is understood that he will enter upon his duties as soon as he can conveniently sever his connection with the Westminster. Since the retirement of Mr. Willison, Mr. John Lewis, the well known leader writer of the Globe, has been temporarily filling the position of editor. It is also understood that the Globe directors were quite prepared to make the appointment permanent had Mr. Lewis cared to accept it. Rev. J. A. Macdonald was born at East Williams, Middlesex, Ont., in 1862. He was ordained to the ministry in 1891, and was for five years pastor of Knox Church, St. Thomas. While a student he edited the Knox College Monthly. In 1895 he edited Rev. Dr. Mackay's book, "From Far Formosa." Since May, 1896, he has been editor of the Westminster.

WANT COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE

Say There Was a Carnival of Corruption in Referendum Vote

DEPUTATION WAITS ON ROSS

Prohibitionists Demand That Whole Matter of Alleged Irregularities Be Inquired Into

Toronto, Dec. 31—The prohibitionists are convinced that there was a "carnival of corruption" in connection with the recent referendum vote, and yesterday a deputation waited upon the Premier and the Attorney General, and asked that a commission be appointed to investigate the whole matter of alleged irregularities attending the vote, including the manipulation of ballots. The deputation was composed of Messrs. Geo. F. Marter, Alex Mills, W. E. Raney, N. W. Rowell and Rev. Dr. Chown.

The action of the police magistrates of Toronto and Kingston in imposing fines without imprisonment on the persons recently convicted before them of the offence of impersonation was also discussed. The Attorney-General was requested to authorize an application to the High Court for a mandamus requiring the police magistrate of Toronto to impose the penalty provided by the Election Act.

The Ministers promised that the Government would give the matter careful consideration.

Previous to meeting the Attorney-General the deputation met Premier Ross and discussed the question of moral reform. The nature of the reforms asked for was not made public, the members of the deputation stating that the conference was only a preliminary one, and nothing definite had been decided upon.

SCOTCH CURLERS COMING

They Will be in Peterborough About January 21st—The Programme

The special committee appointed by the Ontario Curling Association to prepare for the reception of the Scotch curlers in Ontario, met in Toronto and was attended by Mr. E. B. Edwards, representing Peterborough. A draft programme was prepared but this is not yet ready for publication as it is to be submitted to the Scotch team for their approval and may possibly have to be changed before being finally adopted. It is understood that, among the fortunate places, Peterborough is likely to have a visit from the team. The Scotchmen will probably play here about Wednesday, January 21. Each place they visit will be expected to provide entertainment. Owing to the large number of clubs desirous of meeting them, it is found to be impossible to allow more than one rink of each to play against them. Clubs in the neighborhood of centres in which the visitors are to play from which applications have been received by the committee will have an opportunity of sending a rink apiece.

It being deemed impossible by the committee to arrange for the visit of the team to both Peterborough and Lindsay, owing to the shortness of time at their disposal, and although the claims of Lindsay, on account of its high standing in curling circles, are very strong, Mr. J. D. Flavelle, the representative of Lindsay Club, very gracefully and kindly gave way to Lieut.-Col. Edwards personally, in consideration of the work he had done in connection with the visit of the Scotch curlers. An effort is being made to obtain an extra day or two so as to allow a day for Lindsay, as well as a day for Peterborough. It is probable that arrangement will still be made by which Lindsay can be visited.

In view of the fact that Peterborough is to be one of the places visited, it will behove the local curlers to enter with enthusiasm into every arrangement for the proper reception of the visitors.

CASTRO NOW DREAMS OF BIG EMPIRE

Great and Powerful with Himself Enthroned as Dictator for Life

HIS POLICY THREATENS WORLD WITH WAR

Remarkable Career of the Restless President—What the Present Trouble May Produce

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 31—Eight Venezuelan insurrections in the last two years and Cipriano Castro is still "President," with a large P and quotation marks—the capitalization to be in keeping with his official dignity as he understands it; the quotation because his title does not properly define his position in this turbulent little country. Anyway, Castro is still it, whatever it is, and even if allied Europe wipes him out he will have made an impress upon the history of South America. In fact, among the 16 Presidents of Latin American countries, he and Diaz of Mexico are only known by name to the world at large, and Castro has been making a stir ever since 1899.

But if there is much interest there is not much information, or rather in the volumes that have been said and written there is so much that is contradictory. On the one hand he has been lauded as a self-sacrificing patriot and able ruler by men who have denounced Matos, Hernandez, and the rest as contemptible traitors; on the other, he has been declared a dictatorial tyrant, seeking only his own aggrandizement at the cost of the national prosperity and honor.

Torn by Factions.

These extreme opinions, of course, emanate from partisan sources. They may be sincere expressions of sincere convictions, but they are not worth considering, except to show the extent of factional disputes in South America, where there are two kinds of politics—rebellion and "gang" rule. Either the administration rests in the hands of men who have fought for it in the open field or hold it in the same way, or something resembling stability is secured by a corruption whose brazen effrontery would put the St. Louis "boodle" gang to the blush.

Venezuela has preferred the fighting method—eight insurrections prove that—and it is therefore only natural that her people should say bitter things one way or another about any party or faction which, for the time, may control the government.

The truth probably lies half way between the two extremes. Castro is not entirely self-seeking. There is no doubt that he wants to build up his country. He has looked about him at the great nations of the world, and has hoped and labored for the day when his should take its place among the Powers. For this he would make sacrifices, and to this extent his ambition is laudable. But there is another side to the story. He wants Venezuela to be a great country, but he wants Venezuela to be his Venezuela. He wants it to step forth into the world's affairs with him at its head and dominating every move. He wants both Venezuela and Castro to be great. He looks forward to that with a faith not always justified by the events, but a faith that dismisses the charge that he is a mere adventurer like most of the rest.

Dream of Empire.

None can say what Cipriano Castro might have done had he thus risen to the government of a people stable and reliable in their convictions, less spasmodic in their patriotism and rebellion. That he dreams of a vast empire and great is certain, but that dream has often been rudely shaken. He organised his Cabinet and then there was an insurrection; he appointed him Ministers and then there was an insurrection, and each successive move he has made towards the realization of his dreams has been attended by rebellion or sandwiched into the brief intervals between periods of civil strife. That is why we know not whether he is a great man in a small place or the reverse.

But more pretentious than this is the "President's" official conclaves. A Cabinet session is serious and grave. Seated at a table with his Secretary at his side he takes counsel of his advisers and outlines his policies with a gravity that would be becoming in an international conference for the readjustment of Europe. The "President" is always in the foreground.

Apes the Monarch.

It is on state occasions that Castro departs most widely from true republican simplicity.

Dressed in gorgeous military costume indicative of his [illegible] army and navy, he seats himself on an elevated chair, remarkably suggestive of a throne, while the lesser dignitaries stand about in careful arrangement of precedence. The reception of a foreign minister is attended with almost all the formalities of a court function, and never by word, deed, or suggestion is the "Presidential" dignity slighted.

One dream above all has appealed most strongly to the "President" — the restoration of the United States of Colombia, founded by Simon Bolivar. This includes Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Bolivia, and over this area, nearly as large as that of this country, and over its 15,000,000 people, Castro hopes some day to rule as "President" for life, free from periodical rebellion, not only leader of South America, but a rival of the United States in the world's affairs. It was to this end that he aided Uribe-Uribe in his attacks on Colombia in the hopes of forcing that nation into the league, after which the others would follow. That he will ever achieve this ambition remains to be seen, but present day prophets do not cast for him a very favorable horoscope. He has other matters to attend to first.

A PRETTY WEDDING

Nuptials of Mr. H. S. Carpenter of Collingwood and Miss Jessie R. Cameron of Town

A very pleasing event took place at No. 441 Reid street, the residence of Mr. John Cameron, when his second daughter, Miss Jessie Ross, was united in marriage to Mr. Henry Stanley Carpenter, of Collingwood. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Torrance, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride, who was handsomely attired in white satin, trimmed with chiffon and applique, carried a bouquet of white roses and was attended by her sister, Miss Jean M., who wore pale blue silk and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. A. H. Robinson, B.A., Sc., of town, supported the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter left on the 9 o'clock G.T.R. train for their honeymoon tour. On their return they will reside at Gamebridge, Ont., where Mr. Carpenter is engaged in business in connection with the Trent Valley Canal.

Mr. Allan McCarthy's Candidature

Mr. Allan McCarthy, who is a candidate for the office of Councillor in Ashburnham, appears to have been incorrectly reported by the press at the nomination on Monday. What Mr. McCarthy said was: "When he could not defend himself with his tongue he was prepared, if need be, to defend himself with his fist." This was said in reply to some annoying remarks. Mr. McCarthy, as may be imagined, is a vigorous candidate, and would make a representative not afraid to do what he believes to be right, even if the heavens should fall. The Times would, therefore, like to see him elected.

THE ONLY MOMENTOUS EVENT

A discussion is going on among a number of our exchanges as to the cause or causes of a decline in Christian belief at this period of which they and many if not most other contemporary observers and philosophers think there are unmistakable signs throughout Christendom.

Computations of the Sunday church attendance made last month at New York, London and Liverpool, show that the great majority of the population of these towns neglects that form of religious observance; but we have no like statistics of former periods with which to compare them, so as to determine if there has been any recent diminution in church attendance, and how much it is, relatively. Some Catholic newspapers assume a great falling off, and they interpret it as an indication and a proof of the inability of Protestantism to satisfy the religious cravings of mankind. Before they are justified in drawing any such conclusion from church attendance merely they must be able to present comparative statistics to show that similar neglect of religious observance does not exist in Catholic countries and great towns, or, at least, is proportionately less to a significant degree. According to the statistics obtained in New York by Protestant enterprise it is as largely relatively among nominal Catholics as among nominal Protestants in the population; but so loosely was the enumeration made that on neither side can any safe inference be drawn from it.

Of one fact however, there is a complete demonstration, and it is that never at any period in the history of America, at least, was the celebration of the day commemorative of the birth of Jesus Christ so general, so jubilant, so impressive as it is now. The Incarnation as an historical fact is the central doctrine of Christianity. Without it Christianity would not be a supernatural religion at all, but merely a system of human morals and philosophy. By the side of the event celebrated a week ago by Christendom is a positive fact that all other events in the history of the world are of utter insignificance. What else can be of any essential importance in human annals, if nineteen hundred and two years ago "the only begotten Son of God Himself, for us men and for our salvation came down from Heaven and was Incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary"?

It is true that a large part of Protestant Christianity refused to accept this particular day as the anniversary of the Incarnation, but of the Incarnation as an historical event there never was any Protestant dispute, except the relatively small number of whom the Unitarians are representative. That God actually came down to earth and was made man is the belief on which the religion of Christianity rests, whether Catholic or Protestant. Moreover, the old-time Protestant aversion to the celebration of Christmas which found expression in the colder portions of the continent, as purely secular by the performance of usual labor, has passed away.

Everywhere Christmas has become the great holiday of the year by the common consent of Christendom, and its celebration is now as distinguished in the Churches which once rejected it as a veritable anniversary of the Incarnation as in the Churches which have always made it the prime feast of the Christian year. Last week we gave the programmes of Christmas music in English, Methodist and Presbyterian churches of Peterborough. Practically, too, all the people render homage to the day as the foremost of holidays, even where they are without religious faith, Christian or other.

At least, formally, therefore, Christmas observance is still maintained without diminution by the conjunction of the Incarnation. The supreme importance of the Incarnation is recognized by all Christendom, so far, at least, as concerns the making of Christmas the supreme holiday of the year. And the manner in which the day is celebrated, in the making of gifts, is still symbolic of the transcendent Gift on which Christian faith looks as an historical fact.

Christmas, writes a theologian in the Church Eclectic, is the celebration of "the most momentous event in the history of our race." If God came down to earth and became man, it was the only really momentous event in human history.

GIVES A BRILLIANT LIGHT

New System Introduced in Canada—Winnipeg to Be Headquarters

Winnipeg, Dec. 31—The Imperial hotel was so brilliantly illuminated last night that hundreds of passers by on the streets were attracted and the ground floor of the house was often crowded.

The brilliant effect was produced by the oxygen lighting system, which its inventor, A. F. Morey, of Kansas City, Mo., says is produced by 5 per cent. hydrogen and 95 per cent. air. This was the first time the light has been used in Canada.

Last week a patent was issued from Ottawa to Col. Amos F. Morey, of Kansas City, and M. F. St. John, fur buyer, Winnipeg, for the manufacture of appliances for this light and Judge Malcolm Johnson, of Kansas City, is also interested in the company.

They will form a local company and sell its stock to local investors and propose to open up a new industry in Winnipeg, making it the leading center for the supply of this lighting system for the whole of the Dominion of Canada. It is their intention to apply to the local legislature for charter for the new company, and next year they propose to build a factory at Winnipeg for the manufacture of plants, machinery and fixtures, including chandeliers. Col. Morey, the inventor, of the new light and Judge Johnson, are at present in the city.

THE BLOCKHOUSE SYSTEM

Their Utility in Shortening the War Now Admitted

London, Dec. 31—De Wet, in his history of the war in South Africa, expressed the opinion that the blockhouses erected by the British had little effect in impeding the operations of the Boers or hastening the conclusion of the war. Upon this point however, other authorities do not agree with him. Major-General Elliott Wood writes to the Times to say that, prior to the introduction of the blockhousing system, railway tracks or railway trains were blown up nearly every other day, but that, when the system had advanced toward completion, there was no such occurrence for months at a time. The gain to the British from such freedom of interruption of their communications was of course enormous. "As a matter of fact," says General Wood, "the Boers, with very rare exceptions, did not attempt to cross these blockhouse lines by day. In many cases they were driven on to them, and were captured in considerable numbers. By means of these, convoys could safely travel through the country, our columns could find support on them, and the movements of the enemy were far more easily observed and reported." It is not at all likely that General Kitchener would have pushed the blockhouse system so far if it had not been progressively justified by results.

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mine on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunnison Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 25 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting for Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arbeth, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 200 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 100 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 90 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 6 ounces or $40 to $120 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $13 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore ranging from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $500 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coca and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 1350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water a low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25

July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 100,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years	$670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—

Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's shares common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

BUY ! WHY ?

BECAUSE THE SOUR LAKE OIL CO.

Has placed four-fifths of its stock in the treasury for development work; and because

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Manson, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "[illegible]" group of mines and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "[illegible]" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica schist, slate, [illegible] porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore [illegible] iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $50 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings oftimes running as high as $25 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. [illegible] your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Price is now 15 cents a share, and we offer 50,000 shares at this price, but may be advanced by January 1st, 1903, to 20 cents a share.

STOCK MARKETS

Buy St. Paul Immediately

New York, December 31st—There is no question about it, St. Paul is being greedily purchased by powerful interests. It is going much higher. The entire action of the stock even during the September, October and November decline clearly shows this to be a fact. The market indications for the past few days plainly portray the fact. Someone is buying St. Paul. We have no hesitancy in committing ourselves to the opinion that this stock will cross 200 the first six months of the coming year. The new issue of stock which has been authorized by the directors of the company is to be used for some purpose yet unannounced. Its use, however, is undoubtedly connected with the yet unknown reasons which will when announced materially advance the price. St. Paul has also of high interest bonds maturing shortly which will be replaced with lower interest bearing obligations. St. Paul has expended within five years fully forty millions of dollars upon its property, charging same to operating expenses. St. Paul within two years will be as valuable as is the Northwest and should sell equally as high. St. Paul has now the right of way through to the Pacific coast via the Union Pacific lines, enjoying equal privilege with the North West. St. Paul sold in September at 198 3-4 and had the market not given way at the time would probably have reached 210. St. Paul sold above 190 in October, having dropped below 180 after its previous high market. St. Paul we believe, will sell up ten to fifteen points within 60 days, and will sell well above 200 within the coming six months. Buy and hold St. Paul. The general market looks most promising for January. We believe it can be most safely purchased at present. The coal shares look unusually well. They are going to sell on a much higher plane the coming year. The trunk lines as well as the extreme western lines, including the Pacifics, will give a good account of themselves also. Copper is also specially attractive at present. We have been persistently bullish since it left 54 and expect to get pretty close to 70 in January. If you are a reader of these letters and have no open account at present time we most strongly urge you to open one immediately and avail yourself of the present opportunity. Buy some stocks.

LYNCHED THE WRONG MAN

Brother of the Man Hanged in Kansas May Have Been Guilty

Pittsburg, Kan., Dec. 30.—It is now thought here that in the lynching of Mont Godley on Christmas morning probably the wrong man was hanged. The opinion is that it was the brother of the man who was lynched that fired the shot that killed Policeman Hinkle. A physician in this city was called upon by the mother of the Godley boys to treat one of them for a bad gunshot wound in the neck, received in a fight on Christmas eve. The physician could not get the woman to tell where her son was. Officers went to the Godley home, but he was not there.

From Weir City it is reported that he was at his home there, and the Sheriff has gone to look for him.

THE REFERENDUM

The Complete Returns Increase the Majority To 96,[illegible]

Complete returns from Fort William and Lake of the Woods show that the total vote cast in that constituency in favor of putting the Ontario Liquor Act into operation was 769, against 744, giving a majority in favor of the act of 25 instead of 19 against, as at first reported. This brings the total vote cast, irrespective of spoiled ballots, up to 302,128, of which 199,977 were in the affirmative, and 102,851 in the negative, giving a majority of 96,[illegible]. The respective percentages of 65.9 for and 34.1 against are not affected by the change in the figures. East Nipissing is now the only constituency from which the returns are incomplete.

AN INTERESTING WEDDING

Miss Ethel Bradburn and Mr. Amos H. Wood of Town are United in Marriage

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bradburn, Union street, was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday afternoon, when their daughter, Miss Ethel Vivian, was married to Dr. Amos H. Wood, of town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson, M.A., in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends guests being present from Winnipeg, Ottawa, Toronto and other places. Miss Foster, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid; Miss Gertrude Bradburn, sister of the bride, was maid of honor while Miss Mata Middlebrook, cousin of the bride, made a very pretty flower girl. Mr. W. C. Bradburn, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

The bride was charmingly attired in white marleveloux, with trimmings of white medallions over white taffeta, and she carried a beautiful boquet of white carnations. White silk organdie over blue taffeta composed the becoming gown worn by the bridesmaid, who carried pink carnations. Miss Gertrude Bradburn's dress was of white muslin de soie over yellow silk. The flower girl was prettily gowned in white silk organdie over India silk. The groom's present to the bride was a diamond ring, and to the bridesmaid, a pearl crescent.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding breakfast.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood left by the 5.10 C.P.R. for Toronto and Buffalo, and on their return will reside on Union street. The Times extends its hearty congratulations.

For Alderman

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—As I have once more been nominated for the position of Alderman for the Town, I take this opportunity of stating that I am in the field again as a candidate for 1903. My aim in the past has been to lean towards the most careful economy in the management of our municipal affairs. At the same time, if elected, I will always give my support to such measures as are calculated to build up and maintain the prosperity of our live and growing town.

Your Obedient Servant.

As I shall not make a personal canvass of the town, I trust that any services which may have been rendered by me during the last year will warrant your vote and influence. My interests in the town personally are by no means small, and in consequence it will be my best effort to advance every measure that will lead to the rapid progress of our town.

Trusting that my municipal experience in the past, together with the rapid progress which my own business has made, will warrant your vote on January 5th I remain, respectfully yours,

ALDERMAN FOR 1903

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

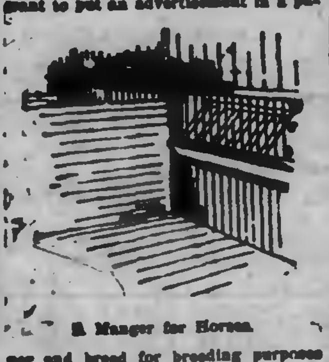
MANGER FOR HORSES.

A Simple Device Meets Many Advantages.

One thing that hinders many farmers from making a good profit on their farms is keeping scrub stock instead of good breeds. No one who has ever tried feeding a Poland China or Berkshire hog in the same pen with a scrub would need anything else to convince him of this. A good thoroughbred will simply return twice the increase for the same amount of feed that the scrub will. This is a matter of far greater importance than most people think. There is no money in scrub stock, and the sooner it is universally known the better it will be for the country. We feel and realize, says John A. Wallace, in the Farmer's Home Journal, the fact that Kentucky loses thousands of dollars each year by feeding inferior hogs. There is quite a large number of hogs now being fed in Kentucky which would not pay for half the care and feed given them.

Just why this is so is hard to explain, when we know that there is a good profit in good hogs and a good sow and boar can be bought so cheap and soon stock any farm with good hogs. A good brood sow can be bought for $15 or $20 and upon an average will bring from six to eight pigs. A good boar pig can be had for $8 or $10 and from 25 to 30 per cent of the feed now consumed can be saved thereby and this alone would buy good hogs by the dozen. Not only this but if you do not want to put an advertisement in a paper and breed for breeding purposes you could sell all your surplus pigs to neighbors at from six to eight cents per pound. We have tried several experiments with good Poland and China pigs and good scrub pigs finding from $3.00 to $4 difference per head in a year. Now, this would make a difference of from $30 to $40 in a scrub sow and a good sow in a year, when we remember that a sow will bring two litters a year.



A Manger for Horses.

A number of the breeds of hogs are now being bred for early maturity, and need not be kept till one year old to mature, but can be kept to six or eight months old and be turned off to top the market the sweetest and best bacon, and the pigs in the fall turned off to neighbors at from $3 to $5 per head at four to six weeks old, or fed for spring market, as may be desired, not forgetting that extra attention is what makes the extra profit, especially during the winter months. Now, young man, are you in the old rut, breeding that old roach-back scrub? If so pull out this fall while you yet have time to make preparations for next year by buying a bred sow or sows, as needs be, and a good boar to breed to next summer for a fall litter, and don't forget to get a good pedigree with what you buy, which will induce your neighbors to buy from you at good, if not fancy prices.—Rural World.

ASHBURNHAM REEVESHIP.

To the Electors:

In accepting the nomination for the office of Reeve, so generously tendered me by my fellow-ratepayers, I would say that I am strongly opposed to a personal canvass, and take this means of informing the electors that I do not propose to solicit their votes.

If elected I shall endeavor to perform the duties pertaining to the office in a business-like manner, and thus justify the confidence which the ratepayers repose in me.

In conclusion, I desire to wish every ratepayer in the village, regardless of whether he votes for me or not, a happy and prosperous New Year.

How long will it take the man to fill the sack if he does not stop the leak? To attempt to nourish the body when the stomach is diseased is like trying to fill the sack with the hole in it. When the stomach and other digestive and nutritive organs are diseased, there is a constant loss of nutrition. Enough is eaten but the body loses flesh,—plain proof that the food eaten is largely wasted because it is not digested and assimilated.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It stops the leaks by which nutrition is lost, and enables the building up of the body by the nutrition derived from food. The gain in weight proves the cure.

"Three years ago I was taken sick with what the doctor called nervousness and indigestion," writes Mrs. Warren E. Parker, of Orange Street, Nantucket, Mass. "He gave me medicine for the trouble, but I could not eat even a little toast or oatmeal without suffering severely. In a few months I began to have distressing pains right in the pit of my stomach. I called the doctor again and he said I had catarrh of stomach; gave me medicine but it did not do any good. I lost 20 pounds in three months. I then commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicine and soon began to feel better. I have taken six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' two of 'Favorite Prescription' and six vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets. I have gained ten pounds. Can eat everything."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

WILL CANADA BECOME PART OF UNITED STATES

The New York Sun Says That We Are Rapidly Becoming Americanized

Foolish Statements Regarding Canada by This Great American Newspaper

New York, Dec. 30—Those Canadians who profess ardent loyalty to the British Crown are a good deal worried by the emigration which has begun to flow into the Northwest territories of the Dominion from the adjoining sections of the United States. They apprehend that the newcomers will not appreciate the position of dependence on a transatlantic monarchy of which the Canadian Conservatives are proud. There may be some ground for the misgiving, but there are other reasons for thinking that at no distant day loyalty to the British Crown will cease to be a dominant sentiment in Canada. As it is, the sentiment is shared by descendants of English and Scotch emigrants and of the loyalist refugees who settled in British North America after our Revolutionary War. Now it is precisely this element of the Canadian population which, according to the census of 1901, is increasing less rapidly, and which, unless recruited by unexpected emigration from Great Britain, will be greatly outnumbered in the course of a few decades.

The figures of the recent census show that the emigration from the United Kingdom into the Dominion does not suffice to supply the loss by death among the British-born and Irish-born inhabitants of the country. Of persons born in England, Ireland or Scotland there were residing in Canada in 1901 only 390,062, as against 485,524 in 1871. That is to say, there are fewer British and Irish-born people in Canada today by nearly 100,000 than there were thirty years ago. On the other hand, the number of immigrants from countries other than those embraced in the British Empire was 278,804 in 1901, as against only 131,983 in 1881. Of the 49,149 immigrants that entered Canada in 1901, only 11,810 were of British and Irish birth. If the inflow from the United States shall continue to increase as it has increased during the last twelvemonth and no change takes place in the inflow from the United Kingdom, the foreign-born residents in Canada will soon outnumber the immigrants of British and Irish birth.

There is another ominous fact brought out by the last census. The Canadians of English, Scotch, or Irish descent are increasing much less rapidly than are the French-Canadians. The latter double in numbers every quarter of a century. In Quebec, the province in which French-speaking people are most numerous, the birth rate is 36.86 per thousand. In this part of the Dominion families of eighteen, twenty and even more children are not infrequent. The last census, when compared with preceding censuses, proves that English-speaking people are being gradually squeezed out of the Province of Quebec, while settlements of French-Canadians are being formed in other parts of the Dominion. If the emigration of French-Canadians in the United States were checked, their tendency to preponderate at home would be emphasized. As it is they are certain greatly to outnumber the Canadians of British and Irish descent before the middle of the present century.

It is improbable that the sentimental tie which at present connects the Dominion with the United Kingdom will survive the attainment by the French-Canadians of that ascendancy in the Ottawa Parliament to which their numerical superiority will entitle them. The stories that ascribe to the French-speaking inhabitants of the Province of Quebec a feeling of attachment to the British sovereign are fairy tales. How could "loyalty" be expected from this element of the population? The children of French-Canadians are brought up, for the most part, in entire ignorance of the English language, under French civil law, and without any knowledge of English customs. Quebec, in truth, is more French than is France. Never would the French-Canadians, however, desire incorporation with the French Republic, because they are fervent Catholics and abhor the treatment to which the Catholic Church is subjected at the hands of the civil power in the country of their forefathers. What the French-Canadians are likely to desire, when they acquire the political preponderance at Ottawa, for which they are destined, is complete political independence, although they may come to favor annexation with out Union when they are made to understand that Quebec, as a State, would have exclusive control of her own religous institutions. Our Federal Government is prohibited by the Constitution from establishing any particular form of religion, but nothing prevents a State from doing so.

COAL DEALERS TO ANSWER

Chicago Council Summons Them to Explain Juggling of Prices

Chicago, Jan. 2—Coal dealers will have to answer the scarcity and high price of the fuel coal. One hundred and fifty jobbers and dealers have been notified to meet the Aldermanic investigating committee this afternoon.

Attorney-General Hamlin and the aldermanic investigators assert that the railroads practically have cleared their skirts and are now doing all in their power to relieve the situation, even if they have not done so in the past. Its "up to" the dealers, they say.

Information declaring that an arbitrary increase in the price of coal was decreed by a meeting of soft coal dealers this week was laid before the aldermen yesterday, and this evidence of a combination to rule prices will be investigated.

NEW MEDICAL WONDER

Chicago Doctor Proposes to Inject Medicine Into Human Heart

Chicago, Jan. 2—Dr. W. Byron Coakley, who claims he can cure human hearts without killing by squirting medicine into them through a machine he has invented, is all ready to try his treatment on a human being, when he finds one willing. His experiments, so far, have been with dogs as subjects. No sentient being has yet come forward to be relieved of heart disease by the Coakley process.

The doctor uses a gold needle eight inches long, which he calls an organotone, in making the injections. The solutions to be injected are handled in a machine called an organometer, which nicely regulates the quantity, temperature and pressure. The various ventricles and auricles of the heart are reached by inserting the needle between particular ribs. To reach the left ventricle, the needle is plunged through the right, or through the lung.

Coakley hopes to get a human subject before long, so he can demonstrate his process before the international medical congress at Madrid.

Grand Trunk Exhibition in Japan

The Grand Trunk Railway System through the Exhibition Commissioners of Canada, at Ottawa, have just shipped a very fine and complete collection of their well known scenic views depicting scenes along their line, to the land of the Chrysanthemum for display at the Fifth National Exhibition of Japan which will open in the City of Osaka, March 1st. 1903. The collection includes some of the best pictures of the districts in the "Highlands of Ontario" and other summer resorts located on the Grand Trunk, as well as reproductions of several of the engineering feats on the line, such as the St. Clair Tunnel, the double track single-arch steel bridge across the Niagara Gorge, and the more recent Victoria Jubilee Bridge across the St. Lawrence River at Montreal. This series of pictures will make a very comprehensive display and will be the means of bringing before the people of the Orient, some of the charms of Canada, which have hitherto been unknown.

NEW LAW FIRM

Firm of Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr & Stevenson

This firm has a new member in the person of Mr. F. D. Kerr, who commenced the practice of law in Peterborough seven years ago. Mr. R. M. Dennistoun started the firm in 1886 with Mr. Arthur Stevenson. Subsequently Mr. E. A. Peck joined. The Peterborough Light and Power Company is under the management of Mr. Arthur Stevenson, who has, however, not severed his connection with the legal firm.

By agreement the partnership existing between Mr. F. D. Kerr and Mr. D. O'Connell terminated on the expiration of the last of the year. As a son of Hon. Senator Kerr, of Cobourg, and as a brilliant barrister, he has a great future before him.

Mr. O'Connell will occupy the same business offices on Hunter street, and the firm of Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr and Stevenson will still dispense legal wisdom at their old address, 415 Water street.

The Day of Miracles Not Past

A Toronto "Star" reporter investigated the case of Mr. Geo. Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness, he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be repaired. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from Impaired Hearing, Deafness, Head Noises, and Ringing in the Ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. KAISERS' SLANDER ON GREAT BRITAIN

National Review Insists That Its Revelations Were Correct

THE STORY DENIED BY GERMANS

North German Gazette Ridicules the Report as an Audacious Invention

London, Jan. 2.—The National Review in its January number reproduces the story which appeared in its December issue, to the effect that the German Emperor made disparaging remarks about the King of Britain, the British Government, and the British people while on board an American yacht off the coast of Norway last summer.

The North German Gazette, the semi-official organ of the Berlin Foreign Office, characterized the story as an audacious invention, and now the National Review says: "Our readers may rest assured as to the absolute accuracy of the recital, which we only abstain from making more circumstantial because we have no desire to bring in the names of private individuals, which are, however, perfectly familiar in well-informed circles both in the United States and Great Britain.

"However wildly improbable the story may seem to the Anglo-Germanising journalists of London, it happens to be substantially and literally true, though we have given an exceedingly moderate version of the actual incident. The denial of the North German Gazette is inspired either by ignorance or is a falsehood."

Madrid, Jan. 2.—Germany has notified Spain that she intends to observe an attitude towards Morocco similar to that of France and Great Britain. All the powers are thus in accord with Spain's desire to maintain the status quo.

A despatch received here from Ceuta Morocco, says that a Moor who was under British protection has been murdered by Moors between Tangier and Tetuan.

The Kabyles, in the vicinity of Melilla, Morocco, are quiet.

People who have arrived at Ceuta from Fez do not take very serious views of the situation.

WIRELESS AT ONE CENT A WORD

Messages Across the Atlantic May Be so Cheap as That Says Marconi

Sydney, N.S., Jan. 2—The dinner given in the Sidney hotel last night by the citizens in honor of Signor Marconi was a great success. The electrical display was a feature of the decorations. At the opposite ends of the table were placed two miniature towers, representing the stations at Table Head and Poldhu, Cornwall. Between these two station an electric spark flashed at intervals, signifying the passing of wireless messages.

Mayor Crowe paid a high tribute to Marconi, and the inventor spoke at length on the progress of his invention. After reviewing the early stages of wireless telegraphy, Marconi said:

"The cost of establishing a transatlantic wireless telegraph service is less than $250,000 while it cost $4,000,000 to lay an Atlantic cable. From this you can readily see that wireless telegraphy can be carried on at a much less cost than cables. At the present time the cable companies serve the purpose admirable, that is for the rich, but the masses—the great majority of people in the civilised world—are precluded from using the cable, because of its cost. Wireless telegraphy, by bringing down the cost of communication over the sea, will do a great thing for mankind. As for great Britain and her colonies and the great American republic to our south it will give a better understanding between them all and strengthen to a large degree the family ties which bind them.

As you are aware, we are under contract to submit messages at ten cents a word, but you need not be surprised if in the future wireless messages are flashed across the Atlantic at a cost of a cent a word."

AGAINST DOUBLE-HEADERS

Trainmen West of Mississippi Planning to Strike to Stop Them

Austin, Tex., Jan. 2—It was said here today on high authority that a strike of the conductors and brakemen on every railroad west of the Mississippi River on which double-head er trains are operated is imminent. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen embodied in their demands presented to all the railroads west of the Mississippi River on Nov. 28, that the operation of double-header trains on three roads be abolished.

The exact demand is that not to exceed thirty cars be hauled with two engines, which is equivalent to abolishing the practice, as that number of cars is easily hauled with a single engine. An exception is made of the mountain divisions of the roads, where the grade is heavy and two engines to draw each train are necessary.

It is understood that the roads are willing to treat liberally with the trainmen in their demand for a 20 per cent. increase in their wages, although the increase which they are willing to give will not probably exceed 10 per cent. This may be acceptable to the employees as they did not expect to get the full 20 percent.

The Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe, the Colorado Southern, the Missouri Pacific, the Northern Pacific, the Burlington, the Rock Island, and other roads upon which double-headers are operated, are said to be willing to grant the demand of the men for the abolition of that practice and will soon notify the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen on Jan. 5, which is the date on which an answer is to be received. The engineers and firemen did not join the conductors and brakemen in this demand. The Railway Trainmen have been striving to secure legislation prohibitory of the double-headers in Texas and other Western States for several years without success.

AN AGED COUPLE BURNED TO DEATH

LAMP SET FIRE TO CLOTHING

Thurso Girl Succumbs to Injuries Stumbled While Descending Stairs

Ottawa, Ont., January 2 — Phifias Pichette and his wife, Marie, an old couple living about two miles east of Gatineau Point, were burned to death in their house last night. Mr. Pichette and his wife were about 60 years of age and their family having grown up and married, they had been living by themselves.

A sad death occurred at Thurso yesterday, when Miss Leonie Bergeron, daughter of the late Baptiste Bergeron succumbed to injuries from burning. Nine days ago Miss Bergeron was carrying a lamp downstairs, when she stumbled. The lamp set fire to her clothing and severely burned her face. Members of the family were on hand immediately, and extinguished the blaze in a few moments. With the aid of medical attendance it was thought for a time she would recover, but she sank gradually.

EVANGELIST H. D. KENNEDY

Home After a Very Successful Season in Algoma District

Evangelist H. D. Kennedy, son of our esteemed fellow-citizen, Mr. Dawson Kennedy, has returned to Peterborough, after having completed a six months' revival service in Algoma district, and has left for Deseronto, where he will conduct a series of meetings. The following, taken from the Christian Guardian, tells of the splendid work which is being done by this popular and successful young revivalist:

It is now some months since we first reported a gracious old-time revival on this district, which is still in progress. For the past six months Evangelist H. D. Kennedy has been laboring with us, under the sanction and direction of the chairman of the district and the financial secretary. His work has been greatly blessed of God in the salvation of many souls, and in the quickening of the churches during these months, and we regret that he is now leaving the district. Mr. Kennedy is a strong and original preacher, thoroughly possessed of the importance and sacredness of his work, and well qualified for it, both mentally and spiritually. His treatment of the great characters of the Bible, like Jacob and Samson, David and Judas, and many others, is so vivid and well imagined that these great types of character fairly live again in the imagination of the hearer. He is an expository preacher, rather than doctrinal, but the grand old doctrines of repentance from sin, and regeneration of life through faith in Christ are clearly and faithfully presented. His methods are thorough, and there can be no doubt of the permanence of the work when followed up by a faithful pastor. As a direct result of this campaign about 450 persons have been led to definitely accept Christ as their Saviour, and have been added to the various Protestant churches. Methodism, of course, has reaped the lion's share, and nearly all of our churches along the north shore have been strengthened and established in their loyalty to Christ and to Methodism. We rejoice in this work, not only for its present direct results, but because such a revival spreading over these new settlements is fraught with so much importance for the future. The church that wins the country now is the church that will lead the hosts of the Lord when the resources of this new country are fully exploited. There is a steady and rapid increase in population and prosperity throughout these regions, and it will only be a few years until Algoma will be dotted over with flourishing communities, and now is the time to plant the church on the firm foundations of spiritual religion. Such a campaign as has been carried on in this district would, if judiciously planned and wisely carried out, be of great advantage to every mission district in New Ontario.

The War of 1812

The unjustness of the War of 1812 is well explained by Dr. James Hannay in the first instalment of his history of that great struggle, which appears in the January Canadian Magazine. He points out that before the news of the declaration of war had travelled from Washington to London the objectionable Orders-in-Council, concerning the Right of Search had been withdrawn. Thus the only acknowledged reason for the war was removed before a blow was struck. There was an armistice on receipt of the news, but the United States would not agree to stop the war. Napoleon was preparing to invade Russia, Great Britain's hands were full of war. Hence the United States considered it an excellent moment to strike a blow at England—the old mother who was so keenly hated—and at the same time gain possession of Canada. President Madison was coerced by his political friends, who declared he only could secure a second term by carrying on the war. He yielded against the dictates of his better judgement.

Dr. Hannay's narrative is clear and spirited, and is probably the best account of the struggle yet published. Future instalments will be eagerly awaited.

SAMUEL WATSON MUST STAND TRIAL

Brantford Magistrate Commits Him on Manslaughter Charge

HE IDENTIFIES THE ASSAILANTS

Alfred Hanley and Edward Ray, the Alleged Burglars, Plead an Alibi

Brantford, Jan. 2.—After hearing the evidence in the preliminary trial in the case of Samuel Watson, charged with killing his brother Wesley while sleeping, mistaking him for a burglar, Mr. Leitch, J.P., on Wednesday committed him for trial at the Spring Assizes, on a charge of manslaughter. The evidence revealed the fact that the killing was directly due to an outrage committed on the brothers by burglars on November 22 last, and they feared another attack of the same kind.

The Watsons rented their farm at $500 annually, falling due on January 1. The landlord had refused to do some repairs, and, after securing advice, they decided to withhold the rent. But they were afraid he might garnishee their money in the bank and their chattels, so withdrew it entirely, and sold nearly everything they possessed and buried the money in two fruit jars. In one jar there was $3.50, and in the other $2,250. The burglars entered the house in broad daylight, seized and gagged Samuel Watson, and by torture forced him to reveal the hiding place of the lesser sum. He was about to tell of the other also, when the men were frightened away by the other brother firing his rifle. Samuel was quite collected in court, and told his story clearly. It was retold without material variation by his brother James.

After the committal Alfred Hanley and Edward Ray were arraigned on the charge of entering the Watson's house and by force stealing the $3.50. They are butchers of Ancaster, and James Watson stated they came often to the farm, as they had a number of cattle there. Few, he said, knew of the hiding of their money, and he positively identified the prisoners by their clothing, their general bearing, and their voices. The case was enlarged till Wednesday next and bail accepted. The accused will endeavor to establish an alibi, and they will bring about 25 witnesses to swear they were in Hamilton on the day of the robbery.

ROLLING MILL FOR TORONTO

New One Will Be Started in the Near Future It is Said

Montreal, Que., Jan 2.—It is understood that a new rolling mill will be started in Toronto in the near future, and while the enterprise has no connection with the Dominion Iron and Steel Co., it is believed that several of the western directors of the Sydney concern are also amongst the promoters of the enterprise that is to be launched in the Queen City. The product of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co., will thus find a new market, as their pig will be exclusively used.

GIRL KNOCKS DOWN HER FATHER

He Was Beating Her Mother For Which He Goes to Jail

New York, Jan. 2—Henry Shazy, of North Bergen, N.J., was committed to the Snake Hill penitentiary by Recorder Pullis in Hoboken yesterday for wifebeating.

On Sunday night he found fault with the supper and said he would give his wife a lesson in cooking. He was beating his wife with a rolling pin, when his fourteen-year-old daughter, Louise, went to her mother's assistance and felled him with a stone pitcher.

The Recorder commended the girl's action.

ITALIANS FOR SOUTH AFRICA

Plan to Bring Them into Natal To Build Waterworks

Pietermaritzburg, Jan. 2—A scheme is projected to induce the Government of Natal to sanction the importation of Italian laborers from northern Italy to work on the new waterworks. After completing this service they will be at liberty to settle in the country where they will become valuable agricultural laborers.

It is argued that such labor is used beneficially in Switzerland, Austria, south Germany, the Argentine Republic and the United States. Some Italians are now employed on the Cape Colony railway lines, where they give the greatest satisfaction. They do three times the amount of work done by the blacks.

PUBLIC MEETING IN THE OPERA HOUSE LAST NIGHT

Municipal Matters Discussed by the Nominees for Civic Honors Before a Small Audience

Ald. Batten Proves That He is a Union Man—The Fuel Yard Would Cost $50,000 to Establish—Vote of Thanks to the Council of 1902

The mass meeting at the opera house last night was not very largely attended. Mayor Corkery made a very acceptable chairman, and was well received. He explained that the object of the meeting was to discuss municipal matters, and reading a list of the nominees for the Council of 1903, invited them to take a seat on the platform. Messrs. R. F. McWilliams, Best, Turner, Batten, Morrison, O'Connell and the Mayor-elect (Ald. G. M. Roger), responded to the invitation.

THE MAYOR ELECT

Was the first speaker, and received a very enthusiastic reception. He thanked the electors for the honor conferred upon him and promised to do all in his power to advance the interests of the Town. The Town has reached an important crisis in its history, when it must keep apace with the march of progress in order to hold its own with other Towns in the Province. The important issues for the next Council to deal with are the Light and Power contract, which expires in January next, and the telephone monopoly, the contract for which also expires next year. The Council for 1903 will have to determine whether it will be wise to renew these agreements or not. Then the question of amalgamation with Ashburnham will also have to be considered. Sooner or later a union of these municipalities will have to take place, and such a union must, in his opinion, be productive of benefits to both corporations. But there is considerable opposition to the scheme. A number of Peterborough's ratepayers feel that this amalgamation will give immediate increased value to Ashburnham property at an expense to Peterborough ratepayers. In the village the greatest opposition to the proposed union is met with in official circles; it has been argued that in the event of amalgamation, the government of Ashburnham's interests will pass entirely into the hands of Peterborough officials. So far as the support of the Hunter street bridge is concerned, the cost of that structure has already been paid for and he did not think its maintenance could be accepted as an important factor in the question. The sewage question was perhaps more serious, as Peterborough ratepayers feel that, as Ashburnham has no such system, they would be called upon to pay a large proportion of the cost of constructing such a one for the village. Turning to the proposed municipal fuel yard Ald. Roger opined that the fuel question is a matter of life and death to Canadians, which will not be settled in Peterborough next Monday, but will have to be dealt with in the legislative halls. The causes of the present fuel famine are outside of our own country altogether, and it is exceedingly questionable whether any action on our part will help to improve the situation. Municipal ownership of the waterworks is yet in its infancy, and this together with the Light and Power and Telephone issues, makes it questionable whether it would be wise to go into the fuel business. The Mayor-elect supported Ald. Best's by-law to raise $20,000 for street and bridge improvements and permanent works, and argued that the building of permanent structures, and issuing for the same debentures covering a period in which the coming generation will contribute toward the payment of benefits derived equally with us, is a wise policy to pursue.

ALD. BEST

Was well received. He explained that a portion of the $20,000 asked for in the bylaw to be voted on next Monday was to be expended in an iron bridge at the corner of Aylmer and Brock streets. It was thought to be economical to make the structure a permanent one, so as to avoid future expense. Then a better system of storm drainage is to be provided, so as to lead the water directly to the creek, and to avoid the danger arising from overtaxing any one portion of the present sewage system. Permanent road beds are also to be constructed in the main portion of the Town. Asphalt pavement can be built at from $2.25 to $2.40 per square yard, and he figured that we could construct good Macadam roads in Peterborough at one-half that price.

R. F. McWILLIAMS

Was enthusiastically welcomed. He thought the main issue before the public was one of administration. He supported Ald. Best's bylaw and maintained that the streets most used should receive attention of a permanent nature. Good work can be accomplished in this direction if the roads are looked after properly and with constant vigilance. He believes in encouraging the location here of industries, but the taxpayers should not be overburdened. He objected to a wholesale exemption, without due regard to the benefits to be derived by the citizens from these industries exempted. Before the J. J. Turner and Sons' bylaw was submitted to the people the Council should have shown the public what benefits they were deriving from that institution. He thought, however, that local industries were entitled to consideration in the way of exemption as well as new concerns. Mr. McWilliams advocated a judicious advertising of the town's many natural advantages, which should be brought to the notice of capitalists and manufacturers. He thought that a committee of the Council should enter into all disputes between capital and labor, and work together with them in the interests of the Town, which stands to gain considerable by the introduction of conciliatory measures between manufacturers and employees.

ALD. TURNER

In support of his by-law explained that last year his firm had paid out $8,000 in wages alone and had spent $10,000 in buildings, etc. The fact that when a little while ago so many concerns were losing their female help, he did not lose one single girl, is sufficient proof that J. J. Turner & Sons pay good wages. Under the provisions of the bylaw they will be enforced to employ at least 20 hands for ten months in the year. They export a large quantity of goods to London, England, which is in itself a good advertisement for the Town, and their present building is the largest of its kind in Canada. An evidence of the magnitude of their business is the fact that last week the manager of the Merchants Cotton Mills, of Montreal, visited them personally to take their order for 25,000 yards of duck, which will be used before next spring. Ald. Turner regretted that circumstances over which he had no control, such as the death of his mother in England, had enforced his absence from a few meetings of the Council. However he has always done his best in the interests of the Town, which he considered to be the most foremost in the province. He advocated the immediate completion of the Trent Valley Canal, which would materially influence freight rates, particularly on coal. He is now urging the establishment of a postal delivery, the want of which is now very much felt in Peterborough.

MR. O'CONNELL

Made a very acceptable speech, in the course of which he remarked that the time has come when Peterborough must either become a city of some importance or retrograde year by year. He thought our natural advantages should offset any inducements offered manufacturers by other towns. He did not think that the Council or the Board of Trade had in the past properly placed before industries seeking location Peterborough's splendid advantages in the way of railways, waterways, the T. V. C. and an unlimited supply of power. He did not believe in booming, and argued that it was a very unwise policy to double the population and at the same time double the burden of taxation; still he did not object to a judicious exemption when due regard was entertained for future taxation. He did not think municipal ownership of the waterworks had so far proved of much benefit to the people in the way of reduced water rates, and argued that all classes (the poor as well as the weathy) should have equal sanitary advantages. As to the workingmen, they have the same rights and privileges to organize as capitalists and and members of the various professions. He would encourage the Manufacturers' committee of the Town Council taking a hand in all industrial disputes.

ALD. BATTEN

Was well received. He thought the Town had during the past two years made as much progress under the government of workingmen as it did prior to that time under the administration of lawyers and doctors. We have done all in our power to secure new industries, but could not do so because other towns offered big cash inducements.

In reply to a voice from the audience, Ald. Batten explained that the new boiler in the Town building was built and put into position by union men. On being charged with not being a union man himself, he produced, amidst prolonged cheering, his Blacksmiths' Union card.

ALD. MORRISON.

Supported Ald. Best's bylaw to borrow $20,000 for street improvements, etc., and explained that should it be carried permanent work will be constructed on our main streets, and the $12,000 or $14,000 annually expended on streets and bridges will then be available for improving the outlying districts, which have hitherto been neglected. He is, he said, in favor of municipal ownership so far as it will not injure our credit in the money markets of the world, which to-day stands par excellence. We can now sell our debentures at 3 3-4 per cent. and almost at par. As to the fuel yard by-law, Ald. Morrison argued that its establishment would cost at least $50,000, the taxation on which would probably bring the price of fuel up to that sold by local dealers under normal conditions. He characterized the bonus system as a pernicious one, but that we must, in order to make progress, do as our neighbors do. One thing against Peterborough is that it is not on the water, front yet, and owing to this disadvantage we lost one big concern which located recently in Hamilton. He took exceptions to bonusing or giving exemption to big concerns with millions at their back. In conclusion he eulogized the Mayor-elect as a progressive man who would do honor to the confidence placed in him.

Rev. J. C. Davidson moved, seconded by Mr. Layfield, a vote of thanks to the Mayor and Council of the past year, which was unanimously carried.

Three cheers were then given for the King, after which the meeting dispersed.

AN OLD HYPOCRITE

There seems to be no doubt of the accuracy of the charge made by General Botha that Kruger and Leyds recently received $600,000 in gold from the Transvaal, making a total of over $8,000,000 of the public funds of the late republic that they now have in their possession. Even the New York Tribune is moved to remark on the subject:

Mr. Kruger has wept many tears for the losses and sufferings of his former countrymen. There is no doubt that there is much suffering among them, beyond all the relief which the British government is giving. Boer generals who fought on the veldt while Messrs. Kruger and Leyds were living in security and luxury in Europe are lecturing and writing books and soliciting contributions, all for the relief of their suffering countrymen. Between their conduct and that of the two custodians of the Transvaal gold there is a striking contrast.

TO WIPE OUT CHURCH DEBTS

The Methodists in the United States undertook to raise a twentieth century thank offering fund of $20,000,000 and on New Year's eve the fund was complete. About $19,000,000 has been raised and a millionaire has promised to complete the amount. The name of the generous donor was to have been announced at the watchnight service held by the Methodists of Springfield, Mass.

Eight million dollars will be expended in paying off the debts of all the Methodist churches in the United States and a million and-a-half will be devoted to the establishment of a fund to provide pensions for aged and infirm ministers. For the education of Methodist children $3,000,000 will be set apart and $5,000,000 will be expended on hospitals, of which the church has already twenty; all established within the past ten years.

In connection with the various divisions of the fund individual promises of large additional amounts have been received, contingent upon the raising of additional amounts. For instance, an addition of $50,000 is promised to the pension fund in case another $100,000 is raised, and the condition has nearly been fulfilled.

POSTAL ANOMALIES

Our attention has been more particularly called this week, says the Journal of Commerce, to a condition of things, confined probably to one or two of the larger cities, bearing upon the administration of the Post Office Department as affecting our internal revenue. We directed attention some time ago to the employment of departmental privileges for the purpose of private circulars from the Capital. The old "franking" system had had its day, but there were more ways than one by which the country could be made to carry some people's letters and parcels free. Much of the leakage going on in this way has doubtless been checked, but there still exists a remnant of it with which business men are not so likely to become acquainted. It is an open secret, that some of the postage stamps which have latterly taken the place of "franks" to members of Parliament and others find their way into private families throughout the country; not only these, but other trifling perquisites supposed to be used exclusively "On His Majesty's Service" can with a little effort be obtained for ordinary use. There can be but one term for such appropriations, but nearly everybody knows with how little scruple many otherwise honest visitors to Europe will evade the revenue dues, and they can hardly be expected to have less tender consciences in respect of other departments of the public service.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

An Oregon firm has closed a contract with Major H. P. Myton, Indian agent at Fort Duchesne, Utah, for five thousand Indian ponies running wild on the Uintah reservation. The Portland packers expect a big boom in their beef-canning trade as the result of the improved quality of horseflesh out of which they manufacture it. The greater portion of the beef manufactured from Indian ponies will be sent to Japan for the use of the Japanese army. The Indians are to get $2.50 each for the ponies, and the roundup is now on.

THE REFERENDUM

The Complete Returns Increase the Majority To 96,826

Complete returns from Fort William and Lake of the Woods show that the total vote cast in that constituency in favor of putting the Ontario Liquor Act into operation was 759, against 744, giving a majority in favor of the act of 15 instead of 19 against, as at first reported. This brings the total vote cast, irrespective of spoiled ballots, up to 303,128, of which 199,977 were in the affirmative, and 103,151 in the negative, giving a majority of 96,826. The respective percentages of 65.9 for and 34.1 against are not affected by the change in the figures. East Nipissing is now the only constituency from which the returns are incomplete.

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment; it has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mile on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunnison Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 15 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arbett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 100 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 60 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 6 ounces or $40 to $120 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore ranging from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $500 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at in one payment, or 20 per cent. down and the balance in four equal monthly payments, for necessary expenditures and improvements on a shipping mine.

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000

or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years........ $670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $30,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's shares common rose over $70 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

Mainly About People.

A man went with his wife to visit her physician. The doctor placed a thermometer in the woman's mouth. After two or three minutes, just as the physician was about to remove the instrument, the man, who was not used to such a prolonged spell of brilliant silence on the part of his life's partner, said: "Doctor, what will you take for that thing?"

In connection with the question of the extent of Dumas's indebtedness to his collaborators, the following anecdote is told: Dumas, it is said, was once reproached in conversation for some inaccuracy in one of his works. His answer was: "I never read the book. Let me see. Who wrote it for me? Ah! I remember. It was the little Auguste Maquet. I must go and box his ears."

An English temperance advocate was once arguing the case of public-house reform. Pressing the matter home, he thus addressed Lord Salisbury: "At least, my lord, you will admit that a great increase in the number of drinking-places in a given locality is an additional temptation to over-indulgence." "Not at all," retorted Salisbury; "if I visit in a home with forty bedrooms, I feel no greater inclination to sleep."

In his volume, "The Kiss and Its History," Dr. Christopher Nyrop of the University of Copenhagen, relates that in England in 1837, Thomas Saveland brought an action against Miss Caroline Newton, who had bitten a piece out of his nose for his having tried to kiss her by way of a joke. The defendant was acquitted, and the judge laid it down that "when a man kisses a woman against her will, she is fully entitled to bite his nose, if she so pleases." "And eat it up, if she has a fancy that way," added a jocular barrister half aloud.

To Professor Ramsay, at one of the schools of mines, came one day a commercial magnate, who wished his son to enter upon a course of the school's instruction. "But mind you," said he, "I don't want him to learn about strata, or dips, or faults, upheavals, or denudation of surfaces, and I don't want to fill his mind with fossils, or mineralogy, or stuff about crystals. What I want him to learn is how to find gold and silver and copper in paying quantities, sir—in paying quantities."

The other day a firm of lithographers received a circular announcing the death of the head of a well-known business house. In reply they wrote: "We regret to learn the loss sustained by your firm in the death of Mr. ——, and beg to express our heartfelt sympathy. We notice your circular is printed by Messrs. ——. We are confident that, had you asked us, we could have quoted you cheaper and better than any other firm in the market, and in the event of a future bereavement, we hope you will afford us an opportunity of making you an offer."

Commenting on the dubious Disraeliana perpetrated in Sir Edward Blount's "Memoirs," a correspondent of the London "Times" thus writes on the fallibility of this sort of reminiscence: "Much nonsense was talked about Disraeli in those days; men perhaps began to believe the stories that passed from mouth to mouth, and even to think they had themselves been present at scenes which never were. Lady Ashburton used to say that as a child she declared she remembered being present at her mother's wedding; and that, though she was whipped for making the statement, she never ceased to believe it."

Apropos of the difficulty of speaking foreign languages correctly, a story is told of a dainty French lady who recently visited our shores. She is sensitive to the point of nervousness, and realizing the liability to err in a foreign tongue, she was generally careful to make selection of each individual word. Wherefore she was but the more amusing when, one evening, feeling moved to remonstrate with a gentleman upon the chilliness of our northern May, she said: "Reely eet ees so cold here all se time sat I have sat all se day weeth my feet over se transom" (register).

A lady once gave Robert Browning some flowers, and when he asked for their common name, hesitated about telling. Finally, says the "Cornhill Magazine," on being urged, she shyly confessed that they were called "bloody noses." Browning was very fond of telling the story, and one day, after finishing it, he "dropped into poetry," to this effect:

I'll deck my love with posies,
I'll cover her with roses.
Should she protest,
I'll do my best
To give her bloody noses.

When Dion Boucicault was playing "The Vampire" at the Princess' Theater, London, the opening scene represented the highest regions of the Alps by moonlight, while a thunder-storm raged in the distance. One night, in the height of the season, a tremendous clap of thunder startled the audience, and interrupted Mr. Boucicault in the middle of a speech. Lowering his voice so that it could be heard only by the propertyman, he said: "Very well, Mr. Davids, you are making more mistakes. That clap of thunder came in the wrong place." Mr. Davids replied in stentorian tones, which could be plainly heard all over the auditorium: "No fault of mine, sir; it wasn't my thunder. Thunder's real out of doors; perhaps you can stop it there."

Worse Than Creeds.

"Did you hear of the split in the Church of the Extended Invocation?"

"No; I haven't heard. What could it be about? I thought the members of that church were the most united in the city."

"They have always borne that reputation, but there is trouble enough there now."

"What about?"

"The members decided to give their pastor an automobile so he could more easily make the round of his parish, and, after the money had been collected, the question of whether it was to be a steam, an electric or a gasolene vehicle came up, and you can easily imagine the rest."—"Automobile Magazine."

One Point of View.

From the Chicago "Post."

"Considering the work they do," commented the citizen, "the police are poorly paid."

"And yet," replied the old lush, "in considering the rate of pay we must also consider the expenses. Now, a policeman doesn't have to buy either cigars or drinks if he has the right kind of beat."

BIG FREEZE IN FLORIDA

Thousands of Fires Burning to Save the Orange Groves

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 30.—Thousands of fires are burning to-night throughout southern and eastern Florida in the orange groves to protect the trees and fruit yet unpicked from the threatened cold wave. Last night the thermometer was 24 in northern Florida and 30 at Tampa.

The Weather Bureau here issued warnings to-night to look out for colder temperature and this was carried by telegrams, cold-wave flags on locomotives, and by warning blasts from locomotives as they sped through the farming regions.

In some places the growers use large piles of pine wood, with damp wood mixed, producing a heavy smoke to cloud the grove in. In others, hundreds of little sheet-iron stoves are used, the fires being kept up all night.

COOKE SEPARATION SUIT

The Catholic Priest Loses His Case and Will Have to Divide Property

Ottawa, Dec. 31—Judge Rochon in Hull today gave judgment in favor of Mrs. Cooke, Buckingham, against her husband for separation. Cooke, who was at one time a Catholic priest, pleaded that his vows made a marriage null. The Judge held, however, that he should have come to the courts long ago and had his marriage declared null. Besides securing separation, Mrs. Cooke will receive her share of the property. Cooke, in pleading that his vows prevented legal marriage, tried to evade the division of his property.

DISTRICT NEWS

NORTH MONAGHAN.

—The municipal elections are now on in earnest, and out of the entire list of nine candidates, only two of the old council seek re-election. Indeed, Mr. May, who served so faithfully in the past, was with difficulty induced to remain in the field. It is the duty of the ratepayers to elect him with a good majority. Mr. Smith also deserves re-election. He has shown himself to be the right man in the right place. Familiar with the requirements of the municipality, and having a deep and abiding interest in the welfare of the township, no man is better qualified to sit in the council than Mr. Smith. The Times would like to see Mr. Smith and Mr. May head the poll.

Brunette and Blonde.

A ROMANCE.

"Uncle Guy and Aunt Ethel were both dead, and there was no one but Florry, and me a going back with them."

She ceased speaking, and there was a long silence. Mrs. L'Estrange had buried her face on the arm of the sofa, and her whole graceful form was trembling with emotion, but not a sound escaped her lips. In the silence Hilda could hear the sound of the gay dance-music in the hotel parlors, mellowed and sweetened by the distance, and outside on the graveled path the monotonous tramp of Cecil Courtenaye's feet as he walked up and down, waiting for her.

Mrs. L'Estrange looked up at last with an altered face. It was sad and melancholy still, but there was a look of peace upon it that it had not worn before.

"Hilda," she said, looking curiously at the girl, "have you never wished that you instead of Florence were the earl's granddaughter?"

Hilda flushed and hesitated, then she said, with sweet frankness:

"Yes, Mrs. L'Estrange, I have sometimes wished that I could put myself in Florence's place."

"You thought it would be a fine thing to have a beautiful home, fine dresses, and jewels?" said Mrs. L'Estrange, looking keenly at her.

Hilda flushed brightly under that searching glance.

"I declare to you, madame," she said, earnestly, "that I have never once thought of those things in connection with my envy of Florence. You will laugh at me, perhaps, but I will tell you the truth. I loved the beautiful face in the locket I had worn from childhood. I envied my cousin her lovely, unfortunate mother more than all the glories that will be hers as the earl's granddaughter."

"Hilda," said Mrs. L'Estrange, drawing the girl fondly into the clasp of her arm, "did you ever hear of a fairy godmother?"

"Oh, yes," said the girl, smiling. "They are the good fairies who grant even the most unreasonable wishes in the fairy stories."

Mrs. L'Estrange smiled gently.

"My little one," she said, softly, "I am going to leave here in a few hours, but you will see me and hear from me again. I want you to give me your address on a card now. And, Hilda, until I see you again, will you think of me kindly as of a fairy godmother?"

"I do not understand you," said Hilda, giving her a puzzled look while she scribbled her address on a card, and put it in the lady's hand.

"You do not? Well, never mind," said Mrs. L'Estrange, with a sigh and a smile. "I mean that I may bring you good tidings some day. Now good-night, my darling girl. Your friend may be impatient waiting so long."

She kissed and embraced Hilda, and accompanied her to the door, watching her as she ran down the steps, and a smile of pleasure curved her lips as she saw how eagerly Cecil Courtenaye joined her.

CHAPTER IX.

Hilda's Defiance.

Hilda had not walked ten paces from the cottage with Cecil Courtenaye beside her, when she was confronted by her father. He was walking toward her at a rapid gait, and as soon as he saw her he sprang forward and caught her almost roughly by the arm.

"Hilda, where have you been?" he exclaimed sharply.

Hilda looked up at him in surprise. He did not usually trouble himself about her movements. She shook off the grasp of his arm, and said, gently:—

"Don't papa, you hurt me! I have been to see Mrs. L'Estrange."

"What business did you have with that woman?" he inquired, roughly.

"She asked me to come," said Hilda, without a suspicion that her own interests demanded that she should keep that fact a secret.

"Oh! she did—did she! And what business did she have with you?" he inquired, with increasing agitation and anger. The fact was, Florence had told him of the incident of that evening, and he had become unaccountably excited over it—so much so that he had gone straight from the ball-room to seek his neglected daughter. Finding her absent, he had rightly conjectured that she had gone to the cottage of the mysterious lady whose curiosity had so affronted Florence. He immediately went to seek her, with what result we have seen.

"Good evening, Mr. Aylesford," said Cecil Courtenaye, with a significant cough, as a gentle reminder to the irate gentleman of the presence of a third party.

"Ah! good evening, Mr. Courtenaye," said the gentleman, turning with a start. "Pardon me for overlooking you, the fact is I was so vexed with my little girl here for running off so indiscreetly after a strange woman of whom she knows nothing, that I——"

"I did not suppose you would care, papa," interrupted Hilda, quickly. "You have never taken any account of my coming and going. Why should you do so now?"

Mr. Aylesford bit his lip at this spirited reminder.

"Tut, child," he said, in some confusion, "your remark would lead our kind friend here to suppose me a careless father. I must assure him in explanation that in the safety and seclusion of our mountain home no surveillance was necessary. In a public place like this it is quite different."

"Certainly," assented Mr. Courtenaye, as the speaker paused for a reply.

"Ah! by the way," said Mr. Aylesford, a sudden thought striking him, "were you, too, visiting Mrs. L'Estrange, sir?"

Courtenaye hesitated a moment. He saw that Mr. Aylesford required an explanation of his presence with his daughter.

"No, sir," he said, stiffly, after that momentary pause for thought. "I saw Miss Aylesford leaving the cottage alone, and I volunteered my escort, thinking it perhaps unsafe for her to go back alone."

"Quite right, sir, quite right, my own feelings exactly, I assure you," said Mr. Aylesford, quickly. "But now that she has her papa to take care of her she will not trespass further on your kindness."

Thus blandly dismissed, Mr. Courtenaye bowed coldly, and walked away, leaving the father and daughter to pursue their moonlight walk alone.

No further words passed between them until they had reached the hotel, and gone up to Hilda's room. Then Mr. Aylesford turned the key in the lock, and spoke abruptly to his daughter.

"Now, Hilda, you will inform me at once on what errand you were summoned to the cottage of that impertinent woman!"

Hilda stared at him in blank silence. She resented the tone of authority in which he spoke. Her proud spirit rose in rebellion.

"Mr. Aylesford," she said at length, "you will have to adopt a more conciliatory tone before I gratify your curiosity."

His face grew white, his knees trembled at her words.

"Mr. Aylesford," he gasped. "Hilda, what do you mean by addressing your own father thus!"

She looked him steadily in the eyes as he cowered before her, and her red lip curled scornfully.

"I mean," she answered, steadily, "that I will not address you as a father until you treat me like a daughter. You commanded me like a slave, but I will not cringe to you nor to any mortal living!"

He was angry enough to have struck her down at his feet, but a certain relief came into his face at her cool explanation. He hastened to say in apology:

"My dear, I was so vexed at finding that you had gone off alone to visit that strange woman, that I am not answerable for what I said in the heat of anger. You must forgive me, and tell me what she wanted of you. You are too young, and too innocent, my dear, to have secrets from your elders. Believe me, I know best what is for your good."

Hilda was somewhat mollified by his humble apology, but still answered, a little impatiently:

"I have not tried to have any secret from you, sir. The lady did not have any particular business with me. She had only taken a fancy to me because I reminded her of a person who is dead."

"Indeed! Did she tell you the person's name?" inquired Mr. Aylesford, with a searching glance.

"She did not," answered Hilda, calmly.

"What did she talk to you about?" he asked, eagerly.

"Of myself, and of Florence," said Hilda, giving him a curious look. "She asked me where we were born, how we had been reared, and similar questions."

"Impertinent!" muttered Mr. Aylesford. "Well, and how did you reply to those questions, my dear?"

"I told her all that I know," said Hilda, calmly.

"Which was not much," uttered the listener to himself.

"You are right, sir," answered the girl, overhearing the words. "It was but little I knew to tell. It never struck me how very little I knew about myself until Mrs. L'Estrange talked to me to-night. I could not even tell where I was born. You had told me I was born in the South, and that was all. I did not even know the name of the city."

"I wonder at your telling her what little you did know," said Mr. Aylesford, with a dark frown. "I should have thought that a girl of your high spirit would have resented such unwarrantable curiosity and impertinence from a mere stranger."

"That was the strangest part of it, papa," said the girl, earnestly and innocently. "She did not seem like a stranger to me, but rather like one I had known and loved for years. I felt so sorry for her, too. She has known great sorrow, I am sure!"

Her great dark eyes grew misty, and her face softened into tenderness as she spoke.

"Why did you think so?" he inquired, with a slight sneer.

"I thought so for several reasons," said Hilda, gravely. "The first was because her long, thick hair was quite white. She looked too young and beautiful for time to have changed its color, and I am sure that some great and sudden grief must have caused the change. She looked very sad, too; even her voice had a mournful tone in it. Whatever her sorrow has been, papa, it was a terrible and lasting one!"

"You are too young to be a proper judge," he said, sharply.

"Perhaps so," she answered, quietly, but he knew that she did not give credence to his assertion.

He paced up and down the floor impatiently for awhile, then turned back to his daughter.

"Hilda," he said, sharply, "I forbid your holding any further communication with that woman. If she sends for you do not go; if she accosts you anywhere, do not notice or reply to her. She is a mad woman. I will not have you mixed up with her in any way."

Hilda was at the window with her back turned to him. She did not turn around, did not in any way notice the imperious command.

"Hilda, do you hear me?" he inquired, after vainly waiting for an answer.

"Yes, I heard you," she replied, laconically.

"Will you do as I bid you?" he inquired.

Hilda whirled around from the window, and measured the impatient speaker with a cool, defiant eye.

"I am not prepared to give you an affirmative reply to-night, sir. I will consider your command, and let you know my decision in the morning."

The cool, defiant reply exasperated Mr. Aylesford almost beyond endurance. He sprang forward and clutched the speaker by her slight shoulder as if he would have shaken the life out of that slender frame. But at length she wrenched herself free from his ruffianly grasp, and stood beside a chair panting for breath.

"How dare you make such an impudent reply to your father's command?" he shouted at her stormily.

She stood silent, looking at him with flashing eyes, her slight form quivering with passionate indignation. At length she uttered a few words in a low, intense, concentrated voice:

"I do not believe you are my father!" was what she said.

CHAPTER X.

A Terrible Deed.

Mr. Aylesford stood as one petrified, as Hilda's words, spoken in the heat of passionate resentment, fell on his hearing. His face grew ashen white, his lips fell apart in a rigid line, his eyes glared at her stonily. He looked like a statue of terror.

The indignant girl, looking at him

AN INVASION OF CANADA

Pro-Boer Americans Had Decided to Come in Force

Monterey, Mexico, December 31 — General Samuel Pearson, the former Boer commander, who is here, says that plans have been made for an invasion of Canada with an army of pro-Boer Americans, when a stop was put to the proceedings by the death of the financial backer of the movement. says that had it not been for the death of Edward Vassmer, New York, the invasion would have been made during March or April. Vassmer had agreed to furnish all the money necessary to equip an army of at least three thousand men. He was a wealthy retired New Yorker, whose entire sympathy was with the Boers, according to General Pearson's statement.

An Illinois weekly paper has begun the publication of the entire Bible as a serial. It will take about fifty years to complete the publication.

The Chesley (Ont.) "Enterprise" says that a woman who was driving near the railway track at Edengrove, lost control of the horse, which made straight for the crossing. The animal's nose was just over the first rail when the train whizzed past, "taking the horse's head off as clean as a whistle." No other injury was done.

The manufacture of paper milk-bottles will soon be begun by the North Adams Paper Box Company. The process was invented by a Burlington, Vt., man, and the bottles will be made exclusively in North Adams, Mass. The bottles are water-proof and air-tight, and can be made so cheap that they can be thrown away after using once.

As a sequel to the tragic death of Baron George von Bleichroeder, the well-known banker, through an automobile accident the other day near Cologne, Emperor William has informed the burgomaster of Weisbaden that he considers the automobile a serious menace to public safety, and that he favors most stringent control of that method of locomotion. The Emperor is said to have added that men have no right to endanger human or animal life in the name of sport. The Kaiser owns several motors, but rarely uses them, although he has approved their adoption by the army.

The famous Humbert safe passed along the boulevards of Paris recently, and attracted considerable attention. It was removed from the Hotel Drouot on a dray drawn by three horses, adorned with flowers, ribbons and bells, and was conveyed to the residence of its purchaser. A large band of calico stretched over the vehicle bore the inscription, "This is the one-hundred-million-franc safe." The men in charge did not appear to be in a great hurry, and made frequent halts at taverns, while an admiring crowd surrounded the dray. Perhaps they had been instructed to make the best possible use of the opportunity offered for cheap advertisement.

D. G. Longworth of the Cairo "Sphinx" declares that the famous Egyptian Sphinx is rapidly decaying. This is said to be the result of the altering climate of Egypt, due to the irrigation of recent years. Heretofore, an hour's downfall of rain once a year was a novelty in Egypt. The natives regarded it as some dire message of reproach from the gods. The irrigation and the many trees about the Delta, however, have changed this. Fifteen to eighteen days' heavy rain falls now every year on the head of the Sphinx. The severe "khamseen" sandstorm follows and cuts into the soddened limestone of the ancient monument, whittling it away all over the surface.

Frank Reilly was the victim of a curious accident at Port Costa, Cal., recently. He was standing near a switch to a siding on which freight trains generally wait for the passenger trains to pass. He saw a young lady walking on the siding, and, believing her to be in danger, gesticulated vehemently to cause her to step from between the rails. She, in her turn, seeing the oncoming freight train, motioned back to him that he was in danger. As the train came nearer both became the more earnest in their shouting and gesticulating, while neither thought of stepping off the tracks. Reilly proved to be in the wrong. The freight, instead of taking the siding, went straight through. While he was still trying to cause the young lady to get out of the way of supposed danger, the train struck him from behind, hurling him from the track and breaking his right arm in two places, badly cutting his head and bruising his side. He will recover.

Theory of an Old Angler.

Nine out of ten fishermen believe that when trout will not bite they are already gorged with food; but this is not the case. Even during the off days of the trout, one will be caught now and then, but always on bait, and if the angler could see the fish when it takes the bait he would notice that it does it in a very perfunctory manner. The trout does not move out of its way in doing it, but mechanically takes the bait in much after the fashion of the sucker.

Then, if the trout fisherman who makes a catch at such a time will open the trout and examine its stomach he will be surprised to find that instead of the fish being gorged with food, and hence indifferent to more, its stomach has not a trace of food in it.

This will be found to be the case invariably, and disposes of the belief that when trout refuse to bite it is because they are already full of food. It would naturally be supposed that the best time to catch trout would be when they are hungry, but it will be found that when they are rising best to the fly, or are taking bait with the most avidity, there is plenty of food in their stomachs, frequently so much, in fact, that it would seem impossible that any more could be taken in.

Why this should be no one can tell. It is a fact, nevertheless, which any fisherman may easily verify by investigation.

The Bishop and the Drummer.

The Right Rev. Thomas Underwood Dudley of Kentucky, one of the eminent bishops in the Episcopal Church, enjoys a good story as well as if he did not wear the cloth. He tells this one on himself:

A number of years ago he was going by train to one of the smaller towns of his diocese to hold services. He was enjoying a cigar in the smoker, and upon the seat facing him was a very large valise, containing his clerical vestments. A drummer sitting back of him, noticing his jaunty traveling cap, leaned forward and enquired:

"Traveling man, eh?"

"Yes," answered the bishop.

"What house d'ye represent?"

"The biggest house in the world."

"Shillito's?" (the largest house in Cincinnati) asked the drummer.

"Bigger than that."

"Marshall Field?"

"Bigger than that."

"A. T. Stewart's?"

"Bigger yet."

"Well, what house is it? Those are the best I know."

"I represent, sir," said the bishop, impressively, "the house of God."

The salesman gave a gasp, then glancing at the mammoth valise, exclaimed:

"Well, all I've got to say is, you carry a pretty full line of samples."

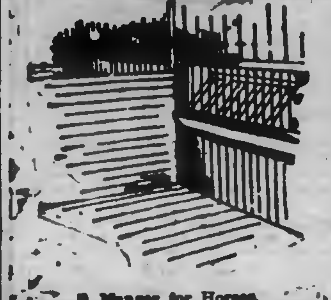
MANGER FOR HORSES.

A Simple Device Meets Many Advantages.

One thing that hinders many farmers from making a good profit on their farms is keeping scrub stock instead of good breeds. No one who has ever tried feeding a Poland China or Berkshire hog in the same pen with a scrub would need anything else to convince him of this. A good thoroughbred will simply return twice the increase for the same amount of feed that the scrub will. This is a matter of far greater importance than most people think. There is no money in scrub stock, and the sooner it is universally known the better it will be for the country. We feel and realize, says John A. Wallace, in the Farmer's Home Journal, the fact that Kentucky loses thousands of dollars each year by feeding inferior hogs. There is quite a large number of hogs now being fed in Kentucky which would not pay for half the care and feed given them.

Just why this is so is hard to explain, when we know that there is a good profit in good hogs and a good sow and boar can be bought so cheap and soon stock any farm with good hogs. A good brood sow can be bought for $15 or $20 and upon an average will bring from six to eight pigs. A good boar pig can be had for $8 or $10 and from 25 to 30 per cent of the feed now consumed can be saved thereby and this alone would buy good hogs by the dozen. Not only this but if you do not want to put an advertisement in a paper and breed for breeding purposes you could sell all your surplus pigs to neighbors at from six to eight cents per pound. We have tried several experiments with good Poland and China pigs and good scrub pigs finding from $2.50 to $4 difference per head in a year. Now, this would make a difference of from $30 to $40 in a scrub sow and a good sow in a year, when we remember that a sow will bring two litters a year.



A Manger for Horses.

A number of the breeds of hogs are now being bred for early maturity, and need not be kept till one year old to mature, but can be kept to six or eight months old and be turned off to top the market the sweetest and best bacon, and the pigs in the fall turned off to neighbors at from $3 to $5 per head at four to six weeks old, or fed for spring market, as may be desired, not forgetting that extra attention is what makes the extra profit, especially during the winter months. Now, young man, are you in the old rut, breeding that old roach-back scrub? If so pull out this fall while you yet have time to make preparations for next year by buying a bred sow or sows, as needs be, and a good boar to breed to next summer for a fall litter, and don't forget to get a good pedigree with what you buy, which will induce your neighbors to buy from you at good, if not fancy prices.—Rural World.

A Sartorial Superstition.

The superstition that London tailors and London men combine to produce the best-dressed men in the world dies hard. Yet this very season, of all seasons, says a writer in "Town Topics," should see its final extinction. "If ever the London average in masculine apparel might be expected to be high it is this summer," remarks the critic. "Yet such abominably turned-out men would be a conspicuous vice in any second-rate town in America. The number of shocking hats, distressing trousers and shabby ties is equaled only by the abominable boots to be seen everywhere in London. When the average Londoner ties his four-in-hand he likes to leave a gaping half-inch or so between the knot and the shirt-stud; the result is as if he had dressed for an alarm of fire. Speaking of footwear, it is to be noted, as evidence of the sad state of English concern for the niceties, that one may see in the most exclusive hotels in London men who wander about the lounges wearing spats after six o'clock in the afternoon. Only in sporting togs is the Englishman still something of a model for the world. At Hurlingham in the polo matches, on the roads to Windsor and Epsom, and in the Row, one still sees men who are in every way well-groomed." The writer says his contention is proven by the recent London exhibition at the National Academy, where John Sargent's two notable portraits of Alfred Wertheimer and Lord Ribblesdale show two of a very small handful of well-dressed men in England. "Both are in attire smacking of outdoor life. The sporting peer is in full riding togs, which hang on his gaunt frame in a slovenly, careless way that denotes his scorn of all but comfort; riding-breeches with more wrinkles than fit; a top-coat that falls limply, and a black stock tied away under the right ear. The top-hat, the riding-boots and the crop, on the other hand, are stiff and uncompromising, and mate well with the thin face, the keen eyes, and the strong nose. Opposed to this scene of aristocratic slovenliness is the immaculate young Jew, Alfred Wertheimer. He wears an ordinary sack suit, black, perfect in fit, and with a buff waistcoat and a riding stock. Not a wrinkle anywhere. The clothes are really good. The two lower buttons of Lord Ribblesdale's waistcoat are recklessly open, but about Wertheimer there is not so much as a pin-point wrong. Mr. Wertheimer and Mr. Sargent together have produced at least one well-dressed man in London this season."

Modern Proverbs.

The good may die young, but the bad nearly always outlive their usefulness.

Don't cast your bread on the waters when you might just as well hand it to some hungry one.

Everyone is supposed to know his own business, but it is often hard to convince his friends that he does.

Many a man looks upon marriage as an institution that enables him to put his property in his wife's name.

BUY ! WHY ?

BECAUSE

THE SOUR LAKE OIL CO.

Has placed four-fifths of its stock in the treasury for development work ; and because

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont ;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada ; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time ;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop ; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality ;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE ; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of [illegible] and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say :

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz, and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $50 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $25 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

STOCK MARKETS

The Old Year

New York, Jan. 2nd—The old year just finished has been one of success for the American people. The promise for the new year just commenced indicates greater strides than ever. The Bradstreets report adequately sums up the progress of the country ; the gist of their article is as follows : 1902 was the best year this country has ever experienced. This statement while truthful does not fully suggest the enormous strides made by the United States in the year just closed. Practically every branch of ordinary trade and manufacture showed an increase above the best of previous years, and yet the enlarged output was insufficient to satisfy the growing, it might be termed insatiable, demand for all kinds of materials. The usual foreign outlet for our products was perforce neglected by American producers, who confined their efforts to supplying insistent domestic demand, while the foreign production was called upon to reinforce domestic output, with the result that new currents and channels were created in our foreign trade. The railroads of the country in their efforts to handle business suffered as never before from congestion and complaint of interference with production and distribution of the products of the farm, the mine, the shop and the loom. Industrial unrest as naturally marked as it always is in times either of prosperity or depression, and serious disorganization of some of the country's basic industries resulted for a time. In many cases resorts to extremes were avoided by liberal recognition by employers of changes in the standard of living, and it is safe to say that two men obtained higher wages or had their working time reduced without strikes for every one who actually quit work. Speculation felt the checks put upon it by conservatism, by short crops, in the preceding year, and last, but not least, by high money. Despite the fact that stock operations were but about half of the record amount for 1901, Bank Clearings, usually reliable guides of business, showed aggregates equal to the hitherto unheard of totals of 1901. All this was accomplished with a minimum of friction as reflected in the form of business embarrassments.

Summary — Distinctive and pronounced strength characterized the market today, while the volume of business was comparatively heavy. Outside market interest increased perceptibly. Copper advanced over 2 points, selling up to 66. Steel common crossed 37. T.C.I. jumped from 60 to 68. The balance of the industrial list was exceeding firm. Among the railways, St. Paul made a new high figure for present rise, touching 79 3-4. It is going much higher. Mo. Pacific most regained its div. Reading and the other coalers were strong. These shares are all good to buy at the moment. Manhattan sold above 150. A bull pool in these shares promises to advance them sharply. The Pacifics were in sharp demand, also the entire market looks well. A natural sliding of prices in the afternoon took place, due to profit taking. We remain confidently bullish upon the market and recommend liberal buying at present. Money closed six per cent. Sales 850,000.

For Alderman

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—As I have once more been nominated for the position of Alderman for the Town, I take this opportunity of stating that I am in the field again as a candidate for 1903. My aim in the past has been to lean towards the most careful economy in the management of our municipal affairs. FOR ALDERMAN

To The Electors of the Town of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having been nominated as a candidate for alderman for the council of this flourishing town for 1903, I take this opportunity of calling the attention of the ratepayers that I am in the field. As I shall not make a personal canvass of the town, I trust that any services which may have been rendered by me during the last year will warrant your vote and influence. My interests in the town personally are by no means small, and in consequence it will be my best effort to advance every measure that will lead to the rapid progress of our town.

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having been repeatedly urged to stand for Councillor for the Village for 1903, I have accepted the nomination tendered me on Monday last.

I therefore respectfully solicit your votes and support. You may rest assured that, if elected, I shall do all in my power to secure the very best service to the municipality at as little cost as is consistent with good work.

Among other things, I will favour the construction of granolithic walks on the principal streets of the Village, payment to be extended over a term of years, on the basis of a frontage tax.

Your Obedient Servant,

ASHBURNHAM REEVESHIP.

To the Electors:

In accepting the nomination for the office of Reeve, so generously tendered me by my fellow-ratepayers, I would say that I am strongly opposed to a personal canvass, and take this means of informing the electors that I do not propose to solicit their votes.

If elected I shall endeavor to perform the duties pertaining to the office in a business-like manner, and thus justify the confidence which the ratepayers repose in me.

In conclusion, I desire to wish every ratepayer in the village, regardless of whether he votes for me or not, a happy and prosperous New Year.

A Sleighing Party Have an Upset and a Lady Has Broken Arm

On New Year's night a load of young people left town to attend a party at Warsaw, but when they got within a few miles of that place the sleigh overturned, dumping them all into the ditch and injuring a number of them. One young lady had the misfortune of having her arm broken near the shoulder. When the young people got back to town Dr. Morgan's services were required to rectify matters.

BEGINNING OF 1903

Magnificent Weather Given Peterborough to Commence the Year With

The sun did not injure the anticipated hopes of all those who contemplated enjoying sleigh riding on New Year's Day. The roads were good and skaters exercised themselves on Little Lake with great zest, which we hope will be repeated frequently at the rink, when it is in shape.

If there had been more seats in the opera house they would have been filled at the concert of the 57th, as the performance was of the usual excellence.

NECROLOGY

An Old Resident of Peterborough Passes Away

The New Year, while conferring temporal blessings on a great many, has given a spiritual and just reward to Mr. Thos. Rawlings, by translating him to the realms above.

His well known personality was deprived of his spiritual part at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. H. C. Bacon on Westcott street. He had passed the allotted three score and ten by over twelve years, and was a man remarkable for his intelligence and morality. While he has no better half to mourn for him (she having predeceased him by 40 years), everybody regrets his departure, mostly his immediate relatives: Mrs. H. C. Bacon and Geo. Rawlings, of town, and Elizabeth Rawlings, Buffalo.

The "Times" hereby tenders its heartfelt sympathy for the bereaved and sincerely hopes and wishes that the knowledge of his having gone to his just reward will assuage the natural grief of his departure.

Y. M. C. A.

Local and Out of Town Friends Visit the Building

The attraction was in the evening, when the exercises were viewed and applauded by an admiring, enthusiastic and appreciative throng. A wand drill by the "Intermediates" was gone through with precision and grace, followed by a basketball match between the "Beavers" and a selected intermediate team—score 4 to 2 in favor of the latter. Gymnastics on apparatus under the leadership of Messrs. G. Miller, A. Hodgson and A. Gillespie elicited warm applause.

The physical director, Mr. Ayers, was presented with a handsome bible accompanied by an address, read by Mr. Fitzgerald, appreciative of his faithful services, which address astonished Mr. Ayers so, that he made a brilliant acknowledgment of the honor done him.

But the long waited for event was the match between the Toronto West End Y.M.C.A. boy's Club, champions of Canada, and the Peterborough Brownies.

When the score was 7—6 for Peterborough an intermission was taken with acid juice, in the shape of orange and lemon drinks, after which the game went on, with varying success, until time was called and the game stood 16—12, making the Peterborough Brownies winners of the game and junior champions of Canada.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—Wanted, a second hand refrigerator. R. J. Munro, Munroe House. 3d

—Lakefield News: Mr. A. Kennedy, of Peterborough, has purchased the stock and business formerly carried on by Mr. O. Young, and will conduct the same in the future at the old stand. Mr. Kennedy will keep a carefully selected and up-to-date stock of groceries and provisions, and all orders will receive prompt attention.

—Hostler wanted at the Munroe House. 3d.

—Lindsay Post: On Christmas eve Ven. Archdeacon Casey, pastor of St. Mary's, received a visit from Santa Claus or some other kind fairy, who left behind a very gratifying momento of the congregation's good will in the shape of a handsome easy chair of large proportions, magnificently upholstered in green velvours. Attached was a card expressing the hope that the popular pastor would find in its ease-inviting recesses the comfortable relaxation so grateful at the close of a busy day.

—Lindsay Watchman-Warder: The work of the Victoria County Council for this year must be satisfactory. A surplus of $1500 is reported and the rate was 1 3-4 mills instead of 2 as in 1901.

—Lakefield News: On Friday evening of last week three ladies met with an exciting experience while driving home from Peterborough. In passing a rig near Walton's hill, the cutter upset and threw them out, the horse running away. Fortunately two rigs driving to Lakefield came along and picked them up, and conveyed them to the village. The horse and rig were found standing on the road a short distance from the village. The ladies escaped with nothing more than a severe shaking up.

Mr. J. C. Brown, No. 162 Smith street, loses, and Mr. E. A. Duncan, of Cobourg, wins, a charming young lady. Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by the cousin of Miss Brown, Miss Maud Clark, was preceded by the rendering of Handel's "Largo" by Miss Ethel Best.

SENATOR ARMAND DEAD

Has Been a Member of Red Chamber Since Its Inception

Montreal, Quebec, Jan. 2—Hon. T. E. Armand, the representative of the division of Repentigny, in the Dominion Senate, died in the city last night. Senator Armand was one of the few remaining members of the Senate who saw power applied to that body by royal proclamation on its organization in 1867. He had previously been a member of the legislative council of Canada. He was born at Riviere Des Prairies, Que., in 1820. He was a Conservative in politics. This leaves six vacancies in the Senate.

SOCIETY WOMEN

As Well as the Housewife and Professional Women Endorse Pe-ru-na as a Specific for Winter Diseases.

MISS BLANCHE MYERS.

A SOCIETY LADY'S LETTER.

Miss Blanche Myers, 3120 Penn street, Kansas City, Mo., a prominent young society woman of that place, has the following to say of Peruna:

"During each of the past four seasons I have caught a severe cold, when suddenly chilled after an evening party, and catarrh for several weeks would be the result. One bottle of Peruna cured me, and I shall not dread colds any more as I did."—BLANCHE MYERS.

HOME TREATMENT FREE.

Catarrh Cures by Thousands Under Dr. Hartman's Free Treatment.

Catarrh of the nose and head produces discharge from the nose, sneezing, and pain in the eyes and forehead, weak, and sometimes watery eyes, and occasional loss of memory.

Unless something is done to prevent the catarrh will follow the mucous membrane into the lungs where it will be followed by cough, night sweats, rapid loss of flesh, and the other dread symptoms of consumption.

To all such people Dr. Hartman's treatment comes as a great boon. It is only necessary to send name and address to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O., and complete directions for the first month's treatment will be sent free.

Not only is it more successful in curing catarrh than the treatment of catarrh specialists, but it is in the reach of every person in this land.

A medicine which is the principal part of Dr. Hartman's treatment, known as Peruna, can be bought at any drug store, and is a remedy without equal for catarrh in all forms, coughs, colds, bronchitis, consumption, and all climatic diseases of winter. Each bottle is accompanied with complete directions for use.

Address The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, for a copy of their latest catarrh book, instructively illustrated, and contains 64 pages of the latest information on catarrhal diseases. Sent free to any address.

A Housewife Who Suffered 25 Years.

Mrs. Alla Schwandt, Sanborn, Minn., writes:

"I have been troubled with catarrh for twenty-five years. Could not sleep day or night. After having used Peruna I can sleep and nothing bothers me now."—Mrs. Alla Schwandt.

Mrs. Jennie Cable, Spokane, Wash., writes:

"After suffering for twenty-one years with neuralgia, caused by catarrh of head, I tried all doctors and all kinds of medicine, receiving no benefit. I became discouraged and worn out at last. My mother wrote me to take Dr. Hartman's medicine, so I did, but my case was a chronic one, and I was also in the change of life. Through the use of Peruna and Manalin I am now entirely well.

"When I began taking your medicine I only weighed 61 pounds; now I weigh 118. I have not taken a drop of medicine for seven months, and would advise all sufferers to consult Dr. Hartman. The neuralgia affected my head and eyes, and for the last year seemed to be in my breast and between my shoulder blades."—Mrs. Jennie Cable.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

A BOER'S OPINION ON THE LATE WAR

What the Assistant Commandant General Thinks of the British Army

INTERESTING FACTS KNOWN FOR THE FIRST TIME

Viljoen Writes a Book Containing Some Very Humorous References—Infantry Did Hardest Work

London, Jan. 6—Graphic to the last degree are the pictures presented by the first of the Boer books on the war, "My Recollections of the Anglo-Boer War," by Assistant-General B. J. Viljoen, written in Dutch, just published Amsterdam. From the time when he began warlike preparations, on Sept. 28, 1899, to his capture by our troops in January of this year, the dashing leader had as hot a time as anyone who fought in the war, says a writer in the London Express.

The first cannon he heard was at Elandslaagte, and "no sweet music" he found it. After many hairbreadth escapes he managed to get away from the scene of the Boer defeat, and joined the Boer forces in front of Ladysmith, where he got the coldest of welcomes from General Joubert.

Of the latter Mr. Viljoen had a very mean opinion. His irresolution cost the Boers many a victory, and of his "incredible" superstition the writer relates that on one expedition when two burghers were struck by lightning, Joubert saw "the finger of God" in it, and immediately ordered a full retreat.

Ladysmith, in Viljoen's opinion, would undoubtedly have fallen to Joubert if he had had sense to attack on October 30, 1899, when General White had lost more than one thousand six hundred men, killed, wounded and captured. Not only was no attack made, but the railway to Maritzburg was not blown up for several days, "giving the enemy the chance of bringing into Ladysmith the naval guns, which later caused so much trouble and loss."

Great difficulty was experienced by the author in getting his commando together after the defeat at Elandslaagte.

"I soon saw that among the burghers the inclination to go on fighting was not of the strongest. I therefore asked those of the burghers who had not the courage to return to the fighting line to STAND ON ONE SIDE.

Some thirty fell out of the ranks. I gave each of them a pass good for the journey by rail to Johannesburg which pass read as follows—

"Pass ——— to Johannesburg, on account of cowardice, free at the expense of the government."

Two of our "heroes" get but slight credit at the hands of this Boer critic. They are General Baden-Powell and Mr. Winston Churchill. Of the former he says :— "General Snyman . . . . was the real saviour of Mafeking, which had a garrison of a thousand men, whom he, with 2,000 men, had not the courage to attack. The English wrongly gave the credit for saving the town to General Baden-Powell."

He speaks of the easy escape of Winston Churchill and Captain Haldane from a pack of sleeping guards, "about which they (the escaped prisoners) have, entirely without reason, boasted such a lot. To this day I cannot see what there was heroic in this escape."

It is a curious picture that he gives us of life and discipline among the Boer forces. There was too much praying among the Boers for his taste, and too little centralization. At the Tugela River, for instance, "I received sometimes in ten minutes four different orders from four different generals.

Of the use of the sjambok in the field we have heard before now, but never so definitely as in the following passage.

"To quench an open outbreak of mutiny I was obliged to have a burgher stripped of his upper garments and cause him to be given fifteen strokes with the sjambok."

The English phrase most often heard in the war, it appears, was "Hands up!" and on this Viljoen has

A mounted Kaffir attendant of one of the Boer commandants was hard pressed by an English lancer, and called to him "Hands up!" The Kaffir had so often heard the words spoken of that he thought they were about the only words in the English language. He took them for a kind of general phrase, implying greeting and conciliation.

When the lancer, in turn, called out "Hands up!" he therefore said again, "Hands up, baas!" and was astonished to get a lance thrust through the arm. He saw there was some mistake, and bolted, but in the midst of his precipitate flight kept shouting, "Hands up! hands up!" in the hope of softening the heart of his pursuer, from whom he eventually made good his escape.

The capture of the naval gun christened "Lady Roberts" by Viljoen led to an exchange of pleasantries between the latter and General Smith-Dorrien.

"I was compelled," Viljoen wrote, "to remove 'Lady Roberts' from Helvetia . . . . I can assure you that in her fresh surroundings and new company, she was very happy and very contented with her lot."

To which General Smith-Dorrien replied as follows—"As the lady you refer to is not accustomed to sleep in the open air, I would recommend you to try flannel next to the skin."

Most interesting of all is the author when he criticises our officers and men. He gives more than one amusing instance of what he calls "the ordinary hee-haw style of speaking" of our officers. After Viljoen had been captured

"The colonel twisted his mustache, which had got very much disarranged, leaned back in his chair, puffed the smoke from his cigar into the air, and said without looking at me, "Well, ah, you are banished, don't yer know, ah, are being sent to, ah, hum, St. Helena, or as they call it, the oh, ha, Rock. 'Tis a nice ship you go in, called the ah, let me see, oh yes, the ah 'Britannia.' Now you may proceed to the station, get your kit, and in the meantime sign this parole, and report yourself at 8 p.m. at the Docks." I muttered in Dutch, Lord preserve us from the Evil One."

THE BRITISH OFFICER

he declares, is generally one of two extremes —either a gentleman or a cad. The mistakes of officers during the war need not necessarily be ascribed to stupidity, cowardice or indiscretion. Luck, he thinks, had a great deal to do with success or failure, and he cites General Gatacre as an instance of a man who had more than his share of ill-luck.

Of the self-sacrifice and devotion to duty of our Tommy, Viljoen speaks highly. But if Tommy comes across anything outside ordinary routine he is a most helpless being. But "in his faithfulness and patriotism lies the secret of the success of the British army,—a truth which I do not think can be gainsaid." And of the Tommies that he met, the writer found the Irish and the Scotch "far better than the others."

"The infantry did the heaviest and hardest work of the war." Cavalry, he prophesies, will in future wars, be a sort of white elephant. Infantry, mounted infantry and artillery are the forces of the future.

The author traverses Sir Conan Doyle's allegations of treachery against the Boers, and concludes—

"Shall the errors of one side weigh heavier than those of the other? Neither Boer nor Briton is in a position to judge impartially of the sins of both sides. Let us try to see each other's virtues instead."

RATEPAYERS of ASHBURNHAM

Be True to Your Own Interests and Vote for Stevens for Reeve

THE ENERGETIC CANDIDATES WHO SHOULD BE ELECTED TO SUPPORT HIM IN THE COUNCIL

The ratepayers of Ashburnham have to-day an opportunity of delivering themselves from the rule of the clique that has so long had control of the civic treasury, and who have in various ways, contributed to the present unenviable position of the municipality. It is time for a change, and the call for it is deep, loud and long. It has been slow in coming, but has made itself heard throughout the width and breadth of the village in no unmistakable way. It is an old and likewise a true axiom that the "Gods grind slowly but grind exceedingly small," and this applies with particular force to the members of the clique who are now before the ratepayers for election. The Council of the past have many sins to answer for, a few of which have been referred to at the nomination. Mr. J. M. Smith, the Reeve, is not here to speak for himself, but the "boss" of of the Council is, and to Mr. Adams, who is seeking the position of Reeve, the people look to for an answer to the following questions :

(1.) Will Mr. Adams and the clique tell us why they are so anxious for election?

(2.) Was there anything peular about the letting of the contract for water mains and the sewer pipes?

(3.) Why was it proposed to move the polling booth from the North Ward to the South?

(4.) Was it not to "get even" with a number of North Warders who have long been opposed to the methods of the clique?

(5.) Why is Messrs. Adams, Agnew, Faint, Gibbs and Scott running on one ticket?

(6.) How about the village constable? Why is it that so many complaints are heard regarding the apathy with which he performs his duties? Why does not the Council, which is his master, compel him to do his work?

(7.) Why is it that the water mains have been laid to Mr. Adams' residence and other more important thoroughfares neglected?

(8.) Why did the Council compel Mr. King to vacate his store in the market building, in order to give it to another? Everybody knows the facts concerning this most disgraceful piece of favoritism.

(10.) Is it not a fact that a municipality, which never paid a bonus to a railroad or industry, and had all the advantages of a city in the way of gas, electric light, water, fire protection, etc., should be the lowest taxed municipality in Canada, instead of being one of the highest?

The Above are a few of the many questions which the ratepayers would like to have answered. It shows clearly that a new and progressive council is the one urgently needed—men who will give the people the worth of their money. Therefore the ratepayers are asked to vote for Mr. George Stevens, Reeve, and Messrs. McCarthy, Agnew, Gibbs and Hourigan, as Councillors.

"IT IS TIME FOR A CHANGE."

ASHBURNHAM SIDEWALKS

The Difference Between Permanent and Plank

To the Editor of The Times :

Sir,—Please allow me space in the columns of your paper to place before the ratepayers of the village a question concerning the cost and construction of sidewalks, which articles some of our officials and ratepayers refused to hear on the day of nomination.

I must say the responsibility for the existing condition of our walks has been very properly placed. The property owners are to the greatest extent responsible for the bad condition of our sidewalks. The fact is that property owners of this village do not, as compared with other places contribute sufficiently to the revenue to keep the several municipal services up to the standard of a thriving village, as the one we have the pleasure of living in.

The fact is that in nearly all the large cities, the cost of sidewalks, whether plank, or other material is paid to a great extent by the property owners, while in this place the expense of laying plank walks is borne altogether by the corporation, the cost being taken from current revenue.

The following is a table showing the approximate cost in Toronto of concrete and plank walks varying in width from four to eight feet :—

	Width in feet.	Frontage per foot.	No. of Ann'l Payments.	Frontage Cost per ft. per Annum.
Concrete, light	...8	$1.20	10	16.7
" "	...6	1.00	10	12.2
" "	...5	.85	10	10.4
" "	4	.67	10	9.2
Plank	...8	.33	8	12.7
"	...6	.29	8	14.
"	...5	.25	8	12.3
"	...4	.26	8	9.3

After carefully estimating the cost of plank walks at the present prices of material, I find that the plank walks cost six cents per square foot, while concrete can be laid down at eleven cents per square foot.

As one is a permanent walk, the other has to be replaced every eight or ten years, judge for yourselves which is the cheapest.

In the annual report of the City Engineer of Toronto, he says: "To compare the lifetime of concrete with that of plank sidewalks, the former is much cheaper. As I have carefully inquired from competent workmen, concerning the cost of concrete walks, I find that Class B, can be laid down for eleven cents per square feet. I trust that within two or three years the construction of plank walks will be entirely discontinued."

While it appears to be generally agreed, even in this village, that plank must give way to some material of a more permanent nature, and that before many years the antiquated plank sidewalks will be entirely done away with.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space allowed me to place this article before the ratepayers of the village, which article some did not want to hear from the platform on the day of nomination.

Yours truly,
A. McCARTY.

MUNICIPAL MATTERS DISCUSSED

The $10 000 By-Law for Permanent Improvements—Why I Would Vote Against It

To the Editor of The Times:

BRIDGING THE CREEK.

Sir.—This is one of the expenditures contemplated. Too much money has already been spent in this way without giving the whole of the creek within the limits of the town that serious consideration which it should have. The creek, as it now exists for a considerable portion of the summer, is not much better than an elongated cesspool. Closets are in existence over it, pig pens have been built over it, and foul drains have been allowed to discharge into it, and it may be considered anything but a desirable thing to have in the centre of our town in its present form and condition. If this stream cannot be switched off to a more desirable location, then it might be reduced to one half its present width, made very much deeper, and walled up on either side. This would make the bridges of much less span and put the creek in a sanitary and desirable condition, and it need not take up more than one half the space that it now does. If the creek was deep and narrow we would not be troubled with the annual spring blockades of ice, and the land reclaimed would be of considerable value to the property owners along its course. Bridges that have been built over the creek have broad shallow water-ways, and would not meet the requirements if the creek were made narrow and deep, which I submit would be the better form.

PERMANENT PAVEMENTS ON ROADWAYS.

This is a matter that should not be done until such time as the wire and pole nuisance has been dealt with, and the wires placed under the ground where they should be. In the City of Rochester where pavements were being laid, the wires were being placed in glazed conduits made of same material as sewer pipe. There were several ducts square in section along side of one another, through which the different wires were run. The ducts were about 18 inches below the surface of the street. Another matter that should be dealt with before the streets are paved would be the street railway. The question should be settled whether we are to have a street railway or not, and if we are, then provision should be made for it, and the ownership of it settled before any permanent road beds are made.

Drains for surface water—Drains and sewers are very necessary nuisances, but the less you have of them the better, so long as they meet the requirements of the circumstances, and it is certainly not desirable to have a network of unnecessary drains in the centre of the town. I am informed that the present outlet, though badly located, and of insufficient depth, is also reduced to about one half of its capacity by the steel pipe which crosses the creek at George street, which causes the water to back up into the Ackerman and Piano Company's cellars, and other cellars on George street. The outlet, for all the sewers north of the creek and flowing in this course is only equal to the capacity of this steel pipe, hence the trouble combined with the lack of depth, the sewers on either side of this pipe are equal to double the capacity of the same. If this outlet was made equal to the capacity of the sewers, then the suggested surface drainage would not be required, and the streets would be better without them. The more water that runs through the sewers the better. It is not when large quantities of water is running through that the settlement of solids takes place, but when the quantity is not sufficient to carry away the solids. What is required more than this surface drainage is an outlet sewer more to the west and in the centre of the town (where the first one would have been placed had it not have been for Aldermanic influence) and at a greater depth so that the sewers could have drained the low portions in the western portion of this town. As it is now a man can stand in some of the man holes and his coat tails will come above the ground in a location in which the ground is full of water, and the only way one can have a cellar is by building up in the air and filling in his lot at great expense.

"Ratepayer" in his communication of Dec. 29th, gives several reasons why these by-laws should be voted against which are worthy of consideration, particularly the first one. That from the manner a great deal of the improvements have been made it does not inspire confidence. The putting of good material on top of a bed of mud in places where the streets were already too high relatively to the pavements, namely, on Hunter street, just west of George, and on George, between Hunter and Simcoe, and the placing of dust on the surface, which blows all over when dry, and is mud when made wet.

Pavements have been laid and no attempt has been made to grade the streets to them, but material has been put on making the pavements lower relatively than they were when laid.

Lack of time prevents further consideration.

Yours truly,
ANOTHER RATEPAYER.

WILL NOT LET THE MINERS GO TO THEIR WORK.

Mitchell Declares That the Men Are Eager for Employment and Resents the Charge of Ingratitude to the Public

Detroit, Jan. 3—The Tribune today publishes a letter from John Mitchell president of the United Mine Workers of America, in which Mitchell declares that the miners are unjustly charged with ingratitude toward the American people, in connection with the miners reported refusal to work on holidays. In his letter, Mr. Mitchell says :

"The allegation that the anthracite mine workers refused to work on holidays has been grossly exaggerated. It is true that they did not work on Christmas, but they did not understand that they were expected to work. They have always observed religious holidays, but many of them worked on New Year's Day. The charge of ingratitude toward the public is being made against them by those who would malign them and who seek to divert attention from the real cause of the coal famine. The truth is that several thousand miners have been refused the privilege to work at all since the close of the strike, although they have daily importuned the companies to permit them to return to the places they occupied prior to the inauguration of the strike."

Young Women to be Hanged

Two Girls in Liverpool, Eng., Convicted of Murder

SMOTHERED AN OLD MAID.

THOUGH SENTENCED TO DEATH THE SECRETARY OF STATE MAY BE ASKED TO REPRIEVE THEM

Liverpool. Jan. 3—At the recent assizes sentence of death was passed on two women convicted of the murder, under extraordinary circumstances of an elderly maiden lady. The case was a sensational one. The girls, Ethel Rollinson, aged 20, and Eva Eastwood, aged 17 were proven to have smothered Miss Marsden, who resided in Oriel Road, Bootle, with pillows as she lay asleep in bed.

When the crime was first discovered the deceased's servant girl, named Miss Hamilton, was arrested on suspicion, and afterwards she related to the police a sensational story implicating the two prisoners Rollinson and Eastwood. The story was to the effect that after seeing her mistress in bed on the night of the crime she had occasion to again go downstairs, when she discovered Rollinson and Eastwood, whom she had not previously known in the house. They afterwards proceeded to Hamilton's bedroom, where they spent some time, and finally they went to the room occupied by Miss Marsden, whence Hamilton shortly afterwards heard the old lady moaning. After a lapse of about ten minutes Hamilton made her way to Miss Marsden's bedroom, which she found in great confusion and the prisoners trying on hats and other articles of wearing apparel.

GAVE NO ALARM.

An extraordinary feature of the case was that Hamilton gave no alarm, notwithstanding the remarkable conduct of the prisoners, but went in and out of the room several times while they were there. On one of these occasions she said she saw the prisoner Eastwood sitting on the pillows on the bed. Hamilton left the room with the prisoners, but afterwards becoming frightened, she related to a friend what had taken place, with the result that the police were informed, and on proceeding to the house, they found Miss Marsden dead in bed, having, according to medical testimony, been suffocated.

When the trial opened on Friday the prosecution intimated that the indictment against Hamilton would be withdrawn, and she was called as a witness, and practically repeated the story she had originally told to the police.

The jury, after half an hour's absence convicted the prisoners of murder, recommending them to mercy on account of their youth, their sex, and their previous good character.

Mr. Justice Jelf passed sentence of death. A painful scene ensued, the prisoners bursting into hysterical weeping, and having to be helped out of the dock.

A petition to the Home Office for their reprieve on the grounds specified by the jury will be set on foot.

ENGLISHMEN WON SOUTH AMERICANS INDEPENDENCE

Britons Fought for Venezuela--Withstood the Spaniards.

They Held Them Firm when the Venezuelans had Fled—An Interesting Incident

London, Jan. 4.—A writer in the Westminster Gazette tells an interesting story of how Englishmen and Venezuelans once fought side by side and how the former won for the latter their independence. It was at the beginning of the last century, when Spain lay crushed beneath the heavy hand of Napoleon, that her South American colonies, among them Venezuela, rose against her

She poured troops into Venezuela, and an interminable guerrilla war dragged on until a new factor was introduced in the shape of a British legion which landed to assist Bolivar and his patriots, who were powerless to defeat the Spaniards.

"Thus reinforced, Bolivar and Paez advanced once more to the attack, and marching stealthily through their trackless mountains they at last saw below them General La Torre and the main Spanish army calmly awaiting them in the plain of Carabobo. A single narrow pass led from the mountains into the plain; no sooner, however, had the foremost ranks of the insurgents emerged from it on to the level ground that four Spanish battalions fell upon them and swept them back to their mountains in headlong flight.

THE BRITISH STOOD FIRM.

"When the Venezuelans, as usual, fled before the Spanish charge, they fell back upon the British legion, and the British were not accustomed to that fashion of making war. Contemptuously brushing aside the fugitives, the Englishmen steadily defiled from the mountain pass, formed line under fire as cosy as if on parade, and gave the Spaniards volley for volley with the doggedness they had learned under the great Duke. The odds against them were fearful; their ranks were riddled by the hail of Spanish bullets; one by one all their officers dropped at their posts; still these dogged Englishmen, 'each stepping where his comrade stood,' loaded and fired.

"Never had the Venezuelan guerrillas seen such a thing before; and seized with a generous emulation, they rallied to the support of their allies and swarmed down again out of their hills. They galloped round the Spanish force, they attacked it in flank and rear, and when the ranks were broken their spears did much execution on the enemy, and one alone of all the Spanish battalions survived to save itself by flight. At a single blow the Spanish army had been destroyed, and the prestige of Spain was shattered. The victory won the liberty of Venezuela; Puerto Cabello surrendered and the Spanish rule was over forever."

LEMON JUICE KILLS TYPHOID

Value of the English Discovery Confirmed

Chicago Health Department Finds That the Juice Kills Bacilli of the Disease

That lemon juice will destroy the typhoid germs in water is announced authoritatively by the Chicago Health Department after careful experiments extending over three days. One teaspoonful of the juice to half a glass of water is known to be a good combination, and repeated trials have invariably produced the same result. Every germ was killed.

Further tests will be made at once to ascertain how small an amount of lemon juice will destroy the bacilli. Dr. Reynolds is also investigating the properties of manufactured citric acid. If the acid will take the place of the lemon a great saving will be accomplished, for it is inexpensive as compared with lemons.

The action of the lemon juice is to cause the bacilli to shrivel up and die. Their power to produce the poison which causes typhoid is thus destroyed, and water which in its original state was highly dangerous to drink becomes as innocuous as if it had been distilled.

The investigations and announcement of the Chicago health authorities are the result of an announcement made on Christmas Day by Dr. Asa Ferguson, a London physician. Dr Ferguson announced that the lemon juice was a deadly foe to typhoid. It had long been known that certain acids would kill the bacilli, but their effect was also to kill the human beings The harmless acid in lemons was entirely overlooked until Dr. Ferguson chanced to drop a little lemon juice into a culture tube containing typhoid germs. To his amazement he discovered that they died almost immediately, and he at once began further experiments, which resulted in the announcement of the discovery.

When the news reached Chicago on Christmas Day experiments were at once begun by the laboratory experts At the close of office hours on Saturday they found that Dr. Ferguson's claims were completely sustained by their results. The report of Dr. Jacques the medical director of the laboratory, tells the story in technical language —

"The following experiment was made in the laboratory to test the value of lemon juice in destroying the typhoid fever bacilli. One hundred and twenty cc. of bouillon was inoculated with bacillus typhoid. The flask was placed in the incubator at 90 degrees for twelve hours. At the end of this period 64 cc. of lemon juice was added. At the end of four hours plates were inoculated from this flask. The plates at the end of twenty-four hours showed no growth." A L

Commenting on the lemon juice test in London, Dr. Ferguson said :

"Typhoid germs must be taken into the stomach in order to cause typhoid fever. If, therefore, people will put a drop or two of lemon juice in the water they drink they will be safe."

For the present the recommendation of Chicago's health officials is to use more of the lemon than Dr. Ferguson suggested. Tests will be made during the coming week which will show just how small an amount is necessary to destroy the germ life in a glass of water. Future health office bulletins may read instead of the familiar phrase "Boil the water," "Drink lemonade today," and probably recipes for the drink will probably be issued. In addition to the use of lemon juice in drinking water the department recommends that the juice be freely sprinkled on oysters when eaten raw. Numerous outbreaks of typhoid have been traced to raw oysters, the most recent following a mayoralty banquet in England. Among the victims of this outbreak was the Dean of Winchester.

THE LATE MR. T. M. CROLY

His Demise at Nicholls Hospital on Saturday Last

The demise of M. T. M. D. Croly, which occurred at Nicholls Hospital on Friday last, will be universally regretted. Mr Croly had been a resident of Peterborough for over forty years, and was universally esteemed. He had been ill for over a year, but was able to move about, In March last he went to New York, where he underwent an operation, which, while it gave him relief, did not effect a cure. Another operation was performed at Nicholls Hospital on Monday last, but his strength was not equal to the strain, and he passed away as above.

The late Mr. Croly came to Peterborough in 1860, where he resided ever since. In 1865 he married Rebecca Spear, daughter of the late John Spear, of Peterborough. His wife and two children, Mr. Louis Croly of New York City, and Miss Annie at home, survive him.

The deceased was a contractor by trade, and built the registry office and the south ward school, which, with many other structures stand as monuments of his handiwork.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30 from family residence, 65 Auburn street, and proceed to Little Lake cemetery.

A PROGRESSIVE FIRM

Messrs. R. Hicks & Co., Put in a Sawer and Chopping Machine

Messrs. R. Hicks & Co., the well known fuel and lumber dealers, have made a very valuable addition to the equipment of their yards, in the shape of a machine for sawing and chopping wood. The power is obtained from the Otonabee Power Company, a fine saw motor having been installed. The sawing apparatus consists of a circular saw in front of which is a sliding frame and upon this is laid the stick of wood. Near at hand is a chopper, a heavy axe raising and falling at the rate of a hundred strokes per minute, according to the revolutions of a large wheel supported by a sturdy framework. The machine can be so adjusted as to take any length of cut and to feed to axes at the same time. The importance of such machinery in a fuel yard, and its advantages over the old system will be readily seen.

The splitting machine is from the A. R. Williams Co., Toronto, the sawing machine from Gould, Shapley & Muir, Brantford, and the motor from the C.G.E. Co. Mr. G. Walter Green completed a neat job in preparing the pulleys and housing for the machinery.

Thousands of cattle are reported to be starving on the range in North western Colorado. The Humane Society appealed to the owners to rescue their stock, and they replied that they were powerless to do it. The cattle are snowed in on the high range in Routt and Rio Blanco Counties, without pasture and without water. It is impossible to get feed to them and equally impossible to drive them into suitable winter quarters.

"The French banks, as was expected," writes the London Statist, "are not renewing the American bills which they hold in very large amounts, and which are falling due all through the present month. Happily, however, the crops are so good in the United States that trade bills are very numerous at present, and the proceeds of these trade bills are being availed of to take up large numbers of the finance bills as they mature. Consequently, the circulation of American finance bills is being rapidly reduced just now."

In a communication from Petropavlovsk, on the east coast of Kamschatka, it is stated that enormous masses of dead fish were seen on the coasts of Kamschatka. The fish were of the salmon species, and were seen about thirty miles off the coast, and covered about forty square miles of the sea's surface. The phenomenon can only be attributed to some disturbance of the waters by volcanic action, but no date of its occurrence is mentioned in the report.

Great interest has been aroused in labor circles in England over the late decision of a jury in the High Court holding the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants and its officials, including Richard Bell, M.P., responsible for damages to the Taff Vale Railway Company, which are estimated at $125,000, and were caused by a conspiracy to produce a strike of the employes. The strike arose because the company refused to accept the intervention of the society and insisted upon transferring a distance his signalman, who was a prominent agitator. The jury find that the society maintained a system of terrorism to compel a strike and to prevent the employment of "blacklegs," that is, to say, non-unionists. The results of the decision cannot fail to be momentous.

The Novosti of St. Petersburg, asserts, in what is taken as an authoritative tone, that the Russian minister of the Interior has under consideration a scheme for the gradual revision of the whole of the exceptional laws to which the so-styled "Evrei" are subject throughout the Czar's dominions. As a beginning, the draft of a measure has been prepared for submission to the Council of State in accordance with which members of the Hebrew community will be allowed to acquire land and settle in any part of the empire, without restriction as to locality. As the chief disability under which the Russian Jews labor is the restriction as to the right of domicile and the inability to hold land it is obvious that the enactment of such a law as is now said to be in contemplation will practically solve the Jewish problem.

Although the Venezuela trouble is not near enough to us to cause any embarrassment, we have our say about it:—

104 Revolts in 70 years!

How is that?

They simply can't help it; they are built that way and, being small, are "sassy," all small things are, expecting some "big feller" to side with them.

Volcanoes are not small things, but they have their periodical upheavals, like our South American effervescent fellow beings, with this difference—they are not always at it; they give themselves and others, at least, some rest, and they do not make any debts that are difficult of collection.

The Portugese Government has granted to an English syndicate a concession for a railway from Lobito Bay, near Benguella, in Portugese West Africa, to the eastern frontier of the colony, to be subject to Portugese laws and to be directed by a company established in Lisbon. The concession it for a period of ninety-nine years, and carries with it the right to all minerals found within 75 miles on either side of the railway from end to end. The syndicate already controls large concessions for mines and railways in the Congo State and Northern Rhodesia, and it is declared that the value of the mines already opened up in these districts will ensure financial success of the railway, which will cost several millions. The work is to be pushed forward energetically by a staff which has been held in readiness at Benguela for several months. This concession is expected to mark a new area in the economic development of Central and South Africa. Lobito Bay is four days nearer to England than the Cape, and is described as one of the finest harbors in the world, able to accommodate larger vessels than Delagoa Bay. With the new railway, which will establish sooner or later, a connection with British Central Africa, this part of Lobito is almost certain to become a great centre of commercial activity.

so scornfully, was surprised at the effect of her angry words.

"Why should my words affect him so strangely?" she thought, wonderingly.

He saw the surprise and wonder in the expressive young face, and by a powerful effort shook off the lethargy that had fallen upon him.

"What— what did you mean by those words, Hilda?" he demanded, in a voice that trembled with fear. "Who says that I am not— not your father?"

"I say so!" answered Hilda, spiritedly. "What father would maltreat his child as you did me? What father would rear a daughter and neglect her as you have neglected me—lavishing all your means and all your affection on the child of one whom you have declared was your deadly enemy? It is unnatural and impossible. I could sooner believe that Florence, whom you have pampered and petted all her life, is your own child, and that I myself am Lord Devon's granddaughter."

The thought had occurred to her with the swiftness of the lightning's flash, and in her anger she had given it instant expression. But she was not prepared for the terrible rage it excited in the man before her.

The perspiration started out on his livid features, his eyes glared like a madman's, as he sprang toward her.

Seizing her rudely by her shoulders, he shook her until her breath was nearly gone.

"You little she- devil!" he hissed in her ears. "Dare to tell me such a thing again, dare to breathe such a suspicion abroad, and I will kill you—kill you, do you hear?"

He drew back his hand and struck her several times cruelly upon the head, then threw her from him with such force that she fell upon the floor. Without waiting to see the effect of his brutality, he hurried out of the room.

"Little she- devil!" he muttered again, as he descended the stairs. "Her cursed tongue has sealed her fate!"

He went out upon the lawn and directed his steps toward Mrs. L'Estrange's cottage.

"I will try to get a look at that mysterious woman," he muttered. "Surely it cannot be——"

He paused, and would not give expression to the name, but the very thought of it caused his frame to tremble, and the dew of terror beaded his high forehead.

Walking slowly along, he gained the cottage which he had seen Hilda leaving a short time before.

A subdued light gleamed through the parlor window, which was shutterless, and protected only by curtains of white lace.

Mr. Aylesford peered cautiously around him. There was no one in sight, and he softly opened the gate of the small front yard, and stepped within. Then he stepped forward and peered into the window, whose lowest pane of glass was just upon a level with his eyes. For several minutes he continued to gaze cautiously into the apartment, then quite suddenly he dropped upon the ground, and crouched there, trembling with terror.

"My soul!" he muttered, huskily. "All the fiends below have conspired against me!"

He remained in his crouching position several minutes longer, then quietly rose and peered through the lace curtains again.

The lady whose mere sight had inspired Mr. Aylesford with such terror lay upon the sofa, wrapped in a warm, white cashmere dressing-gown, her white hands pressed upon her heart as if in pain. She had been weeping, and in the brilliant light that shone through the room, the dew of tears was still visible upon the dark fringe of her silken lashes. An elderly maid across the room was busy pouring some dark- colored drops from a small vial into a wineglass half filled with water.

"Here, madam," she said, gently, as she crossed the room, "you had better take your drops. This agitation is very bad for you."

Mrs. L'Estrange lifted her head, and drained the potion obediently.

"My kind, faithful Margery," she said, looking gratefully at her patient attendant. "I do not believe my present agitation can hurt me. I have been weeping, it is true, but my tears are tears of gladness. I have had tidings of great joy."

"Thank Heaven!" exclaimed Margery, fervently. "Was the young girl who visited you the bearer of your good news?"

"Yes, although she was not aware of it. Sit down by me, Margery, and I will tell you about it, that your faithful heart may rejoice with me."

Margery brought a chair and sat down by the side of the sofa, and the man outside listened intently, anxious to catch the import of their talk. But either through weakness or excessive caution, the lady lowered her voice to a whisper, and he could not understand the low, agitated murmurs in which she spoke to her faithful attendant.

"I can very well guess what she is talking of, though," he muttered with a terrible scowl of hate at the unconscious woman. "And now —now I must hit upon some plan to secure her everlasting silence. The future of my daughter and myself hang trembling in the balance. I cannot afford to be squeamish now. I must strike at once, and in the dark!"

He moved away silently, and went back to the hotel where Florence reigned conspicuous among the brilliant beauties gathered there from every part of the country. Her beauty and the odor of romance that hung around her made her quite a belle. Mr. Aylesford went into the ball room and told Florence that he was unwell and would retire to his room if she would excuse him. She readily consented to do so, and consigning her to the care of Sir Wilfred Hale, he went away.

But in the "dead waste and middle of the night," when the ball room was deserted and everything was still in slumber, when the moon had gone down, and the world was wrapped in darkness, he stole forth again, and took his way to Mrs. L'Estrange's cottage.

All was calm and silent there. The lights were extinguished, the inmates sound asleep. He crawled under the front porch and remained there a few minutes, then came out and went around to the back part of the house.

In a little while he stole cautiously back to the hotel, and went up to his room and to bed.

After a little, as he lay trembling under the bed- clothes, he heard some voices out on the lawn shout-

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water a low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 100,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years	$670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is .... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's share common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

Prepare Now for January Advance

Stocks are at an extremely low level at present, the causes which brought them down are gradually disappearing. Money is obtainable, will not become unduly high, but shortly will become easier; the decline in cereals is stimulating export of corn, while a combination has been formed to expedite export of cotton; railways are crowded with traffic and business is active.

Stocks will more than likely have a material advance after the 1st of the year, consequently should be purchased at present. To do so will be to prepare for a January advance. We proffer our services as Commission Brokers for execution of orders, in all amounts, either outright, for cash, or upon most moderate margins, handling

Our 400-page "Guide to Investors" and "Daily Market Letter," both of which we issue free, upon request, will aid you materially in either selecting a proper investment or a judicious operation upon margin. Correspondence solicited.

STOCK MARKETS

The New Year

New York, Jan. 4—Never has the outlook for a new year appeared more encouraging. The drawbacks to the the market now existing that command any recognition at all are seldom of so little comparative importance. We have every reason to anticipate a most favorable business year while indications point most strongly to a continuance of the upbuilding process in Wall street. One of the prominent changes which will make lively speculation in a certain group of New York stocks this year is the transformation in transportation facilities now going on in New York City. Values of these shares will be enormously enhanced; the coal traffic is going to tax the facilities of every coal producing and coal carrying road this year. The demand is unsatiable and prices are most excellent. The coal shares will earn more money than ever before in their history. The freight business of the coal roads has increased most remarkably also. These stocks are destined to go very high. The growth of the western roads is destined to make noted progress this year. The Oriental trade has just commenced. It will expand and increase beyond the conception of the most optimistic. It will be as remarkable as the growth of our republic since revolutionary days. The men of today, if they could positively be here ten years hence, would probably be surprised and astonished at the growth, increased power and wealth of the United States, as would the early progenitors of our glorious country, could they but visit their old haunts now. Industry in 1903 will be found more productive and profitable than at any former period. The great industrials open the year with a plethora of orders, insuring activity for them for the entire twelve months. People who look below the surface and buying stocks now, and watching the abortive attempts of manipulators to scare the timid into disposing of their holdings. They are quietly slating down what they can afford to buy, and carry. The strong undertone of the present market in face of high money rates and lack of public buying plainly make the above fact clear to the observing. The country had made such phenomenal strides in wealth, population and industrial development, that precedents which governed in bygone days are quite useless as a guide to the future now. The men who first realized this great fact have made enormous fortunes. The men who can adequately forecast the vastness of results directly ahead of us will prosper greatly in 1903. We are a great bull country.

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines, and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica-schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $20 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $25 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Price is now 25 cents a share, and we offer 50,000 shares at this price, but it may be advanced by January 1st, 1903, to 50 cents a share.

To The Electors of the Town of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having been nominated as a candidate for alderman for the council of this flourishing town for 1903, I take this opportunity of calling the attention of the ratepayers that I am in the field. As I shall not make a personal canvass of the town, I trust that any services which may have been rendered by me during the last year will warrant your vote and influence. My interests in the town personally are by no means small, and in consequence it will be my best effort to advance every measure that will lead to the rapid progress of our town.

I therefore respectfully solicit your votes and support. You may rest assured that, if elected, I shall do all in my power to secure the very best service to the municipality at as little cost as is consistent with good work.

Among other things, I will favour the construction of granolithic walks on the principal streets of the Village, payment to be extended over a term of years, on the basis of a frontage tax.

The market on Saturday was not as largely attended as usual, no doubt the unfavorable weather being the cause. Wiarton Beet Sugar Factory

The success of the beet sugar industry in Ontario seems assured, judging by a sample received by the Globe of the work being done by the Wiarton Beet Sugar Manufacturing Company of Wiarton. The factory is now turning out on an average of 150 to 200 barrels of the very best sugar daily and expects to increase this on an early date.

The annual meeting of the Eastern Dairymen's Association will be held at Ottawa, next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Hon. John Dryden, Mr. D. C. James and Mr. E.C. Creelman will attend. It is expected that the proposed apointment of additional inspectors to more thoroughly carry out the Government's plan that worked not satisfactorily last year will take definite shape. Some idea of the need of competent inspectors may be formed from the fact that last year 30,000,000 pounds of butter and cheese were produced in the Dominion.

THE TURNER BY-LAW

The Firm Give Substantial Reasons for Municipal Exemption

To the ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:

Ladies and gentlemen.—There has been some expressions of opinions in the daily papers re exemption of taxes on Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons' factory. We feel that the public are not conversant with all sides of the question and take this means of setting forth some facts which may commend our petition to your judgment, so that we may receive your support when voting on the by-law.

In reply to "Ratepayer's" letter of December 22nd, we beg to say. "Because we have done well here, we return sincere thanks to the public for their patronage which we fully appreciate, but we would remind 'Ratepayer' that the bulk of our trade is done outside of Peterborough, there not being nearly enough here to keep our hands employed."

This outside trade is secured by advertising, by travellers, by agents. Of the latter we have thirty-one scattered throughout Canada to whom we must sell wholesale only, so that they may have the necessary retailer's margin. We have seven travellers—three salaried men and four commission men—who look after our interests outside of Peterborough. We advertise freely, and in this way, secure many orders. The whole we think shows that we bring a great amount of trade to Peterborough through our efforts which would not come unless looked after and drummed up. This must mean expenditure of money for power, wages, light and fuel, and an increase in floor space to accomodate increasing trade.

This is what induced us to spend our money in a building which is at once a credit and an advertisement to the town. We employ at present (which is not a busy season) nine girls and eleven men, eight of whom are heads of families. This does not include our commission travellers, the number of which we mentioned was four. There has been some talk of the bulk of our employees being girls, who receive low wage. To this we reply that no girl works for us, for one day even, for nothing. Her wages commence the moment she is engaged. The hours are shorter than usual, being from ten minutes to eight to twelve and from one to six, with the exception of Saturdays, when they quit at four o'clock.

We pay good wages, as evidenced some time ago when wages were high and different factories and stores were losing some help, we lost none, which speaks for itself.

Again, our factory could have been built on almost any out-of-the-way place at half the expense for land and style of building, which would not have interfered in the least with the bulk of our trade, but we were energetic and enterprising enough to endeavor to add to the appearance of our main thoroughfare and built in as conspicuous a spot as possible and erected a building in keeping with the situation.

Had we asked for exemption before commencing to build, we have no doubt but that it would have been granted to us the same as other factories enjoy, but because we pushed ahead (unnecessarily as we had an option of two or more years in the old premises), relying on the same privileges being extended to us as were granted to others,—we now hear some dissenters, some who fail to appreciate our enterprise and energy to bring Peterborough before the minds of the people as a great manufacturing centre.

It is unnecessary for us to enumerate the many advantages which accrue from a town being known as a good live town, further than to say that it induces people to locate here, increases the value of property, as evidenced by the way rents have advanced and the number of houses which have been sold this past year to new residents who have been drawn to Peterborough by the free advertising given by her factories.

We regret that "Ratepayers" accused us of such small principles as to use our position as a public servant to force our petition on the public. This is altogether unwarranted and unexpected. and while "Ratepayer" is accusing our Mr. Turner of such smallness, he also includes those who voted for the by-law in Council.

We believe that we have a reasonable claim for exemption from taxes, complying with the by-law to employ at least twenty hands ten months of the year, because we do a large wholesale business; because we advertise the town; because we are endeavoring to increase our trade every year, and to do this we must bring more business to our factory than in former years; because had we asked for exemption before commencing to build we would no doubt have been granted our request.

What better advertisement could Peterborough have, as evidenced by the advertisement, said same our hospital tents made for themselves, so that we received an order from the Cleveland Board of Health, Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A. This was not solicited, but obtained by merit.

Again, we export a large quantity of goods to London, England, which advertises Canada in general, Peterborough in particular.

This trade has not been built up in a day, but has taken thirty years to acquire, which period represents the years we have been in business.

In conclusion, we will continue to do all we can to advertise the town, and will appreciate the favor we ask the people to grant. We commend our petition to you for your kind consideration, and ask you to mark your ballot in favor of the by-law granting us exemption from taxes. (school tax excepted).

Wishing one and all the Compliments of the Season we are, yours sincerely,

WEATHER NOTES

"WILFUL WASTE MAKES WOEFUL WANT."

That old copybook maxim finds its most forceful application in the waste of vitality, which is called "burning the candle at both ends." A woman is often tempted beyond her strength by domestic or social demands. Some day she awakens from this waste of strength to the woeful want of it. She has become weak, nervous and miserable.

For weak, nervous, run-down women, there is no better tonic and nervine than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It restores the appetite, quiets the nerves and gives refreshing sleep. It cures local diseases peculiarly womanly which undermine the general health. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"No doubt you have forgotten me, but after you read my letter you will remember me," writes Mrs. Annie E. Moring, of 238 7th Avenue, S. W., Roanoke, Va. "In the year 1897, I wrote to you for advice, which you gave me free of charge. When I wrote to you I was a wreck; I could not walk straight for pains in my abdomen; could not sit down, lie down, or get any ease at all. I had what was called the best doctor here, but did not get any better until I went through a course of your medicine. I took eight bottles each of 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and ten bottles of the 'Pleasant Pellets.' I tell you the medicine made a cure of me."

Weak and sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Kermit stubbed his toe this morning. Mrs. Roosevelt turned pale and tottered, but bravely recovered her equanimity. Secretary Cortelyou was summoned by the President and rubbed the injured member until the circulation was restored.

Archie ate six waffles at breakfast this morning. Ethel, who is really the life and soul of the Presidential party, humorously observed: "If you don't look out, Archie, you'll become a waffle yourself." Unrestrained hilarity, of course, succeeded, and Ethel was congratulated on all sides on her bon mot.

Teddy having successfully attained the summit of the Oyster Bay Church, proceeded to stand on his head upon the weather-vane. Secretary Cortelyou was instantly despatched to fetch him down, tearing his trousers—his Sunday ones—in so doing. The Board of Estimates has voted him a new pair if the old ones cannot be patched. Pork for lunch at Sagamore Hill.

Mrs. Roosevelt gathered a posy of daisies this morning, a token of pastoral innocence truly symbolical, and proving that simple tastes are not wholly confined to the lowly. The President ate pickled onions for afternoon tea with an evident relish.

This morning Kermit's pet rattlesnake died. He was convulsed with woe, and pleaded grief as an excuse for not accompanying his family on one of their fifteen daily baths or twenty-six daybreak gallops over the Sagamore Hills. The Secretary of State has promised him a baby white elephant to console him for his loss.

Secretary Root arrived at Oyster Bay this evening. Query by Ethel at tea time: "I say, Mr. Secretary, are you the root of all evil?" Mr. Cortelyou immediately cabled this truly wonderful child's whoeze to the foreign courts. Ethel's future is assured or should be. The following is the routine planned for the Roosevelt menage during the summer: Breakfast, lunch, dinner, bed: truly a sensible one, which doubtless caused the President and his wife much trouble to draw up.—"Town Topics."

Stubbs's Tip.

The chafing-dish supper was over, says the Chicago "News," and Mr. and Mrs. Stubbs were wending their way homeward.

"But, John," said Mrs. Stubbs, who was feeling perfectly well, and consequently was sure that everybody should make an effort to be above indigestion, "how do you know that Welsh rabbit is going to disagree with you?"

"I—I have inside information," Stubbs returned, promptly but sadly.

A DESPERATE FIGHT NEAR THE CITY OF CARACAS

The Revolutionists Score a Victory Over General Castro's Army

Castro's Position Hopeless—He will Hold Out, However, Until the Decisive Battle—Plans to Escape

New York, Jan. 5—According to the Herald's correspondent in Willemsted, the revolutionists are advancing in three columns on General Castro's army. "A desperate fight occurred on Saturday night within eight miles of the city of Caracas, resulting favorably to the revolutionists. They are cutting all the telegraph lines, tearing up the railroad tracks, and are hourly expected in the immediate neighborhood of the city. A condition of extreme panic prevails amongst those who have heretofore believed that Castro was invincible.

A committee of the most prominent citizens has gone to President Castro and made representations to him of how hopelessly untenable is his position. But he insists on holding on until his forces are defeated in a decisive battle. It seems that this cannot be far distant. President Castro is already planning what he shall do when the inevitable comes, but he will make a desperate fight before quitting, as he has no chance of escape. The only alternative is imprisonment. The correspondent adds that no attempt is now being made by the allies to conceal the fact that they are affording assistance to the revolutionists.

BLOCKADE IS IN FORCE

Berlin, Jan. 6 — Great Britain and Germany came to an understanding four days ago to enforce the blockade of the Venezuelan coast precisely as though the negotiations for arbitration were not going on. It was doubtless in consequence of this understanding that the vessels at Porto Cabello were taken, although both the Foreign Office and the Navy Department are yet without advices showing that vessels were taken or that marines were temporarily landed.

LYNCH'S TREASON TRIAL AND ITS OUTCOME

Colonel Lynch If Found Guilty May Escape With Life Imprisonment

This is the General Impression of Those Who are in a Position to Know

London, January 4— Col. Arthur Lynch, member of the British parliament for Galway, has been indicted for high treason by a special grand jury of Middlesex, and will be called on to plead to the indictment in January next. The charge against him is that he actively assisted the Sovereign's enemies, and is based on the alleged fact that he commanded the so-called "Irish brigade" in the army of the South African republics during the recent war. Col. Lynch was arrested six months ago, on June 11, when he landed in England on his way to take the seat in Parliament to which the voters of Galway had chosen him, and has been in prison ever since.

In receiving the bill of indictment from the grand jury, Lord Chief Justice Alverstone remarked that it was sixty-two years since a grand jury had had to consider a charge of high treason, which was the highest crime known to British law. He referred to the indictment of John Frost, Esq., a magistrate of Monmouthshire, who in November, 1839 "levied war" against Queen Victoria during the Chartist excitement.

Frost and his son, at the head of nearly 10,000 Chartists, entered the town of Newport, Monmouthshire, on Nov. 4, 1839, and refused to disperse when ordered to do so by the mayor. They broke open the window of the hotel where the magistrates had gathered and fired upon the officials, wounding several. A small detachment of soldiers, thirty in all, fired upon the mob, which fled, leaving twenty dead, and many wounded. Mr. Frost and other leading Chartists were arrested the next day, and on trial were convicted and sentenced to death.

The punishment under the law was the infamous and barbarous one of the middle ages—they were condemned to be "hanged, drawn and quartered," or as the sentence reads, "to be drawn on a hurdle to the place of execution, and there to be hanged by the neck, being yet alive, to be let down, and your bowels taken out before your eyes and your head to be struck off and your body cut into four pieces," which were, with the head at the disposal of the Crown.

The sentence was not carried out in the case of Mr. Frost for an act of George IV's time gave to the Sovereign the power to mitigate the punishment. The convicts under this were sentenced to transportation for life, and sent to Australia, where they lived until 1856. An act of amnesty was granted to them in that year, and along with Wm. Smith O'Brien and others they returned to England. Mr. Frost died in 1877, in the ninety-seventh year of his age.

This was the last trial for high treason in England. The trials of Fenians were on charges of murder and often of treason-felony, a crime defined by the act of 1848 known as the Treason-Felony act. Under this no such punishment as could be imposed under the treason acts was permissible; convicted prisoners were punished by hanging or less capitally.

The procedure in the coming trial of Col. Lynch is regulated by many old statutes. Col. Lynch may not be bailed, unless by order of the secretary of state for the home department; nor is he clerkyable, though that fact is of no practical interest nowadays. He will be tried in the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice and not less than five days before he is called to the bar will receive a copy of the bill of indictment. If he has no counsel, the court will assign counsel to him, and will obtain his witnesses just as it would claim those for the Crown.

To convict Col. Lynch, unless he confesses in open court—forced "third-degree" confessions are not accepted—the oaths of two witnesses to the same overt act are necessary and two days before trial the names of all the Crown's witnesses are to be submitted to him. If he is convicted, he may be hanged or beheaded, or punished in a lesser degree. The last persons beheaded in England were Thistlewood and his fellow Cato street conspirators who suffered death by the axe as traitors on May 1, 1820. The proceeding was so repugnant to modern ideas that the punishment was changed, and hanging made permissible. The upmost that Col. Lynch may expect, if he is found guilty is probably life imprisonment.

Morroccan Pretender Has Fled, Taking All His Available Stores

London, Jan. 5.—A marked improvement has come over the situation in Morocco. The Pretender has fled, possibly to Taza, taking with him all his available stores, and the Haina tribe, who were fighting for him, have now joined the Sultan.

Mulai Mohammed, the Sultan's brother, has taken the oath of allegiance to the sovereign, and has assumed command of the Shereefian army. He will set out in pursuit of the enemy on his arrival at Fez.

Reliable news from Fez, dated December 29, states that 20,000 cavalry and infantry have arrived there from Sus, and 10,000 cavalry have left for Ghiatta. The Sultan's army is now a large one.

London, Jan. 5.—Six hundred veterans of the Sepoy Mutiny were present at the proclamation of King Edward as Emperor of India at the durbar on Thursday, says the Delhi correspondent of the Times. Some of the Europeans were plain mufti. Some were in uniforms long ago discarded and now tarnished and faded in the course of the years. Several wore uniforms of the civil-military employment.

The natives belonged mainly to the humbler classes and wore long flowing robes that were plain and unadorned. One of these native veterans is said to be 100 years old. Another, who enlisted in 1836, had been wounded four times.

THE FUTURE OF CANADA

Is About to Become a Great Commercial Nation

London, Jan. 5—The London Daily Mail prophesies that Canada is at last about to become a great commercial nation. The paper notes that new industries of all kinds are springing up as though by magic. The people are ambitious to possess the power to fight politically by themselves, with other lands for commercial privileges, independently of Downing street. The attempt to promote reciprocal trade with England has been disappointing, owing to the failure of England to respond. Already Canadian public men are discussing the desirability of repealing the preferential tariff granted England.

MUST NOT DRINK

Drunkenness for Railroad Employees to Be a State Prison Offence

New Haven, Conn. Jan. 4—Attorney Benjamin Slade, of this city, has drafted a bill which will be presented to the legislature in January.

In a few words, the bill provides that any motorman in charge of a street car or engineer in charge of a train who shall be under the influence of liquor while in charge of the same, shall be guilty of a crime punishable by a term in state prison. Also a death resulting because of the intoxication of either of the above mentioned employes shall constitute murder in the first degree.

In one or two trolley accidents recently it has been stated that they were caused by intoxicated motormen. This is given as a reason for framing the bill, the hope being that the severe penalty will lessen the danger of accidents from this cause.

TRADE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Commissioner Jardine Tells of Business Movements of Interest to Canadians

Ottawa, Ont, January 4 — A report from J. G. Jardine, Canadian commissioner has been received at the department of trade and commerce. It is dated Cape Town, Nov. 20th, and deals at length with existing trade conditions in South Africa, towards which market Canadians are now turning attention. He notes three recent events of importance, namely, the adoption of the new Transvaal tariff, the arrival, Nov. 18th, of the Ontarian, the first vessel of the direct steamship line from Canada, and the first meeting for years of the South African associated chambers of commerce. The object of the latter meeting of business men was to consider the advisability of a South African customs union. Mr. Jardine believes that the Dutch farmers, in whose interest the present high duties on foodstuffs were imposed, will consent to a reduction in view of the impossibility of native productions supplying the local market.

Mr. Jardine notes that Canadian companies are already turning attention to the supply of rolling stock for South African railways. Present retail quotations are: Butter 36 cents to 48 cents per pound; cheese 28 cents to 48 cents per pound; flour, 4 cents to 5 cents per pound; bacon, 25 cents to 30 cents per pound; hams, 27 cents to 36 cents per pound. But, as the agent notes, there is a wide margin between wholesale and retail figures and "fancy prices" are unobtainable. As to trade generally Mr. Jardine reports a good business to Canadian flour, and good prospects for a large trade in agricultural implements dairy produce and boots and shoes. He advises importation of hides and skins from South Africa to give the direct line steamers return cargoes. Canada is expected to make a good display at the Cape Town exhibition of 1903. It is to be a purely British exhibition with ample space reserved for Canada and the other colonies.

DAMAGES FOR BOYCOTT

Chicago Labour Association Lose Court Verdict With Heavy Damages

Chicago, Jan. 4—A verdict having a significant bearing upon the right of labor organisations to maintain or assist in enforcing a boycott was rendered this morning in Judge Vail's court, where George Hinchliff was awarded $22,000 damages against the members of the Chicago Masons' and Builders' Association and the Brick Manufacturers' Association. Hinchliff asked for $100,000 damages, which he alleged he had sustained owing to a boycott of the product of his brickyards at Hobart, Ind., on the part of the associations mentioned in 1898.

THE GREAT DROUGHT IN AUSTRALIA

Means Large Imports of Foodstuffs by the Commonwealth

AND CANADA WILL BENEFIT BY IT

Report Received at State Department Washington Tells of Conditions of Affairs

Washington, D.C. Jan. 3—The State Department yesterday received this report from Melbourne, Australia:—"It is now realized beyond doubt that the Australian wheat harvest for the coming season will be a failure, and must be followed by heavy importations of food stuffs from foreign countries. Competent authorities have expressed the opinion that during the season fully 600,000 tons of breadstuff must be imported from various wheat producing centres in order to meet the harvest deficiencies in the Commonwealth.

"In New South Wales the crop last year was fairly good, but the present season provides the gloomiest outlook that the state has known for many years. The food and seed requirements of the state are computed at 900,000,00 bushels; this would leave 4,500,000 bushels available for export, but there will be from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 bushels less than are needed for home consumption and sowing.

"In Victoria the crop last year yielded 12,127,382 bushels, while the present harvest is estimated at 2,948,750 bushels, to which may be added 2,998,953 bushels of old wheat on hand, making a total available supply of 5,946,953 bushels. But before the harvest supply can be gathered at the end of the year, Victoria will need 7,884,882 bushels of wheat for food supply, and 1,700,000 bushels for seed purposes, so that instead of exporting the state will have to import about 3,637,929 bushels of wheat to supply her own needs.

"The position in South Australia is somewhat happier, inasmuch as the crop is estimated to be enough for home consumption and to yield about which pass read as follows—4,000,000 bushels for export.

"Queensland, West Australia and Tasmania have suffered seriously and will be entirely dependent on imports, the crop being inadequate. It is estimated that fully 200,000 tons of bread stuffs will have to be imported into the Commonwealth from the United States to cover the demand. Already 15,000 tons are afloat for New South Wales, the majority coming from California. San Francisco is the national port for Australia to look to, but California flour has risen since Australian orders went to the market, and at present values are at a level, which almost precludes purchase. The effect of this will be to divert a good deal of trade to Canada, which can supply hard wheats of a class well suited to mix with California flour. During the past few days merchants here have been making enquiries in Russia and India where crops are good, and also in Argentina and Europe. While the prices may rise it is not thought likely that they will reach an abnormal level as Canada is well supplied and both grain and flour can be landed at figures which will prevent any extreme inflation of values.' '

FATE OF GOVERNMENT HANGS IN BALANCE

By-Elections in Ontario To-morrow Mean a Great Deal

MAY RESULT IN A PARTY TIE

There is Practically Nothing Talked of But Corruption—Other Issues in the Background

Toronto January 6—The fate of the Ross Government is now in the hands of the voters of three constituencies, in which by-elections are now in progress. At the general elections in May these ridings returned two Conservatives and one Liberal. All were unseated, and now the forces of both parties are working with unusual vigor to retain the seats they formerly held, and to make gains as well. It is questionable if either Mr. Ross or Mr. Whitney were to carry the entire three seats whether they would be able to conduct a government, though a clean sweep for either side will pave the way for victories in the future.

CORRUPTION THE ISSUE.

The issue of the campaign is corruption. All other topics, New Ontario, and the like, are away to the rear. Liberals fear that the cry is going to be their death knell. Hon. Edw. H. Blake's letter is bound to turn a good many Liberal votes in all the ridings, for Liberal organizers admit that it only needed a big man in the party to take a step like that of Mr. Blake, for others to follow.

TEMPERANCE INFLUENCE.

The temperance people will also be a considerable factor in these by-elections, especially in North Grey and North Norfolk, where there is much disaffection among the temperance Liberals over the referendum. E. C. Carpenter, the Liberal candidate in North Norfolk in May, is not in the field in the bye-election. A. M. Little, a strong temperance man, took his place, the purpose of the change being to keep the troublesome temperance vote in line.

Dr. Snider, the Conservative candidate in May, is again in the field. North Norfolk has been Liberal for years, and Dr. Snider was the first of any other color to sit for the riding since Confederation. He is a tireless canvasser, and has the experience of one election, which is not the case with Mr. Little, but the latter gentleman is being vigorously supported by that veteran campaigner, John Charlton, M.P.

IN NORTH GREY.

North Grey is seeing a bitter personal fight, in which both candidates are openly casting reflections on one another's character, until law suits are threatened at every county school house. Boyd, the Conservative candidate, is a popular fellow, "one of the boys," so to speak. McKay, the Liberal nominee, is young and able. McKay, it is admitted by Liberals, has made enemies since the general election. Owen Sound is the pivotal point in this riding and both parties are exerting their greatest energies in that town. McKay expects to gain there, and so does Boyd. Of all the three constituencies it is known that the Liberals are more afraid of losing North Grey than of the Conservatives holding either North Perth or North Norfolk.

NORTH PERTH DOUBTFUL.

North Perth is a debatable riding at any time. It has no long record one way or the other. John Brown, the Ross candidate, sat for the riding for one Parliament, until the last general election, when John C. Monteith defeated him. Both men live in Stratford, and in May Monteith got a majority in that city, where Brown had one before. Now the Liberals say Brown will carry Stratford. He did not pay attention to the city in the last election, because he thought he was strong there. He confined his attention to the county and gained votes, but not enough to overcome the slump in his own city. That's really the position of affairs in North Perth. The "corruption" cry is being used, of course, but the personal strength and the candidates is the great test.

The prospects, after a careful discussion of the situation with men of both parties, who know the riding, are that the Liberals will lose North Grey and gain North Norfolk. The Tories will hold North Perth, leaving both parties a tie in the province, with N. Renfrew still vacant.

COAL IS SCARCE

Mr J. H. McClellan Tells an Ottawa Paper What it Cost Him For Coal

Ottawa Citizen:—Mr. J. H. McClellan, the lead coal merchant of Peterboro, was in the city yesterday, and registered at Grand Union Hotel. To the Journal he stated that the coal situation was but little relieved in Peterborough. "It is next to impossible to get coal in any large quantities," said Mr. McClellan, "and any that can be purchased must be paid for dearly. Recently I bought a shipment of coal from the independent miners at the mines, paying $8 a ton at the mine for it. The freight on this to Peterborough is $3.25 per ton making the total cost of the black diamond $11.25 per ton. I am selling it at $12, making just 75 cents on the ton, hardly enough to pay for the handling of it."

The situation in Western Canada said Mr. McClellan, is practically the same. I know of one Brantford manufacturer who went to Buffalo and paid $15 a ton for 100 tons of coal to keep his factory going.

PERCY WIFE TRADING CASE

The Woman Was Traded Off For Gold Watch and Chain

Cobourg, Jan. 6—Geo. Reynolds, who was arrested for bigamy, is now in jail here, and has been committed to for trial.

A short history of the case is as follows:—Geo. Reynolds, of Dartford, and Annie Clark, of Campbellford, were married at Norwood in Sept., 1900. Walter Reynolds, brother of George, who it is reported had the same intentions as George, took it so bad that he considered a change of atmosphere good and went to Michigan, but, absence must make the heart grow stronger, and notwithstanding he was in a state full of grass widows, he returned home last summer. His affections for his brother's wife again got the best of him and it ended in George selling out to him. The bargain, Walter claims, was his gold watch for wife, two children (one, one and a half years old and the other two weeks) and the household furniture. The two brothers went to Roseneath and procured the license and then Walter and his sister-in-law went to Warkworth and got married. They returned and took up their residence near Dartford. Everything went well until George, after going two Sundays to visit them, was refused admission. He then went to Cobourg and laid a charge of bigamy against his wife, and Walter, for inciting her to commit bigamy. They were arrested on Dec. 10th and taken before John Miller, J.P., and were committed for trial.

TARRED AND FEATHERED

A Dastardly Outrage on a Glanford Township Farmer

Hamilton, Ont., January 5 — The residents of Glanford township, especially those who reside in the vicinity of Mount Hope, are stirred up over an unusual event which occurred there a few days ago. About a mile east of Mount Hope, on adjoining farms, reside two prosperous farmers, Christopher Hostine, and Robert Smith. Hostine is a married man, but Smith a young man about 25 years of age is a bachelor. Recently relations between the two became strained over the alleged conduct of Smith towards Hostine's wife, and a couple of weeks ago Smith was ordered by Hostine and his friends to sell out and leave the country at once if he wanted to avoid trouble. This he refused to do, and a few nights later, while he was milking in his barn, he was seized from behind thrown down and bound by a body of masked men. He was then carried over to a shed adjoining the Hostine residence, where he received a warm reception. A large pot of tar was put onto a stove and heated to a boiling point. Smith was then stripped of his clothing and a goodly coat of biling tar was applied to his body. By way of variety a few feathers were mixed with the tar, and in this condition Smith was sent back to his friends.

All of the men being masked, Smith was unable to positively identify any of them. He, thinks, however, that he recognized Hostine's voice, and also the voices of some of the latter's friends from Caledonia. The day following the occurrence he came to the city to secure legal advice, and if he can secure evidence as to who were in the party an interesting police court case may be expected.

Wiarton Beet Sugar Factory

The success of the beet sugar industry in Ontario seems assured, judging by a sample received by the Globe of the work being done by the Wiarton Beet Sugar Manufacturing Company of Wiarton. The factory is now turning out an average of 150 to 200 barrels of the very best sugar daily and expects to increase this on an early date.

GREAT BRITAIN IS ABLE TO WATCH FRANCE

Sufficiently Free Elsewhere to Keep Any Power Out of Morocco

New York, Jan. 5.—A special cable to the Post from London says:

For an empire whose chiefest interest is peace, the British Empire cannot be said to open the year well. The South African war is hardly over; at least, large numbers of troops are still needed to garrison the acquired territories; yet the British army and navy already are on the alert, if not actually engaged in or off Venezuela, Nigeria, Somaliland, and Morocco.

As regards Venezuela, the most interesting suggestion of the moment comes from a [illegible] French diplomatist in close touch with the French Ministry, who believes the futility of The Hague arbitration unless means be taken to compel Venezuela to execute the award. He suggests that The Hague tribunal be invested powers to establish an international commission of financial control, similar to that created in Greece. The commission, of course, would be temporary, and its task limited to the payment of The Hague awards, but the effect would be most wholesome upon other South and Central American States, who will act in the future under the shadow of the possibility of similar treatment. [illegible] this [illegible] of this proposal, the possible significance of it is unlimited.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS HELD YESTERDAY

Result in Town as Well as Several Places Throughout the Country

Mr. R. F. McWilliams Heads the Poll for the Council—Urquhart Elected Mayor of Toronto

The municipal elections took place yesterday, and were quietly conducted. There was little to indicate that a battle of ballots was in progress, few rigs being out, and comparatively little interest being taken. The fact that there was no contest for the Mayor's seat lessened the interest in the proceedings. The two by-laws which were voted on were snowed under in a manner that left no uncertain feeling in regard to the opinions of the ratepayers on the subject of exemption or street expenditure. So far as permanent roads are concerned, the ratepayers are evidently afraid to "trust" the work to the present management. They look around and see on all sides evidences of incompetence, and it is not to be wondered at, therefore, that a large grant of money is refused.

The defeat of Mr. Turner will be regretted by many. He was a good councillor, and was progressive to a fault. But many people blamed him for trying to secure exemption, and this, no doubt, contributed to his defeat.

NOTES.

It will be seen from the above that Mr. McWilliams headed the poll, and he is accordingly receiving well deserved congratulations. Mr. McWilliams' vote in No. 1 Ward, which is the business centre, is very flattering, and shows that he has the confidence of the business men of the town. The Times had something to do with bringing him out, and we naturally feel proud of the way he has been received.

Mr. Joseph Batten is a worthy second, and is also entitled to congratulations.

The Town has on the whole one of the best Councils ever elected in this place.

Mr. T. F. Matthews polled the biggest vote in town, and by virtue of the statute is now Water Commissioner for the next three years. Yesterday's vote not only voices the esteem and confidence placed in Mr. Matthews by his fellow citizens, but also is a [illegible] the very valuable services rendered by him during the past year as Water [illegible]

RESULT OF THE COAL STRIKE

One of the results of the great coal strike is the announcement of Senator Mason of Illinois that he will introduce to the consideration of congress a bill permitting the federal government to engage in coal mining whenever a prolonged strike ties up the ordinary sources of fuel supply. He is urged to this, he says, by the petition of more than fifty thousand residents of the State of Illinois, which he represents. He proposes that congress shall empower the attorney-general, in the name of the public, to enter a court of equity, and ask for the appointment of a receiver who in seasons of emergency shall provide for the resumption of work at the mines, pay the miners and render an accounting to the owners of the property. Senator Mason believes that congress has the right to pass such legislation under that section of the constitution known as the "general welfare" clause which authorizes it to "pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States.

Perhaps, not to say probably, when congress gets through with this bill its own father wont know it. It is not likely that the United States is ready to go into the coal-mining business, either temporarily or permanently. But Senator Mason's bill will have some popularity.

CANADA U. S.

Regarding the N.Y. Sun's statement that "We are rapidly becoming Americanized," we must emphatically and determinedly rear up on our hind legs, and talk with our front ones—without mitts. We have not read the article but have a sufficiency by perusal of the head lines.

Coming down to brass tacks, with the business end upwards, there are more U.S. people coming to Canada than there are Canadians going to the U.S.; whether the former are a desirable lot or not, time will show; whether the immigration from the U.S. is through the wrong-doers' mistaken idea immunity from arrest or not, the legal status will soon show them.

There is too much loyalty for the "Old Country" to fasten the Canadians to U.S. soil by relinquishing their nationality—leaving alone the Gallic element acclimatized here.

While there is no fear and no need of getting hysterical about it—as the starters of this rumor wish—it is proper to let our readers know what is what—

Canada is Canada and will remain Canada.

THEY OBJECT TO IMPERIAL OFFICERS

Enlisted on the Understanding That They Were to Serve Under Canadians

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—The Militia Department has received a cable from Lord Strathcona referring apparently to the Canadians serving in the South African Constabulary, who were recently reported to have mutinied. The story was that a whole troop was sent down to headquarters, and without trial, the men were summarily discharged from the service. Lord Strathcona's cable asked whether the terms of enlistment of the S. A. C. men in Canada, included a third-class 30 men were expected daily, that they had been discharged as unsuitable, that the Imperial Government was not prepared to return them to Canada, and the men were without means. These men, it is stated, enlisted on the understanding they were to serve under Canadian officers, and the alleged cause of the offence is that Imperial officers were appointed, under whom they refused to serve. If 1,000 men were raised there were to be twelve Canadian officers; 1,200 men were raised and fifteen Canadian officers were appointed. The men enlisted for five years on the following scale:—First-class troopers, $1.90 a day; second-class troopers, $1.75 a day; third-class troopers, $1.50 a day. The department is taking the question into consideration, but does not see what can be done, and it is felt that after two years' service some of the men should be without means as claimed.

A Form of Hero-Worship.

[illegible]

Hero-worship of a certain variety is no doubt responsible for the fact that the prize-fight holds its place in popular favor, despite all the reasons why a civilized and refined people should object to it. Some popular sports touch human nature so near to its innermost impulses that laws cannot prevail against them—and the combat of man to man with fists, the trial of strength, skill, and endurance between two splendid specimens of the physical animal, appears to be one of these with the people of our race. In the victor in such a trial the people whose tastes incline that way simply see a hero; and this perception, that has endured in the popular mind of our race or other races for several thousand years, will not out because of something printed on paper and called a law. Law has its limit in the modification of the lives and sports of the people; and if prize-fighting is ever looked upon by the people with disapproval it will not be because of statutory fulminations against it, but because there has come over the nature of the people themselves some profound change. Ought we really to desire such a change? asks an exchange. While it might be pleasant enough to know that all our countrymen are so far refined as to consider this combat a disagreeable and brutal spectacle, would not that state of mind imply other changes in the nature of the people altogether undesirable in a nation that has probably before it a history that may call for all the fighting instinct any people can possess?

Anecdotes of Barnum.

It may be said of P. T. Barnum that he was the Major Domo or Lord of Laughter and Fun, the protean Dispenser of Amusement. How well he became known through this function one curious incident certifies. Some years before he died, an obscure person in some remote part of Asia wrote a letter, which he dropped in the post-office near him, directed to "Mr. Barnum, America." The letter reached its destination without an hour's delay. The great showman unaffectedly enjoyed being known from the very beginning of his celebrity; and when he found his celebrity was a tremendous factor in his success, he did everything that he could think of to extend the exploitation of his name. This was not to nourish vain imaginings or because he felt exalted; it was to promote business.

Around his successive homes at Bridgeport, Conn., he was fond of putting something that suggested a show. Queerly marked cattle, the sacred cow, or an elephant, were frequently among the stock to be noticed in his fields. On one occasion he had an elephant engaged in plowing on the sloping hill where it could plainly be seen by the passengers on the New Haven and Hartford Railroad, an agricultural innovation that he knew would get notice of some sort in every newspaper in the country. It was even said that he received letters from farmers far and wide asking how much hay one elephant ate, and if it was more profitable to plow with an elephant than with horses or oxen. His replies were invariably frank, and were of this purport: If you have a large museum in New York, and a great railroad sends trains full of passengers within eyeshot of the performances, it will pay, and pay well; but if you have no such institution, then horses or oxen will prove more economical.—Joel Benton in the "Century."

A New Lincoln Letter.

When Lincoln was in Springfield practising law, he had a pass on the Chicago and Alton Railroad, perhaps because he was attorney for the company. The following letter asking for a renewal of his pass—or "chalked hat," the old slang word that Lincoln uses—was found seven years after it was written in a box of old papers belonging to the railroad, and was recently published for the first time in the "Century Magazine":

Springfield, February 13, 1856.

R. P. Morgan, Esq.

Dear Sir: Says Tom to John, "Here's your old rotten wheelbarrow. I've broke it, usin' on it. I wish you would mend it, case I want to borrow it this arternoon."

Acting on this as a precedent, I say, "Here's your old 'chalked hat.' I wish you would take it and send me a new one, case I shall want to use it the first of March."

Yours truly,

A. LINCOLN.

A ROMANCE.

ing "Fire! Fire! Fire!" He sprang up, and looking out the window saw the pretty white cottage of Mrs. L'Estrange wrapped in a winding-sheet of lurid flame.

CHAPTER XI.

Heroic Deeds.

Quite a panic ensued after the rapid reiteration of that frenzied cry of fire. The green lawn directly became alive with people who had sprung from their beds at the first alarm, hurried into their clothing and rushed out in quest of the cause. Women as well as men were seen eddying toward the burning building, which at once became the cynosure of all eyes.

"Is anybody there?" "Is it occupied?" "Is it possible to save the adjacent cottages?" These were some of the questions people anxiously asked of each other as they hurried along. No one inquired if the burning cottage could be saved. They knew that that was impossible. The flames had already gained such headway that the building was almost wrapped in flames, and the men rapidly set about measures of precaution to prevent the fire from communicating to the adjacent cottages.

And amid the wild terror and confusion a girl's voice suddenly rang out shrilly and sharply on the air:

"Oh, Heaven! Mrs. L'Estrange is in there! She will be burned to death! Will no one save her?"

People pressed forward, and saw a young girl, with frightened dark eyes and streaming hair, rushing wildly up and down before the cottage, crying out that her friend would be burned to death unless some one would go into the house and awaken her. But no one responded to those wild appeals. The venture was one too full of danger to be lightly undertaken. The woman who lay sleeping in that terrible funeral pyre was a stranger, and had been at the springs so short a time, that none had formed her acquaintance or become interested in her. Rescue seemed impossible. The bravest shook their heads in despair, and the women wept aloud at the thought of her danger.

But suddenly, while every eye was concentrated on the burning house, and every heart throbbed with the expectation of seeing the doomed woman appear amid the flames at some door or window, a slender figure was seen rushing forward toward the burning porch. The next moment the girlish form sprang with lightning speed across the fiery threshold, and disappeared in the volume of thick, black smoke that filled the hall-way.

"Hilda has gone into that awful place. Oh, Heaven, she will be burned alive!" exclaimed Florence Aylesford, excitedly.

"Be quiet, love," said her uncle, on whose arm she was leaning. "We cannot help it if she chooses to throw away her life so rashly."

She looked up at him in surprise, but he had buried his face in his hands to hide the look of demoniacal joy that overspread it when Hilda rushed into the burning building.

"Good heavens, Lady Florence," exclaimed an excited voice, "was it Hilda that rushed into yon terrible holocaust?"

It was the voice of Cecil Courtenaye. He had just reached the spot in time to see the slender form disappear through the burning doorway, and to hear Florence's shocked ejaculation.

"Yes, it was Hilda," she answered, with a terrible shudder.

"Oh, Heaven!" he cried, in a voice of anguish. "Then I will save her or perish with her."

He tore a silk handkerchief from his pocket, dipped it in a pail of water a man was carrying, bound it about his head and face, and darted impetuously forward.

Mr. Aylesford sprang forward and caught him by the arm.

"Are you mad?" he cried. "You can never come out of that terrible place alive!"

Cecil Courtenaye turned one flashing glance on the face of the inhuman father.

"Your daughter is in there," he said, with terrible sternness. "Do you wish her to perish, coward?"

He threw off the man's grasp as if he had been a poisonous viper, and sprang forward, with dauntless heroism.

The next moment the dark form was seen a moment, awfully distinct amid the leaping, serpent-like flames, and then it disappeared in the smoke of the hall-way, as Hilda's had done.

Mr. Aylesford sank upon the ground and hid his face in his hands. He knew that people would expect him to make some demonstration of alarm at the imminent peril of his only daughter, and he was willing to make that much concession to public opinion, but the face that was hidden behind the hypocritical hands was convulsed with a fiendish joy.

"Every obstacle is removed from my path at one fell stroke!" he muttered, balefully, to himself.

Meanwhile Cecil Courtenaye rushed through the black volume of smoke that filled the hall-way of the burning cottage, his heart full of sickening apprehension.

The rapid flames had not communicated with the flooring yet, but the small rooms were filled with blinding smoke and terrible scorching heat. The young man felt as if he would shrivel into ashes like a slip of paper in the dreadful atmosphere, but he ran hurriedly from one small room to the other, shouting and calling, and straining his eyes through the hot black smoke in quest of Hilda and the mysterious lady she had come to rescue.

There were but four rooms in the house. He had gone through three of them, and found them empty, and his heart was beginning to fail him when he rushed into the thick darkness of the hall again to enter the fourth one.

Blinded by the smoke and heat, he could see nothing, but as he stepped over the threshold his feet tripped over a soft body on the floor. With a cry of horror he bent down and peered into the face of the recumbent figure.

Oh, horror! it was Hilda Aylesford lying there pale and still, without a sign of life!

At the same moment he heard a loud, tumultuous cry of horror from the throng outside. It instantly apprised him that some new and sudden peril menaced him. With desperate haste he caught the slender form of the unconscious girl in his arms, and

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment; it has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mine on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunnison Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 50 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E. and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 250 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 97 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $180 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelter charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of 1000 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000

or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years........ $670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00, controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's shares common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

This company has demonstrated its ability to produce ore at a profit and pay regular monthly dividends under the most adverse circumstances. The Buying of Missouri Pacific

New York, Jan. 5.—Since the recent decline in security values which attracted the better class of investment buying, as well as the heavy support of Wall Street's shrewdest financiers, Missouri Pacific has received its full pro rata share of demand of the above character. The buying of this stock the past month has been of the very best possible character, and the shares are even yet intrinsically cheap. The earnings of the property keep most excellent, and the vast crops along its lines especially when compared to the comparatively lean one for that section of the country for the preceding year, guarantees for 1903 a most high record both gross and net. The company has been expending considerable sums in improving its line and property and this year will undoubtedly witness the birth of the greater Missouri Pacific system, which will systemize and embrace the principal railway lines of the great south-west which has been in embroyo for a year. Control of the lines desired has been acquired, and the whole matter simply appears to be awaiting the outcome of the Northern Securities Co. matter. The entire scheme is a most comprehensive and magnificent one and means vastly increased net earnings and additional prestige for the Missouri Pacific railway. The bonded debt and stock capitalization of the Missouri Pacific per mile is unusually light. It is a fact that should the business of the road fall off twenty-five per cent. it would yet earn not far in excess of the five per cent. annual dividend it is at present paying. In the days of Jay Gould the Missouri Pacific had a record of almost one hundred consecutive quarterly dividends of one and three-quarters per cent each, and it is much more able to earn and maintain such a dividend now, than it was then. The natural increase of population along its lines and the remarkable development of the industries throughout that section of the country guarantee a permanent increase in the value of the stock and very shortly an increase in the present divident rate. It is good to buy stock and lock up. Last year it sold above 125; this year it would not surprise us to see it quoted at 150. At present writing its market position is most impregnable and it promises fair to, at the moment, be something more than a fairly good purchase. We are strongly bullish upon Mo. Pacific, and recommend the stock most highly to buyers. Last Friday it sold ex-dividend, semi-annually 2 1-2 per cent, and very nearly recovered the same day. It is a good purchase upon any and every dip.

Summary—Today's market expanded materially increasing in volume of business, activity and public interest It was very strong. Around midday there was a reaction. Lower prices brought in such a volume of buying orders that the bears ceased their efforts to depress values and the market advanced rapidly. It is the best trading market we have had in a long time and a market specially safe to buy into at present. Prices are going to go much higher. We strongly urge you to open an account and participate in the chances now offering for money making. Sales 900,000. Money closed 5 1-2 per cent. To-morrow's letter, "What has been accomplished."

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $50 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings oftentimes running as high as $25 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

A Chance for Peterborough

Here is an item taken from the Globe, which might be of use to our Board of Trade. An expert in lace manufacturing, Mr. G. Ferguson of Nottingham, England, has written to the Canadian Manufacturer's Association asking what the prospects are for the establishment of a lace industry in this country. He is coming out here in May or June to see for himself.

A Narrow Escape

A young man named Samuel Fawcett, who lives in Otonabee, a short distance from the locks, was nearly drowned on Sunday. It appears he set out from the Otonabee side of the river about noon to cross to his brother Joseph's on the Monaghan side. He had ventured a considerable distance when the ice gave way and he sank. His cries for help attracted the attention of Mr. John Holmes, who resides near the river, and he hurried to the rescue. Fawcett had been in the water fifteen or twenty minutes before help arrived and he was pretty nearly exhausted when his timely rescuer succeeded in pulling him out.

Entertainment Postponed

Rev. J. C. Davidson has announced that owing to the prevalence of disease among the children of town, a conclusion [illegible] arrived at that in justice to the public interest, the Sunday School entertainment should be postponed, which was to have been held on Wednesday night. This decision had been come to after the advice of three doctors had been taken. The postponement will mean some disappointment, but this action on the part of St. John's Sunday school indicates a considerate spirit of co-operation with the civic authorities in their efforts to stamp out prevalent disease. Conditions were assuming serious proportions, and it might be advised that other institutions should follow the example set by St. John's to have the children exempt as far as possible from all danger.

The Times Returns Thanks

It remained for the Winnipeg Free Press to mark its Christmas edition in a decidedly unique manner. This great family journal is in receipt of a sample package of Pemmican, made expressly for the Free Press by the Hudson's Bay Company, at Fort McPherson, sixty-five miles within the Arctic circle, and 2,071 miles northwest from Winnipeg, which latter has always seemed far enough in that direction for comfort. From the little book which accompanies the Pemmican we learn that it is made of reindeer and is considered a great luxury up around the North Pole, but that in civilization it tastes very much like a warmed-over tallow candle. This g.f. I shall, therefore, postpone sampling the stuff until we get further away from a square meal than at present, but shall keep it in the house against emergencies, which may arise at any moment in this day of uncertain domestics and scarcity of fuel for the range.

One Common Cause of Headache

Perhaps the most general cause of headache and pain across the eyes is nasal catarrh. The simple cure is to inhale the medicated vapor of Catarrhozone which traverses every air cell and air passage of the throat, lungs and nose. It kills myriads of germs at every breath, clears away mucous discharges, preserves and heals the membrane. Catarrhozone is just a splendid remedy for headache, and its action is certain and unfailing in diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Deafness, Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh. A trial will convince the most skeptical that Catarrhozone is all right. Large size, $1.00; trial size, [illegible] Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., [illegible]ton, Ont.

HONORING LT.COL. EDWARDS

HE AND LIEUT.-COL. MILLER ARE THE GUESTS OF THE 57TH OFFICERS

Entertained at the Regimental Headquarters—Lieut.-Col. Edwards Presented with Field Glasses

The officers' rooms at the armories was the scene, last night, of a very enjoyable event, when the officers of the regiment met together to say farewell to their late commanding officer, Lt.-Col. Edwards, and to welcome their new commander, Lt.-Col. J. W. Miller, who for some time has been regimental major. The two commanding officers were the guests of the officers at a very pleasing banquet, which was a splendid success.

After the good things had been disposed of, Col. Edwards was presented with a very fine pair of field glasses. The ex-colonel was completely taken by surprise, but recovered himself and warmly thanked the officers for their kindly remembrance.

Col. Miller was warmly received and surpassed himself in a speech in which he outlined the work of the regiment for the coming season.

A short toast list was presented, at the close of which the event came to a close by singing the National Anthem.

The 57th Regiment Band was present and enlivened the time by some splendid selections.

Mr. Harry Long had charge of the tables, which were served in his usual excellent style.

A QUIET WEDDING

Mr. W. T. Hall and Miss Gwendoline Meade Are Wedded

At St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, yesterday morning a pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, when Miss Gwendoline, daughter of the late Mr. Robert Meade, became the bride of Mr. W. T. Hall, son of Mr. Adam Hall. The bridesmaids were Miss Kathleen Meade and Miss Agnes Hall, sister of the groom, and the groomsmen Mr. G. Hall and Mr. Frank Bradburn. Mr. and Mrs. Hall left on the 11.45 G.T.R. train yesterday morning for their honeymoon tour, carrying with them the good wishes of a very large number of friends, in which The Times cordially joins.

CLEARED $3,000 A YEAR

Story of Prosperity Told By a Manitoba Farmer

W. C. Robinson, of Hartley, Manitoba, well known in Peterborough, called upon Immigration Agent, J. C. Hartney at Winnipeg. Mr. Robinson is a splendid sample of the prosperous Manitoba farmer. He remarked that he settled in the prairie province twenty years ago, with a sound constitution and a willingness to work, as his sole capital stock—in fact he then had not twenty-five cents to his name. This year Mr. Robinson threshed 15,000 bushels of wheat and 7,500 bushels of other grain, the product of 900 acres of his 1,600-acre farm. Besides this, Mr. Robinson owns two threshing outfits which this fall prepared 100,000 bushels of wheat for market. He declared that now $60,000 would not buy him out—not a bad showing for twenty years' work. Mr. Robinson contends that all the grain the C.P.R. and Canadian Northern railroads can take out of the west will not make a noticeable hole in next year's crop, as with the great influx of immigration there will be a much increased acreage under cultivation next year.

"He Won't Die

Of consumption" is a remark often made of a fleshy man. The remark expresses the popular recognition of the fact that the sign of consumption is emaciation, loss of flesh. On the other hand, a gain in flesh is a sure sign that wasting diseases are being cured.

Emaciated people with obstinate coughs, bleeding lungs, night-sweats and weakness, have been perfectly cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The several steps of the cure were recorded in ounces and pounds of increasing weight. When there is gain in flesh the wasting disease is being surely cured.

Mr. Will H. Whitmire, of Arkton, Rockingham Co., Va., writes: "Our son contracted a deep cold about the first of July, 1899, and had a terrible cough. We called a doctor and he pronounced it irritation of the bronchial tubes, with asthmatic trouble, and he informed me that my son was liable to die at any time. He told me that if we could keep the bronchial tubes open he might cure him; but after treating him several weeks and my son growing worse all the time, I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I had seen several almost miraculous cures brought about by the use of these medicines, and of course I had wonderful faith in them. He used three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' at home and one vial of the 'Pellets,' and was then well enough to go to West Virginia, taking a supply with him. I am just in receipt of a letter from him from which I quote: 'I am well and hardy and getting very fleshy.'"

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

Commissioner is fully recognized by a grateful community.

Mr. W. H. Hill polled the third largest vote, and will now be Water Commissioner the next two years. The ratepayers spoke in no uncertain tones yesterday, and have done wisely in re-electing him to this important office in connection with municipal ownership of the waterworks.

The ratepayers also accepted the opportunity of retaining ex-Mayor T. H. G. Denne in official connection with the town, and have elected him as Water Commissioner for another year. The Times advocated the necessity of this step in the town's interests, and is pleased to see that its opinion has been substantially supported.

CHANGE BREAKFAST

Habit of Healthy Europeans

The sturdy Scotch, Germans, French and Italians seldom or never eat meat for breakfast.

Long experience has taught that the breakfast should be simple and not include meat.

Many Americans suffer with weak stomachs and more or less illness because they fail to understand the simple and healthful plan of a breakfast somewhat like this:—

A little fruit.

A dish of Grape-Nuts and cream.

One or two soft eggs.

A cup of Postum Food Coffee and perhaps a piece of hard toast.

A man says, "I couldn't go on that until noon."

One or two days' trial will teach him a volume of facts and make him feel "fit as a lord." There is a deep underlying and scientific reason. The best argument, however, is the actual experience with such breakfasts.

MADE BLACK PAGE IN TIME'S ANNALS

Year 1902 Noted For Awful Calamities Involving Appaling Loss of Life and Destruction of Property Reaching Millions

Disaster at Mont Pelee, Earthquakes in Cmyrna, Shamaka and Andijean and Other Happenings of Dirful Nature

New York, Jan. 6—Disasters of unusual character and direct result make 1902 a black page in Time's annals. Besides a sad list of railway accidents, great fires, serious floods, varied explosions and losses at sea, perhaps not unprecedented, rarer misfortunes of Titanic proportions befell mankind.

Seismic shocks occurred in almost every portion of the globe. Volcanoes were active synchronously and scores of thousands lost their lives in consequence of these cataclysms.

The disaster of Mont Pelee is so recent and so appalling in its extent as scarcely to need recalling. On May 8 the world was startled by the report that forty thousand lives had been lost by the eruption of lava, smoke, vapor and gas, a disaster unparalleled on this side of the atlantic. May 9 to 18 further outbursts occurred, doing more damage, and as late as September 2 two thousand more lives were reported lost in these troublous West Indies. But great losses of a similar kind fell upon Europe and Asia, too, during the last twelve months. A thousand lives were lost in Smyrna September 28; 2,000 at Shamaka, Siberia, February 14, and 2,500 to 3,000 at Andijan, in Asiatic Russia, December 17.

Taken chronologically one can better understand how scarcely a week has passed without a convulsion of nature of one sort or another.

Mexico, January 16; Shamaka, February 14; Spain France and Italy, Mar. April and May; Sicily, April 14; Mont Pelee, May 8; Guatemala, May 14; San Salvadore, June 8; Tulcan, June 12; Hawaii, June 12; Sicily, June 15; Salonica, July 5; Italy and Portugal, August 5; Skagway, Alaska, August 11; Southern California, August 12; Mindanao, P. I., Aug. 27; Adelaide, Australia; September 19; Jamaica, W.I., September 22 and 23; Mexico, September 25; Artasch, Turkistan, September 26; Smyrna, September 28; St. Thomas, Oct. 26; Guam, November 15; Jamaica, November 28; Andijan, Russian Asia, Dec. 17. In this country slight shocks were felt in Utah Iowa, California, Georgia, the New England States, and scattered points between.

All in all, the total loss of life through seismic shocks may be set down as approximately fifty thousand. The damage to property is not easily calculated, but must have run up into the millions of dollars.

While the fire losses may not have been any more spectacular than usual, the disasters due to explosions, collapses and similar accidents were out of the ordinary. This is especially true of this city. The caves-in, explosions, and what not mishaps attending the construction of the subway at once come to mind.

The explosion of Park avenue and Forty-first street on January 27 killed six outright and injured seventy-five others besides causing $400,000 damage. Coming right on the heels of the rear end collision in the Park avenue tunnel, only a few blocks away, Jan. 8, when fifteen were killed and thirty five injured, this disaster seemed all the more impressive.

Two other misfortunes occurring in one month also marked the latter part of the year. On election night, November 4, the explosion of a mass of fireworks amid a crowd of bystanders in Madison square killed fourteen and injured two more more. On the night of November 19 a rare spectacle of festoons of flames hanging over a river met the gaze of many thousands who will recall the new East River Bridge fire for years to come. No lives were lost, but $100,000 damage was done and a great municipal improvement set back nearly a year.

Other explosions of the year readily recalled are the gas works, on avenue C. on November 11; a mill at Barcelona, 60 killed, 100 hurt; February 5; an Iowa mine, 21 killed 8 injured January 24; Dupont powder works, 20 killed, March 10; a powder magazine at Madrid, 40 killed. June 26; a mine in Galicia, 16 killed, June 2; the Pittsburg railroad yards, 25 killed. 150 injured, May 12; the Daly Mine in Utah, 40 killed, July 16; Delaware pulp mills, 8 killed, August 26; coal mine Bowen Co, 16 killed, August 7; magazine Cairo, Egypt, 18 killed. November 18; and the steamship Progresso, laden with oil, San Francisco, Dec. 4.

LOSS DUE TO FLOODS.

Not less than $6,000,000 loss in 1902 in the United States was due to floods, and the total very likely exceeded this considerably. Twenty-five lives were lost early in March when the Rivers and streams of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and New England leaped their banks and did enormous damage in thickly settled localities, roughly estimated at $5,000,000. The latter part of March saw the South inundated, a dozen lives lost, and property estimated to be worth half a million dollars destroyed. On July 9 the Western States suffered equally heavily pecuniary losses from flooded streams, and on July 18, the Father of Waters augmented by many swollen tributaries, inflicted $600,000 damage through the Mississippi Valley. Early in 1902, flames worked havoc in and about New York. Probably the most conspicuous instance was the destruction of the Seventy-first regiment armory, and the burning of the Park avenue hotel, on the night of February 22, when 16 were killed and 35 injured, and a monetary loss of $550,000 dollars inflicted. Two weeks before, February 8, occurred the $10,000,000 fire, at Patterson, N.J., and still earlier in the month, February 2, Waterbury, Conn., suffered by fire to the extent of $2,000,000. Other fires memorable for loss of life or property, or both, were the burning of the steamship British Queen, at Hoboken, loss, including wharf and salvage, being $800,000; on March 19, the fire at Atlantic City, along the famous board walk, on April 3, when $1,000,000 damage was done to eleven hostleries; the somewhat similar fire at Rockaway Beach on June 4, when the damage was placed at $300,000, and four lives were lost as well; a half million dollar fire in the tobacco houses at Norfolk, on January 31; the Lindell Hotel fire, ten killed, January 28 and the Empire Hotel fire, February 9, 11 killed in St. Louis; the fire at Saratoga, on June 9, when 5 were killed; the Texas oil wells fire on October 7, when 30 were killed, and $500,000 damage done; the St. Luke's Hospital fire, in Chicago, June 9, 12 killed; the fire in the Hotel Lincoln, Chicago, December 4, 14 killed; and the factory in Chicago, on October 21 when twenty-nine lost their lives. In Boston a tenement house fire on January 28, cost ten lives, and half as many more died in St. Paul, October 21, when a large packing house was burned.

The railway statistics for 1902 will not be available for some time, but the loss of life on our railways seems not to diminish, in grievous contrast to the wonderfully safe records made by the British and Continental lines. According to the last figures furnished by the Interstate Commission the total number of lives lost, including employees, who formed at least 70 per cent, was nearly 1,500, and those injured chiefly employees, 19,000. About 1,200 collisions, omitting petty ones, occurred, and nearly 900 derailments. The total damages, aside from suits, were nearer three than two millions of dollars. In Canada the closing days of the year witnessed the awful calamity at Wanstead, when a G.T.R. express was wrecked and 28 were killed and 40 injured.

HONDURAS TO COME NEXT

Citizens Fear That England and Germany Will Pounce on it For Debt

New Orleans, Jan. 6 — Passengers from Honduras report that the people of that republic expect a repitition of the Venezuelan incident there over the English debt. A representative of the Englishmen and Germans now holding this debt is in Honduras demanding payment.

When the Honduras Government wanted to build the fifty-six mile railroad running into the interior from Puerto Cortes it floated a large amount of bonds. The bonds were taken up by Englishmen and Germans principally. The Government has never made either a pretence to pay either the interest or the principal, and the whole now amounts to about $100,000,000 which is more than the country is worth.

The bondholders are disposed to compromise. The impression, however prevails in Honduras that England Germany will take up Honduras next and force the Government to pay its debts, as the two Powers are now doing with Venezuela.

CHINESE REBELS ARE STRONG

Pekin Believes They Can Defeat the Troops

Pekin, Jan 6—The Board of Foreign Affairs now admits it is probable that Gen. Tung Fu Hsiang and Prince Tuan are at the head of a rebellion.

Members of the board say that the leaders of the rebels never left Shensi as they were ordered to do, following the Boxer revolt, and the throne was afraid to execute them or drive them into exile, believing that such action would precipitate rebellion.

Consequently the Government has been expecting to hear ever since the court returned to Pekin that Gen. Tung Fu Hsiang and Prince Tuan were leading a rebellion.

The board declares that the Government troops in Shensi are sufficient to cope with the rebels, but it is the conviction here that Gen Tung Fu Hsiang's force is superior to the Chinese troops opposing him, and that he is seeking revenge for the treatment accorded him by the Empress Dowager.

The Governor of Shensi, who reported that peace prevailed there, has been ordered to make a complete secret investigation, and his report is expected in a few days.

A report is current that Pu Chun, Prince Tuan's son who was deposed by the Empress Dowager from his position of heir apparent to the throne, escaped from Pekin some time ago, and has joined his father.

Shelbyville, Tenn., Jan. 6.—The Rev. Dr. Marks, a retired Methodist clergyman, aged 80, died today from a disease which baffled physicians of New York, Chicago and other cities. WIRELESS IN THE ROCKIES

Marconi's Experts to Make Experiments in High Altitudes

Winnipeg, Man, Jan. 6—Two experts employed by Marconi, are in this city today on their way West to arrange for a series of experiments in wireless telegraphy in the Rocky Mountains. It is said that Marconi is preparing to install a wireless transcontinental service through Canada.

It is expected by the inventor that the electrical currents in the rarified atmosphere of high altitudes may interfere with the successful sending of his messages, and it is to satisfy his mind on this account that the tests are made in the winter time when the conditions would naturally be more unfavorable.

RUN TO, NOT ON, A BANK

Swarm of Folks Eager to Make Deposits in the Bank For Savings

New York, Jan 6—A crowd that some of the bank officials estimated at 3,000 went to the Bank for Savings at Fourth avenue and Twenty-second street yesterday to deposit money so that they could draw interest from Jan. 1. Passersby began to wonder if there was a run on the bank, but as a matter of fact, it was just the reverse.

Most savings banks pay interest from Jan. 1 on money deposited within a week or ten days from that date, but the Bank for Savings is an exception. The Bank folks said it was the biggest rush they had ever had. Three men were kept busy taking in the money and the bank kept open an extra hour.

INCONTESTABLE CLAIMS

Their Settlement to Come Before Hague Tribunal Is Appealed to

Cologne, Jan. 6—A despatch from Berlin to the Cologne Gazette, says it is stated officially that The Hague tribunal has not yet been asked to arbitrate the Venezuelan dispute, because negotiations are passing in regard to prior conditions. Great Britain and Germany demand first the settlement of certain claims, whose incontestability puts them outside arbitration. Germany's claim of this nature amounts to 1,700,000 bolivars—($340,000.)

Paris, Jan. 6—A despatch from Caracas to the Matin says that Venezuela has promised to treat France's claims on the same basis as those of the allies, but has refused to promise similar treatment to Belgium, Spain and Holland.

GERMAN MARINES LANDED

Held Puerto Cabello Wharves While Ships are Seized

Caracas, Jan 6—Just about daybreak this morning 150 armed marines from the German warships Vineta and Gazelle were landed at Puerto Cabello and occupied the wharves. Commodore Sheder, the commander of the German fleet, sent a note to the American Consul informing him that the occupation was only for the purpose of protecting a force which was to seize Venezuelan ships which had taken refuge inside the harbor. This was to make the blockade effective.

The marines reembarked at 8.30 o'clock after their comrades had captured seven sloops, seven schooners, eight small boats and taken them to sea. The captured vessels are worth about $40,000.

The people remained calm while this action was in progress.

CRUEL SHOCK TO MURDERER

Notified of a Reprieve Which Was Afterward Withdrawn

New York, January 6—George Taylor, a negro, who is under sentence to be hanged next Tuesday, in the Hudson county jail, Jersey City, was notified on Friday that Governor Murphy had granted him a reprieve of two weeks. The murderer was delighted and said that he would now have time to prepare for death.

Later his lawyer, received another telegram from the Governor saying that he had recalled the reprieve, having been advised that he had no legal right to grant one in Taylor's case.

Taylor was unnerved when his lawyer, Mr. Noonan, told him of the contents of the second message. He dropped into a chair and wept bitterly. The constables on the death watch fear that he will collapse before the day of the execution.

THE NAVAL DEFENCE OF THE DOMINION OF CANADA

Mr. H. F. Still Thinks Canada Should Contribute to the Imperial Fleet

Montreal, Jan. 6.—"Canada, as Sir Frederick Borden, on behalf of the Government, has announced, is to have a naval force. Thence arises the question, What kind of naval force would be of greatest benefit to the country? Of this there cannot be the slightest doubt, for I would say, without the slightest hesitation, that if such a force is to be of any use for the defence of Canada, it can achieve that object only by remaining an integral portion of the fleet of the empire, ready to act with it wherever it may be most needed."

This was the important announcement made to a reporter to-day by Mr. H. F. Wyatt, of London, England, the special envoy of the Navy League of the United Kingdom, to Canada, Japan, Australia, and New Zealand. Mr. Wyatt today completed his tour of all the larger cities of Canada, and after pointing out his reasons for his statement, made public the most important portions of the report he would send to England.

"And I would even say," Mr. Wyatt went on to say, "that this strategic necessity of unity of naval force is perfectly compatible with the principle of Canadian autonomy. This is so because the Dominion Government can always retain the power to recall her ships to Canadian shores on the outbreak of war, if it decides that Canada is to take no part in the conflict. If, however, it is desired that Canadian participation in any naval struggle of the future should be effective, the training of the ships and crews in times of peace must be carried on in conjunction with ships of the Imperial Navy.

"At the present time the nature of naval war is such that there cannot any longer be such a thing as local defence. Austria has found this out; Canada would shortly find it out. My particular reason for saying so is that any fleet or combination of fleets powerful enough to defeat the Imperial Navy in war could have no possible difficulty in subsequently wiping out any local defence squadron which Canada for many years to come is likely to be able to raise. The real means of defending the coasts of the whole Empire is by attacking the enemy's fleet as they issue from the enemy's ports. On this account, I say again, Canada would benefit most by having her naval force form a portion of that of the Empire."

Mr. Hays on G.T.R. Accident

General Manager Declares That the Company's System is as Perfect as Any in the World

Montreal, Jan. 6.—"In answer to the statement that has been made by some experts that if the block system had been in practice on the Grand Trunk Railway, the recent accident at Wanstead would not have occurred," said Mr. C. M. Hays, general manager, to the Star correspondent, "I would point out that such is not the case. In the first place, in the Wanstead accident the block system was practically in use, for the train stopped at Watford to get an order to go further. Then again, in the accident on the Victoria Jubilee bridge the most perfect system of electrical signalling in the world is in use, and was in perfect operation. But accidents may happen as long as we must depend on human intelligence to have orders carried out. The system used on the Grand Trunk Railway is as perfect as that of any railway in the world."

Continuing, Mr. Hays pointed out how the Grand Trunk had practically done more in perfecting its system than any other railway by erecting a double track.

"Then I might go further," Mr. Hays went on to say, "and point out how the Grand Trunk has even done more in trying to assure perfect safety to its passengers than any other railway in Canada. Accidents, especially of the nature of those that have occurred recently, are most likely to happen where only a single track is in operation. The Grand Trunk has at the present time over 1,000 miles of double tracking, and by the end of the present year the entire route from Montreal to Chicago will have all the advantages to be desired from the double track system.

"But then I am not in a position at the present time to make any official statement with regard to the accidents. Not satisfied even with the verdict of the coroner's jury, we are investigating every circumstance connected with them. On this account such an announcement can only be made after I have conferred with Mr. McGuigan, manager of the railway, who is conducting the investigations."

"Would you say that the time has come when trains are run at such a high rate of speed that in order to have perfect safety the block system should be introduced?"

"No, the system at present in use on the railway is in every way as perfect as the block system. The accidents that have happened would have happened just as easily on a railway with the block system."

CHFAP FOOD, HIGH WAGES DEVELOP THE NATION

Benjamin Kidd Speaks of Reforms Necessary in South Africa

Dishonorable Men Get the Honors—Sultan Gives Pecuniary Reward to His Spies—Latest News Regarding Situation in Morocco

London, Jan. 6.—A comparison of the development of the United States and of South Africa is made in an article by Benjamin Kidd, published in the Times this morning. Speaking of South Africa, he points out that its prosperous future depends upon its rapid settlement by the largest possible white population. In order to supply the needs of rising industries the cost of living must be reduced and all existing monopolies must be abolished. Mr. Kidd declares that the most characteristic and most important result contributed to economic knowledge by the rapid industrial expansion of the United States in the last quarter of a century has been a demonstration of the remarkable potency and efficiency of cheap food and highly paid labor as a factor in national development. In South Africa, one is reminded on ever side, he says, of exactly converse conditions. Natal is one of the finest fertile of territories, like Illinois, the basis on which Chicago first achieved its world-famed prosperity, yet the eye searches in vain the vast panorama for signs of white inhabitants. Native tillers of the soil outnumber the European population twelve to one. It is simply not lack of economic wants, but the curse of cheap labor that rests on the land, he holds. It may be seriously questioned whether the much reputed cheapness of native labor will not be proved to be apparent only. He points out that Americans are said to lead the world in the matter of cheap production of goods, although wages paid to working men are on an average very much higher than those in Europe, and yet it is the constant complaint of a certain party in the United States that the workingman receives less per unit for work done than the workingmen of Europe. In other words, he concludes that the American workingman as a system, is nearly twice as efficient as his European rival. The statement that there is economy in high wages or cheapness in dear labor may sound paradoxical, but nevertheless it is one of the well established facts of the industrial expansion of the United States. It is to this example in America that the far ahead view of the interests of South Africa would commend its leaders.

Ladysmith, Natal, Jan. 7—Col. Sir Henry McCallum, the Governor of Natal made an important announcement at a banquet in honor of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain last night. He said that the Government had decided to establish a new seaport at Umhlatuzi, Zululand, and in this way connect the coast with the newly annexed territories of Vryheid and Utrecht. Thence connection would be made with the Transvaal and there would be no occasion for using Delagoa Bay, the seaport of Portugese East Africa.

A SHIP OF THE DESERT

All the inventors are not in Connecticut. One of them is in England, and he is having a ship made on wheels with which he hopes to take the place of the camel on the Desert of Sahara as a carrier of despatches and express parcels. He calls his invention a motorless motor and according to his description it consists of a frame 12 feet long, 10 feet wide at the front end, and 7 feet wide at the rear, composed of 2 1-4 inch steel tubing. At the four corners of the frame are wheels 4 feet in diameter, with iron tires 6 inches broad so that the wheels will not sink into the sand. At the forward end of the steel frame is a 4 inch bamboo mast, fourteen feet high, fitted with a silk leg-of-mutton sail having one hundred square feet sail area. The sail can be hoisted and controlled entirely by the "driver—as perfectly as the skipper controls a small sailing boat. The mast is strongly braced with wire rope and there are also braces of wire rope under the steel framework, so that it cannot sag under the greatest strain.

The brake lever at the driver's seat connects with wire ropes which run on pulleys, connecting the forward wheels in such a manner that a twist of the lever checks the speed or brings the "car" to a standstill. By means of the trade winds—which in the desert can be depended upon six months in the year—it is hoped that the car will make such speed over the sand as to render it a much better carrier of despatches etc., than the primitive camel corps or native runners.

This is ingenious. Almost as ingenious as the plan of the inventor who thinks he can make something that will act both as a boat and a flying machine.

THE FINISHING TOUCH

If South Africa isn't speedily pacified and civilized it won't be Lord Milner's fault. His South African emigration bureau for women is doing a rushing business and the agents in London are receiving thousands of applications from girls anxious to settle in South Africa. During January three parties of fifty girls each will go out under the care of a "certified matron," and a situation, with a fine chance for a husband, is guaranteed to every girl. The London committee takes every precaution to insure the safety and well-being of the emigrants who are cooks, housemaids, and children's nurses. Their wages are to be $150 a year, with an increase in prospect. Good health, and good character and experience are required qualifications. Some three hundred have already been sent, and one hundred more will go each month so long as the present active demand continues.

Good work. English men have had some influence in South Africa, but the real conquest is about to begin.

THE WRECK ON THE GRAND TRUNK

The inquest, which began last Monday, into the cause of the frightful wreck on the Grand Trunk Railway at Wanstead, wherein twenty eight persons were killed and as many more injured reveals not only the startling proof of the carelessness shown by the man or men responsible for the accident, but serves also to emphasize again the need of some change in the present system of train despatching. Sifting the evidence taken at this preliminary investigation, it is found that the wreck occurred through the failure of the operator at Watford to hear one word, namely, the word "may" alleged to have been sent by the despatcher.

MARCONI'S HOPES

It is an extraordinary prospect that Marconi opens up, with his suggestion that wireless cablegrams may yet be possible at a cent a word.

Cheap telegraphy has made all the world kin. The telegraph and cable have developed the newspaper, the newspaper has made each person the neighbor of millions of other people.

If the hopes of Marconi materialize news from other continents will become enormously cheaper than now, more available, more complete. The world will become still better acquainted with itself. The neighbors will multiply. Knowledge will be greater and more prompt. Science will be more universally in immediate accurate touch. Business will be more conveniently transacted. Public opinion will develop more rapidly and under better guidance, which will in times of crisis contribute to grease the world's wheels. It is a fast age, but Marconi hopes to touch it with a whip.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A British expedition is to be started against the Emir of Kano in Northern Nigeria, who has been doing something Britain does not seem to get quit of policing most of the earth.

The United States Steel Trust has taken a most momentous step to all industry, and a most creditable one to the trust, in its plan to enable its enormous body of workingmen to share in the manufacturing profits.

At the great Durbar in Delhi, announcement has been made that it is decided not to exact interest for three years on all the loans made or guaranteed by the Government of India, to the native states in connection with the recent famine. We conjecture that there is poignant regret in some native states that they did not get larger loans.

District Attorney Jerome of New York city has created something of a stir in the community by an announcement that a large proportion of the gambling paraphernalia which he captures in his frequent raids is "crooked," that is, so constructed as to enable the house to rob the player. The gambling houses, though always sure to win anyway, evidently are bound to make the pace very rapid.

A little more than a year ago, a wreck on the Wabash Railway, in Michigan, in which between sixty and seventy persons were killed and a hundred injured, was caused by the failure of an engineer to see, or the neglect of the despatcher, to transmit two words of an order, which changed its meaning completely. Many other serious railroad accidents in America have been due to causes very similar to the two in question. Effective steps should be taken immediately to render impossible fatal misunderstandings like those in the past between operators and trainmen.

Money in Capons.

They who wish to make money in poultry should turn their attention to caponizing. Any one with steady nerves and fair eyesight can do the work, and it is very remunerative. Begin by getting a book of instructions and a set of tools; then, after becoming acquainted with the directions, practice on dead chickens until you are expert. Learn to be quick and thorough. Chickens should be kept on short rations one whole day before the operation. It may be performed at any time after the chickens are old enough so that one may distinguish between pullets and cockerels. It does not make much difference as to the season, but I think fall is preferable. When you have learned to do the work well, you will find that you can make considerable by doing it for your neighbor, especially when they see how much more you get for capons than they can get for fowls that have not been caponized. One usually charges ten cents per fowl for caponizing.—Emma Clearwater, in Housekeeper.

Brunette and Blonde.

A ROMANCE.

made another rush through the hall. On the threshold he paused an instant, almost daunted by the awful peril of the burning porch, then with a swift, courageous bound, he cleared it and landed on the graveled path outside.

He was not an instant too soon, for at that moment the heavy, ornate roof fell in with an awful crash.

Courtenaye staggered forward a few paces, dropped his lifeless burden on the grass, and knelt beside her, too exhausted to stand.

People crowded around with restoratives, and when Hilda opened her flame-scorched eyes again, she looked straight into the anxious eyes of the young Englishman, and asked, piteously:

"Did any one save them? I mean Mrs. L'Estrange and her maid?"

He shook his head sadly, and then rumor ran from lip to lip that two women had perished in that terrible holocaust of flame.

CHAPTER XII.

A Hurried Flight.

Hilda quietly relapsed into unconsciousness when she learned of the tragic fate of the beautiful stranger in whom she took such a warm interest. She was removed to her room at the hotel by Mr. Aylesford, who appeared quite overwhelmed by her condition. A physician was summoned, and he pronounced her suffering from a severe shock to the nervous system. This combined with several painful though not dangerous burns, would be sufficient to confine her to her room, for several days. He carefully dressed the burns, administered a quieting potion to soothe her excitability, and went away, leaving her to the care of Florence and Mr. Aylesford.

Florence stood still a few moments when the physician had gone, looking down at the white face of the suffering girl. She thought she was asleep, she lay so still, the long, dark fringe of her lashes lying motionless on the colorless cheek, her black hair, scorched and thinned by the fire she had passed through, streaming loosely over the snowy ruffled pillow

"The girl is actually growing quite pretty," the blonde said to herself, with a start. "She might prove a dangerous rival some day if we remained together. But that is not to be, and I will take care that she shall never pay a visit to my English home. She must fully understand that!"

She crossed the room to Mr. Aylesford's side, where he stood looking moodily out in the direction of the glowing embers of the burning house.

"I wish to tell you something," she said, in a whisper, laying her white, jeweled hand on his arm.

"Well," he said, turning round abruptly, "what is it?"

She glanced around toward the quiet form on the bed, then back at him.

"It is this," she said, softly. "When I came up from the ball-room tonight I came into Hilda's room for her to plait my hair for the night, as she usually does. I found her lying on the floor, moaning with pain Her temple was cut and bleeding. When I tried to raise her up by the shoulders, she flinched and cried out that I hurt her. I asked her what had happened to her, and she seemed confused, and declined to tell me."

Lady Florence paused and gave him a keen glance from her pretty blue eyes, that could look very keen and penetrating when they chose. His glance wavered and fell before that look.

"What had happened to her?" said she, shortly.

"How should I know?" he sullenly inquired.

"You do know," she answered, steadily. "Tell me the truth."

"Well, then, if you must know the truth, I struck her and knocked her down!" he replied, in a low and brutal tone.

The listener recoiled before his cruel look and tone.

"Why did you do that? What had she done?" she gasped, in profound surprise.

He took her hand, and drew her nearer to him.

"Florence," he whispered, hoarsely "she suspects my secret! She dared to taunt me with it."

Florence's face whitened to a corpse-like pallor, and her eyes looked wild and frightened. She stared speechlessly into the man's stern, set face.

"Ah, you may look frightened," he said. "It is true. Sit down here Florence. I have much to say to you."

He wheeled an easy-chair to the window, and the beautiful girl sank into it. Then he brought another for himself, and with their heads very close together, they conversed a long while, both visibly excited.

"I will never give it up now," muttered the girl, clenching her white hands passionately. "Never, never, not even if I have to——"

She stopped short, and would not speak the thought in her own mind, but Mr. Aylesford understood it, and nodded his approval.

"Spoken like my own brave girl!" he said. "And indeed it may have to come to that yet, for she is terribly in the way. As long as she lives our future is menaced with danger."

"Oh, if she had but perished in the fire to-night!" muttered the girl, wickedly.

"She would have done so, but for that jackanapes, Cecil Courtenaye," said Mr. Aylesford, with a scowl. "Do you know, Florence, I believe that he is her lover?"

"Well, let him be," was the scornful answer. "I have never liked him. She is quite welcome to his love. But it is wasted on her, after all, for she dislikes the proud, conceited prig as much as I do."

Florence's words were prompted solely by pique, for she had tried hard to enlist Cecil Courtenaye in her train of admirers, but Cecil's perfect politeness was so distinctly tinctured with careless indifference that she resented it with all the petty spite of a little nature.

"I dislike the fellow as much as you do," was the answer, "and yet I am very sorry he has not been attracted by you instead of Hilda. I learned to-day from Sir Wilfred that the haughty prig, as you call him, is a distant relative of yours."

"He has never taken the trouble to apprise me of it," said Florence, with a bitterness of tone that belied her assertion of indifference.

"Yes, and I learned more," con-

Eggs and Meat.

Six large eggs will weigh one pound. As a flesh producer a pound of eggs will equal a pound of beef, says an exchange. It is true that the shells will weigh a trifle, but not nearly so much as the bones in the beef, to say nothing of the gristle, which usually accompanies the steak. About one-third of weight of the egg is solid nutriment, which is more than can be said of the meat. Practically, the egg is animal food, and yet there is no labor required like that of the butcher's to obtain it. At the prices prevailing, eggs are among the most economical articles of food, and many are quite fond of them served in one or more of the various ways possible to good cooks. It is well known that, like milk, the egg is a complete food, containing everything that is necessary for the development of a perfect animal. It is easily digested and equally as easy to prepare for the table.

It is quite true that eggs may take the place of meat on many tables, and it is also true that meat scraps, which would otherwise go to waste because they are wholly unfit for food, if fed to hens will assist largely in the production of eggs. Meat and meat scraps need not be furnished laying hens if it has to be furnished at an expense that will not justify its use. Feed the waste meat scraps to the hens and feed the eggs to yourself and children, or sell them to feed other people's children; but whatever you do, do not forget the value of the egg as a food product. There is no going behind the real value of some things, and all the fluctuations of the market will not affect the food value of an egg. They are just as valuable for food at five cents as they are at forty cents per dozen.—Farm and Trade.

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organised to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, abou 1350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 ton [illegible] re above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years	$670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's share common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

THE NEW YEAR

The New Year, or the first part of it, will more than likely witness materially increased activity in the stock market. All indications point that way. Stocks are being rapidly concentrated by the larger powers and are going to advance.

Some special issues should advance particularly sharply for special reasons; they are consequently the best to buy. We will be pleased to particularize these special stocks upon request, stating most tersely the reasons for our specific bullish opinions. It is an unusually good time at present to open a speculative account. If you contemplate so doing, or the investment of any funds for safe interest returns send for our 400-page "GUIDE TO INVESTORS" and "DAILY MARKET LETTER." We issue both gratis, and mail them free as well as a Weekly Cotton Letter.

They will enable you to be thoroughly posted upon matters marketwise, and to be well informed is not only to make money but to obviate the chance of loss. We respectfully solicit your banking investment or speculative account.

STOCK MARKETS

WHAT HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED.

Bullish Facts Having an Immediate Bearing Upon Future Prices.

New York, Jan. 7.—A few terse pointers indicating the drift of business consequently of future prices. In 1902 dividends paid were in excess of those of the preceding year by $69,000,000. the dividend record for 1903 can safely be predicted to excel that of 1902 by nearly, if not quite, by one hundred millions of dollars. The fact that most lines are earning net fully two dollars for every dollar expended in dividends and operating expenses is a most formidable factor, having a bearing upon the share market. The shortage of cars and locomotives has been keenly felt by the railways. They are working to the end of obviating this difficulty as speedily as possible. Consider the fact that the American railways expended last year in betterments over one billion dollars. Their property is intrinsically worth that much more independent of the fact that this expenditure enables them to handle more business than heretofore and much more cheaply. This is the largest amount ever expended by the American roads in one year, and it has been actually forced upon them by the wonderful prosperity of the country. It is today easier to secure $50,000,000 for betterments than $5,000,000 for new lines. The great crops of last year are an important factor upon the right side of the ledger. They indicate a continuance during 1903 of the farmer as a prime mover in the country's prosperity. The great staple crops have made him an unusually important consumer; in some instances an actual investor. Rich farmers are the basis of prosperity in any section. Our gain in cotton has been phenomenal today. We are supplying seventy three per cent. of the world's consumption of this important staple. Prices have been good also. It has materially advanced the resources and consumptive power of the South. We will to-morrow call your attention to more important factors, all of which are an augury for good in considering the outlook for the current year.

R. I. and B.R.T. led today's advance with Southern Pacific a close second. We have very recently advised most urgently to purchase any of these three issues, as well as purchases of St. Paul, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, and Missouri Pacific. The entire market is going to do still better. Pressed Steel Co made a new high price, selling up to 65. U. S. S. all were higher, while copper and sugar were both bought up by inside interests. The reaction in the market appears to be as far distant as ever; occasional point set-backs being all that occur. We recommend the purchase of both railway and industrial issues on these dips. Trust our tip to buy St. Paul immediately proved of value to you. Money closed 5 per cent. Sales 1,287,900.

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines, and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $50 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $35 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Price is now 25 cents a share, and we offer 50,000 shares at this price, but it may be advanced by January 1st, 1903, to 50 cents a share.

The members and friends of the Circle are invited to attend.

Victim of Fever

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Leahy, of Douro, will deeply sympathize with them in the great loss which they have sustained through the death of their son, from scarlet fever. The disease was of a virulent type, and carried the little fellow off in spite of all that physicians could do to prevent it.

Too Many Teachers

In speaking of the over abundance of teachers the Campbellford Herald says: "Although beggarly salaries are paid a great number of teachers in country places, there is an army of them still in the field either without a school or looking for a change of locality. As an evidence of this we find a vacancy in a certain school there were seventy applicants and last week the School Board of Havelock received fifty-one applications for a position in the public school of that village."

Trooper Brace Coming

Trooper Brace, of the Third Mounted Rifles, has been touring Ontario telling his thrilling story of the war, and will be in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Monday evening, January 12th, under the auspices of the gymnasium classes. Trooper Brace has been greeted with crowded houses everywhere and his story is simply captivating. Lieut. Col. Miller has kindly consented to take the chair at the lecture. Trooper Brace will address the Men's Meeting on the Sunday preceding.

SMALL MONEY

What a Quarter Did

The person who uses the brain and nerves actively needs food to rebuild them and replace the waste, and should not rest on stimulants. Coffee excites these organs so they cannot get the necessary rest and nourishment and steadily tears them down, then other disorders follow.

"I am under a constant nervous strain, as I have 62 girls under my care," writes a school teacher from Knoxville, Tenn.

"I suffered terribly with indigestion and nervousness in its worst form, and paid out hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. Many of my friends advised me to quit coffee and use your Postum Food Coffee, and I tasted it once and it was something horrible. Some time later I met a friend who wished me to try a cup of Postum and her manner was so convincing that I finally tasted the Postum to please. Great was my astonishment to find it so different from what I had drunk before and I immediately asked how the difference in taste was brought about and I discovered it was simply that the first I had was only boiled a minute or two, whereas 15 minutes boiling brings out the delicious flavor and food value, so I determined to use Postum in the future, following the directions carefully, and have done so ever since.

"My indigestion has entirely left me, my nervousness gone, and I now feel bright and well after the most tiresome day in the school-room. A little 25-cent package of Postum did me more good than the hundreds of dollars I paid for doctors and medicines." Name given by Postum Co. Battle Creek, Mich.

PETERBOROUGH TURF CLUB

What the Canadian Sportsmen Says to The Club

In the Canadian Sportsman of Dec. 19, appears portraits of Mr. R. J. Munro, Treasurer of the Peterborough Turf Club, and Mr. A. Rountree, the Secretary, with the following flattering notices.

The portrait of Mr. Munro is a faithful likeness of a gentleman, who for 11 years was one of the popular hotel keepers of Lakefield and since then he has enjoyed equally popularity in his big hotel at Peterboro'. Aided by his zeal and influence the Peterboro Turf Club has been established, of which he is the Treasurer. The meeting given by them last summer was a thoroughly enjoyable one, and it looks as if the future of the Peterboro Association would be decidedly successful.

Mr. A. Rountree, Secretary of the Peterboro Turf Club, is also a popular hotel keeper. One fond of a good horse and equally fond of all classes of legitimate sport. In the position occupied by him in the Turf Club he is evidently the right man in the right place.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Ex-Mayor F. C. Taylor, of Lindsay, was in town yesterday on business.

—Mr. Sim Morrison, who is at present staying in town at one of the hotels, is a son of a former Mayor of Toronto.

—Mr. A. G. Gillespie, of the firm of White & Gillespie, is in Brockville to-day on business, and will attend the Dairymen's Convention at Ottawa which opens there to-day.

—The many friends in Peterborough of Mr. W. H. Biggar, of Belleville, will be pleased to know that he has been appointed assistant counsel of the Grand Trunk Railway, with his headquarters at Montreal.

—Mr. and Mrs. Rye, and infant child, left on Monday for their home in Toronto, after spending the holiday with Mrs. Rye's mother, Mrs. I. Robinson, town.

—Mr. Fred W. Palmer and son, mason, of Wheatland, N.D., are in town, the guest of Mr. Palmer's sister, Mrs. Geo. W. Hall. Mr. Palmer left Peterborough about 25 years ago and naturally sees a new town where the old one once stood. He is engaged in farming extensively.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Harrington, of Toronto, recently married in the Queen City, are visiting the bride's father, Mr. A. H. Smith, 23 Stewart street. Mr. and Mrs. Harrington leave for Toronto this afternoon via the C.P.R.

C. P. R. LAND SALES

Record Receipts From Sale of Railway Lands

The Canadian Pacific Railway, besides splendid traffic receipts, had heavier receipts last year from land sales than ever before. The sales for the month of December totalled 677,482.61 acres for $1,053,289.45, as against 121,151.16 acres for $408,261.78 in 1901. For the year of 1902 the sales were 2,420,000 acres for $8,140,000, against 681,922 acres for $2,640,000 in 1901. The increase in acreage sold is therefore 1,589,000 acres. The returns not only enrich the Company, but give promise of such development in the Northwest as will add materially to the productive resources and trade of Canada.

A Five Dollar Bill

On Monday morning when George Cochrane, agent of the Children's Aid Society, opened the door of his residence, he found on the floor a five dollar bill, with the request that it be placed to the credit of the Children's Aid Society. This is not the only money that has come to the Society from anonymous givers. Mr. Cochrane says he has received over $50 in this way during the past fortnight.

Will Leave Peterborough

Mr. J. W. Garvin, who came to Peterborough some years ago to fill the position of local school inspector, and subsequently went into the life assurance, is about to take his departure for Detroit, where he will remain. Mr. Garvin since his coming here has been associated with the local militia, and has also devoted some attention to politics. The fact that West Peterborough is still in the cold shades of opposition in the Ontario house, is no fault of Mr. Garvin, who did his best to win it over to the Conservatives a few years ago, but was short a thousand or so when the votes were counted. His friends in Peterborough will wish him well in his new home.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

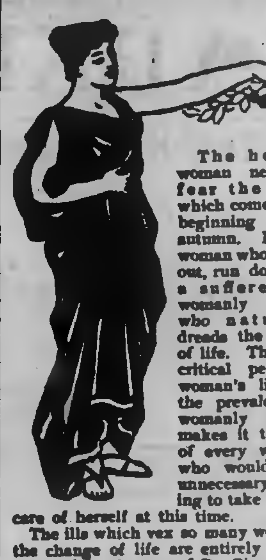
—The light fall of snow yesterday improved the sleighing.

—The funeral of the late Mrs. G. G. Pope, 700 Water street, took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence.

—Yesterday being the Festival of the Epiphany, four masses were celebrated in St. Peter's Cathedral, at 6, 7, 8, (sung by His Lordship the Bishop) 9 and 10 o'clock, the latter being High Mass.

—The members of Court Queen are reminded of the meeting to-morrow night in new hall, over vacant store, formerly occupied by Messrs. Simons & Co.

—The members of the Peterborough Fortnightly Club, and the public in general, are reminded of the lecture under the auspices of the club, to be given in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Thursday, Jan. 15th, by Hon. J. W. Longley, Attorney-General, of Nova Scotia. Mr. Longley's subject will be "Men I have Met."



The healthy woman need not fear the change which comes as the beginning of life's autumn. It is the woman who is worn out, run down and a sufferer from womanly diseases who naturally dreads the change of life. This is the critical period of woman's life, and the prevalence of womanly diseases makes it the duty of every woman who would avoid unnecessary suffering to take especial care of herself at this time.

The ills which vex so many women at the change of life are entirely avoided or cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong, and enables the weakest to pass through this trying change with the tranquility of perfect health.

"I have been a very healthy woman, and this time has been very hard with me," writes Mrs. Maggie Morris, of Munson Station, Clearfield Co., Pa., Box 18. "I am come to the time of change of life, and I have been sick a great deal off and on. When Mrs. Hemmis moved beside me I was sick in bed, and when she came to see me and we were talking over our sickness, Mrs. Hemmis told me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' also 'Pellets.' I got her to bring me a bottle of each from the drug store and I used them. They did me a great deal of good, and I got two more bottles of 'Favorite Prescription.' I never saw such a wonderful cure. Before I commenced your remedies I was good for nothing; was in such misery I hardly knew what to do with myself, now I can do all my work myself and feel well."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are easy and pleasant to take.

MACKENZIE AND MANN SECURE CONCESSION

Are Reported to be the Holders of Untold Riches in Venezuela Which Cannot Be Touched

Property Covers 11,000,000 Acres on Which are Groves of Rubber Trees and Immense Deposits of Gold, Iron, Copper and Many Other Minerals

New York, Jan. 7 — The World newspaper makes the following announcement

A few months ago the greatest and most valuable concession ever obtained in Venezuela was taken over by a big Canadian syndicate known as Mackenzie & Mann, a railway and contracting firm. The concession covers a large slice of the famed Itatima gold fields, said to be the richest in the world, and it is a curious turn in the wheel of fortune that it should now be in British hands, for only a short time ago part of its rich grounds by the settlement of that other boundary question between Venezuela and England, was lost to the Orinoco company and passed into British territory.

The concession covers 11,000,000 acres, and on it are great groves of balata rubber trees, besides untold deposits of gold, iron, copper, and many other minerals whose riches, though well proved, have never yet been half uncovered. So far as can be learned to date Barima has gold fields that excel the richness of Alaska and the Youkon sands, and though beneath the blazing tropics, present even greater difficulties of working than do the frozen areas of the north.

Like that other great concession in the same quarter of the globe, the Trinidad concession, it, too, is rich in asphalt, an unusually fine deposit being on the island of Pedernales, which lies within the confines of the Orinoco company's great tract. This asphaltum experts have declared, is much more pure and of higher grade than any of its competitors in the market, being ready in its native state both for the market and for use. The right of working these deposits was granted nearly two years ago to the United States Paving company, a syndicate formed in the United States for the special handling of the Pedernales product, which is run into tankships specially built for the service and carried to New York.

HARD ROAD TO WEALTH.

The whole history of the concession is a strange one. Obtained in the first place by an American named Campbell, he was without the means of developing or working so enormous a project, and so gladly sold his big white elephant to Donald Grant, of Faribault, Minn., a well known capitalist and railway contractor. Then Donald Grant, with T. B. Clement, president of the First National Bank of Faribault, and others, formed a company and became directors of the Orinoco Concession company, with headquarters at Faribault. About 1899 the value of the concession becoming known in New York, a company, of which Fred Corning, of financial fame was to be president, was formed, with offices at No. 11, Broadway. But for some reason these plans never matured.

In the meantime the company was disturbed by the claims of a man named Turnbull, who asserted rights to the Imataca iron mines, which lay within the big concession. This was a small portion of the concession, but the apparent design was in some way to make good a bigger claim than simply that about the iron mines. Turnbull, who, like the others interested, was an American, claimed the title to the Imataca mines by virtue of some right which he asserted had been granted the first husband of his wife. His claim led to a series of small and unimportant suits, settling one petty right or another, sometimes in favor of Turnbull, and sometimes in favor of the Orinoco company.

DISPUTED OWNERSHIP.

But Turnbull was not content with gaining what he sued for, and he procured a most remarkable forgery, in order, so the company declared, to cast a cloud upon its title, with what object can only be surmised.

Investigation soon clearly brought out the fact that the dispute was one of ownership between American citizens, and that Turnbull had no standing as a British citizen. Thus the matter simmered down with the Orinoco company still in possession.

Several times the Venezuelan concessions have been reported as cancelled by this or that dictator or revolutionary chief who has managed to obtain a temporary and unfirm grasp upon the presidential chair. The Trinidad company's concession was so reported several times. The only way in which such rumors could effect these great concessions was by impairing their standing temporarily among the ill-informed. Nevertheless, the Trinidad people took the trouble to prove conclusively that the power of cancellation lay beyond the whim of the dictator or any Venezuelan government.

NO LACK OF MONEY.

Mackenzie & Mann, the new holders of the property, are well known up in Canada as a big contracting firm. Raised to the rank of millionaires by Canadian Pacific railway construction, they have since been prominent in many other fields—street railways in the towns of Canada and the cities of England have been absorbed and rebuilt by them. Mines in different parts of the country have been developed by their men. Best known in New York as the promoters of the second Canadian road across the continent, the Canadian Northern, of which about half is already constructed, they have long had at their back untold sums of British capital ready for investment in whatever enterprise they may undertake.

What may be their intentions in regard to the immediate development of this principality as yet is unknown. They they have been fully impressed with the great value of its products there is no longer doubt. It is quite certain that the concession is one of enormous riches, of incalculable value of untold wealth, but its development is a terrible undertaking. A tropical climate must be faced, hot pestilential and breeding gnats, flies, reptiles and things with wings and stings innumerable. Worked by the natives the richest product amounts to nothing. One hour's work, followed to two hours' rest is the prevailing custom among these people. Magnificent forests, virgin and almost impenetratable, lie waiting for the axe. The rubber trees alone offer fabulous returns, while untold quantities of mahogany and other splendid hardwoods of the tropics await the harvest of the lumberman.

FIFTEEN MILLIONS FOR NEW YORK CITY

Gothamites Say That This will be City's Population in 20 Years

A BRIGHT PICTURE OF THE FUTURE

The Fifty Million Dollar Tunnel—Enormous Sums to be Spent on Improvements in Next Seven Years It is Said—Skyscrapers of Towering Buildings—Mr. Carnegie Will Probably Have Greatest Residence in the Gotham of 1910

New, York, Jan. 7—Pictures of the New York of 1910 are beginning to form in the minds of the millions here an especial stimulus having been given to this pleasant occupation by the granting of the franchise for the Pennsylvania railroad's $50,000,000 tunnel across the island of Manhattan.

Enormous sums are to be spent on other improvements in the next seven years. Instead of one bridge, there will be three or four across the East River to Brooklyn. Underground trains will be rushing about from one end of the island to the other. The immense terminal station of the Pennsylvania, covering four blocks, and closing streets will be completed long before 1910.

A dozen great new hotels will be built and probably the beautiful Theater of the Nation which Richard Mansfield hopes to see established and endowed, with himself as the presiding genius. Thousands more of homes or dwellings will have been crowded off the island by business or apartment dwellings, and there will be several additions to the number of vast department stores. Wanamaker's will cover two full blocks, instead of one, as now, and be the largest. It will have a special entrance from a connection with the underground railrailroad. Ten-story schoolhouses, steel, glass and iron sky-scrapers, with nothing but the books to burn, are among the possibilities forced into consideration by the fearful jamming together of people on the island of Manhattan. A few old, neglected, neighborhoods away down near the down town business centres, within walking distance of the city hall, may be restored to some of their former favor by the erection of elegant apartment houses in the place of the old dilapidated mansions. Real estate men, mindful of the frightful jams on the elevated lines and the surface cars, and having doubts as to much relief when the underground trains begin to run, are very seriously considering suggestions from would-be tenants to make the experiment of apartments at $40 to $100 a month in several good old downtown centres of fashion 60 years ago, overlooked in the mad rush of homeseekers uptown. The crush on the elevated has simply become unbearable at certain hours, and something must be done to relieve it.

And so it will be, the New York of 1910—a shapeless, disorderly mass of towering business blocks, apartment houses, hotels, vast stores, enormous railroad stations, elevated and underground trains, its streets, mostly narrow, crowded with traffic; its millions of wokrers, high and low, pouring in each morning over bridges, on ferries, underground, overhead and on the ground, choking the narrow lanes between the tall office buildings until they are nearly all stowed away in them. Then pouring out for luncheon and back again, then rushing, hordes and myriads of them, to their apartments, boarding houses, hotels, and homes, up town and in Brooklyn, Hoboken, Jersey City, and the hundreds of suburbs in all directions. Some persons predict a population of 15,000,000 for New York and its suburbs within twenty years after the Pennsylvania and other tunnels are completed, and projected great increases in facilities for rushing crowds in and out of town, to and from business are completed. If this prediction is correct, the congestion of human beings at certain points in New York at certain hours or on the occasion of some great public demonstration, will be something terrible to contemplat.

The project of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's new station is typical of New York in 1910. The station, four entire squares, will rise fourteen stories, and the squares are much larger than blocks in Minneapolis. The station proper being all underground, all the vast structure above the ground will be at the company's disposal for other purposes. Besides offices of the road there will be, among other things, a hotel, a theatre, a roof garden and a concert hall. Work on this monster epitome and sample of New York of 1910 will begin at once.

Unless the unexpected happens, and some Vanderbilt, Rockfeller or Morgan builds a palace to outstrip all others, Andrew Carnegie will have the greatest residence in the New York of 1910. The mansion is now virtually completed. It occupies half a block. The ground extends from street to street on Fifth avenue, but only half way from Fifth avenue to Madison avenue. The plot is not more than half as large as that of the Washburn residence in Minneapolis, and yet not even the Cornelius Vanderbilt mansion at the Plaza occupies as much land. That has a frontage from fifty-seventh to Fifty-eighth street on Fifth avenue, but its depth is about half that of Mr. Carnegie's plot. Along the side of Mr. Carnegie's land, and towards Fifth avenue, extends the house, a rectangular structure of brick, chiefly, about four stories high. It is rather plain, though imposing. In front of it is his wide lawn and some trees, evergreens, flowering shrubs, and other ornaments, a pretty place in summer for a garden party, with Central park just across the street. The house stands on the highest point of Fifth avenue and the liberal use of the most expensive residence real estate in the world proclaims to New Yorkers who well know the enormous value, that the owners must have millions that he does not need.

Boers Show Passive Loyalty

They Cannot Grasp the South African Situation from a British Standpoint

London, Jan. 7.—With reference to the attitude of the Boer leaders towards the visit of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, the Times correspondent at Pretoria says that they have so far shown no more than passive loyalty which Mr. Chamberlain referred to during his visit to Natal. They cannot grasp the situation from a British standpoint. There still remains a feeling that they have handed over the country to British Government and are consequently entitled to have few requests granted. British sacrifices have been persistently ignored, the correspondent continues, and the Boers cannot see the disinterested nobility of British action in settling the country hitherto. The Boer leaders do not seem to recognize the futility of trying to reopen negotiations on the basis which might have been tenable before the war. Mr. Chamberlain has held out the hand of friendship consistently since his arrival in South Africa, but any attempt to reopen the Vereeniging conference will only postpone the settlement of the country. On the whole, however, the correspondent believes that it may be expected that the Boer deputation which will wait on Mr. Chamberlain will be less importunate and more amendable to reason than the Boer leaders were in London.

Constantinople, Jan. 8.—Great Britain's protest against the permission granted in September last to four unarmed Russian torpedo boat destroyers to pass through the Dardanelles into the Black Sea, under the commercial flag of Russia, will, it is believed, be followed by similar action on the part of Austria-Hungary and Italy, while Germany and France will remain aloof. Germany's aloofness is in consonance with her traditional policy not to embarrass the Porte, while France, naturally, abstains from acting against the interests of her ally, Russia.

London, Jan. 8.—Approval of the action of the British Ambassador at Constantinople is being shown here, since he protested against the passage of four Russian torpedo boats through the Dardanelles. It is merely farcical for the St. Petersburg Government to contend that the vessels were stripped of their armament and carrying a commercial flag, were thus entirely changed in character. This is not the first time that evasions of the same kind have been practised, and on similar pretexts. Warships, when smuggled through the Straits are represented by the Russian authorities either as harmless merchantmen or transports conveying home time-expired troops. There can be no doubt that such expedients are in conflict with the spirit of the convention of 1856 and the treaty of 1871.

THREE LIBERALS ELECTED IN THE BYE-ELECTIONS

A Clean Sweep in the Three Constituencies by the Ross Government Yesterday

Mr. Ross Now Has a Majority of Five Members in the House

The Liberals are Everywhere Jubilant, While the Conservatives are Dejected

The bye-elections yesterday resulted in a complete victory for the Ross Government, all their constituencies going Liberal. This was unexpected, even by the friends of the Government, who hoped only to secure two out of the three seats. The parties now stand as follows:

Total number of members	98
Ministerialists	51
Opposition	46
Seats vacant	1

It will be seen from the above that Mr. Ross has now a majority of five, which will probably be increased to six when the vacancy in North Renfrew is filled. This would give the Government a clear majority of five after providing a speaker.

At the general elections in May the result was as follows:

North Norfolk, Conservative, majority 23.

North Perth, Conservative, majority 2.

North Grey, Ministerial, majority 5.

THE LATEST RETURNS

Toronto, Jan. 8, 2 a.m.—The following is the result of the polling yesterday:

NORTH NORFOLK, Little, (Liberal) has 55 majority, with 2 places to hear from.

NORTH GREY, McKay, (Liberal) has 278 majority.

NORTH PERTH, Brown, (Liberal) has over 161 majority.

ANOTHER LITTLE WAR FOR BRITAIN

Emir of Kano May Give King Edward Some Trouble

Britain's Splendid Work for Mankind in Policing the World

London, Jan. 6—England will soon have another war on its hands, and it may prove to be as difficult an undertaking as the operations against the Mad Mullah. The Emir of Kano, one of the important Mohammedan rulers in North Nigeria has recently given many evidences of hostility to the British and a force will soon be sent against him.

The base of operations will be at Zaria—about 150 miles southwest of Kano—where there is a strong garrison. It is estimated that between 400 and 600 troops of the West Africa frontier force will be employed.

The Emir of Kano has large forces of horsemen at his command and severe fighting is possible. As early as October he began to make preparations for hostilities. His capital is surrounded by an ancient wall, forty feet high and fifteen miles in circuit.

His capital is about 250 miles south west of the city of Sokoto. Kano Province is estimated to contain half a million inhabitants, and has, from its beauty and wealth, been called the "Garden of Central Africa." The capital has a population of 30,000.

It has always been foreseen that, as the British effective occupation of the country advanced northward to the Anglo-French boundary, the powerful emirs of Sokoto, Kano and Gano would have to be dealt with, but it was hoped that they would quietly acquiesce in the new order of things. In case of Sokoto and Kano, there has been no evidence of friendliness. The Emir of Gando, who is the second most important Mohammedan ruler, has recently promised that his country country would be kept open to all.

APSLEY.

—For the first time in the history of the world—I mean the Apsley world—the Reeve and Councillors were elected by acclamation, while Chandos was in the midst of an exciting contest for the Reeveship, the first since the Township became a municipality, with the result that Mr. D. S. Campbell is elected to fill the chair for the ensuing year.

—We are having an epidemic of measles up here. Quite a number of the grown people have them as well as the children. It broke out in the lumber camps, but so far there has been no serious results.

—Weddings are the order of the day. Mr. Henry Hubble and Miss Mary Campbell, of Chandos, were married on Christmas Eve; Thos. Staples, of Burleigh, and Miss Effie Gerard, of Chandos, on New Year's eve; Andrew Pattison and Miss Julia Hales on New Year's Day—a good beginning for the year, and we wish them all happiness.

—The village population is increasing—Mr. Fred. Young was presented with a fine young son on New Year's morning.

The new church boasts of a bell, which was put in place in the tower on New Years day, and will perhaps bring the faithful to service on time. Just the same, it's hard for the members of another church here to be on time, although the bell rings promptly but one member was early on Christmas morning to the surprise of Burleigh.

The stores are doing a rushing business; Tommy is kept busy hauling up goods from Lakefield and Peterboro, and is keeping up to the times.

—There is some talk of building a new post office as the present accommodations are limited.

—The boys who were home from camp for the holidays, have nearly all returned to work again. Wages are good.

—Timber of all kinds is in great demand; Messrs. Lillicrap & Tait, and the Rathbun Co. are buying all kinds giving good prices.

—The Band of Hope will give their annual entertainment Thursday evening, 8th inst.

TWINS NOT BORN IN SAME YEAR

One Came on December 31, 1902, and the Other on Jan. 1, 1903

Chicago, Jan. 7.—A difference of about three hours in the birth of sisters has led to the strange situation of twins having birthdays on different days and different years. Mr. and Mrs. John Stift, 120 Sheffield avenue, are the parents of the twins, and every one in the neighborhood is commenting on the curious circumstance. One of the twins was born at 10.30 p.m. on the last day of December, 1902, and about an hour and a half after midnight the second child was born! Her birthday is therefore January 1, 1903.

THE STREET RAILWAY

A Representative of American Capitalists Making Inspection

A gentleman, representing American capitalists, is in town, inspecting the roadbed and plant of the street railway, with a view to its purchase. To a Times reporter he said that there was nothing for publication. He refused to disclose his name, and simply said that he was here in the interests of gentlemen living in the United States, who would probably purchase the property if satisfactory arrangements could be made.

Mr. Shook, President of the Company, drove the visitor to Chemong Park, and other points. It is to be hoped that so valuable property will not long remain dormant.

A SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

Was the Dance Given by the C. D. A. in the Forester's Hall

One of the most successful social events of the season was the dance given in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the C.D.A. There was about 100 young people present, the married people being confined to the patronesses and their husbands. Mr. Harry Long, with his usual ability, successfully catered. The handsome hall was tastefully decorated

The patronesses were: Mrs. R. H. Bradburn, Mrs. E. M. Pousett, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. T. A. S. Hay and Mrs. A. H. Stratton. The Hon. Secretary of the dance was Mr. George B. Revell.

ELEPHANT KILLING

Topsy the Terror of the Zoo Was Electrocuted—She Weighed Four Ton

New York, Jan. 7—Several hundred people witnessed the execution yesterday by electricity at Coney Island of "Topsy," an elephant who had killed three men and had recently become unmanageable. Immediately after 200 grains of cyanide of potassium concealed in a carrot had been administered a current of 6,600 votes was turned on through copper plates on which the elephant stood. Almost instantly the elephant fell, and at the end of ten seconds, when the current was turned off, was pronounced to be dead. An autopsy showed that the poison had not had time to take effect. The execution was conducted under the supervision of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. "Topsy" was about 35 years old and was the first baby elephant exhibited in the United States, she being brought there by Adam Forepaugh 28 years ago. She was nearly ten feet high and weighed about four tons.

IRISH LAND CONFERENCE

Meeting Between Tenants and Landlords was Harmonious

London, Jan. 7—The report of the conference between Irish landlords and tenants has been issued. The proceedings were very harmonious. The report, which is signed by Lord Dunraven, the chairman; John Redmond, M.P.; William O'Brien, M.P., and all the other members of the conference, declares that the only satisfactory solution of the land question is the abolition of dual ownership and the substitution of an occupying proprietary.

It is proposed that an equitable price be paid to selling owners, based on their incomes as represented by "second term" rents, this proposal being aimed to induce sellers to continue residing in Ireland. Other inducements are also specified. The report recommends a method of payment for purchasing tenants which will secure a reduction of from 15 to 25 per cent in rents. It advises State help in order to enable new occupiers to start well, and to pay their installments as they fall due.

Other recommendations deal with evicted tenants and the housing of laborers.

London, Jan. 7—Though British emigration returns are admittedly defective it is noteworthy, that those issued today for the past 12 months indicate increased emigration to Canada of 60 per cent., the totals being 1902, 67,712; 1901, 42,20[illegible].

Emigration to the United States increased 23 per cent., and to South Africa, 25 per cent. Emigration to Australia declined 2 per cent.

AMERICA IS ADVISED TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Senator Elkins Says That Fifty More Battleships are Needed by United States

New York, Jan. 7—A Washington despatch is as follows:

"We should build 50 more battle ships before we talk about paring down our naval appropriations," said Senator Elkins today, while discussing the proposed expansion of the navy in connection with the Venezuelan situation. "We should make liberal provision for four or five new battle ships at the present session, and, if I understand the sentiment among the members of the Senate, we are going to get a substantial increase.

"I do not wish to pose as an alarmist," continued Senator Elkins, "nor do I pretend to be familiar with the diplomatic and court intrigues of Europe. As a practical business man, however, I know that Germany is a bold, aggressive and progressive nation. Germany believes in expansion of territory, as well as broadening her commerce, and she has built a large navy and maintains a large standing army to look after her interests in all parts of the world.

"It is idle for us to close our eyes to the possibility that we may, sooner, or later, become involved in a war with one of the great Powers of Europe, as a result of our new policy of territorial expansion. We might as well look the situation squarely in the face and be prepared to defend our interests and assert our rights in all parts of the world."

Belleville, Jan. 7.—Belleville's O.H.A. intermediate team played all around Varsity last night in the exhibition game played here. The Collegians played a pretty game enough, but they could not skate fast enough to keep up their end, and the heavy locals banged them around almost at will. In the first half the play was more even, the score at half-time being 6 to 1, but in the second half the college boys hardly had a look in at all, the final score being 16 to 3. The teams were:

Varsity—Carruth, goal; Evans, point; Wright, cover point; Housser, rover; Wood, center; Dillabough, Caulfield, wings.

Belleville—Winchester, goal; Wallace, point; Brown, cover point; McGuire, rover; Burrows, center; Marks, Kennedy, wings.

Referee—Ernie Ford.

Ayr, W.O.H.A. team defaulted to Galt Tuesday night, owing to the senseless smallpox scare. A Preston team substituted. Galt won, 10—4.

Probably a course in hockey might be added to the Varsity curriculum with advantage.

Belleville now wants to play hockey with McGill. They have beaten both Queen's and Varsity, the Intercollegiate Union seniors, and want to make it a clean sweep.

APPENDICITIS CASES

Extraordinary Number of Patients in England Since King was Sick

London, Jan. 6—The busiest men this Christmas have been the doctors. There has been a great deal more influenza about than has been known in December before, because the influenza fiend does not usually make a determined attack till the turn of the year.

But people in high life, at any rate, are more concerned at the prevalence of appendicitis than of influenza. Since the King had it, or rather what is called perityphlitis, it is extraordinary the number of people who have been attacked.

A physician, in speaking about this recently, said: "The idea that appendicitis is merely a fashionable disease, like many a popular notion, is quite a fallacy. It is an ailment which is prevalent at the present time among both rich and poor. Nor is the general belief that it is a new disease manufactured by modern surgeons any more correct.

"Only recently, during some excavations in Egypt a mummy was brought to light upon which the doctors made further excavations. At this strange post-mortem it was discovered that the cause of death, at least two thousand years before, must have been appendicitis."

As to the cause the doctor told me strange things, as that appendicitis may sometimes be caused by the imagination.

There is not the least doubt that appendicitis is increasing by leaps and bounds. A glance through the reports of three of London's hospitals—St. Thomas', St. Bartholomew's and Guy's—reveals a state of affairs which looks rather alarming. In 1890 only thirty-eight cases of appendicitis were treated, but in the year 1900 there were 382 cases treated at these hospitals. Out of these 382 cases only ten had fatal outcomes after the patients were surgically treated.

Sir Frederick Treves, the greatest authority on the subject, has performed more than one hundred consecutive operations successfully. There seems therefore no reason for the fears of a gentleman mentioned in an article in the Guy's Hospital Gazette. This unfortunate individual is occasionally seized with violent attacks of colic when he is unable to give a coherent account of his condition. He has therefore had written across his body in indelible ink, "Please don't operate, as I have had my appendix removed three times."

FIFTY MILLIONS IN A MERGER

New Yorkers in Control of Country's Great Electric Plants

MORE THAN FIFTY PLANTS

Niagara Falls and the Soo are Embraced in the Big combine—James J. Hill is in it

New York, Jan. 6.—New York men now have acquired control of the greater electric power plants of the United States and Canada, says the Herald.

According to the census the total electric power in America in 1900 was 311,016 horse power. Great additions have been made since. The additions on the American side of Niagara Falls are 65,000 and 60,000 horse-power plants, to be installed as fast as each 5,000 horse-power unit is completed probably by next August. On the Canadian side 110,000 horse-power is in process of construction for 1904 by one company, and 60,000 horse-power for another company at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., 67,000 additional horse-power has just been turned on.

At Niagara Falls the financial support of the Niagara Falls Power Company and the Canadian Niagara Falls Power Company is furnished by New York capitalists.

At the Soo the Michigan Lake Superior Power Company, with 67,000 horse-power on the Michigan side, and the Algoma Company, Commercial, Ltd., with 20,000 horse-power on the Ontario side, are owned by New York men.

The Great Falls, Mont., Electric Power Company is backed by J. P. Morgan and James J. Hill.

In California the longest electric transmission system in the world is largely financed by a New York capitalist, and the Pike's Peak Power Company, of Colorado, is largely owned by New Yorkers.

In addition there are upwards of fifty electric power plants, operated by turbine water wheels, having a total of 1,500 miles of circuit, in which New York has heavy financial interest. An estimate of $50,000,000 is believed to be the minimum of New York's investment in electric power plants.

GREAT BRITAIN LOOKS FOR CANADIAN BOOM

London Daily Express Says Things will Take a Spurt

London, January 7 — The financial writers of the daily papers report the feeling inside the stock market as bullish as ever. Regarding Canada, the Daily Express says there is a general talk of a smart spurt for things Canadian during the spring.

London, Jan. 7 — The British Board of Agriculture is awaiting the issue of the Argentine decree, enforcing the new Argentine laws in regard to cattle disease.

When the decree was issued, the board expected to place Argentine cattle on the same footing as Canadian. There is no sign of the board yielding to the Canadian demands for the free entry of store cattle.

Cook's Sentence May Be Commuted

Ottawa January 6.—Council yesterday considered the report of the Minister of Justice, on the case of Cook, the Halifax murderer. LEMON JUICE OR BOILED WATER IN PREVENTING TYPHOID?

The press of the United States, in a recent despatch emanating from Chicago declares that the Health Department of the typhoid centre, after careful experiments extending over three days, has discovered that "lemon juice kills typhoid." This may or may not be true. Three days is a very brief period in which to demonstrate a scientific fact. The announcement is probably premature. The improved David Crockett maxim, which is "be sure you are right, then sit down and think it over," might serve a good purpose as a motto upon the walls of the chamber in the Health Department's office.

Unless based upon a positive demonstration, this announcement is fraught with great danger. Even should lemon juice be capable of destroying the germ of typhoid fever, but few can afford the costly preventive. The poor would still have to look elsewhere for a prophylactic. Fortunately, they have it, for the cheapest, simplest and safest way to prevent fever is to drink only water which has been boiled.

If the Chicago Board of Health, or the responsible authorities in that or every other community which is supplied with polluted water would see to it that the heads of the family were impressed with the importance of this measure they would come nearer fulfilling their obligations to the public. The health inspectors should go from house to house warning the inmates of the danger threatening, and should show them how to avoid it.

There is not a single sound objection to drinking boiled water, for it has lost no nutritive value, and any unpleasant taste which it may have is due to the fact that it is boiled or afterward stored in an unclean or unsuitable vessel. It is preferrable to boil the water in a kettle lined with porcelain or enamel, but when this is not convenient, the question of taste should not be considered when compared to the absolute safety which is secured by using pure water. There is no other sure method of doing away with typhoid fever and the sooner the human family realizes this fact the better.

GOOD OR BAD MONEY

What is good and what is bad money? "Carnegie, Rockfeller, Rhodes, made rich by corrupt bargains with office-holders, monopoly of oil wells and pipe lines, control of law courts and politicians, avoidance of taxes, ruthless crushing of independent dealers, control of markets by trusts, tariff protection purchased—is it safe and good to take charity from such men as these?" is the question John A. Hobson, the English Economist, asked of the Philadelphia Society for Ethical Culture. Mr. Hobson continued: "The fact that these millionaires give us great bequests should not keep us from tracing the origin of their wealth. Most of the wealth of today is wrung from the people. Force, luck and cunning, are its chief sources. The churches are foremost in condoning this kind of philanthropy."

In a talk to teachers in Milwaukee Dr. John Bascom, formerly president of the University of Wisconsin, said: "I never go near the divinity school in Chicago without wanting to tell them what I think of their accepting money made by the underselling of poor men, crowding them out of business and immediately raising the price of wares; accepting, I say, this money out of the ruin of good and honest tradesmen, and trying to train young men to the gospel with this money and under the influence of such men."

Of course there shouldn't be any bad money, but if there is the question whether good should be or can be done with it is decidedly interesting and important. It is better for a University to be poor and honest than rich and lacking in moral tone. If a man has robbed the people perhaps he doesn't clear himself by founding churches, libraries, universities or hospitals. But should a robber's money be refused by those who will try to do good with it if they take it? As long as we haven't reached a stage of development in which there are no robbers and as long as robbers will rob, should they be allowed, either in repentance or benevolence, to give back some of their stealings? We pause for a reply.

AN IMPORTANT MATTER

The legislature of Victoria, one of the States of the new Commonwealth of Australia, has taken action on a matter which is becoming important in several countries. It has passed a bill, proposed by the government, for the separate representation of public employes. As Victoria owns and operates its railroads, it has many thousands of employes, including those in departments of the government, other than the railroad department. In some countries public employes are deprievd of the privilege of voting on the ground that they should not be in a position both to control wages and to receive wages. The idea is that if employes have votes they may decide the election of representatives, and thus in effect be in a position to vote themselves wages. Victoria does not take the extreme course of disfranchising "public servants"—as they are called there—but prevents them from voting in several districts where they would influence a great many elections. By combining they could get, it was supposed, an excessive number of representatives elected to voice their special interests, whereas under the act just passed they will vote for such a number of candidates at large as is in proportion to the number of public employes. If 10,000, for example, is the average number of voters for one representative and there are 20,000 public employes, they will have two representatives in the legislature and will be powerless to influence greatly other representatives than their own.

It may yet become necessary in the United States to do something to to check the election and control of representatives by public employes.

GERMAN MARINES LANDED

Held Puerto Cabello Wharves While Ships are Seized

Caracas, Jan 6—Just about daybreak this morning 150 armed marines from the German warships Vineta and Gazelle were landed at Puerto Cabello and occupied the wharves. Commodore Sheder, the commander of the German fleet, sent a note to the American Consul informing him that the occupation was only for the purpose of protecting a force which was to seize Venezuelan ships which had taken refuge inside the harbor. This was to make the blockade effective.

The marines reembarked at 8.30 o'clock after their comrades had captured seven sloops, seven schooners, eight small boats and taken them to sea. The captured vessels are worth about $40,000.

A ROMANCE.

...inued Mr. Aylesford. "Cecil Courtenaye, plain, untitled gentleman as he is now, is the next heir to your grandfather's earldom. Nothing but the life of that old man stands between him and the title."

"Is it possible!" exclaimed Florence, with a start.

"Yes, it is true, and Sir Wilfred told me also that Lord Devon had cherished a desire to unite one of his recently deceased grandchildren to Cecil, that his title and his large private fortune might descend undivided to his next of kin. His other descendants being dead, you can guess what may happen when he sees you, Florence."

Florence blushed and smiled.

"He will wish to marry me to Cecil Courtenaye," she said, quickly.

"Yes," he answered, watching her keenly.

"My grandfather will not find me averse to cherished desire," she said, demurely.

"I thought you disliked him, Florence," he said, quickly.

"I lied to you just now," she answered, unblushingly. "I love Cecil Courtenaye, but his indifference to me has piqued me beyond measure. I will win him now, if it is in woman's wiles to do it. What you have just told me is but an added incentive to me to hold my position against all the world. I hate her now," she added, turning a vindictive look toward the still form lying on the bed.

Mr. Aylesford smiled at the vehemence.

"I am glad to find you so determined," he said. "With such a brave will you cannot fail to succeed. But it is worth a great effort to win such a fortune and such a husband. With such a prize in view you will not stickle at anything, will you, my dear?"

"No," she breathed, in a cautious whisper.

"That is well, my dear. I will aid and abet you all I can. You will owe me a heavy debt of gratitude for all I have undertaken and accomplished in your behalf. Can you pledge yourself to reward me properly?"

"You shall be richly repaid—never fear," she answered promptly.

"That is what I want. I shall follow you to England very soon. But we will speak of this again before we leave. At present I will retire, and leave you to keep watch over yonder little spitfire."

Florence turned such a significant look toward the bed that he shook his head warningly.

"Not now, my dear," he whispered, softly. "That affair will wait a little longer. I will attend to it myself."

He tiptoed across the room and went softly out. Then Florence turned around, and saw Hilda rising up in the bed and looking fixedly at her.

"What!" she said, trying to speak unconcernedly," are you waking up, Hilda?"

"I have never been asleep yet," said Hilda, with perfect calmness. "I was very drowsy, but your whispering disturbed me so that I could not sleep."

"Did— did you hear what we were talking of?" demanded Florence, falteringly.

"I did not listen— I did not care to hear," said Hilda, speaking with the languid calmness and gentle serenity of one under the influence of an opiate, "I was wishing all the while that you would stop and let me go to sleep. It was very annoying."

"Well, you can go to sleep now — there is nothing to disturb you further," said her cousin, shortly.

But Hilda was staring at her with wide, wondering eyes.

"Florry," she said, abruptly, "how did I get out of that burning house? I do not remember coming out again."

"Cecil Courtenaye went after you and carried you out unconscious. You must have perished in there but for his timely aid," said Florence, reluctantly.

"I owe my life to Cecil Courtenaye, then," said Hilda, dropping back on the pillow, with a long and bitter sigh. "And I would rather owe it to any one else on earth than him!"

"You owe him no gratitude," answered Florence, carelessly. "It was but a canceled debt. You saved his life, and he has saved yours in return. You are quits now."

"I did not believe he had that much manhood in him," said Hilda, musingly. "I thought him a mere white-handed, haughty trifler. I shall think better of him hereafter."

Florence made no answer. It annoyed her that Cecil Courtenaye was gaining ground in the good opinion of Hilda. She turned away and busied herself in preparing a second draught of her sleeping potion, and offered it to her with a great show of hypocritical kindness.

"Take your medicine, dear," she said. "It will put you to sleep. I am sorry my idle whispering with your father disturbed you, but I will be as still as a mouse now while you take your nap."

"I see no need for you to sit up with me, Florence," answered Hilda, as she drained the glass obediently. "You may go to bed and leave me. I shall go to sleep and not need your attention."

Florence was always selfish, and though she knew that Hilda was really too unwell to be left alone, she took her dismissal very gladly, and went away to her room, and was soon fast asleep.

As soon as she was gone Hilda sat up in the bed with a look of terror and fear on her pale face.

A few words of that whispered conversation in her room had reached her, and filled her with terror and dread.

She knew that she stood in Florence Aylesford's way, and that her life was menaced by the cruel man who had struck and maltreated her that night.

She comprehended that her suspicions were true, and that she, Hilda, was indeed the grandchild of Lord Devon, and that Florence had been fraudulently substituted in her place.

But she also comprehended how utterly futile and dangerous it would be for her to make any attempt to prove her rights.

A vague thought darted into her mind that she might appeal to Sir Wilfred Hale, or Cecil Courtenaye, to help her, but she dismissed the idea the next moment. She believed that they would laugh at any assertion made with no more proof to support it than she had at command.

Mrs. L'Estrange was the only one she could think of in this trying hour as a friend, and she, alas! was dead —buried in the heap of smoking ruins across the green lawn yonder.

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6⅔ years	$670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is ...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's share common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

MORE BULLISH FACTORS.

New York, Jan. 7—A perusal of last night's letter is essential to those who read this one, inasmuch as it was practically the first part of the article contained in today's issue; a sort of preface, as it were. To resume the treasury has the largest gold surplus ever known. The repeal of the war taxes failed to cut off Government revenues as much as expected; the falling off not coming to within a $30,000,000 of what was anticipated. Receipts from customs are increasing all the time. Railway presidents are unanimous in their views for 1903. All look with optimistic eye upon the present situation. President Leeds, of Rock Island says his road has sufficient business in sight to keep it going at full pressure for the coming year. He analyzes this business but space forbids its quotation by us. President Jeffrey, of Denver and Rio G. & W., says they see no reason for any diminution in the volume of business; in fact anticipates actual increase, stating his reasons. President Spencer of the Southern Railway in a most exhaustive article, views with special favor the outlook for the south, which his company serves. He is a most radical bull. President Ripley, of the Atchison; Hall of the New York, New Haven, and Carpenter of the Chicago and Eastern Ill., are all unanimous in their optimism for 1903. They all expect a continuance of the flood of business, and all roads generally have prepared for it. Bank presidents also view the situation with unanimity and are all hopeful in their predictions for the future. The Pacific Coast is showing a steady gain in commerce. The greater lines are all building immense powerful steamers which will ply to and fro on the Pacific, increasing greatly the business of the railway lines behind them. Our Pacific trade is just in its infancy. It will expand in a most incredible manner and very rapidly from now on, revolutionizing many western values. Banner year for iron trade. Southern iron prices have doubled within one year, and they are away oversold, which will carry them well into 1903.

Summary—The reaction, such as it was, came today. It was very slight and declines met with a lively buying demand. Sugar ran counter current to the general trend, advancing quite sharply, selling up to 132 1-2. Ill. Central was a firm feature, and looks like going higher. The resistance of prices to any setbacks is remarkable, and illustrates as strongly the current upward movement. We remain decidedly bullish upon the situation and continue to advocate the purchase of stocks. Money closed 3 per cent. Sales 1,027,300. To-morrow's letter, "Two notable bargains."

Root and Branch.

Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough, was accustomed to make an annual feast, to which she invited all her relations. At one of these family meetings she drank their health, adding, "What a glorious sight it is to see such a number of branches flourishing from one root!" But observing Jack Spencer laugh, she insisted on knowing what had occasioned his mirth, and promised to forgive him, be it what it would.

"Why, then, madam," said he, "I was thinking how much more the branches would flourish if the root were under ground."

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines, and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz, and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $50 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $35 per ton, and never less than $11.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid intoxicants, keep away from dampness, drink water abundantly, and always rely on Nerviline as a quick reliever of Rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than ordinary remedies, Nerviline's power over pain is simply beyond belief. It cures also Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia, and all pain, whether internal or external. Large bottles, price 25c.

Mr. Batten's Thanks

Through a stupid blunder of our typesetting machine, the card of thanks which appeared in yesterday's Times over the signature of Ald. Batten, was addressed only to the male electors. It should also have been addressed to the ladies, for the worthy gentleman owes much to the fair sex of Peterborough, who have always favored him with their votes. Indeed we might add, in a whisper of course, that Mr. Batten is a ladies' man of a pronounced type, and when this g.f.l. accidentally slighted them as above, our attention was promptly called to the omission by the Alderman. We accordingly tender both the ladies and Mr. Batten our humble apologies.

The Time Extended

The Rev. J. G. Potter, secretary of the local Branch Bible Society, desires to call the attention of friends and collectors to the fact that the Society's year closed December 31st. Owing to the change, some little inconvenience has been caused just for this year, and therefore, a further period of two or three weeks may be taken to finish the canvass. All returns should be in the hands of the local Treasurer, Mr. John Crane, Ontario Bank, on or before January 31st. To branches outside the Peterborough branch the same is applicable —only let the collectors make returns to their own local treasurers, so that all moneys may be forwarded to Toronto by the 31st January. It is earnestly hoped that all Christian people will assist in this great and good work.

FRAUD ON THE MARKET

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—I would like to call the attention of our Council to the manner in which the public are being fleeced by farmers in the purchase of their firewood, not only from the extortionate prices they charge for the same by taking advantage of the unfortunate coal strike, but also in the measurement thereof. I bought a load of stove wood the other day, which was piled in the usual way, by two tiers across the sleigh which they call four feet. By actual measurement of a sample stick, it was fourteen inches, which, as you will readily see, that even three lengths would not make four feet. It will thus be seen that while I bought a cord I got less than two-thirds of a cord, or by actual measurement a cord of wood thus sold for $7 would cost $12 per cord, which at a normal price would be worth but $6 per cord. A pretty state of things with so many poor in our midst. I believe that there is a by-law in force compelling the Market Clerk to measure all wood. Let our Councillors fulfill their ante-election promises, and among other things, see that this abuse is rectified.

Pimples Blotches and Skin Eruptions

How unsightly, sometimes even disgusting, and certainly very mortifying to the sufferer. They are merely an evidence of impure, poisoned blood, and lowered vitality of the elementary organs, which can be quickly changed by taking Ferrozone after meals. Ferrozone cleanses the blood of all poisons and eruptions, makes it rich in red corpuscles that manifest themselves in a healthy, ruddy complexion. To have a soft, pure skin and good complexion simply use Ferrozone regularly. Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50 at Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A SOLDIER FOUND

What He Had Looked For 25 Years

Many interesting stories are still told by the heroes of the late War of the rebellion. An old soldier of Morris, Ill., related his experience a short time ago.

"When I enlisted in the war," said he, "I was strong and healthy and weighed 180 pounds, and when I was discharged four years later I only weighed 130 pounds, which was the result of a very bad stomach contracted while in the army.

I was treated by medical men for a long time, paying out hundreds of dollars, but receiving no permanent benefit. Patent medicines were also highly recommended for dyspepsia and stomach troubles and I tried a number of them but got no relief, and in the end was actually worse. I became mentally and physically a wreck, had no energy to do business, and I simply got enough sustenance from my food to keep body and soul together and was in pain and misery constantly.

While in this condition I met a friend who asked me if I had used Grape-Nuts. I had not, but had used other prepared foods and got no relief from them and had no confidence in any of them. He continued to urge me to use Grape-Nuts, saying his wife had become so much improved in health by using this particular food.

So, partly to please him, I bought a package and made my supper that night on Grape-Nuts, fully expecting to suffer all night as the result. To my surprise and great joy it agreed with me perfectly. I had a good appetite from that time on, and Grape-Nuts was my only food for the first four months; then I began to partake of other food sparingly. I gained very rapidly, mentally and physically, with energy and force restored, and I also gained in flesh, my weight increasing 35 pounds in about six months. My stomach, from which I had suffered untold misery for 35 years, became perfectly healthy so that I could eat all kinds of food in connection with Grape-Nuts.

Today I am 62 years old and enjoy good health and I believe Grape-Nuts to be the best of food products, scientifically prepared so as to contain the greatest amount of nutriment and tonic properties." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ONE STEP MORE

Will be fatal to the sleep-walker. Will he draw back or will he take the final, fatal step? A great many people are in peril like the sleep-walker. They are diseased. The disease is progressing day by day. The time comes when one more step away from health is fatal. The man who has suffered from indigestion or gastric trouble goes some night to a dinner and returns home to find he has taken that last step from health which can never be taken back.

To neglect the cure of indigestion or some other form of stomach trouble is dangerous. It is also inexcusable. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood, stimulates the liver, cures biliousness, and eliminates bilious poisons from the system.

"The praise I would like to give your 'Golden Medical Discovery' I cannot utter in words or describe with pen," writes Jas B. Ambrose, Esq., of 1205½ Mifflin St., Huntingdon, Pa. "I was taken with what our physicians said was indigestion. I doctored with the best around here and found no relief. I wrote you, and you advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took three bottles and I felt so good that I stopped—being cured. I have no symptoms of gastric trouble or indigestion now."

If you ask your dealer for "Golden Medical Discovery" because you have confidence in its cures, do not allow yourself to be switched off to a medicine claimed to be "just as good," but which you did not ask for and of which you know nothing.

You can get the People's Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, paper covers, free by sending 31 one-cent stamps, to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE CZAR OF RUSSIA MAY FREE THE PEOPLE

By Granting a National Parliament of Elected Members

London, Jan. 8—From Vienna comes the news that the draft of a constitution for Russia is again in the hands of a czar. Will Nicholas prove braver than was Alexander III? Will he put his pen to it, as did Alexander II., who was assassinated on the following day?

It was Louis Menkoff, the son of a peasant who first reconciled a czar of Russia to the idea of Parliament. This statesman was then what Pobiedonostsen is now—the power behind the throne. He talked Alexander II. into his plan, and if the murderers of the Czar had stayed their hands twenty-four hours the miracle of popular government in Russia would have been performed.

In spite of the assassination the plan was nearly carried. "Change nothing in what my father ordered," said Alexander III. This meant that the constitution which the murdered czar had signed was to be published on the following day.

Right here Pobiedonostsen came into that power which still prevails in Russia. That night Loris Metikoff received an order, to withhold the document. Pobiedonostsen had seen the new emperor and induced him to change his mind. Will Nicholas, mindful of what a similar concession meant to Louis XVI. of France, and this prospect of trouble on his other worries, even if he can brave the displeasure of Russia's great apostle of the knout?

UNION URGED WITH THE UNITED STATES

Lord Beresford Urges Closer Relations between The Two Great Nations

Rejoices Over the Venezuelan Crisis Having been Safely Passed Over

London, Jan. 8—Lord Charles Beresford, who will sail for New York on Sunday, on board the Kaiserin Maria Theresa, said in the course of an interview regarding the Venezuela situation:

"Thank God it has come out all right But it has taught our Government a lesson—that they must never try a hand again at such a game without the partnership of the United States. I do not say a word against Germany, but I do think it's to England's advantage to come right out and say not only 'We support the Monroe doctrine' but by 'Heavens we are willing to fight for it.'"

Regarding his trip to the United States Lord Beresford said:

"I am going to America because I have some private business to attend to. It has nothing to do with the shipping combine. If the Morgans had paid me the compliment of offering me something in that connection, which they have not, I should be obliged to decline. However, in addition to attending to private business, I am going to look around although I must be back in London for the opening of Parliament in February.

Praise for Yankees.

"I hope to pick up information regarding the administrative element in American business. That's where America excels. We do not know how to administer here. Our workmen are just as good as theirs, but our administrations are feeble. Our companies want Lords and Commoners as directors who know nothing about business. Yours demand straight business men, who not only know, but put their money into concerns of which they are Directors.

"If I can teach the people here to adopt American business methods we can then have a greater intercommunion of capital and interests between the two countries. It is the only way, and once England and America get on a profit-sharing basis the world will not dare to interfere with either. Neither of us will stand for a political alliance. It is impossible. Changing parties and the sentiments of both countries forbid it.

For Business Alliance.

"I frankly confess that a business alliance would be more to England's than America's advantage. America can look after herself. She can fight the world, either from an economical on any other viewpoint. They have not begun to realise here yet that the long period which Great Britain held the monopoly of trade is over. They do not know the value of a scrapheap of the minimum cost of production or of the volume of trade.

"The coming century will be one of business. By trying to achieve a community of business interests and methods between America and England, I believe I shall be doing much towards its being a century of peace.

"You put your brightest men into business. We put them into politics, the navy and the army. That has got to be changed. not for the sake of the money it makes for the individual, but for the general good of the country. When I return I hope to have a lot more information in my pocket, which will further these ends in Parliament and elsewhere.'

GIRL TO DIE ON GALLOWS

Pretty Kitty Byron Condemned to Death For Murder of Stock Broker

British Criminal Statute is No Respector of Sex

London, Jan 8—A London judge has just condemned Kittie Byron, a pretty girl of 18 to death, for murdering a stock broker. The jury made a recommendation for mercy, because the girl was inticed to the crime by unusually cruel treatment at the hands of the man who had blighted her life.

It is quite probable that pretty Kittie Byron will be hanged, for the English criminal law is no respecter of sex.

During the last twenty years a dozen women have been hanged for murder, and one was hanged only a month ago. There are four women now awaiting execution in various parts of the kingdom.

An effort will be made to induce the home secretary to commutate Kittie Byron's sentence to imprisonment for life, but there is no assurance that it will succeed, for the home secretary rarely interferes with the course of justice.

He isn't easily swayed by popular clamor, as witness his resistance to the appeals of many years for the release of Mrs. Maybrick, the American woman who was convicted of poisoning her husband.

A Canadian jury would have found Kitty Byron guilty only of manslaughter, considering the extenuating circumstance of her crime, but a British jury invariably blindly follows the judge's charge, and in this case the only verdict consonant with the judge's charge was „guilty" of murder in the first degree.

A QUIET WEDDING

Mr. Clarence W. Davidson and Miss Henrietta L. Rumming are Married

At St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock, a very pleasing event took place, when Mr. Clarence Wallace Davidson, youngest son of Mr. James Davidson, of North Monaghan, and Miss Henrietta Louisa Rumming, youngest daughter of Mr. David Rumming, of Ashburnham, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt.

The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. David Rumming, and wore a pretty gown of white organdie with lace trimmings and the customary veil and orange blossoms. Miss Maggie Smith, of Ashburnham, who performed the duties of bridesmaid, was also becomingly attired in white organdie with lace trimmings. The groom was assisted by Mr. James D. Anderson, of Douro. A sumptuous wedding dejeuner was served at the home of the bride after the ceremony. A handsome pair of Persian lamb gauntlets was the gift of the groom to the bride, and to the bridesmaid a pretty gold ring set with garnets and pearls. The happy young couple were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents, and their many friends in town wish them a long life of happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson will reside in Monaghan.

MISS BOOTH COMING

Daughter of General Booth of S. A. to Visit Peterborough

Great excitement prevails in army circles over the expected visit of Miss Evangeline Booth, third daughter of General Booth, on Saturday and Sunday next, only not at all surprising either, for the announcement of this lady in larger cities than our own awakens much interests, and always a crowded house awaits her, whether it be the Massey Hall, Toronto; Orme Hall, Ottawa; Windsor Hall, Montreal, or the Winnipeg Theatre. However she will speak in the Salvation Army barracks in Peterborough, and her subject will be of a purely evangelistic nature. Pearl and Willie, Commissioner Booth's adopted children, accompany her, whose sweet singing with harp accompaniment is one of the pleasing features of this pleasing event.

Lieut.-Col. Pugmire, the Army's spiritual special, and Brigadier Turner, provincial officer of East Ontario, will be in Peterborough for Commissioner Booth's meetings.

Major Burdette, who was recently stationed in Peterborough, has been promoted, and with his wife now takes command of the Army forces in Manitoba. and North-West America, his headquarters being in Winnipeg.

The local S. A. barracks is taking on a very pleasing appearance with a fresh coat of paint. Adjt. Moore is working day and night to have it completed are Sunday.

HEADQUARTERS CANADA

Marconi's Canadian Portion of Organization to be Canada

Montreal, Jan. 7—Montreal is to be the headquarters of the Canadian Marconi Company which is now preparing to instal a wireless transcontinental service throughout the Dominion, and in all probability will stretch out through Alaska and into the Cape Nome district.

Before long, it is stated, wireless message stations will exist in every city, town and village in Canada.

Mr. Willard R. Green has arrived in the city to organize the Canadian company, and Mr. John D. Opp, of London Eng., is also here. He will become the manager of the Canadian company. These gentlemen are now in conference with Mr. J. N. Greenshields, K.C., in whose office the preliminary work is being done. They are, however, now negotiating for a suite of offices for the company, and it is proposed to commence the practical work of the enterprise immediately.

Preparations for the establishing of the stations in the west have been completed for some little time, and two experts have been sent out to the Canadian Rockies to complete such tests as Mr. Green thought necessary in connection with the actual placing of the stations. As soon as possible the first messages will be sent west from the summit of Mount Royal.

Speaking of the proposed work of the company, Mr. Green yesterday remarked to a Star representative that they would be prepared to accept commercial work of every description, and he believed that press despatches would in a comparatively short time be sent direct from correspondents in one city to their office in another. All the gentlemen interested in the project are enthusiastic over the possibilities and have settled down to the hard work or organization.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF ST. PETER'S T.A.S.

Lecture in the Hall on Catholic Emancipation

A SURPRISE FOR DR. O'BRIEN

The Popular Chaplain of the Society Presented with a Gold Chalice and Purse

Father F. J. O'Sullivan, of Lindsay, the founder and first Chaplain of St Peter's Total Abstinence Society, was present at the hall of the society last evening to deliver a lecture on "Catholic Emancipation," yesterday being the third anniversary of the formation of the T.A.S. in Peterborough.

Preceding the lecture were the following musical numbers: An instrumental duet by the Misses McCabe and Doherty, vocal solo by Mr. W. Stocker, and recitations by Mr. Miller, all being well received and heartily applauded by the crowded audience.

In opening his discussion of the various steps towards the religious and political freedom of Catholics under the sovereignty of Great Britain, Father O' Sullivan took his audience back to the days of the Battle of the Boyne and the Treaty of Limerick. This treaty guaranteed to the Catholics of Ireland their rights as citizens and Catholics, but when the Irish Parliament met in 1692 it framed an oath to be taken by the members of both houses, directly opposed to the terms of the treaty. This oath explicitely denied the Catholic doctrine of transubstantiation and declared the sacrific of the mass and the honor paid to the mother of God as damnable and idolatrous. The Poynings Act, passed in the reign of Henry VII, made it necessary that all laws passed by the Irish Parliament should receive the sanction of the English House, which was also entirely Protestant at this time, the Test Act having been passed nine years before, excluding all Catholics from office. The Irish Parliament of 1692 ratified the penal laws already in force, and passed new ones also. Among those cited as examples were the Oath of Supremacy, which forced those taking it to admit the head of the state as the head of the church also; a fine of for shilling for those absenting themselves from services in the established church; a law preventing dissenters from acting as private tutors; an act preventing Catholics from taking degrees in the universities and placing restrictions on education, the banishment of priests and bishops. Also, in the reign of Ann, laws were passed offering inducements to those who would abandon their faith by placing them in possession of the property of those who remained firm. Those were the days when Protestants persecuted Catholics on account of their religion, and Catholics in turn persecuted the Protestants.

In 1778, when England was in danger from other sources, Lord North, the Prime Minister of England, permitted Catholics to acknowledge their allegiance to the king. This of necessity admitted their rights as subjects. When England demanded that 4,000 Hessians be admitted to Ireland to defend the country, Henry Grattan strongly opposed the act, and raised 18,000 volunteers in the country, showing that it was unnecessary to bring in others to defend it. Grattan now brought in an act to repeal the Poynings Act, and carried it to a successful issue. Ireland had now an independen parliament, but England was now free from her former troubles, and nothing was done to relieve the Catholics of their disabilities.

The unsuccessful rebellion of 1798 was the next influence for the ultimate freedom of Catholics, but the Act of Union followed shortly afterwards which destroyed the last vestige of an independent parliament for Ireland, and for a time things were darker than ever before, though Pitt held out promises of emancipation.

By the repeal of the Poynings Act in 1793, Daniel O'Connell had been permitted to become a barrister, and he now exerted every effort for the repeal of the penal laws still existing, uniting Catholics in every part of the country, from Londonderry to Cork. He introduced an Act of Emancipation into the British Parliament in 1813, but as it would not be accepted by the Parliament without a clause of veto regarding the appointment of bishops, it had to be abandoned. O'Connell formed an association of Catholics, the members of which refused to take office under Lord Wellington while their rights were still refused. When O'Connell was elected as member for County Clare he went and demanded admission into the British Parliament He refused to take the Test Oath and was obliged to return to Ireland. The excitement caused by the course he had taken made it evident that a rebellion would follow if their demands were not granted, and on the advice of Lord Wellington, George IV. signed the Catholic Emancipation Bill.

The effects of this act were great, and Catholics may now hold all public offices with the exception of the position of Sovereign or of Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The Oxford Movement was the result of the discussions raised at this time and the entire social position of Catholics was improved.

The reverend speaker in conclusion paid a tribute to the sentiments of the present Sovereign, and said that all should make use of the liberties enjoyed in the country in which we live, where equal liberties are enjoyed by every citizen.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the lecturer, after which short addresses of a complimentary nature were given by the following gentlemen who occupied the platform: D. O'Connell, R. Begley, H. Burnham, Ald. McWilliams, Fathers McColl, O'Sullivan, Crowley, O' Brien and Dr. O'Brien.

The deserved popularity of Rev. Dr. O' Brien with the members of the T.A.S. was shown in a palpable manner in the course of the evening, when he received a gold chalice and a purse of gold as a gift from the society in recognition of his many merits, accompanied by the following address:

Reverend and Dear Father:

We take this opportunity, the third anniversary of the organization of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society, of expressing to you in a tangible manner, our appreciation of your labors among us.

When you took charge, as Spiritual Adviser of this society, on the departure of the reverend organizer and lecturer of this evening, many looked askance at the young priest, who, having been raised in the town, was supposed to hold some opinions that would develop into aggressiveness, and who would use an iron glove in dealing with those outside the pale of the Church. However as the time rolled on your aggressiveness has developed, but not in the dreaded line. The enthusiasm displayed by you in promoting the cause of temperance, manifested in the securing of the banner in competition with the whole of America, gives great satisfaction to this Society, which has every reason to congratulate itself upon the aggressiveness of its Chaplain.

Judging by the public press you may think you are without honor in your own country, but if you do not hear it, it is because you are not seeking worldly honor. We can assure you, however, that there is not a man in the district, whether Catholic or not, but deems it an honor to be counted among your acquaintances, as to have your acquaintance is to have you for a friend. As a contemporary puts it, it takes a soul to be a true friend—a large, catholic, steadfast, and loving spirit. One must forgive much, forget much, forbear much. It costs to be a friend. It not only costs time, affection, strength, patience, love—sometimes a man must even lay down his life for his friends. There is no true friendship without self-abnegation, self-sacrifice.

The love and respect shown you by your fellow priests shows clearly their estimation of you as a confrere.

Many of us here present and others in the surrounding town and country must acknowledge that by your influence we have been lifted by the hand of God's servant to a secure footing, when we had abandoned ourselves to a downward path. Many an aged mother, or wife, sister or brother, when offering their devotions to the Almighty, remember you in thanksgiving for the saving of a reckless son or husband, brother, or even sister, from an evil course, as you are ever ready to sacrifice your time, and unbounded labor to save their souls and make them good, useful, citizens of the State, looking both to our spiritual and temporal needs.

In your estimation no fellow being is so lowly or even degraded that you should not seek him, and by kindly advice and gentle admonition — which none can use more effectively—stir in him that manly spirit, long dormant, thereby following in the footsteps of our Lord and Saviour when on earth.

In conclusion we again sincerely thank you for your many acts of kindness and favors shown us. Hoping you will be spared many years to comfort your well-beloved parents and to be our Chaplain, we ask you to accept this Chalice and purse as a token of our sincerity.

We trust you will ever remember us in offering up the holy sacrifice of the Mass.

BOERS WANT ABOLITION OF CONSTABULARY FORCE

General Amnesty Also Wanted--Address to be Presented to Mr. Chamberlain Makes Several Requests

Pretoria, Transvaal, Jan. 8.—An influential meeting of burghers yesterday drafted an address for presentation to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and the Legislative Council, embodying the views of the leaders.

Among the recommendations are general amnesty, the maintenance of the Transvaal's pre-war regulations regarding natives, the importation of cattle by the Government, and their sale to the burghers at actual cost, and the abolition of the South African Constabulary.

Generals Botha, De Wet and Delarey strongly urge the necessity for a moderate attitude and organization to assist the present Government.

General Botha, reported that $525,000 had been collected in America and Europe for the relief of destitute Boers.

A FAMILY'S MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

The Awful Experience of Sarnia People

NONE OF THEM BADLY INJURED

An Hour of Agony Spent After They Got Out of the Wreck—Mrs. W. Morse's Story of the Wanstead Disaster

St. Thomas, Ont., Jan. 8—In a letter to Mr. F. Doggett, of this city, Mrs. W. Morse, of Sarnia, who with her husband and children were passengers on No. 5 G. T. R. Pacific Express, wrecked at Wanstead, says:

"It was indeed an awful experience we went through, and no other family in that ill-fated coach has such cause for thankfulness as we. So many spoke of it on our way to London in the hospital car. That a family of five could all escape with their lives seemed almost a miracle. When we boarded the train at Stratford it was so crowded we could not find seats together. Truman and I sat down by an elderly lady about four seats from the rear of the coach, while Mr. Morse, Mamie and Helen went on down the aisle, almost to the other end on the same side—the right hand side, our seats being a double seat. In a short time my little boy was sleeping on the seat in front of me. We were running very fast when the awful crash came. I seemed to realise instantly that it was a collision, and either threw myself or was thrown down partly in the aisle, and partly between our seats. I think I owe my life to that, for in a second the timbers crashed over my head, pinning the lady who sat with me there. Of course I expected every second to be crushed to death.

"My first thought was for my little boy in front of me. He awakened at once and cried, "Mama, what is it?" I could feel the back of the seat crushing down on him. Everything was pitch dark. The back of the seat closed over him, held down by tons, I suppose. I could not move it, and I was sure he was killed. I pulled at him and at last I got him out and he was all right, the soft back and cushion of the seat had saved him. When I felt we were both unhurt I felt around for some way out. We could not move in any direction. Everything seemed to be piled over and around us, and the heart-rending groans were terrible. Everyone else around us seemed to be fastened but one man back of me in the aisle. I don't know how long we remained there, probably only a moment or so. It seemed long to me as the awful thought of fire came to me. Presently some one at the rear of the car lit a match and held it down to the floor. At once my little boy perceiving an opening under the seats, crawled under, I following. Then we jumped out of a window in the rear of the car. (Blessings on the man's head who lit the match.)

After our escape I cannot describe the hour of agony I spent till I found out Will and my two little girls were safe. They were looking for us and we for them. I did not recognize Mamie when I saw her. Her face was so cut and swollen and Will was covered with blood, but they were alive. That was enough. I imagined them caught in the wreck and burning as I saw the flames. The scenes that followed are not at all overdrawn by the papers.

LIVED IN THREE CENTURIES

Mrs. Henry Morgan Dies at Dubuque at the age of 105

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 8.—One of the oldest women in the State of Iowa, and probably in the United States, is dead in this city, at the age of 105 years. She was Mrs. Mary Morgan, and died of old age.

The dead woman retained the full possession of her faculties, and her mind remained clear and her memory unimpaired until the end. Her illness was of short duration, and her death was peaceful.

For the last fifty-four years Mrs. Morgan has been a resident of this city, having emigrated to this country in her early youth from Ireland, where she was born. She was married in 1818, three years after the battle of Waterloo. She had lived in three centuries.

IMMENSE RAILWAY SCHEMES PLANNED

1903 Will Witness Some Gigantic Undertakings Commenced

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

American Roads Also Propose to Expend Enormous Sums Next Season

Montreal, Jan. 8—Schemes of railroad extensions and improvements that will start early in the new year, both in Canada and the United States promise to exceed in magnitude and in financial outlay even the investments of new capital in railroad development of the past year.

The Grand Trunk Pacific project, involving an expenditure of some $200,000,000, the contemplated improvements to the Canadian Pacific in the reduction of gradients and curvature, the numerous branch lines which are projected and the irrigation scheme of two and a half million acres are some of the more important schemes of Canada. If the Canadian Northern is not absorbed by the Grand Trunk Pacific, it will be extended from the prairie terminus through the Yellow Head Pass to the Pacific, and the Mackenzie and Mann roads in the Maritime Provinces will be pushed to completion. The Grand Trunk is also contemplating the erection of a fine new station to replace the present Bonaventure structure, and by the end of 1903 will have a double track from Montreal and Chicago to Niagara Falls.

In New York the Pennsylvania Railway next month will commence the construction on contracts aggregating $100,000,000, while the New York Central's new viaduct entrance into the city will cost $20,000,000.

The viaduct will give an entrance from the north to the immense passenger station planned by the road, and will open a large part of Park avenue heretofore closed, and which would have remained closed had the original plans of the Central been adhered to.

SOME OF THE ADVANTAGES.

Some of the advantages to be derived from the new scheme are:

The abandonment of the use of steam as a motive power, and with it the freeing of the tunnel from steam, smoke and gas.

The opening of eleven new cross streets.

The relief of Forty-second street, Depew place and Vanderbilt avenue, from all carriage and wagon traffic, by the construction of an elevated carriage way and carriage stand within the station about eight feet above the concourse. This elevated carriage way will be reached by the Forty-fifth street viaduct from both Lexington and Madison avenues.

The extension of the waiting room across the entire street front of the station.

The elimination of nearly all grade crossings maintained by the railway in the city.

An annual rental of $25,000 will be charged by the city for the use of the sub-surface of the streets and the space under the sidewalks about the station.

An important feature in the changes is the connection to be made with the rapid-transit system at Forty-second street. Two express tracks of the Central are to run beneath the station for this purpose. The Board of Estimate suggests that the Rapid-Transit Commission shall adopt this change.

It is also provided that no power houses shall be erected more than two blocks from the water front except by special permission of the city authorities.

Commenting on the new station the New York Times says: "Remodelled upon the plan formulated by the committee, with the assistance of Engineer Lewis, the railroads which connect New York with the North and East will have the most capacious and convenient terminal of any railroad in any city of the world. It will identify them with a great public improvement from which the direct and immediate advantage of those who direct will be magnificently and permanently compensatory. This is all in the way of opportunity, which a railroad company could ask."

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO.

The directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad have determined upon further improvements, the cost of which will add not less than $20,000,000 to the $80,000,000 already expended on the reconstruction and re-equipment of that system. The plans yet to be carried out involve the four-tracking of the B. and O. system between Chicago and Pittsburg.

Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe interests are spending upward of $20,000,000 in the construction of new lines in Oklahoma. A separate company has been formed to conduct this work, which includes the construction of about 1,000 miles of new line, taking all of the principal points in Oklahoma.

A COMING DEMAND

A deputation of the prohib. party is to wait upon Premier Ross to demand the enforcement of the minority vote on the referendum in regard to the retail selling of liquor. By their pre-election estimate the prohib. party were "snowed under" in the result, notwithstanding they got a clear majority of the votes polled. They laid it down positively that the electors who did not vote at all should be counted against them. The total vote cast was about 300,000, the "yes" side getting 198,000. The "no" side got 103,000. The unpolled votes numbered 125,000. The total result in, brief is thus:—

Voted No...	103,000
Unpolled Votes...	125,000
	228,000
Voted Yes...	198,000
Total Adverse Vote...	30,000

With this large majority against them on the total register, taking their own reckoning of the non-voters, it is hard to see with what face the Prohib. party can go to Mr. Ross as if they had been victors. Mr. Ross will get out of the matter by, answering first that they are in a large minority of the electors, and secondly, that the majority the Prohibs. claim was not cast for prohibition but rank politics, the "Tories" voting in their thousands as in Toronto, to "put him in the hole." But he could add a third reason why it would be inexpedient to attempt to put prohibition in force, quoting the failure of that measure in that State of Maine, where it was carried by a clear majority of the electors. The Portland Press, of Jan. 3 says—

"The law against liquor selling partly perhaps on account of its non-enforcement, and partly, because a large number of people do not believe in it, is looked upon very differently from other criminal laws by the community. No man could ignore the law against larceny and escape universal condemnation, but a man can, to a degree, at least, ignore the law against rumselling and not lose caste very much in the community.'

A GOOD RESOLUTION

One of the good resolutions to start the New Year with is the resolution to pay the January bills promptly. Such payment makes both the payer and the payee feel better, it oils the machinery of trade, and scatters good around. Needless delay in payment makes bad feeling, hurts both the man who should pay, and the man who should be paid, and is in many ways hostile to a happy New Year.

One great beauty of the good resolution to pay the January bills promptly is that if it is made, more likely to be kept than some of the good resolutions. It doesn't have time to get sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought or thoughtlessness. A resolution that won't keep or be kept a month may last two or three days. Pay "the little bills," and congratulate yourself on having kept one good resolution.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

An American tells this story of Mexican justice: One morning the body of a cowboy was found in a border town. It was supposed he had crossed the Rio Grande to attend a dance and flirted with some senorita, and so was shot by a Mexican. At least, that was the theory, because a bag of money, amounting to $200, all in gold, was found on the body, proving that the murder had not been done for robbery. Besides the coin, a very costly six shooter, silver mounted, and ivory handled, was strapped around the deceased. The finding of the gun was the occasion of a trial before the local alcalde, or justice of the peace. It was against the law to carry weapons, and the dead man was fined $200, just the sum they found on him, for violating the Mexican statute.

Efforts are being made in some of the larger cities of England, and especially in London, to put a stop to swearing on the public streets. There is a law on the subject, but it is rarely enforced, except, perhaps, in some small town where the mayor may for the time get a virtuous streak. The trouble with the law is that it is only put in practice when some citizen makes a complaint to a policeman, and the statistics of the police courts show that even when arrests are made the prosecutor very seldom appears to press the complaint the next morning. In Liverpool, where there is a large proportion of the hoodlum in the population, the habit of cursing in public has been largely restrained recently but that was because the police received strict orders to arrest any person, male or female, who might be heard using vile language on the streets without waiting for a complaint from a citizen. The habit of swearing, too, it is asserted, is not confined to the lower classes, but has made great inroads into society, especially among the women.

No Better off Than Before.

A small town in Posen near the Silesian frontier still keeps that relic of other centuries, the night-watchman who calls the hours. One night—the London "Telegraph" tells this remarkable story—one of these watchmen, an old worthy long in service, failed to blow his whistle when the clock struck the hour.

The burgomaster summoned the delinquent to account for his negligence. After some hesitation he declared that his last tooth had dropped out, and that he could not hold in his mouth the official flat tin whistle.

A council was called, and the subject was gravely discussed. Finally one of the members said that he had heard of a dentist at Breslau who supplied artificial teeth. After long debate the council appropriated money to send the aged watchman to Breslau to get a set of new teeth.

In due time the watchman reported that his teeth had arrived. That night the burgomaster sat up to hear the result. To his astonishment there was no whistle at ten, at eleven, or at midnight. The next morning he summoned the watchman.

"You have got your teeth," he said, indignantly. "Why do you not whistle as before?"

"Yes, I've got a new set of teeth," replied the old man, "but the doctor told me to put them in water at night."

"I'm really worried about Charlie," said young Mrs. Torkins.

"What's the trouble?" asked her mother.

"All my care seems to have been in vain. I wouldn't let him play golf for fear he'd get the golf elbow, nor ping-pong for fear he'd get ping-pong ankle."

"Well, he has escaped so far!"

"Yes. But I haven't the heart to ask him to stop playing cards, even if it does lead to his becoming deformed."

"What do you mean?"

"He admitted to me that the poker hands he is getting are extremely painful."

A ROMANCE.

Weeping bitterly at the tragic fate of the beautiful woman, Hilda laid her head down on the pillow again, and tried to lose herself in sleep, but the strong sedative Florence had administered to her was of no force against the grief and terror that possessed her. She rose at last, and, carefully locking her door, dressed herself in the dark traveling suit she had worn when she came to the springs. She had suddenly conceived the idea of flight. Youth and hope were too strong within her for her to tamely remain in the power of the man who thirsted for her life.

"I will go away —no matter where —so that I get out of his way," she said, to herself, in a frenzy of terror, as she arranged her toilet with trembling fingers.

Hilda was a very brave girl ordinarily. She had faced imminent peril in the rise of the New River with a dauntless heart, and she had rushed into the fire to seek Mrs. L'Estrange without a single pang of terror at her own terrible danger; but this death that threatened her now had in it none of the elements of heroism that had prompted her glorious self-sacrifice before. This new danger that menaced her at the hands of those with whom she had passed all her brief, neglected life, was terrible to contemplate. She could not choose but flee from it.

She quickly packed a few articles of clothing into a little hand-satchel and for the second time that night stole quietly out of the hotel and down upon the lawn.

The railway station was not very far from the hotel. She hurriedly made her way to it, but she did not enter the little waiting room. Weak and weary, she sat down upon the ground outside, and waited perhaps half an hour until the eastern bound mail train came thundering along on its way to Richmond, Virginia. When it came to a stop at the station, she crept into a coach, and seated herself in a dark corner, with her vail drawn closely over her face. Ten minutes later she was speeding along in the faintly glimmering dawn of the new day, away from the reach of her cruel and relentless enemies.

CHAPTER XIII.

A Fruitless Quest.

It was late in the day before Hilda's flight became known. Mr. Aylesford and the blonde heiress were both tardy risers, and it was not until a messenger came from Cecil Courtenaye to inquire how the young girl passed the night that her absence was discovered. Then the grief and terror of the bereaved father was acted so naturally and touchingly that even Cecil Courtenaye, who had deemed him a cold and unloving parent, was somewhat deceived by his acting.

"Oh, Florence, how could you have been so careless?" he exclaimed again and again, while Mr. Courtenaye who had come over to the hotel immediately after the reception of the ill news, stood silently by. "She was ill, and her head was turned by the dreadful scene she passed through. You should not have left her alone a moment. She has gone away in some wild, delirious fever of the brain, and she will be lost in the mountains, and perish miserably. Oh, my daughter, my daughter!"

Florence threw herself into his arms and sobbed out her grief and contrition in such tender, womanly, sorrowful terms that the young Englishman began to think that he had wronged her in his secret heart, for though he acknowledged her grace and beauty, he had condemned her as a heartless and empty-headed coquette, who cared for nothing but dress and admiration. So little had he esteemed her that he had never wished to apprise her of their distant relationship, or the fact that he was the next male in succession to her grandfather's earldom. But now, though his heart was torn with anxiety over the probable fate of the missing girl, he was touched by the soft womanliness of Florence, and said to her, quite gently:

"Do not grieve so hopelessly, Lady Florence. I will at once organize parties to explore the mountains. She shall be found if human skill can avail. I will go at once that not a moment may be lost."

He went out, and the girl turned quickly to Mr. Aylesford.

"I believe that Hilda has run away from us," she said, softly. "She must have overheard some of our conversation, and being frightened, took that means to evade us."

"If that is the case we must find her by all means," said he, with a start. "If she gets away and betrays us, we will have a terrible fight to retain our position! You should not have left her alone for an instant. You are greatly to blame, Florence."

"I thought she was too ill to get out of her bed, and I was tired and sleepy," was the sulky response.

"If it be as you suppose, she has most probably gone off on one of the trains," said Mr. Aylesford. "I will go down to the station and make inquiries."

He went to the station and learned that only one passenger train had passed since the fire that night, and that no one had left the White Sulphur Springs on that train except Sir Wilfred Hale, who had bought a ticket to Richmond. None of the officials had seen any other person enter the train at all, and they affirmed positively that Hilda had not gone off that way.

"I did not know that Sir Wilfred had gone away," said Mr. Aylesford, turning to Mr. Courtenaye in surprise.

"Yes, he went to Richmond on business," said Cecil, "and to make assurance doubly sure I will telegraph to him immediately, and ask him if he saw Hilda on the train."

The telegram was sent immediately, and directly the answer came back:

"Cecil Courtenaye:

"I have not seen or heard aught of Mr. Aylesford's daughter since I left you. Wilfred Hale."

So the mystery of Hilda's disappearance remained a mystery still. Men went out in every direction, the woods and mountains were searched, but no trace of her was found, and at last they gave up the quest. Every one believed that she was dead. They thought she had either drowned herself in the river or been lost in the mountains.

The hopeless search being over, Mr. Aylesford declared that he should

A good joke was played on one of our most esteemed citizens, a short time ago, who himself is a practical joker. It appears that our friend whom we will for the time being, call Mr. Quart, had a bag of oats dumped on the crossing in front of his door. Before Mr. Q was on hand to take the oats to his barn, a couple of the "boys" had removed some of the grain and placed in the bag an enormous boulder. When our genial friend, Mr. Q got back he tried to shoulder the oats and take it to the barn. He was unable to lift the bag, and was naturally very much nonplussed. "By the holy smoke," he was heard to exclaim, "that is the heaviest bag of oats I ever tried to lift; I'll bring the wheelbarrow!" And he did, and after a tremendous effort he succeeded in loading the "oats" on to the vehicle and wheeling them to the barn, where an investigation disclosed the cause of the trouble. He has been lying awake at night even, since fixing up a plan to get even. He says that people who accidentally drink communion wine without knowing the difference between it and the real old stuff, are dead easy anyway, and as for our worthy P.M., and others, he has a joke in pickle for them.

It is intended to apply to the Stock Exchanges in New York, Boston, Montreal and Toronto for the listing of the stock of the company.

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6⅔ years	$670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to ... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is ... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is ... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's share common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

BUY ! WHY ?

BECAUSE
THE SOUR LAKE OIL CO.

Has placed four-fifths of its stock in the treasury for development work; and because

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

The Greatest Mining Proposition of Modern Times

This company has demonstrated its ability to produce ore at a profit and pay regular monthly dividends under the most adverse circumstances. Only the highest grade could be shipped and cost upwards of $35 per ton. With a mill it can be treated at less than $3 per ton. The company has nearly enough money to pay for the mill, which they promise to have in operation by April 1st, 1903.

THE NEW YEAR

The New Year, or the first part of it, will more than likely witness materially increased activity in the stock market. All indications point that way. Stocks are being rapidly concentrated by the larger powers and are going to advance.

Some special issues should advance particularly sharply for special reasons; they are consequently the best to buy. We will be pleased to particularize these special stocks upon request, stating most tersely the reasons for our specific bullish opinions. It is an unusually good time at present to open a speculative account. If you contemplate so doing, or the investment of any funds for safe interest returns send for our 400-page "GUIDE TO INVESTORS" and "DAILY MARKET LETTER." We issue both gratis, and mail them free as well as a Weekly Cotton Letter.

They will cause you to be thoroughly posted upon matters marketwise, and to be well informed is not only to make money but to obviate the chance of loss. We respectfully solicit your banking investment or speculative account.

TWO NOTABLE BARGAINS

New York, Jan. 8—It may partake largely of repetition to have a little talk about Metropolitan and Manhattan, inasmuch as we have had so much to say about them recently, but we cannot refrain from again speaking of these two issues as they are at the present time so very cheap and so certain in the near future to sell materially higher than they are selling just now. Bear in mind that both of these stocks are guaranteed seven per cent. per annum, and the guarantees are thoroughly good. Bear in mind that the business of these two lines is constantly increasing and is bound to continue to do so. No other thing can be expected of the transportation companies of the great and fast growing Metropolis of these lines, which earn far in excess of the seven per cent called for. Both will continue to grow more and more profitable. Metropolitan has sold above 250 and Manhattan has sold at 175 without any guarantee whatsoever. St. Paul only pays seven per cent. and just commenced that rate of dividend to shareholders, and it sells above 180 and will this year probably sell well above 200. Dont' you think Metropolitan and Manhattan are relatively as cheap and secure as is St. Paul, and as worthy of equally as high a market quotation. N. W. sells considerably above 200 and only returns the same amount of dividend, while neither St Paul or N. W. are guaranteed. A short time ago Manhattan sold at 158. Profit taking and a bad market again carried the shares down. They will go higher this time than they did then. The two systems will in time be worked in harmony with the new Underground Co., and have many feeders running outside of Manhattan Island. This will reduce its expenses and increase profits. The stocks of the two guarantors are destined to sell very high within five years time. At present writing we recommend immediate purchases of both Metropolitan and Manhattan, believing, as we do, that both will shortly sell much higher. shortly. These two stocks have been largely purchased in fractional amounts for investment by small investors and taken out of the street. These two stocks will surprise some folks in the next six months.

Summary—The market continues to maintain its remarkable strength. Demand for stocks appears to be as insatiable as heretofore. New leaders were taken up, the coal shares, being pushed to the front under leadership of Erie, which advanced upon huge transactions. Sugar continued to advance, crossing 134, while R. I. issues were remarkably strong leading the granger shares. Copper was inclined to heaviness under Boston selling and a slight decline in the market price for the metal. It should be a purchase upon any further reaction. We maintain our bullish attitude towards the market, believing, as we do, in the continued bullishness of the situation. Money closed 4 per cent. Sales 1,193,-300. To-morrow's letter, "That Steel Report."

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California,
Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines, and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all burning more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $6 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $25 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to instal either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Price is now 25 cents a share, and we offer 50,000 shares at this price, but it may be advanced by January 1st, 1903, to 50 cents a share.

Increased Freight Rates

A dispatch from Montreal states: "A joint circular has been issued by the G.T.R. and C.P.R. announcing an advance of ten per cent. in the freight rate on iron commodities from chief manufacturing centers such as Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph, London and Brantford. Advances of from ten to fifty per cent. were made by the Central Traffic Association of the United States and the advance made by the Canadian railways is a modified move in the same direction. It is explained in the circular that expenses of operating railways have increased to such an extent that the roads have been forced to take this action.

THE NEW COUNCIL

Peterborough will be all right this year. Mayor Roger will be in the chair, and will continue to be a safe, reliable, economical man, who will look closely after the interest of the ratepayers, and see that the people's money is expended properly and economically.

And he will be backed by a level-headed Council of eleven members, who will give loyal support to the Mayor and assist in conducting the town's business in a business-like and proper manner.

The ratepayers of Peterborough will, we are confident, have no reason to regret the outcome of Monday's election.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Miss Alice Dawson is visiting friends in Port Hope.

—Mr. G. S. Bennett, representing the Canadian Press Publishing Company, Toronto, is in town for a few days on business.

—Miss Edythe Burnett, of Presbyterian Ladies' College, Toronto, is visiting Mona D. Cavanah, Brock street, for a few days before returning to Toronto.

—The many friends of Mr. Pennington Alexander are pleased to see him out again after his two weeks' illness through an injury received while at work. He hopes to be able to resume business again in a few days.

MEASUREMENT OF WOOD

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—I was greatly pleased to observe that a correspondent has drawn the attention of the Town Council to the fraud which is being worked every day on the market, in the sale of wood.

In this connection I happened to see the following in an Orillia paper, which shows that we are not the only town in which this evil exists. The paper says:

Down at the market the other evening there were eighteen loads of wood standing at a quarter to six. It had been moving in and out all day; a great many loads. Of the eighteen there was not one measured 128 cubic feet. It was the required length and height, was more or less short in width. It ran all the way from 18 to 22 inches. The man who was selling the 28-inch wood was just short a quarter of a cord, and the 22-inch wood was just short one-twelfth of a cord, but both were asking the same price, five dollars, and both averred they had a cord in the load. The Council would earn the gratitude of citizens if they would appoint an inspector and measurer of wood.

I hope, Mr. Editor, that the Council will do its duty and protect the people. Yours,

A WORKING MAN.

GOVERNMENT SEED

To the Editor of The Times.

Dear Sir,—By instruction of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture another distribution will be made this season of samples of the most productive sort of grain to Canadian farmers for the improvement of seed. The stock for distribution is of the very best, and has been secured by the Director of the Experimental Farms from the excellent crops recently had in the Canadian North-west. The distribution this Spring will consist of samples of oats, Spring wheat, barley, Indian corn and potatoes. The quantities of oats, wheat and barley to be sent this year will be sufficient to sow one-twentieth of an acre. The samples of Indian corn and potatoes will weigh 3 lbs. as heretofore. Every farmer may apply, but only one sample can be sent to each applicant, hence if an individual receives a sample of oats, he cannot receive one also of wheat, barley or potatoes, and applications for more than one sample for one household cannot be entertained. These samples will be sent free of charge through the mail.

Applications should be addressed to the Director of Experimental Farms, Ottawa, and may be sent in any time before the 1st of March, after which the lists will be closed, so that all the samples asked for may be sent out in good time for sowing. Parties writing should mention the sort or variety they prefer, and should the available stock of the kind asked for be exhausted, some other good sort will be sent in its place.

Dir. Exper. Farms.

A COMPARISON

In Money and Food Value

"Coffee had been used in our family for years, and we all drank it except Husband, who gave it up some years ago, because it injured his health," writes a lady from Granville, Ohio.

"Last year we spent the summer in the northern woods. Among our table supplies, unknown to my husband, I had taken along several packages of Postum Food Coffee, but it was stored away and forgotten for weeks during which time we used coffee.

"One day my husband said: "I wish it were possible to get some Postum. I would like to try it." Two hours later, at dinner, I served him a cup, brewed according to the directions on package. His surprise was complete. The taste pleased him and he drank a second cup. From that on we continued to use Postum with gratifying satisfaction, and not another cup of coffee has ever come to our table.

"My husband found that it did not produce the distress that forced him to renounce coffee and that it strengthened his nerves, and stopped all his stomach trouble. Its effect on me was no less gratifying; though I had drunk coffee but sparingly. I had suffered considerably from it. It had disordered my nerves and disturbed my liver. Postum corrected these evils and proved a sedative and most wholesome food.

"We were both interested in the comparative cost of coffee and Postum. We have always paid 35 cents a pound for coffee. A large package of Postum costs 25 cents and weighs a pound and a quarter. Though we drank Postum more freely and frequently than we had coffee, we found that the large size package of Postum lasted as long as two pounds of coffee, a difference of 45 cents in favor of Postum. In a year this saving of money was considerable, and this fact recommends Postum to all people who believe in economy.

"Even a person prejudiced in favor of coffee would admit that Postum, properly brewed is as pleasant to the palate as the best coffee. I know that some people have been dissatisfied with Postum because they did not make it properly.

"Another advantage of Postum that makes it vastly superior to coffee for family use is that it can be given freely to children, being a real food, and not a stimulant like coffee. It will not harm the most delicate child, nor create a habit which leads only too easily to indulgence in stimulants of a stronger nature.

"I believe that if everyone knew that Postum is so much cheaper than coffee and so much better for one's health they would use it instead of a drink, which being a stimulant entirely without food value, is so very harmful." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

FORMAL OPENING OF NEW HOCKEY RINK

Will Take Place on Saturday Evening

A Hockey Match Between Toronto Varsity Hockey Team and the Intermediate Colts The Principal Feature

The formal opening of the new rink on Brock street will take place on Saturday evening. The principal feature of the opening will be a hockey match between the Toronto Varsity hockey team which is at present on a tour in Eastern Ontario and Quebec, and the Peterborough Intermediate Colts, winners of the intermediate championship of Ontario in 1902.

That the opening of the rink should and will be attended by a large crowd, goes without saying, and let every person put a shoulder to the wheel and make this season one that will make the Association feel that they are not alone in their work, but have the hearty support of the people of Peterborough at large in their undertaking.

The Hockey Association have spared no pains in erecting a rink that is a credit to the town, being second to none in Canada. The players are provided with a beautiful sheet of ice and outside teams can no longer throw mud at Peterborough in reference to her soup plate rink. The seating capacity is arranged so that spectators will have no trouble in following up the players as they chase the rubber from one end of the ice to the other.

Let the hockey-loving people of Peterborough, and those interested in the welfare of our town turn out on Saturday night and make the opening of the new rink a long remembered event.

Varsity plays at Smith's Falls to-night and will journey from there to Peterborough, where they are scheduled for Saturday night.

The Brock street rink will be open on Monday night for skating, when the band will be present. The skating nights are Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, from 8.15 to 10 o'clock and from 1.30 to 5 p.m. in afternoons. There will be no skating on nights when there is a hockey match.

Barrie and Midland are scheduled for a game at Barrie to-night. S. B. Leslie will referee the game.

The Belleville Intermediates will play at Port Hope to-night. Great interest is being taken in this game, as Belleville is out to win. A number of supporters of the team will accompany the boys to Port Hope. Hugh A. Rose will referee the game.

Brantford, Jan. 7.—The first league hockey game of the season was played here to-night between Brantford and Paris, the two old-time rivals for the hockey championship of this district. The game resulted in a win for Paris, being 6 to 5.

Montreal, Jan. 7.—The Stanley Cup comedy is ended at last. At a meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey League, to-night, it was unanimously decided to rescind their previous decision and to give Montreal permission to defend the cup against Winnipeg Victorias during the schedule season, namely Jan. 29 and 31, and if necessary Feb. 2.

It was further agreed that no such permission would be given again. After torrents of wind and balderdash the league has thus climbed down and done what it should have done at first before making itself the laughing stock of the Dominion.

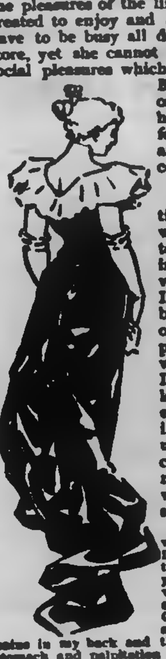
The Price of Pleasure.



It is hard for a lovely woman to forego the pleasures of the life which she was created to enjoy and adorn. She may have to be busy all day in office or in store, yet she cannot deny herself the social pleasures which are offered her. But the fatigue is often too great for her, and she suffers from headache and backache as a consequence of over-exertion.

Women who are tired and worn out will find a perfect tonic and nervine in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures headache, backache and the other aches and pains to which women are subject. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"I am so pleased with your instructions, I hardly know what thanks to give you for your kind favors," writes Mrs Milo Bryant, of Lots, Thomas Co., Ga. "I suffered so much with great pains in my back and the lower part of my stomach and palpitation of the heart, that at times I could hardly lie down. Could hardly get up in the morning, but after using three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, I am like a new woman."

Sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

GERMANY IS ENTIRELY ON THE SIDE OF RUSSIA AGAINST GREAT BRITAIN

Point at Issue is the Passage of Russian Boats Through Dardanelles

The Offensive and Defensive Alliance Between England and Germany

London, Jan. 9.—The Paris correspondent of the Times, referring to the recent protest of Great Britain at the passage through the Dardanelles of four Russian torpedo boat destroyers, quotes Le Temps, which says that Germany is entirely on the side of Russia against England. Continuing, Le Temps says: "The offensive and defensive alliance between England and Germany is starting in singular fashion with their lune de miel un peu russe."

JAMES A MORDEN'S GRAPHIC STORY

His Escape From the Fated Car at Wanstead

HE IS THE MISSING WITNESS

He Was in the Wreck and Paints a Vivid Picture of The Awful Moments Following the Crash—Much Wanted Man at the Sifton Murder Trial Had Close Call for His Life

London, Jan 9—James Morden, one of the two brothers who refused to testify at the last Sifton murder trial had a miraculous escape from injury in the Wanstead wreck. He was in the telescoped coach, but came out with only a scratched nose.

Writing to relatives in this city he gives a graphic picture of the awful moment of the crash and the scenes that followed. He says he was one of the lucky few who were uninjured. There were only four seats in the back of the car that were not covered by the bottom of the baggage car.

"The floor of the baggage car knocked off the back of the seat in front of me," writes Morden, "and slivers went right where my head was a second before. I was in the second seat from the back on the south side. Another gentleman sat beside me, and when the sound came I sprang right past him head first for the aisle. I ducked, so the back of the seat would save my head, and that was the last I knew for a second of time. There was one terrific crash. I found myself standing on my feet facing the door. Everything was still as death. Every light was out.

"I walked safely towards the door. It was open. I turned to the right, and found the vestibule door fast. Breaking the glass, I sprang through. A girl followed me, but got caught in the hole. I helped her out. We stood for a minute, when I left her. Going back, I climbed in through the hole again. In the car everything was dark. Several had come to, and began to cry for help.

"In about two minutes some one came with a light and I saw the two who sat right in front of me pinned down. Where I had been a minute or two before was a sharp bundle of sticks which would have caught me square in the face. I began to pull out the sticks, and soon had the couple in the seat almost freed. In front of them again was a young man, and I tried to get him out, but his feet were fast. He begged me not to leave him."

The shrieks and cries were something awful," he says. One man said to me, "Cut my arm off so I can get out.' I saw a man lying in the snow, and went to him, but his head was in pieces."

Morden took the train for Sarnia before the majority of the unfortunates were released. As he made his way through the wreckage, which was strewn from fence to fence, the last sounds he heard were the piercing calls for help from the poor people pinned beneath the weight of tons. He expresses great thankfulness at having escaped, and says he can get more clothes and a new trunk. But the people who lost their lives cannot get them back again. One of the passengers who particularly impressed him was a tall, fine-looking man. Just before the collision he entered the car, took of his silk hat and placed it in the rack, and, taking a newspaper from his pocket sat down to read. A minute later he was instantly killed.

A BRILLIANT GATHERING

Review of Indian Troops by Lord and Lady Curzon in the Durbar

Delhi, India, Jan. 7.—The Viceroy, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, and Lady Curzon and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught today reviewed the retainers of the ruling chiefs in the Durbar arena. The variety of costumes and paraphernalia afforded one of the most striking pictures of the Durbar festivities. Contingents from all parts of Greater India participated, mostly retaining the distinctive features of their customs. The flags or other emblems of the State or Clutch were carried on camels and elephants, accompanied by armed men on stilts, while Arab irregulars danced past the Viceroy to the music of their own instruments. The famous gold and silver guns of the State of Baroda attracted much attention. The ancient Mahratta flags, descended from the Mogul Emperors, were borne past on an elephant carriage.

State barges, camel kettledrums, richly caparisoned elephants, and horses, and agile swordsmen, many shouting battle cries, followed one another in quick succession. A Royal elephant carriage, two storeys high, showed how the palace ladies accompanied the princes of bygone days.

The retinue of the State of Cashmir included a fine detachment of cuirassiers and a huge giant.

The great Sikh States were represented by large, soldier-like bodies of men armed with maces, spears, matchlocks, and hand-grenades. That contingent was headed by an elephant bearing a gorgeous howdah, in one of which the sacred book of the Sikhs occupied the place of honor. The book was guarded by the chief priest. The venerable chief Nabha, escorted by men mounted on richly caparisoned horses, and accompanied by hounds and hawks, was a striking feature of the display, which for wealth of coloring, diversity of components and number of spectators, may be considered to have been the most brilliant of the Durbar display.

LASHED BY FATHER

Farmer Arrested For Cruelly Beating His Fourteen-Year-Old Son

Belleville, Ill., Jan 9—Dieterich Tiedemann, a well-to-do farmer, of Lenz burg, was fined and is under peace bonds today on the charge of beating his 14-year-old son. The boy's hands according to evidence, were clamped in a vise, and he was beaten with a blacksnake whip until he was insensible. The lad had offended his father. Tiedemann took him to a tool shed near the house, and attempted to beat him.

The boy's efforts to ward off the blows of the whip so exasperated his father that he dragged him to a vise, which was set in a work bench. Heedless of his son's pleadings and screams of pain, the father forced his clasped hands between the jaws of the vise and twisted the screw until blood was forced from the boy's finger tips. Tiedemann then lashed the helpless boy until he became unconscious.

The boy's mother, who had been afraid to interfere went into the building after he had left and released the boy's hands, and he fell to the floor. Highway Commissioner Fred. Wassem swore out the warrant against Tiedemann. The case is in the hands of the grand jury.

THE T.A.S. PLAY AT BOBCAYGEON TO-NIGHT

THEIR FIRST GAME IN T. V. L.

Varsity and Peterborough Play an Exhibition Game in the Brock street Rink To-Night

The T.A.S. hockey team will play their first game in the Trent Valley League to-night at Bobcaygeon, their opponents being the hockey team of that place. Captain Lynch gave the boys a work out last night, and judging from the showing they put up in practice they will make the Bobcaygeonites feel around to see where they are at. The forward line of the T.A.S. is very speedy and with Meagher at point and Crowley cover-point, the Bobcaygeon seven will have their troubles breaking through. The following players will represent the team:

Goal, McCoy; point, Meagher; cover point, Crowley; centre, McGrath; rover, Lynch; wings, W. George, Parnell.

The team will leave the T.A.S. rooms at 1 o'clock. Two busses will convey the team and the supporters who desire to accompany the boys.

The Belleville hockey team defeated Port Hope at Port Hope last night by a score of 3 to 2. Considerable money changed hands, as Belleville was out to win, and Port Hope backed their team heavily. Port Hope is at a loss now as what to do with their new rink. It is rumored that they will turn it into a livery stable or a tenement house.

The Varsity hockey septette will chase the rubber with the local Intermediate Colts tonight on the Brock street rink. This will be the first hockey game played in Peterborough this season, and the first match played on our new rink. A large crowd of Peterborough hockey enthusiasts will witness the game. The ice is in good condition for fast hockey and the spectators will look forward to a clean, fast game.

The west gallery at the skating rink will be the reserved side for the hockey match this evening between Varsity and the local team. A limited number of tickets will be sold for this side and no smoking will be allowed there. Tickets are on sale at Ormond & Walsh's, Nugent's and Fred Clarke's. People are requested to obtain tickets in advance as only one office will be available at the rink. Doors open at 7.30. Match called at 8.00.

Tonight eight players will be tried. First half team will be: Goal, Crough; point, Cavanagh; cover point, Armstrong; forwards, Graham, Morgan, R. Armstrong and Whitcroft. In the second half, Glover will be played at point, and Cavanagh will be tried on the forward line. Jack McCabe will referee.

Smith's Falls, Jan. 9.—Varsity hockey team met defeat last night at the hands of the Smith's Falls O.H.A. senior seven, before an enthusiastic crowd of twelve hundred people, to the tun of 9 to 4. Varsity team was strengthened by the appearance of Jamieson, a freshman from Guelph, and O. K. Gibson of last year's seniors in their ranks, both of whom put up star games. The half-time score was 4 all. Lash played a great game in goal.

Toronto Star: Secretary W. A. Buchanan to-day appointed Jas. T. McCabe of Peterborough, as referee for the Stouffville game at Uxbridge on Tuesday night. Mr. McCabe has given excellent satisfaction wherever he has officiated.

Winnipeg, Jan. 9.—The Winnipeg Victoria Stanley Cup challengers were again defeated in a championship game last evening by the Winnipeg Rowing Club seven, the score standing 5 to 3 against the Vics. The half-time score was 2 all. Munton and Keene replaced Nash and Gingras on the Victoria line-up. Green and Burke Wood were the stars for the winners

That fellow McGuire, on the forward line, is a corker from Corkville.—Belleville Intelligencer.

Cobourg juniors beat Port Hope by 9 goals to 1 in an O.H.A. game on Wednesday night at Cobourg.

Two games were played in the Northern League last night. Listowel, who look like pennant winners, beat Lucknow 11 to 4, and Harriston won from Drayton 13 to 3.

Berlin beat Guelph Victorias-O.A.C. at Guelph by 7 to 3, Wednesday night, which accounted for the fact that the A.P. correspondent at the latter city forgot to send out the score. The Berlin papers say a Carmichael played on the Guelph forward line, but his name does not appear in the Guelph accounts.

Brantford hockeyists claim that the score in the Paris game on Wednesday night should have been a tie instead of 6 to 5 in favor of Paris.

The Expositor says that after half-time Taylor of Paris went off for three minutes, and the referee, Percy Dietrich of Galt, did not know who to send off with him. At the moment Dowling had broken his skate, and the game was continued. Taylor served his time and got in the play again, but Dowling had not his skate fixed, and unfortunately the game was not called, as it should have been, to allow him to get on the ice. In his absence, and with seven men to six, Paris tallied and evened up. Then the visitors took the lead and once again Brantford evened. The draw was broken by Paris, who scored shortly before time was up.

—The first hockey match of the season took place between Lakefield and Keene on Tuesday evening and resulted in a victory for Keene, the score being 11 to 5. Next week two league games will be played here, with Norwood on Tuesday and Stirling on Wednesday evening.

A MURDER AVENGED

Paul Woodward Aged 17 Years Hanged at Camden N. J.

Camden, N. J., Jan. 9—Paul Woodward, aged 17 years, was hanged in the Camden jail today. The drop fell at 10.05 o'clock and Woodward was pronounced dead ten minutes later. He showed remarkable nerve. He murdered on October 1st last, John Coffin, aged 11, and Price Jennings, aged 14. Their bodies were found in a wood near Haddon Heights, six miles from here, on October 4— It was learned that Woodward had been seen in company with the lads on the day of their disappearance, and that the three had purchased pies near where the murder was committed. Woodward was subsequently arrested. An analysis of the boys' stomachs showed they died from arsenical poisoning. The police learned Woodward had purchased arsenic, and he was convicted of murder in the first degree. Counsel for the prosecution claimed that Woodward had poisoned the boys for the sake or robbery, as when they left home the boys had $10 in their possession, but when the bodies were found the pockets of the clothing did not contain a penny.

A MILE HEAD

Wonderful Water Power with a "Head" of 5,000 Feet

Denver, Colo., Jan 9—Arizona engineers regarding the Grand Canyon of the Colorado as affording one of the greatest fields in existence for the development of electricity from water power. In addition to the immense power of the Colorado itself large stores of energy are available in the smaller streams that leap into the vast chasm. The plan by which the power of the main stream, will, it is now thought, eventually be utilized is that of "picking up" the fall of the river by means of tunnels. At a point about a [illegible] miles north of Wiggiams it is said that a fall of five thousand feet can be found in a distance, but little exceeding a mile.

HIDDEN GOLD

A Attempt Being Made to Exploit Gold in Greenland by Danes

London, Jan. 9—There is a belief in Denmark that there is a hidden Klondike somewhere in Greenland, and a private trading company with a large capital has been organized to exploit the country. Hitherto the affairs of Greenland, and such commerce as has existed with the outer world have been monopolized by the Royal Greenland Commercial company, a government institution, but this, it is claimed, has been without resources. Besides the mineralogical enterprises, a feature will be made of the whale fisheries and several great whaling stations will be established next spring on the south coast of Greenland. It is proposed to send out at the same time three scientific expeditions with a view of reporting on the mineral capabilities of the country.

THE VENEZUELAN TROUBLE

Reservoir Bursts and Causes Panic—Man Drops Dead with Delight

Chicago, Jan. 8—David Thompson, one of the best known prospectors in the Black Hills, over which country he has hunted gold for seventeen years, yesterday struck a ledge of great richness, and after ten minutes of demonstrations of delight, fell dead, says a despatch to the Tribune from Rouboix, S. D. An examination made later by physicians showed a blood-vessel in the brain to have been ruptured.

It says: "Some anxiety is felt at Washington over matters related to the Venezuelan controversy, and may well be, if persistent allegations are well founded, that the allies are actively assisting the revolutionists, thus practically taking part in efforts to destroy the government of one of the republics of this hemisphere." It concedes that Castro does not merit sympathy, and then adds, "But the operations against the country by foreign enemies are so deplorable and likely to involve the United States in trouble that our people cannot wish too speedy a settlement of the arbitration preliminaries." If our neighbors will just go on minding their own business, this Venezuela matter will be settled all right and justice will be done. Uncle Sam has nobody ready to do him so bad a service as those that would induce him to put his nose into other people's messes. If he doesn't feel like paying Castro's debts and making Castro's apology he must needs see Castro compelled do the trick or get out.

London, Jan. 9.—A despatch to the Morning Leader from Lisbon says that the whole city is in a panic owing to the bursting of the reservoir in the northern part of the town.

The low lying districts are completely inundated, and many persons have perished. A large number of buildings have been destroyed.

pound. A multitude of men and women, weakened, nervous, rundown and suffering the pains and agonies of disease, have had their burdens removed and their feet firmly planted on the solid rock of health.

Stirring political events of the past year, the colossal efforts of trusts and monopolies, the recent miners' strike and other notable events will be quite forgotten in a few weeks or months. Not so with the strength after weakness, the new life after years of suffering, the robust health after wasting disease, the permanent cure after the verdict of "incurable" pronounced by the physician. These glorious remembrances and blessings, and the happy assurance that Paine's Celery Compound "makes sick people well," will be indelibly graven on the mind as long as life lasts.

The victories of Paine's Celery Compound over disease in the past year are supported by thousands of testimonial letters from the best people of the land. Medical journals have noted the blessed work, and physicians have been compelled to indorse the life saving virtues of earth's best medicine. It matters not, dear reader, how bad your case may be, give Paine's Celery Compound an honest trial, and you will surely share the blessings it has bestowed on others.

TRADED WIFE FOR A WATCH

Judge Benson of Cobourg Straightened Out Tangle—All Got Light Sentence

Port Hope, Jan. 9.—The denouement of a peculiar entanglement of family relations occurred in the County Court at Cobourg yesterday in the trial of George Albert Reynolds of Percy Township, near Dartmouth, for inciting to commit bigamy. The facts of the case as elicited through the evidence were as follows:

On December 10th, 1900, George Albert Reynolds and Annie Clark were married by the Presbyterian minister at wood, and they lived together as man and wife until last fall, when an elder brother, Walter Reynolds, aged 26, came home from Michigan and revived a former intimacy existing between himself and George's wife. George resented this, or else he was tired of his wife, and offered to sell his wife and household effects to Walter, the consideration being a watch bought in Michigan for $25. A bargain to this effect was made, the marriage license procured under false pretenses by the two brothers at Roseneath, and husband No. 1 took charge of his two children, while his wife and brother were being married in innocence by the Methodist minister at Warkworth, in November, 1902. After which husband No. 2 took immediate charge of his brother's wife, two children and household furniture. The affair culminated yesterday in Walter Reynolds and Annie Reynolds pleading guilty to charges of bigamy, and receiving sentences of four months each in the County Jail at Cobourg. George Albert Reynolds, the first husband, was convicted of the charge of inciting bigamy, and received three months. In passing sentence, Judge Benson pointed out that the lightness of the sentences was due to the fact of the ignorance of the parties concerned, and because their offence against society and morality had affected no innocent party injuriously. The parties in this unique domestic mix-up remain unaffected in their relationship, husband No. 1 having promised to take back the wife and children he had sold as soon as the sentences expired.

GERMANY SAID TO BE IN DEEP FINANCIAL WATER

Radical Revision of Its Whole Fiscal System Must Come Soon

London, Jan. 9.—The Times' Berlin correspondent says the financial condition of the German Empire continues to give grounds for serious reflections. The net estimated decrease in the Imperial revenue which is not appropriated for the separate States, including the income from the post-office, telegraphs and Imperial, as distinguished from State, railways, is between eleven million and twelve million marks. The expenditures are constantly increasing. Forty-eight million marks will have to be appropriated in the estimates to cover the deficit revealed in the final accounts of 1902. It is universally believed that the Government will find it impossible to postpone much longer a radical reform in the whole financial system of the Empire.

THE ORIGIN OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE

Monroe's Declaration

We owe it to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United Stated and the allied powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any position of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere; but with the governments which have declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have on great consideration and just principles acknowledged, we could not view an interposition for oppressing them, or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any European power in any other light than a manifestation of an unfriendly disposition towards the United States. —President James Monroe in his message to Congress in 1823.

Which is Now Exciting the Envy of Every Nation in Europe

Historic Facts Showing Growth and Principle of the Subject

New York, Jan. 9.—The trouble in Venezuela is causing the Monroe doctrine to be discussed by every prominent newspaper in Europe. That the United States may be called upon to enforce the doctrine by force of of arms is probable, especially in view of the attitude of the German Empire with regard to the South American republics. The war that would follow such a course would be terrible to contemplate.

Soon after the overthrow of , the empire of the first Napoleon the rulers of Russia, Austria, France, and Prussia formed an alliance for mutual protection, not against aggression from foreign powers, but against revolutionary movements in their own states. At a congress held by the allied powers at Troppau in 1820 it was agreed that the main purpose of the alliance should be to maintain the principle of the legitimacy of the existing dynasties and that if this principle were threatened in any country in Europe, the allied powers should preserve it by actual and armed interference. Popular risings having taken place at Piedmont and Naples, they were put down by the armed forces of Austria in pursuance of a measure taken at the congress at Laibach in 1820, and the revolution in Spain against Ferdinand VII. was suppressed by French armies in consequence of resolutions taken at the congress of Verona in 1822.

At the first two congresses, the English government, then represented by Castlereagh, had, although not strickly one of the allied powers, participated in and sustained the proceedings. But at the point of starting for Verona, Castlereagh committed suicide, and Geroge Canning, becoming secretary of State, disapproved of the Spanish intervention. After the restoration of the Spanish King Canning thought he had reason to believe that the principle of interventoin would be also applied to the reduction of the also applied to the reduction of the American colonies of Spain, which, ever since 1810, had been successively drifting into open revolt. These colonies had freed themselves from the colonial bandage which fettered their trade with the outside world, and England had largely profited by their indipendence. That independence had already been recognized by the United States, and both interest and sympathy made the latter strongly opposed to any effort toward reconquest on the part of Spain.

In the summer of 1823 Mr. Canning mentioned his suspicions to Mr. Rush, the American Minister at London, and expressed his great desire to have the United States join with him in endeavoring to thwart the object of the allied powers. Speaking of a cabinet meeting held in Setpember, 1823, Mr. J. Q. Adams, then secretary of state to President Monroe says—"The subject for consideration was the confidential proposal of Canning, Brisecretary of State, to Mr. Rush, and the correspondence between them relating to the project of the holy alliance upon South America. The object of Canning appears to have been to obtain some public pledge from the United States ostensibly against the forcible interference of the holy alliance between Spain and South America, but really or especially against the acquisition by the United States of any part of the Spanish possessions."

Mr. Adams thought lightly of the matter, but Mr. Monroe and other members of the cabinet, particularly Mr. Calhoun, were, as Mr. Adams says, "very much in fear that the holy alliance would restore all South America to Spain." Upon long and careful consideration it was finally agreed to express some disapprobation of the scheme in the president's message; and the passage relating to this subject was much debated and submitted as finally adopted by the cabinet to Mr. Jefferson and Mr. Madison. The annual message in 1823 accordingly contained this passage, which have come to be known as the Monroe doctrine.

700 FAMILIES LEFT HOMELES

Wholesale Evictions in an English Mining Village Near Sheffield

STRUCK DESPITE THE UNION

And the Colliery Owners Evicted Them from Colliery Owners After Seven Months

London, Jan. 7.—The mining village of Denaby, between Sheffield and Doncaster, was the scene yesterday of evictions by the wholesale. Seven months ago the miners, contrary to the rules and advice of their union, struck because of a dispute with the owners. Many efforts were made to settle the trouble, but they all failed. The owners recently notified about seven hundred of the strikers who were occupying houses owned by the colliery company that if the strike was not settled they would be evicted.

The ultimatum expired yesterday. Early in the day a number of families voluntarily left their dwellings. The others made no opposition to their evictions, and stood in resigned silence while their furniture and other household effects were removed to the streets, mothers and fathers standing holding their children by the hands until their homes were emptied. The scene was pitiful enough, but it was mitigated by the sympathetic tact of the police and by the abundant help bestowed upon the people evicted by tradesmen, co-workers, and others, who provided tents and other shelter.

THE DOURO T. A. S.

VERY SUCCESSFUL ENTERTAINMENT IN ST. PATRICK'S HALL

A Very Large Audience Present to Enjoy the Irish Drama "Handy Andy"—Presentation to Mr. Dennis Moloney, Douro's Popular Representative in County Council

On Wednesday evening last the Total Abstinence Society of St. Joseph's Church, Douro, presented the celebrated drama, "Handy Andy," in St. Patrick's Hall, to the largest audience that probably ever entered the building. The gathering was made up of the good people of the township, as well as delegations from all the adjoining municipalities, together with a good sprinkling from the County of Victoria.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flags and bunting, and the entertainment provided was of such a meritorious nature as to reflect the highest credit on the young people taking part.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Ennismore, acted as chairman of the evening and in opening the proceedings delivered a brief, but practical address. He congratulated the Total Abstinence Society on the good work it was doing in the township. They all knew his views on temperance and he was proud of the splendid organization in his own parish. He urged upon the men of Douro to join the T.A.S., and closed by wishing the society all success.

Then followed the drama of the evening, the caste of characters being as follows:

Handy Andy	B. Leahy
Squire Egan	G. S. Buck
Squire O'Grady	M. Walsh
Mr. Murphy	M. J. Leahy
Dick Dawson	Fred Walsh
M. Furlong	J. Bolin
Edward O'Connor	Jas. Walsh
Simon	Wm. Hayes
Ruffians	Thos O'Brien & G O'Connor
Oonah Rooney	Miss M O'Brien
Mad Nance	Miss M. Sullivan
Fanny Dawson	Miss. E. Powers
Accompanist	Miss A. Flaherty

The play was capitally put on by the young people, and each role was portrayed very creditably. The young ladies in the cast delineated their respective characters in an admirable manner. Of course everybody expected a great deal from Handy Andy, (M. B. Leahy,) and no one was disappointed. The droll and witty sayings as well as his ludicrous mistakes kept the house in roars of laughter. Mr. Stanley Buck, as Squire Egan, portrayed the character very faithfully. The work of the young people certainly deserved the warm praise bestowed by the reverend chairman at the conclusion of the production.

The different scenes in the drama were interspersed with capital specialties. Mr. F. Moher, baritone, contributed two capital solos, and a duet by the Misses Barry was beautifully sung. Miss Lillie Bell, of Keene, contributed two vocal numbers sweetly rendered by this talented vocalist. Messrs. Sam Houlihan and Joe Guerin, the two clever buck and wing dancers and coon song singers brought down the house with their numbers, and will get a warm welcome should they visit Douro again. A beautiful tableau "Gloria in Excelsis Deo," concluded the evening's programme. The young ladies taking part in the tableau were Misses A. Flaherty, A. Walsh, and M. Sullivan, and this number was a beautifully conceived scene, and reflects considerable credit upon Miss Flaherty who arranged it.

The committee in charge of the entertainment are to be congratulated on the successful outcome of the affair. It was a grand success financially, and was a delightful success from a literary and musical standpoint. The committee consisted of Messrs. L. Bolis, R. Leahy and G. S. Buck.

Miss A. Flaherty the talented organist of St. Joseph's church is also deserving of the highest praise for her work in connection with the successful outcome of the evening's entertainment. The programme was virtually under her capable management, and during the evening she also presided very acceptably at the piano.

During the evening a very pleasing incident took place. Mr. Dennis Moloney, President of the Douro T. A. S., was recently elected by acclamation to represent Douro and Dummer in the County Council, and between one of the scenes in the drama, Mr. Wm. O'Brien, Township Clerk, appeared on the stage and read the appended address:

To Mr. Dennis Moloney, County Councillor, Douro:

Dear Mr. Moloney,—It is with no ordinary pleasure, and we hope with pardonable pride, that your numerous friends and well-wishers of Douro, approach you this evening to offer you our most heartfelt congratulations on your recent appointment to the responsible position of County Councillor, and at the same time to couple with the pleasures of this evening's entertainment the still greater pleasure we experience of testifying our deep appreciation of your past services to our Township, whether as Reeve, Councillor, Trustee, or President of our T.A.S. In each and every capacity, we could not fail to recognize your sterling worth, and the wisdom, generosity and foresight you have ever displayed in all your private and public dealings, justly entitle to our esteem and gratitude, and qualify you in every respect for the more onerous duties which your new position will call upon you to fulfill. True worth will always tell, and we are well aware that in doing justice to you, we are only doing honor to ourselves. We know your earnestness and ability, and the deep interest you have always taken in everything pertaining to the good of our Township and our parish, and we trust that the past is a safe guarantee of what we may hope for in the future. Wishing you the compliments of the season, and assuring you once more of our best wishes for a bright and prosperous new year

We subscribe ourselves, your friends in the cause of temperance,

WILLIAM MOHER,
Vice-President.
JAMES BARRY,
Treasurer
WILLIAM O'BRIEN,
Secretary

Douro, Jan. 9, 1903.

Mr Moloney replied as follows:

Rev. Father, Ladies and Gentlemen:—I can hardly find words in which to express my gratitude for that kindly worded address, and the flattering remarks that are made in it. I don't think I am at all deserving of such praise. I am proud to be a member of this T.A.S. and I think it had done a great good in this parish. I hope I will always be able to uphold the principles for which it was founded, and it will be a pleasure for me to do anything I can to further its advancement.

In your address you referred to my election to the County Council I know you were proud to hear of my promotion. I hope I will be able to fill the office with credit to the society and the division I represent. And again I thank you one and all—the members of the Total Abstinence Society—for your very kind address.

The proceeds totalled a handsome sum, which will be devoted to fitting up St. Patrick's hall. The Douro T.A.S. at present has a membership of over 150.

CHAPTER XLV.

A Friend In Need.

We will return to Hilda in her terrified flight from the dangers that menaced her from the man who claimed her as his daughter.

She slipped into the coach with its dimly burning night-lamp, and instinctively seeking the most obscure seat, sank down wearily into it, folding her arms upon the back of the next seat, and laying her head down upon them.

There were few passengers in the car, and they were mostly asleep with their hats tilted over their faces to shut out the light. Only one passenger entered the coach after Hilda, and he dropped into the seat behind her without noticing her at all. Leaning back in his seat, he tilted his hat over his eyes like the rest and surrendered himself to thought. And then they were whirled away through the beautiful mountainous country toward their destination.

Presently the conductor came along with his lantern to collect the fare of the few passengers. The man behind Hilda roused up promptly and surrendered his ticket, then relapsed into his musing mood.

"Ticket miss," said the conductor, touching Hilda gently on the shoulder to awaken her. He thought she was asleep.

There was no reply. Hilda had fallen into a lethargic state from which it was difficult to rouse her. The conductor shook her a little more roughly this time, and repeated in a louder tone:

"Ticket, if you please, miss."

Hilda lifted her head wearily, pushed back the vail from her face, and looked around at the impatient conductor.

"Did you speak to me?" she asked, slowly.

"Yes, miss; I am waiting for your ticket," said the man, thinking to himself that she must be very stupid not to know what he wanted.

"I—I haven't any ticket," said Hilda, in a dull tone, like one dazed.

"Haven't a ticket," said the man, in surprise. "Neglected to get it, eh? Oh! very well, the money will do as well. How far are you going?"

"As far as the train goes," said Hilda, with feverish energy.

"We go as far as Richmond. Ten dollars is the fare, and I am in a hurry, if you please," said the conductor.

Hilda started and looked at him. Her embarrassing position suddenly began to dawn upon her. She put her small hand up to her brow in bewilderment.

"I—I haven't any money," she faltered.

"Have you lost your pocket-book?" inquired the man, in surprise.

"No, but I haven't any money," was the frank reply.

The conductor hardly knew what to say to this inexplicable conduct. He began to be angry, and said to her, sharply:

"Well, didn't you know that we don't allow folks to ride free on this train?"

Under the light of the lantern which he held close to her face, a scarlet blush kindled in Hilda's cheeks.

"I—I never thought of it," she faltered. "I was in such a hurry to get away, I just came on the train as soon as it stopped. I didn't think about money."

The man regarded her curiously. He thought she acted queerly, as if her mind was not right. But then, he said, to himself, she might be acting so to deceive him. The latter idea seemed the most plausible.

"I am sorry to seem rude to a lady," he said, "but we don't allow any one to ride free on this train. I shall have to put you off at the next station."

The quick tears sprang to the girl's beautiful dark eyes.

"Oh, pray, pray, don't do that!" she exclaimed, impulsively.

"Compelled to do it, miss," was the grim reply. "Strict orders not to allow any free riding. I'll set you off at the next telegraph station, and you can send a telegram back to your friends to come for you. Hark! there's the whistle. We are at the station now."

At that moment a hand touched Hilda's arm. She turned with a start, and saw Sir Wilfred Hale sitting behind her.

"Oh, Sir Wilfred!" she cried; "I—I," and then, utterly unnerved, she burst into tears.

The baronet turned to the bewildered conductor.

"It's all right," he said; "this young lady is a friend of mine. She has forgotten her purse—that's all."

He slipped a bill into the man's hand, and after looking at it, and saying "all right," the conductor ran to the door and passed through just as the train came to a stop at the station. In a few minutes they were whirled onward again, and then the baronet turned to the still sobbing girl.

"Hilda, my dear child, don't weep so bitterly," he said, in a kind, fatherly voice. "I see you are in trouble. I will help you any way I can."

The kindness of the tone provoked a fresh burst of tears from the agitated girl. She sobbed as if her tender heart would break. He leaned over and spoke to her again.

"Try to control yourself, little one. You will draw public attention to your troubles unless you calm yourself. Come, be brave, like the little heroine you are, and tell me why you are running away from your father."

"How do you know I am running away?" she asked, checking her tears by a strong effort of will, and looking at him in grave surprise.

"I guessed as much," said the baronet, shrewdly. "Come, little Hilda, isn't it true?"

"Yes, it's true," she said falteringly, "and— and— if I thought you were my friend, Sir Wilfred, I would tell you the reason why."

Sir Wilfred left his own seat and sat down by the forlorn little girl.

"Hilda," he said, earnestly, "there are very few people— none, perhaps— who like and admire you more than I do. I would do anything to serve you. You see I have smoothed matters with the conductor so that you can go on to Richmond unmolested. Is not that an earnest of my good intentions toward you?"

"Yes, oh yes. I thank you a thousand times, Sir Wilfred. You have

BECAUSE

THE SOUR LAKE OIL CO.

Has placed four-fifths of its stock in the treasury for development work ; and because

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont ;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada ; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time ;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop ; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality ;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE ; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

The Greatest Mining Proposition of Modern Times

This company has demonstrated its ability to produce ore at a profit and pay regular monthly dividends under the most adverse circumstances. Only the highest grade could be shipped and cost upwards of $35 per ton. With a mill it can be treated at less than $3 per ton. The company has nearly enough money to pay for the mill, which they promise to have in operation by April 1st, 1903.

THAT STEEL REPORT

New York, Jan. 9—The report of the Steel Corporation just issued is a remarkable document issued by a remarkable Co., and is practically one of the best ever put out by an industrial corporation. It shows for the year, after laying aside ten million more for depreciation than for the year before, an increase of thirty-three millions of dollars in undivided profits, after paying all interest and the yearly dividends upon the preferred and common stocks. It also reduced its bonded indebtedness during the year some three millions of dollars. It has on hand at the commencement of the present year orders for about one million tons more than it had at the opening of the year 1901. There is no doubt that these stocks will improve very much in price during the current year. The outlook for them is most magnificent. Another favorable feature is the recent severe decline which carried the common down to below 30 and the preferred down to 80. It shook out an unwieldy and weak long interest and contracted their holdings into the hands of strong people who are willing to hold it for the investment returns, and have the ability to do so. Those who will purchase U. S. S. common and preferred, at present, will be well repaid for so doing. Many people look askance upon these shares on account of the ridiculously low prices they sell at, commensurate with their earnings. It is the immense capitalization which brings such a state of affairs about, and it takes several bull markets to lodge the stock ultimately among investors. It is a good deal like the hungry boy, who was offered four large plates of hot cakes, and after eating one was so satiated that he could not absorb the other three plates of cakes. It would not be an argument, however calculated, to prove that they were bad, owing to his inability to dispose of them. We are extremely bullish upon the steel issues. If ever statistical facts warranted the buying and holding of any kind of stocks or property for future appreciation, they warrant the immediate buying of the U.S.S. Corporation, common and preferred. Don't be afraid to place your orders for them. They more than pay their own board while you are holding them.

Summary—If you did not buy some Manhattan this morning as urged in our letter of last night, we think you will find it profitable to do so to-morrow morning. People's Gas also looks like a good thing to buy. Reading sold off today upon the announcement of its acquirement by Pennsylvania and N.Y.C. This is usually the case upon announcement of any special good news. It is good to buy at the concession and will sell very high shortly. Manhattan was the day's market leader. M. R. followed, but sluggishly; both will do better yet. The Pacifics look remarkably well at present, and inside buying was larger. The grangers, Mo. Pacific and Coalers are all good. Steels should shortly sell again above 40 in a few days. The general market conditions remain good. Outside buying is increasing and indications point to still further improvement for the coming week. Money closed 4 per cent. Sales 1,544,000.

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say :

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $30 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $25 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to instal either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying continuous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

This case was for a claim of $100 commission earned on selling the hotel business of the McGregor house, Norwood, for the late proprietor, Mr. J. A. McDonald, to Mr. John White, of Peterborough. The trial took place at the sittings of the Second Division Court held in Norwood on the 28th of November. BEET SUGAR MEETING

Farmers Appear Enthusiastically in Favor of the Industry

The first of a series of meetings in the interests of the beet sugar industry was held in Brayley's school-house, North Monaghan, on Thursday evening. There was a good attendance, and considerable enthusiasm was shown. Mr. Joseph Barnard was chairman of the meeting, the principal object of which was to set forth the merits of the industry and the desirability of having farmers take acreage contracts that the industry might be established here. Several gentlemen who had been to Berlin spoke of the importance of the factory there, from a farmer's standpoint, and they seemed to put great faith in the success that would attend the conversion of the raw material right off the farm, and also in the value of the pulp for food for stock. Nearly every one present signified their willingness to take acreage.

Dr. Jeffs, of Havelock, addressed the meeting, going fully into the whole process of manufacture, and Mr. T. M. Bradburn spoke with reference to the proposition to erect a factory in this locality.

Another meeting will be held in May's school house on Monday night next. The canvassers for acreage are reporting very fair results.

DAIRY COMPANY FORMED.

The Object of Which is to Provide Pure Milk for the People

The efforts which have been made for some time to form a City Dairy Company, are about to be realized. At a meeting held in Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr and Stevenson's office on Thursday night, a company to be known as the Peterborough City Dairy Company, Limited, was organized. The following officers were elected:

President—Dr. Halliday.
Vice-President—Jas. Stothart.
Secretary—R. M. Dennistoun.
Directors—J. Carnegie, Robt. A. Wilson, A. A. Cox, W. H. Middleton, W. J. Cox, R. J. Munro, Dr. Boucher, J. Nugent, J. J. McIlpin.

Our readers are aware of the advantages which would result from the handling of milk by a properly equipped company. From a sanitary point of view alone the project is deserving of every encouragement.

The directors have decided that the sum of $10,000 is necessary before any steps can be taken towards active work and they intend to have a canvas of the town made when it is hoped that all citizens who are interested in having a supply of pure milk will subscribe for shares which have been fixed at $25.00 each. Already about $3,000 has been subscribed, and Mr. C. H. Moore was appointed to make a canvas of the town for the purpose of securing further subscriptions.

THE CENTRAL EXHIBITION

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—I see by the advertising columns of your valuable paper that the matutinal annual meeting of the West Peterborough Agricultural Society will soon be held "when a full report of receipts and expenditures for the year will be submitted." This show seems to be run under the same old auspices with the same old result year in and year out. Their only aim seems to be how they can make their receipts exceed their expenditures, and yet their only showing is deficits and unpaid prizes. They have not yet awakened from their Rip Van Winkleism or kept pace with the spirit of the age and the growth of the town and country, but, on the contrary, have actually retrograded.

Not long ago there was an upheaval of public sentiment against the present management which generally declared that it was time for a change. Indeed, with others, I understood that such a change was under contemplation, and yet this meeting would seem to indicate otherwise.

A similar state of things existed for years in our annual horse races until they became a thing of the past. We saw this year how, with the advent of new blood in the persons of Mr. J. M. Brooks, Mr. R. J. Munro, and Mr. A. Rountree, and other similar enterprising spirits, the matter was taken up regardless of receipts and expenditures and the first racing event was a phenomenal success, which will certainly increase with every recurring event. The Canadian Sportsman and Live Stock Journal, while recognizing the efforts of these gentlemen in the cause of clean racing, bespeak for their Club an unqualified success, and adorns its pages with the picture of some of them. Cannot these or similar men take hold of the agricultural show business when the confidence of the public and the success of the show will be ensured?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I am, etc.

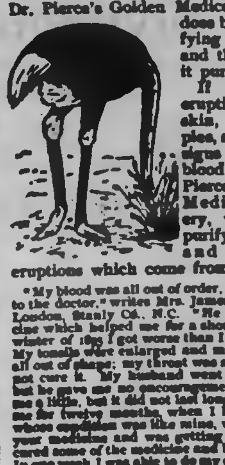
OSTRICH LOGIC.

"When I can't see danger there is no danger." That's the logic of the ostrich which hides its head and exposes its body to the hunter. There are not a few people who seem to have gone to the ostrich to learn logic. The most dangerous enemies of humanity are the enemies which can't be seen, the disease breeding microbes which infect the blood. It is harder to get the microbe out of the blood than to keep it out, but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery does both, by purifying the blood and then keeping it pure.



If there are eruptions on the skin, boils, pimples, sores or other signs of impure blood, use Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which will purify the blood and cure the eruptions which come from it.

"My blood was all out of order, and I had to go to the doctor," writes Mrs. James R. Moss, New London, Stanly Co., N.C. "He gave me medicine which helped me for a short time. In the winter of 1899 I got worse than I had ever been. My tonsils were enlarged and my neck swollen all out of shape; my throat was sore and I could not cure it. My husband went for the doctor, but he gave me no encouragement. He helped me a little, but it did not last long. He attended me for twelve months, when I heard of a lady whose symptoms was like mine, who was taking your medicine and was getting well. So I secured some of the medicine and began taking it. In one week I was able to do my cooking. When I began taking the medicine I could sit up only a few minutes at a time, and I could rest or sleep only a little while at a time. My throat was so sore at times I could not even swallow sweet milk, and my tonsils were full of little eating sores. My left side was swollen out of shape and I could hardly get my breath. The doctor said I would not get well, but three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, three bottles of his 'Pellets,' three bottles of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and the use of salt water did the work and cured me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its consequences.

THE SCHOOLS CLOSED FOR ANOTHER WEEK

The Board of Health and Medical Men Strongly Recommend It

The Times Takes the Matter Up in the Interests of the Children—Opinion of Several of the Leading Physicians

Chairman Hill, of the Board of Education, requests The Times to announce that the schools will not be re-opened until Monday, 19th instant. This course was taken on the advise of the local medical profession and Board of Health.

The above is due directly to the action of The Times. We called up a number of the leading physicians, and got their opinion regarding the prevalence of scarlet fever in town, after which we had a talk with Mr. Hill. When the Chairman of the Board of Education considered the matter, and had taken the advice of the Board of Health as well as the medical men of the town he decided to keep the schools closed for at least a week longer, simply as a matter of precaution against the spread of scarlet fever.

A number of medical men were seen by The Times, with the following result:

Dr. Halliday thought that until the sickness had subsided, it would not be safe to bring the children together.

Dr. Boucher was of opinion that the schools should not be opened for at least three weeks. Scarlet fever was a very infectious disease, especially during the period of recovery.

Dr. Young said: "If the schools were thoroughly disinfected, according to the directions of the Medical Health Board, if these were of any use, the houses properly placarded, people having access to the houses containing disease as well as access to the people, properly isolated—then I see no danger of opening the schools."

Dr. Gray was in favor of keeping the schools closed until the disease was wiped out. It was the only way to overcome and stamp out the epidemic.

Dr. Greer thought it would be safer to keep the schools closed. The fever in its present form was of the malignant type, and was generally fatal. He cited a case where a child was stricken with the disease and was a corpse in 24 hours. Every possible precaution should be taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

Dr. McClelland was very emphatic in stating that the schools should be closed indefinitely. It was not the number of cases which were to be feared so much as the malignant nature of the disease.

Dr. Brown: "I think it would be wise to have the schools remain closed at least another week. Not only is scarlet fever prevalent, but diphtheria also exists. In fact I have had more of the latter lately than the former."

Dr. Morgan said that there was considerable sickness just now, especially amongst the children. A case might be treated as tonsolitis to-day and to-morrow it would be diphtheria. It would be safer to keep the schools closed for the present.

Dr. Bingham, Medical Health Officer, apprehended little danger from the reopening of the schools. The schools had all been fumigated and disinfected, as well as every house where infectious disease existed placarded. He thought that further spread of scarlet fever was not to be looked for.

Averse to Toil.

The life of the tramp in the West is full of horrible possibilities. One was about to receive sentence for drunkenness the other day when the farmer who had him arrested said, "Don't send him to jail, judge; let me have him." "All right," said the judge; "I will sentence him to you for thirty days." The farmer had to sit on his prisoner all the way home to keep him in the wagon, but his neighbors envied him because he had secured a harvest hand. On a freight train which was wrecked in Kansas fifty or sixty tramps were making their way to Colorado "for their health." The farmers promptly offered them two dollars a day and good food and lodging, but they declined, thinking to "bum" their living. The farmers thought otherwise. They "rounded up" the hoboes with shotguns and set them at work in the fields, where the women, armed with guns, guarded them. Some amateur photographers who thought the chance too good to miss are said to have had difficulty in getting their subjects to look pleasant.

The Wrong Bottle.

During the run of "A Celebrated Case" in New York, in the spring of 1878, J. H. Stoddart played the role of Sergeant O'Rourke. He says he has reason to remember this character, and adds: "In the prologue I had a scene with Mrs. Booth, who played the wife of Jean Renaud, the hero, in the course of which she was supposed to give me, as the sergeant, a cup of wine, which I had to swallow. It so happened that the property-man had been using kerosene on the stage during the day, and had left the bottle containing that liquid upon the dresser, where Mrs. Booth was in the habit of finding the drink for the sergeant. During the business she poured a full cup from this bottle, handed it to me, and I swallowed the contents at a gulp. 'O Lord!' I said, as I received the potion. 'What have I done?' said Mrs. Booth, under her breath. I could only gasp out: 'Kerosene!' and made a hasty exit. For almost a week everyone avoided me, owing to the presence of the noxious fluid. I drank such a quantity that the odor and taste remained with me until I thought I should never be rid of it. Otherwise it did me no injury, and my physician even said that it did me good."

APPENDICITIS DUE TO WHITE FLOUR.

So Declares Physician, Who Says System of Milling Is to Blame.

CHANGES in milling processes are responsible for appendicitis, according to a physician who has been in the practice of medicine for fifty years and who has observed the spread of the disease. This physician, Dr. H. C. Howard of Champaign, Ill., asserts that until the trade demand for exceedingly white flour changed the methods of grinding wheat there was no appendicitis.

To prove this assertion the physician points to the fact that where coarse breads are used the disease is unknown, but that as soon as the fine breadstuffs are introduced appendicitis comes along as a sequence.

By this reasoning it is shown that the people of agricultural communities who secured their flour from small mills did not have the disease until the small mills were crowded out by the large ones and fine white flour supplanted the coarse.

Then the negroes of the south so long as they ate corn bread were free from the disease, but when the new process flour began to be used the disease came among them. The same results attended the departure of the German folks from their coarse bread to the refined flour.

Disease Rare Before 1875.

"I can remember that prior to about 1875," said Dr. Howard, "that there was little or none of the ailment among the people. In twenty-five years of practice among the people before that time I do not think I saw more than forty cases of appendicitis. Now they are common.

"Large and extended changes in the diet of people has contributed to this. For example, about the date mentioned there began to be a general change from the old method of grinding grain to the present method of roller mills and excessively fine bolting cloths. This plan of milling began first in the large cities, and appendicitis began to increase first there. Later the new process crowded out the small mills in the country, and the people could not get flour made by the old processes. They bought products of the large milling establishments, and then the farmers began to have appendicitis.

"Still the negroes of the south did not have it, but in time they began to get away from their plain corn bread, and they, too, began to have appendicitis. So it goes. They did not have appendicitis in Germany until they began to eat our fine white flour and put in the new process of milling after our fashion. Now they have appendicitis in Germany just as we do.

Disarranges Digestive Organs.

"Experienced millers will tell you that the fine flour is a less desirable flour than that made by the old process, but the trade demands it chiefly on account of its whiteness. On account of its indigestibility the disarrangement of the digestive organs of the people eating it has greatly increased. The prime cause of appendicitis is found in this disarrangement.

"Quite small children have it. I know one boy who has had thirteen well defined attacks of the disease and came out of all of them without surgical operations. He changed his food to corn bread and mush, with coarse breads in general, vegetables, little meat, and some fruit, and he has taken on flesh and has not had a symptom of the disease for three years.

"The lack of phosphates in the food is visible in the people, and physicians have greatly increased the use of medicines containing phosphates. It is a necessity. Children are brought to me suffering from conditions resulting from a lack of material in their systems to form their teeth. Ten days of treatment, giving phosphates, will bring relief, and the teeth will begin to grow. They are suffering because the ingenuity of men and the foolish demands of trade have resulted in taking from their food the material which nature put in it for their growth."

The new process which is held accountable for disease takes from the grain the phosphates chiefly existing in the germ of the wheat and just under the bran, and leaves only the starch and gluten

A LITTLE WHITE BREAD IS SAFE.

MUCH, IS A MENACE AND DANGER.

A MAN WHO HAD APPENDICITIS, brought on by the use of starchy food, that kept up a continual irritation of the intestinal tract, because he couldn't digest the starch, worked and experimented for about two years in perfecting a food in which the starch should be first changed to grape sugar (in other words, go through the first form of digestion) so that he could have the required elements of food and not suffer therefrom.

THIS WAS THE ORIGIN of Grape-Nuts and the man followed exactly in the line of Nature in changing the starch of the cereals into grape sugar.

THERE ARE ABSOLUTELY no foreign ingredients in or about Grape-Nuts. It consists entirely and wholly of wheat and barley containing all of the food elements of these nourishing grains

THE FOOD IS GRANULAR in shape, purposly made a little hard in order to bring down the digestive juices from the gums and preserve the teeth by proper use. It is softened by cream and is one of the most delicious dishes ever placed on the table.

WE UNHESITATINGLY SAY, and the statement will be verified by the great majority of physicians all over the world, that Grape-Nuts is the most scientifically prepared food in existence. Made for a purpose, it accomplishes its purpose.

IT FURNISHES THE SYSTEM the valuable, much-needed carbo-hydrates, the elements that make brain, nerve and brawn, and it is presented in a form ready for immediate and easy digestion.

IT CAN BE HANDLED by the weakest stomachs. It is used by thousands of mothers for infant's food, and by athletes for their nourishment.

IT REQUIRES NO COOKING, having been thoroughly and skillfully cooked by expert bakers. It is ready for immediate service. It is economical, for but four heaping teaspoonfulls are required for the cereal portion of the meal.

THIS DOES NOT MEAN make your entire meal of four heaping teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts; it means that is the proper amount for that part of the meal, and you may depend upon it the system will absorb more valuable nourishment from that four heaping teaspoonfuls than from many times the weight of other food.

IT IS PARTICULARLY INTENDED to take the place of the quantities of white bread now in too free use by most families.

OUR REMARKS on white bread may displease some, but we stand for a principal in this matter and know exactly whereof we speak.

THERE ARE ON FILE in our office not hundreds but thousands of letters from people in all parts of the world giving descriptions of distress, disease and ill-health from the use of improper food, and detailing the health and comfort that has come from a rearrangement of their diet along our lines,

WE ADVISE FOR BREAKFAST a little fruit, cooked or raw, a dish of Grape-Nuts and cream, two soft boiled eggs and a cup of Postum Coffee. Let it go at that.

AT THE MID-DAY MEAL repeat, adding a little slice of meat, if thought best.

AT NIGHT HAVE A GOOD, generous mixed meal with a dessert made from one of the many receipts in the Grape-Nuts book found in each package. Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Michigan.

Continued Unrest at Fez--Standard Oil Company Encounters Bitter Opposition

Dresden, Jan. 10—The Standard Oil Company is sharing the same bitter opposition which is now being encountered in Saxony by the American Tobacco Company. A journal which represents the Standard Oil Company in Germany recently appealed to the Saxon Government for permission to erect tanks and storage reservoirs adjoining the tracks of the Saxon Railway. The Government referred this appeal to the various Chambers of Commerce, and representative commercial associations, and the result was a chorus of protests and a strong indictment of the methods of the Standard Oil Company. Acting on the advices, the Saxon Government not only rejected the application, but offers its services in behalf of the domestic interests to prevent the so-called Oil Trust from gaining control of the market by sharp competition. The journal referred to has been making strenuous efforts of late to oust its most formidable competitors in the German markets, the Russian and Roumanian Petroleum Companies. In order to regain lost ground in Saxony, where the rival interests have been working with large profits for the last year, it was planned to gain a concession from the Saxon Railway Ministry referred to above. In Prussia the Standard Oil Company has secured concessions from the Royal Railway, allowing the company to pipe oil directly from the railway tanks into the adjoining reservoirs. In Baden the company has also secured special privileges. In Saxony, however, the opposition has been more successful, owing to the combined opposition of the rival companies of Saxon Governments, and of the popular feeling against American products.

International Difficulty Not Likely.

London, Jan. 10—Neither in political circles, nor in the press, says a Paris correspondent of The Times, is there any evidence that the question of the passage of four unarmed Russian torpedo boat destroyers through the Dardanelles is regarded as likely to produce any serious international difficulty. There is no trace of a systematic tendency to find Great Britain in the wrong, which for some years too largely characterised French criticism on almost every diplomatic incident in which Great Britain was concerned. In this instance, the case has been argued in political circles and in the press in a fair spirit and apparently with the wish on all sides to avoid anything which might add venom to a dispute in which France is less immediately concerned than Great Britain and Russia.

Making Von Holleben the Scapegoat.

London, January 10—According to a Berlin correspondent of The Times Vossiche Zietung speaks sharply about the retirement of Dr. Von Holleben as the German Ambassador in the United States. After sarcastically remarking that until the sudden announcement was made that Dr. Von Holleben would go on leave, it had not been thought even worth while to mention his illness, this newspaper continues, as follows:—"If Dr. Von Holleben retires neither the German Empire nor the United States of America will lament any special loss. Germany requires as its representative in Washington a better judge of persons and situations than Dr. Von Holleben." The correspondent says that Vossische Zietung does not stand alone in its haste to make Dr. Von Holleben the scapegoat for mistakes committed by the German Government in its dealings with the United States.

London, Jan. 10—The belief that situation is no longer serious in Morocco will be largely dispelled by a despatch received from a correspondent of The Times at Tangier. He says that the news from Fez in the last few days is far less satisfactory. The Hyaina tribe, which had sent representatives to pledge allegiance to the Sultan, is reported to be still aiding the rebels. The people of Fez are very discontented at the Government's inaction. The Sultan continues to repair the city's defences, but the population, which was never very loyal, is anxious that the coming struggle should not occur there. At last advices the rebels were reported to be nearing Fez.

THE CANADIAN TROOPS IN SOUTH AFRICA

Canadians who Resigned and Were Discharged From the Constabulary Force

GENERAL BADEN-POWELL SOON TO RETIRE

Canada's Complaint About American Cattle—Improvements in St Lawrence Navigation

London, January 12—Some Canadians who were members of the South African Constabulary arrived in England on Tuesday, and twenty or thirty more are expected soon.

Enquiry shows that some were discharged in certain cases for bad conduct and it is alleged the others resigned because they resented being transferred to different sections under other officers than their own.

Some difficulty exists regarding their passage back to Canada, but negotiations are now being carried on with the Colonial Office as the men were enlisted in the Dominion, but most of them expect to return home on Saturday.

Another authority confirms the statement that most of the men resigned on account of their dislike of the English officers.

It is announced today that General Baden-Powell will retire from the command of the South African Constabulary for a better post, though his future movements are not definitely settled.

The Cape Town papers are full of acrid comment on the general administration of the South African Constabulary.

AMERICAN CATTLE

Canada's Complaint Regarding Landing of American Stock

London, January 12—The Standard Ottawa correspondent cables today that the Canadian Cabinet is considering the action of the Imperial authorities in relaxing cattle quarantine regulations against United States ports, while they are strictly enforcing them against Canadian ports. A high official interviewed by the Montreal Star's representative today, said it was hard to see where there was a grievance. The British Board of Agriculture made no relaxation.

No special orders were issued scheduling the United States ports. The steamer referred to was the Ulstermore from Baltimore, which, by a special order of the board, was permitted an extension of time for the landing of cattle. The board decided that it was better to let the cattle be landed than to have the vessel put to sea again.

ST. LAWRENCE ROUTE

Improvements in Navigation Aids on St. Lawrence

London, January 12—Officials of the Elder-Dempster Steamship Company, writing in the papers today enumerate the improvements in lights and warnings being effected in the St. Lawrence and the Bay of Fundy, under the instructions of Hon. Mr. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works. They say that the shipping trade will benefit enormously, and also point out as a proof of the safety of the St. Lawrence route, the fact that last season the Elder-Dempster steamers made 73 Anglo-Canadian voyages without a mishap, except that to the Lusingo. No definite information is obtainable here respecting the statement that the Canadian Pacific has concluded plans to run a line of freight steamers to Liverpool, London and Glasgow as soon as the St. Lawrence opens. This service is probable, but is not expected to commence so soon.

APPENDICITIS INSURANCE

For a Premium of 5s the Patient Can be Insured

London, Jan. 11—It is an old axiom that everything can be insured at Lloyd's. Last spring the famous room made a large amount by insuring against smallpox at the low rate of half a crown per cent. Now the prevalence of appendicitis has suggested to one of the most prominent firms in Lloyd's that the public might like to insure against it.

For a permium of 5s. the assured, if he has to undergo an operation for appendicitis, will have all his direct expenses paid up to £200, and in the event of his death under or from the operation a total sum of £200 will be paid.

Though the idea has only been mooted this week a large number of people have already availed themselves of this insurance. The premium it will be noted, is the same percentage as was charged for smallpox. Age does not stale the infinite variety of Lloyd's.

PETERBOROUGH DEFEATS VARSITY

At Brock Street Rink on Saturday Night

A large crowd witnessed the hockey match on Saturday night between Varsity and the Intermediate Colts, at the Brock street rink, it being the first match of the season held in Peterborough and the first on the new rink—Saturday night being the occasion of the formal opening of the rink.

The ice was in good shape for fast hockey, but neither team played brilliant hockey. The Peterborough seven were handicapped for lack of practice, which was very noticeable, and the combination of the forwards was deficient and not up to the mark, what little passing that was done being very inaccurate. On very few occasions did the team appear to be at all up to last year's form; once or twice during the match the forwards got in some very effective combination work, but as a rule the forwards relied too much on individual playing. For Peterborough Morgan and Cavanagh on the left wing, were particularly noticeable and worked well together. Glover at point, and H. Armstrong at cover point played a very strong game. Crough, in goal, for Peterborough, did not show up very brilliantly, and should have picked out many more shots that resulted in goals.—this is his first appearance between the nets for the Colts, and no doubt he will be given a chance to show what he can do.

For Varsity Gilbert, who was an addition to the team Saturday night, was a tour of strength and did very clever work for the visitors, while Lang at point relieved many times. Leach in goal, stopped shot after shot which were poured in upon him, and picked out many of Cavanagh's hot ones, and it was due to his clever stops that the score was not much larger for Peterborough, who kept the puck pretty well in Varsity's territory during the match. The game from start to finish was clean, no rough work being indulged in by either team. The score at the finish was Peterborough, 11; Varsity 6, Varsity being the first to score.

Jim. McCabe officiated as referee.

Jack McDonough and Eugene Hurtubise have agreed to wrestle at the T.A.S. smoker tonight.

St. Peter's T.A.S. Hockey team defeated Bobcaygeon at that place on Saturday afternoon, by a score of 7 to 5. The home players were, Lynch, Meagher, Crawley, George, McGrath, Parnell and McCoy.

Mr. Earle's Address

At the Friday evening meeting of the Ladies Reading Circle of St. Peter's T.A.S., Mr. Barton Earle gave an able address on "Shakespeare and the Drama." This is a subject which Mr. Earle is quite capable of handling in first class style and the audience received an intellectual treat.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien and others also gave short addresses.

The chair was occupied by Mrs. J. O'Hern and the following programme was rendered:—Instrumental duet, by the Misses Hurley; vocal solo, Miss Ollie Tangney; vocal solo, Mr. Frank Pope.

At the next meeting, to be held on Friday, January 23, Miss Drennard will read a paper.

To-morrow evening the Ladies' Literary Committee will hold a meeting.

Schools Disinfected

All the town schools have been thoroughly disinfected, and after another week's vacation it is hoped that everything will be in first class shape for the re-opening of schools on Monday next, Jan. 19. If the people will co-operate with the Board of Health, we believe the town will soon be quite free from infectious diseases.

WHY NOT THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Sir,—I quite agree with the action
Sir,—I quite agree with the action of the Board of Education in closing the schools of the town; but would it not be equally as well to have the Sunday Schools closed as well? What have the medical men to say about this?

Surely if it is dangerous for children to meet on week days, it is also dangerous on Sundays?

Let us hear from The Times on this most important subject.

COMMON SENSE.

Peterboro, Jan. 10th.

THE "CITY" OF PETERBOROUGH

To the Editor of The Times:

Dear Sir,—I was not only disappointed, but I must confess, disgusted when looking at the reports of the municipal elections throughout Ontario in the Toronto Press, to find Peterborough not among the large typed list of cities—but instead to find that grand and enterprising municipality among the small typed list of towns and villages. What a poor advertisement for Peterborough that was! Neither did I see a tag attached to the name "Peterborough" that Peterborians were proud to say that it stood as the largest "town" in Canada, and yet more than large enough to be a "city."

I am sure most people in Canada simply thought that our town was not eligible to be in the city class for want of population.

I read so much in the Peterborough Press of some one here and some one there, saying this and that business, and this and that organization is doing so much in advertising Peterborough—but I think I am safe in saying that the grandest advertisement and the most spectacular too, would be the announcement to the world that Peterborough has been made a city. It would be prima facie evidence that we are progressive and have become a large community for which there must be some good reason.

To show how little Peterborough is really known to be what it is,—one of the largest manufacturers in Canada,—a public man, too,—told me lately he was informed that the only factories of any account in Peterborough were the Cereal and Electric factories. I certainly astonished him when I enlightened him about our other large works, such as the Wm. Hamilton Company, the Cordage Works, Auburn Mills, Matthews Packing Co., Peter Hamilton Works, etc., etc. Who is to blame for this lack of knowledge of the outside public?

I noticed by the Press reports that our esteemed Alderman-elect, Daniel O'Connell stated in his nomination speech that he thought Peterborough should be a city. It should be up to him to see that it be made so, and he is a man who is able, I am sure, to carry the matter to a successful issue.

Let us make the world forget our youth and recognize us as "grown up" and as a progressive and large community, for manufacturers find it well to locate in a populated centre so that they can secure a choice of labor.

It may not be out of place here to mention that I have arranged, (informally as yet,) with a large and influential Society—whose profession is wrapped up in the progress and prosperity of this country—to hold this year's convention at Peterborough on the opening of navigation, and on my return to Peterborough I intend conferring with Mayor Roger and the council as to some sort of official reception to that Society. I shall take it upon myself to show them what nature has done for us back of Peterborough, and no doubt others will be ready to join in showing them the sights—I hope to say of—the City of Peterborough.

J. ALEXR. CULVERWELL.

THE MAYOR'S BANQUET

His Worship Mayor Roger will Entertain This Evening

Following a precedent established ten or a dozen years ago, His Worship, Mayor Roger will entertain the members of the council and other prominent citizens to a banquet at Long's Palm Parlors this evening.

The following ex-Mayors have been invited to be present—Hon. Senator Cox, Toronto; H. H. Smith, Winnipeg; James Stevenson, J. J. Lundy, Wm. Yelland, James Kendry, A. L. Davis, and Harry Denne.

In addition to the ex-Mayors, the Water Commissioners, civic officials, ex-councillors and other leading citizens will be present.

The speeches will not be of the usual character at this annual event. Several speakers are to deal with special subjects, such as "Local Industries," "Municipal Ownership," "Union With Ashburnham," etc. It is expected that the aldermen will come away loaded not only with the good things provided by Mr. Long, but also filled to the neck with "pointers" of how the affairs of the town should be managed. This great family journal will be there, and will endeavor to acquire, digest and secure for its readers a portion of the intellectual food so generously supplied.

They Father Consumption

Bad coughs, colds and catarrh are responsible for more consumption than is traceable even to consumption. Catarrhozone cures more quickly than ordinary remedies because it is the only antiseptic yet discovered that is volatile enough to reach the root of the trouble in remote parts of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and impregnate every particle of the air breathed with its healing, germ-killing vapor. Colds can't last ten minutes, or coughs more than thirty minutes when Catarrhozone is inhaled. It clears nose, throat and air passages at once, stops dropping, headache, and erradicates catarrh from any part of the system. Two months' treatment, $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists or N. C. TOWN COUNCIL AT CHURCH

Rev. J. C. Davidson Discusses Municipal and Other Public Matters at St Johns'

At St. John's church last evening the Rev. J. C. Davidson discussed municipal matters from a religious stand point. The Mayor and Aldermen-Elect attended in a body, together with the Town Clerk and Treasurer, the Chief of Police and other public officials. The reverend gentlemen selected for his text Romans 13, 26.—"They are God's Ministers," and in the course of a very eloquent and convincing discourse, pointed out that the power of doing good in the world is not limited to gentlemen of the cloth, but comes from God also through his ministers in public office. God works for the good of mankind in three spheres—the family, the church and the State. The men chosen by Him for municipal and legislative office are clothed with the authority of the Most High, and they are His ministers as much as those selected for religious orders. Speaking directly to the Mayor and aldermen-elect, the reverend gentleman said the material welfare of this town is intrusted to you by God, who made all material things, and if you realise your office you will recognize that material prosperity is not everything to be desired. As Ministers of the Most High you are definitely given charge of measures for securing public health, and it is of the greatest importance that you should take advantage of those measures which God has revealed in this scientific age of avoiding disease. Should you be careless in this respect then disease is bound to spread, and death will follow. The speaker here expressed his confidence that the new civic board would co-operate with the Board of Health in taking every possible precaution to safeguard the Town against an epidemic of contagious diseases. It is for them to decide whether an extension of the present sewerage system is an immediate necessity, and whether a connection with each dwelling on the extension shall be enforced. Mr. Davidson next took up the question of beautifying the public parts of this town. He thought each successive Council should undertake to beautify some particular part of Peterborough, the natural situation of which is conducive to the picturesque. We are surrounded by hills and undulating country, and, like the garden of the Lord, the town is well watered. We have miles of water front and accompanying islands, which he thought, might be readily beautified.

In conclusion the reverend gentleman asserted that the members of the Council are God's Ministers in Public Righteousness. In this connection he regretted that when we thing of Municipal Righteousness, there exists an evil which defiles this town. But we never had such an opportunity of forcing the Crooks Liquor Act, as has followed in the wake of the Referendum, which has shown liquor men what the true force of public opinion really is. There are two classes of liquor men, and they are separated by a wide gulf. There are men who want the Act enforced to the letter, and are anxious for the Temperance party to get behind the men in power and insist upon its enforcement. He believed that if the Town authorities will take hold of the matter they would have the hearty co-operation of those people who desire to have the Act lived up to by the men who do a rough trade and think they have enough political influence to act as they please. The reverend gentleman was emphatic in his belief that the Hon. J. R. Stratton would give such a measure his hearty support. He said that if petitioned to have the Crooks Act more rigidly enforced "no man would be more ready than the same honourable gentleman—and I do honor him—to grant the petition of his constituents." The reverend gentleman deplored the fact that public men do not receive credit from the people they serve: knaves, villians, rogues, scoundrels, are some of the pet names by which they are called by our ungrateful people. It is true some few public men are honored, but they are dead.

GENERAL CHAFFEE COULD HAVE SEIZED $80,000,000

President McKinley Would Not Allow Chinese Gold to be Taken

Greatest Treasure in All China—It was Hidden Within the Forbidden and the Hiding-Place was Well Known to Americans

New York, Jan. 10—If President McKinley had not forbidden it, General Adna R. Chaffee admitted, in an address at the Hamilton Club in Brooklyn, where he was the guest of honor at a dinner in commemoration of the birthday of Alexander Hamilton, that he would have seized a treasure worth $8.000,000 when he was in command of the American troops in China.

He knew exactly the location of this treasure in the Forbidden City, and had planned to take possession of it, he said, when the President vetoed the proposition. It was his intention to hold any amount that might be settled on as proper indemnity and return the remainder to the Chinese Government.

"We and the Japanese had the honor of guarding the gate to the Forbidden City," said General Chaffee, "and may have to endure the mortification of being charged with having allowed a great amount of looting, but it is a fact that the Forbidden City was not looted to the amount of $500.

Jewels of the Empress.

"Within those walls, however, was the greatest treasure in the Chinese Empire, including the jewels of the Empress Dowager. So great was its volume that it took a hundred Chinese soldiers twenty days to transport it from the winter palace to the house where it was secreted. This was done by night, the soldiers taking roundabout and little used streets to reach their destination, and if it had not been for the enterprise of an American whom I will not name, and for the venality and greed of the Chinese soldier in command of the proceeding, the secret might never have become known.

"As it was, I was fully informed as to all the particulars. I even had a map of the Forbidden City, with the location of the house where the treasure was concealed plainly marked on it, and at a moment's notice, I could have seized the entire amount, had not my hands been tied."

TO FORWARD TEMPORAL INTERESTS OF CATHOLICS

New Radicalism in Ireland, Said to be An Unfortunate Departure in Irish Social Life

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 10.—A writer in a local paper says: "The 'Catholic Association' which has recently sprung into existence in Ireland is a body which has not attracted the attention it deserves. I referred to it a few weeks ago as being in process of formation. It has now taken definite shape, appointed officers, and issued a circular inviting support, and describing its aims. Its president is Mr. Edward Martyn, the well known dramatic author and colleague of Mr. Yeats is founding the Irish Literary Theatre, and it has an Executive Committee composed of Dublin professional men, journalists, and clergy. The objects as stated are:—

"1. To forward the temporal interests of Catholics in Ireland and to promote their social and intellectual intercourse;

"2 To foster a spirit of mutual help and fraternity amongst Catholics;

"3. To promote the practical support of the Irish language, literature, art and industries.

"The circular entitled a 'Summary Statement of Reasons for the Establishment of a Catholic Association for Ireland,' refers to 'the circumstance that the official hierarchy of professional, financial and higher commercial life in Ireland has always been Protestant since the days when the penal enactments necessarily made it so. The long start of us which Protestants enjoyed in 1829 has largely kept it so to this day, and has fostered the spirit that has encouraged them to extend their caste system, with its inevitable exclusive tendencies, to almost every sphere which they can control. In proof that this is so,' the statement goes on, 'it is only necessary to examine the chief financial and commercial concerns in Ireland, and to analyze the constitution of their staffs.' The results of this analysis in the case of the three largest railway companies and of the Royal Dublin Society are then given showing that Protestants have a practical monopoly of the higher paid offices in these organizations. The new association means to change all this, and secure if it can that Roman Catholics shall dominate the economic and industrial life of the country, and develop that country 'upon Irish and Catholic lines. Already it has scored a minor, but distinct success in compelling the Great Southern and Western directors to forego their privileges of nominating candidates for clerkships. The latter will henceforth be thrown open to unrestricted competition.

A Discouraging Outlook

"The association, though a very important one, is also in the opinion of quiet people on both sides an unfortunate departure in Irish social life. It will be an Orange society reversed, and one body of this kind is intolerable enough without having the country rent to pieces among two of them. Perhaps it was inevitable that one should produce the other, but one wishes that the process of time and the progress of human ideas should have gradually brought about the euthanasia of Orangeism rather than the creation of another body of possibly greater smartness and intolerance. Roman Catholics, however, might very well reply, 'How long are we to wait for the liberalizing of Irish Protestantism?'; and I do not quite see what Irish Protestants could retort. There is not, indeed, so much real bigotry and exclusiveness as the new association contends. The reasons why Roman Catholics do not get on in Ireland is not merely that Protestants keep the good positions for themselves. Roman Catholics admittedly show less energy and keenness in qualifying themselves, and it is hard to believe when one surveys the condition of Europe, that this is due to causes peculiar to the history of Ireland. However, there is no doubt that the inherited ascendency feeling among Irish Protestants has worked to prevent the Irish Catholic from having his fair chance of worldly success in his own country. The northern farmer who said to Mr. T. W. Russell, 'Sure, they must be kept down, sir,' gave expression to the general feeling. While the Irish Catholic was content to think himself wealthy in the spiritual things denied to Protestants, he did not mind being "kept down." But it is part of the general reawakening of Celtic Ireland that he is now apparently bent on making the best of both worlds. How far he will succeed in doing so those who live will see, but the game will be worth watching and may lead to some curious and unexpected developments."

While the people of Vermont are trying to get rid of prohibition and substitute high license with local option, the people of Maine are trying to get their prohibition laws enforced more vigorously. For many years the prohibition laws of Maine have been a joke. There was no difficulty in getting liquor in any city or considerable village, though the law of absolute prohibition remained on the statute books. Every few years, however, some part of the state wakes up to determination to prevent the sale of liquor. The first thing it does usually is to elect some clergyman to be sheriff. Under the state law the sale of liquor is under jurisdiction of the sheriff and his policy determines the local conditions. In every Maine city the liquor traffic is just what the sheriff makes it.

It is an interesting fact that the sheriffs in the larger towns adopt exactly the method adopted by many mayors of cities dealing with a grosser evil. They permit liquor to be sold openly in violation of law, but fine the violators at regular intervals. This is called the Bangor plan, because it has been in operation in Bangor for thirty years. Previously the county had elected a parson sheriff and had prohibition for one term. That seemed to be enough. Every subsequent administration adopted the policy that now prevails. Under this there are no disorderly saloons, liquor is never sold on Sunday, and all places are closed before 10 o'clock at night.

There is no disposition to change the administration of the prohibition law in Bangor; but there has been a recrudescence of the prohibition spirit throughout the state, and several counties are going to make an attempt at more vigorous enforcement. One of the most important counties has elected a clergyman for sheriff, and he is going to put an end to the sale of liquor in Lewiston, where it has been going on openly and in a very orderly fashion for about ten years. The same attempt is to be made in other counties, including some where there has been no change in administration; so it may be assumed that there is a real popular movement in the direction of strict enforcement.

Prohibition states are subject to these ebbs and flows of popular feeling like cities. There is this [illegible] difference, the only time they get a "wide open" administration is when they try to shut all the saloons. When they are content to use the prohibition law as a club to compel decency and order, they get the very best regulation of the liquor traffic that is found anywhere.

THE DOUKHOBOR PROBLEM

The story of the Doukhobor pilgrimage, as told in the current number of of the Canadian Magazine, by Mr. John Riddington, a newspaper man, who was an eye-witness of that strange movement, is one of the most romantic and pathetic pictures that the history of the country affords. The martyr spirit is not too common in this commercial age; and here was the martyr spirit, tested by two centuries of Russian persecution, looking upon death as one of the least evils that could come, setting off across the Canadian prairie with all the romantic fervour which must have characterized the knightly pilgrimages of the days of the Plantagenet. The spectator stands upon the steps of a Hudson Bay Company's store, and there walks down the street of a modern Canadian village a procession from the dawn of the Middle Ages.

Absolute faith ruled the pilgrims. They were as certain they would see the Saviour, if they kept on their way, as the common man is that the sun will rise. But they were taken by force and carried back to their villages. We, who thought of the tragedy which would come when they died on the prairie from cold and hunger, conceived nothing so terrible as the tragedy that did come when they were turned back from their quest.

The action of the authorities was necessary. No one will question its wisdom. But it does seem at times that it might have been undertaken with more regard for the feelings of the devoutly sincere men who were obeying the commands of their consciences. Mr. Riddington gives us this picture of the entraining of their leader who thought himself to be "John the Baptist."

"John the Baptist" lay down and gripped the ground with his outspread limbs. He was picked up bodily, and flung face downwards in a farmer's wagon. "Take this man to the cars," said Mr. Speers. "You bet your life," said the farmer, a perfect Hercules. Being hauled in a wagon was the crowning indignity, and the pilgrim attempted to rise to his knees. The driver reached back from his seat, and bore down on the Doukhobor's back with a hand almost as large, and quite as brown as a smoked ham. "Lie still, John the Baptist," he said.

It is clearly the duty of the Government to take some steps toward the enlightenment of these people. They are back in their villages awaiting the coming of the spring and the Summons. It is almost as certain that one will come as the other. Indeed, they—who thought the Almighty ordered a light autumn for their benefit—may easily take the bursting of the spring for the Summons. But they could easily be reasoned with, if it were gone about in the right way. There is a task here which the churches might undertake. We are always sending missionaries to the uttermost ends of the earth to convert far more hopeless cases than these devout Doukhobors, to the truth. Why should not a little co-operation of church and State be arranged to open the eyes of these Russian peasants, who fear nothing but the censure of their own consciences!

PROHIBITION IN NEW ENGLAND

While the people of Vermont are trying to get rid of prohibition and substitute high license with local option, the people of Maine are trying to get their prohibition laws enforced more vigorously. For many years the prohibition laws of Maine have been a joke. There was no difficulty in buying liquor in any city or considerable village, though the law of absolute prohibition remained on the statute books. Every few years, however, some part of the state wakes up to determination to prevent the sale of liquor. The first thing it does usually is to elect some clergyman to be sheriff. Under the state law the sale of liquor is under jurisdiction of the sheriff and his policy determines the local conditions. In every Maine city the liquor traffic is just what the sheriff makes it.

It is an interesting fact that the sheriffs in the larger towns adopt exactly the method adopted by many mayors of cities dealing with a grosser evil. They permit liquor to be sold openly in violation of law, but fine the violators at regular intervals. This is called the Bangor plan, because it has been in operation in Bangor for thirty years. Previously the county had elected a parson sheriff and had prohibition for one term. That seemed to be enough. Every subsequent administration adopted the policy that now prevails. Under this there are no disorderly saloons, liquor is never sold on Sunday, and all places are closed before 10 o'clock at night.

There is no disposition to change the administration of the prohibition law in Bangor; but there has been a recrudescence of the prohibition spirit throughout the state, and several counties are going to make an attempt at more vigorous enforcement. One of the most important counties has elected a clergyman for sheriff, and he is going to put an end to the sale of liquor in Lewiston, where it has been going on openly and in a very orderly fashion for about ten years. The same attempt is to be made in other counties, including some where there has been no change in administration; so it may be assumed that there is a real popular movement in the direction of strict enforcement.

Prohibition states are subject to the ebbs and flows of popular feeling like cities. There is this curious difference, the only time they get a "wide open" administration is when they try to shut all the saloons. When they are content to use the prohibition law as a club to compel decency and order, they get the very best regulation of the liquor traffic that is found anywhere.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Coal Strike Commission has begun work again, and for some weeks we are likely to hear more or less of the pros and cons of the case. Meanwhile the people who are on the ragged edge of a fuel famine, will take more interest in the mining and distribution of coal.

done me an incalculable service," breathed Hilda, lifting her eyes to his in fervent gratitude.

"And I am ready to do still more for you, my child. If you need a friend, as it seems to me you really do, you can command my services to an unlimited extent," said the baronet, earnestly.

Hilda looked into his noble sympathetic face and felt that he was telling the truth. In her wretched and forlorn condition she felt as if God himself had sent her this kind friend.

So as calmly as she could Hilda told Sir Wilfred the story of her neglected life, passing lightly over parts, but detailing with wondrous power and pathos all that happened to her in her day and night at the White Sulphur Springs.

Sir Wilfred listened to her in perfect silence, yet with an earnest attention that showed he was devouring every word. His kind blue eyes glowed with feeling as she told her simple, pathetic story. Yet when she had finished, he said, half teasingly:

"And, so, my poor, forlorn little Hilda, you believe that you are Earl Devon's granddaughter?"

He half expected that her quick temper would blaze up at the teasing words, but instead she only said, sadly, with a sensitive quiver of her scarlet lips:

"I was afraid you would laugh at me."

"Forgive me, my child," said the baronet, contritely. "I was only teasing you, for I believe with you that a monstrous wrong has been perpetrated by the man who calls you his daughter. I think there can be little doubt that you are Lady Ethel's daughter. I think your great resemblance to her has drawn my heart to you from the first."

"You knew her?" cried Hilda, with a start.

"Yes, I knew her," said the baronet and a shadow crept over his face with the words, "I knew her and—yes, I will tell you that, too, little Hilda—I loved her. I hoped to win her for my wife. She seemed to like me until—until your father came—and then—well, then, little Hilda, I lost her. But I have remained single ever since for her sake; so you can see I would do anything in my power for her daughter."

"Yet you never seemed to be fond of Florence," said Hilda, deeply moved by the few quiet words in which the sorrow of a life-time was so patiently told.

"No, she never seemed like Ethel's child to me. There was something about her that repulsed me always, though I tried to love her for the sake of the woman she claimed for her mother. I did not think of doubting Mr. Aylesford's assertion at first. I thought that Florence probably resembled her father's side of the house rather than her mother's, but, Hilda, I know better now. I can see the resemblance to your mother's family in every line of your face. All of the Lornes were dark and beautiful."

"I am not like them, then," said the girl, wistfully. "Florence always said I was black and ugly."

"Never mind what she said," said the baronet, smiling. "She was not an impartial judge. You are a thousand times lovelier in my eyes than she is. But your beauty needs polish and culture. Do you know what I mean to do with you, my child, when you arrive at Richmond?"

"No, sir," said Hilda, looking at him in wonder.

"I am going to place you at the best boarding school in that city as my adopted daughter. And the better to conceal your identity in case your pretended father should seek you here, I shall give you a fictitious name. I shall provide you with a maid and everything needful. That is my part of the contract. Yours is to study hard and improve every hour, that you may fit yourself to take your place as Earl Devon's granddaughter."

"Ah, that can never be," she said, sadly. "How could I prove my claim?"

"I shall make it my business to seek for proofs," he answered, stoutly. "It may be hard to do, I grant you, but I will try my best. You shall see if I do not environ that villain Aylesford with such evidence that he shall be compelled to acknowledge the terrible fraud he has attempted, and reinstate you in your true place."

He spoke more cheerfully than he felt, for he knew what a stupendous task he would find it to unmask the villain's deep-laid schemes. Yet he swore to himself that he would render that service to Lady Ethel's daughter if it rested in the power of mortal to accomplish it.

"How shall I repay you for all your kindness to me, Sir Wilfred?" she asked, with the bright tears of gratitude shining in her dark eyes.

"By giving me a daughter's love," he answered, kindly. "I am old enough to be your father, Hilda, and you might have been my daughter in truth if your mother had not broken her troth with me. But you shall be to me as my own child, Hilda, and I pledge myself solemnly to your service until you have your own again."

And thus in her hour of deadly peril God raised up a friend for the forlorn and lonely girl, for Sir Wilfred Hale kept his promise to the letter, and no father ever showed greater kindness to his own child than did he to his adopted daughter.

So when they had safely reached Richmond, and the telegram came from the White Sulphur Springs inquiring after his protege, he returned the perfectly true yet rather ambiguous message that he had not seen Mr. Aylesford's daughter.

CHAPTER XV.

There was not a sweeter home in old England than Lochsley Hall, where the Earl of Devon spent his summers. He was an old man, naturally stern and cold, and the pleasures of the world had long since palled upon him. But he took the greatest delight in his beautiful country-seat, and often occupied himself in devising plans for its further embellishment and beautifying. The hall itself was a splendid pile of buildings, gray with age, and picturesque with ivy-covered turrets and oriel windows. The rooms were large and stately, and magnificently furnished. Beneath the drawing-room windows was a lovely terraced walk. Beyond was a beautiful park, with stately old trees, and soft, green grass, where the deer

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organised to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 ton [illegible] above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1 65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years	$670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to ... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is ... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is ... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's share common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop; this insures a greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality;

A BRILLIANT GATHERING

Review of Indian Troops by Lord and Lady Curzon in the Durbar

Delhi, India, Jan. 7.—The Viceroy, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, and Lady Curzon and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught today reviewed the retainers of the ruling chiefs in the Durbar arena. The variety of costumes and paraphernalia afforded one of the most striking pictures of the Durbar festivities. Contingents from all parts of Greater India participated, mostly retaining the distinctive features of their customs. The flags or other emblems of the State or Cutch were carried on camels and elephants accompanied by armed men on stilts, while Arab irregulars danced past the Viceroy to the music of their own instruments. The famous gold and silver guns of the State of Baroda attracted much attention. The ancient Mahratta flags, descended from the Mogul Emperors, were borne past on an elephant carriage.

State bards, camel kettledrums, richly caparisoned elephants, and horses, and agile swordsmen, many shouting battle cries, followed one another in quick succession. A Royal elephant carriage, two storeys high, showed how the palace ladies accompanied the princes of bygone days.

The retinue of the State of Cashmir included a fine detachment of cuirassiers and a huge giant.

The great Sikh States were represented by large, soldier-like bodies of men armed with maces, spears, matchlocks, and hand-grenades. That contingent was headed by an elephant bearing a gorgeous howdah, in one of which the sacred book of the Sikhs occupied the place of honor. The book was guarded by the chief priest. The venerable chief Nabha, escorted by men mounted on richly caparisoned horses, and accompanied by hounds and hawks, was a striking feature of the display, which for wealth of coloring, diversity of components and number of spectators, may be considered to have been the most brilliant of the Durbar display.

A MURDER AVENGED

Paul Woodward Aged 17 Years Hanged at Camden N. J.

Camden, N.J., Jan. 9—Paul Woodward, aged 17 years, was hanged in the Camden jail today. The drop fell at 10.05 o'clock and Woodward was pronounced dead ten minutes later. He showed remarkable nerve. He murdered on October 1st last, John Coffin, aged 11, and Price Jennings, aged 14. Their bodies were found in a wood near Haddon Heights, six miles from here, on October 4— It was learned that Woodward had been seen in company with the lads on the day of their disappearance, and that the three had purchased pies near where the murder was committed. Woodward was subsequently arrested. An analysis of the boys' stomachs showed they died from arsenical poisoning. The police learned Woodward had purchased arsenic, and he was convicted of murder in the first degree. Counsel for the prosecution claimed that Woodward had poisoned the boys for the sake or robbery, as when they left home the boys had $10 in their possession, but when the bodies were found the pockets of the clothing did not contain a penny.

THE NEW YEAR

The New Year, or the first part of it, will more than likely witness materially increased activity in the stock market. All indications point that way. Stocks are being rapidly concentrated by the larger powers and are going to advance.

Some special issues should advance particularly sharply for special reasons; they are consequently the best to buy. We will be pleased to particularize these special stocks upon request, stating most tersely the reasons for our specific bullish opinions. It is an unusually good time at present to open a speculative account. If you contemplate so doing, or the investment of any funds for safe interest returns send for our 400-page "GUIDE TO INVESTORS" and "DAILY MARKET LETTER." We issue both gratis, and mail them free as well as a Weekly Cotton Letter.

They will cause you to be thoroughly posted upon matters marketwise, and to be well informed is not only to make money but to obviate the chance of loss. We respectfully solicit your banking investment or speculative account.

STOCK MARKETS

Reading Common Will Go to Par.

New York, Jan. 10—The news has just been announced in anthracite railway coal circles, which is most encouraging for holders of the anthracite stocks, the acquisition of the Reading system through medium of the Lake Shore and Baltimore and Ohio, for the joint interest of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads, which means that Reading common will sell at par, or its equivalent, before the end of the present year. It also means higher prices, and very materially for all the coal issues, including the Eries, Baltimore and Ohio, Norfolk and West, Chesapeake and Ohio, etc. It means that coal will be permanently higher than it was prior to the strike; if the Reading company can get fifty cents per ton more for coal than it did one year ago, it could stand an additional fifteen cents per ton expenditure for mining, and show net earnings amounting to over 6 per cent. upon its common stock. Coal is going to average fifty cents per ton more than it did one year ago. Bear in mind that Reading, J. C. Companies own over five-eighths of all the hard coal lands. Another fact that can be proven from what has happened; it plainly indicates that the great New York Central and Pennsylvania systems are in complete harmony, and not antagonistic as has been declared by many people. It is the straw that proves the deliberate and harmonious action of the management of these two great companies. It means much for the future of the market; it was a foregone conclusion that anyone investing in the anthracite coal interests in this country was bound to see his property become more and more valuable. The acquirement of the Reading, Jersey Central stocks as has happened merely hastens the upbuilding process. The railway interests of the country were never so much in unison as they are at present, all working to the one grand end. The development of their properties making them produce the very best net results obtainable, improving all the time their physical condition, and through proper interchange and division of business avoiding all possible conflictions. Nothing at present time excels as an investment in American stocks.

Summary—Market was a strong one. The Bank statement was good, and further stimulated the good feeling. Reserves increased about $6,000,000. Specie increased a million and a half. Deposits increased about five million, while loans decreased about $4,000,000. Reading continued its decline, running counter-current to market tendency. It is now a minority stock without any further chance of a buying movement for control. The Pennsylvania and New York Central people undoubtedly want it down so they can purchase extensively into the shares as cheaply as possible, as they foresee it will ultimately sell above 100, due to what has happened. The general market closed very strong, and the outlook for the coming week is most encouraging. Money closed 4 per cent. Sales 674,466

REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines, and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims equal to 240 acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all bearing more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $30 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as $20 per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Presentation to Mrs. McCarrell

The Trustee Board of Bethel Church on Thursday evening last, presented Mrs. John McCarrell with a handsome chair as a mark of their high appreciation of her very valuable services so cheerfully rendered as organist. The presentation was made by Mr. T. M. Caldwell, and Mr. Moses Ruth read an appreciative address, to which Mrs. McCarrell made a suitable reply, although she was taken entirely by surprise.

THE SERMON TO THE MAYOR AND ALDERMEN

There is no doubt that the inauguration of the annual sermon to the Mayor and Aldermen is a good thing. Apart from the fact that probably some of our representatives will in this way hear the gospel for the first time it is a tribute of respect and consideration to that body, which public men, imbued with a serious sense of their duty, will appreciate. We are inflicted in this young country of ours with a certain degree of freshness, (by some called a dash of progressiveness) which of course we will get over in time when we know more. In the meantime, outside of the universities, there is apparently a vast deal more knowledge than inside. Every man on the street corner has the proper thing to do ready for announcement. With this little failing removed, or altered in the right direction, a public discussion of public affairs is always best. It removes the odious practice of lobbying, so dear to the heart of the schemer. We hope to see the practice repeated from year to year. "Go thou and do likewise."

THE ALBANY CLUB

A New Club Formed in Town Under Favorable Auspices

A new social club has been formed in town with a membership of about fifty, to be known as the Albany Club. A suite of rooms have been secured in the Opera House block, facing George street, which are being handsomely fitted up and furnished. The premises will have a total length of about 80 feet, by about 35 feet deep, and will be divided into four large rooms.

A charter is being secured so that the club will be incorporated. No liquor will be permitted on the premises. The following are the officers for 1903:

W. H. Meldrum............President
W. H. Robertson..........1st Vice-Pres
Dr. Bradd................2nd Vice-Pres.
Wm. Salisbury.........Sec.-Treasurer
Committee of Management —E. B. Stone, W. E. Lock, Rupert Gliddon, Geo. A. Cox, jr., and Geo. E Elliott

Valuable Advice To Mothers

If your child comes in from play coughing or showing evidences of an approaching attack of Grippe, Sore Throat, or sickness of any kind, first thing get out your bottle of Nerviline. Rub the chest and neck with Nerviline and give internal doses of ten drops of Nerviline in sweetened water every two hours. This will prevent any serious trouble. No liniment or pain reliever equals Polson's Nerviline, which is a necessity in every household. Large bottles cost only 25c.

An Enterprising Firm

It will be noticed in another column of our paper, the advertisement of one of Peterborough's leading grocers, E. F. Mason & Co. This enterprising firm is handling the famous Baker's Cocoa which makes a most delicious drink and is sold at very low prices, considering the quality of the Cocoa. The firm's business is constantly increasing and big demands are being made for Baker's Cocoa. On sale at either store, 429 or 353 George street.

DEATHS

EMMETT—At Nicholls Hospital, on Sunday, January 12th, George Emmett, of Peterborough.

AND SO

She Found How the Coffee Habit Could Be Easily Left Off

"My husband had coffee dyspepsia for a number of years," writes a lady from Dundee, N.Y. "Coffee did not agree with him, as it soured on his stomach, and he decided to stop it.

"We felt the need of some warm drink and tried several things, but were soon tired of them. Finally a friend told me of the good Postum Food Coffee had done her family, and I ordered a package from the grocer.

"We have used it for three years with splendid results. It agrees perfectly with his stomach and dyspepsia has entirely left him. I find in talking to people who have used Postum and not liked it that the reason is that they do not let it boil long enough. When prepared according to directions it makes a beautiful, clear, golden brown beverage like the highest grade of coffee in color.

"We let the children have Postum every morning and it agrees with them nicely and they thrive on it. I am sure that if everyone using coffee would change to Postum that the percentage of invalids would be far less than it is at present." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

It is easy to change from coffee to Postum and the benefit is sure and quick, for Postum is composed (only of the grains intended by Nature for man's subsistence, and it goes to work in Nature's way to correct the disorders caused by coffee and rebuild the broken down blood and nerve cells. A few days' trial of Postum will prove this to the most skeptical.

How a Girl May Look Tall.

"Can a woman by taking thought add one cubit to her stature?" asks a correspondent of an English exchange. "As a matter of fact, I imagine that no woman would be likely to wish to add a cubit to her stature, either by taking thought or by any other more usual and familiar method. But that there are plenty of women who are desirous of adding two or three inches to their stature is abundantly proved by the ready sale which was commanded by the so-called 'elevators' when they were first introduced. Short, however, of having resourse to these barbarous and inadequate methods of bringing a woman nearer Heaven, is there no means by which a girl who was intended by Nature to be short can make herself tall—or at least taller? The answer may be given unhesitatingly in the affirmative, and the means to be adopted are principally four.

"First, there is the obvious expedient of wearing very high-heeled shoes, but this is only the starting-point, and is of very little use unless it is supplemented by the other three devices.

"Secondly, skirts should, of course, be worn long, as nothing takes off so much from the apparent height as the short skirt.

"The third thing, which can, unfortunately, only be recommended to girls with particularly good figures, is to have their skirts made very tight across the hips, and no one who has not seen this tried would believe how much apparent height it adds to a short figure.

"The fourth point is, of course, to wear hats as high as the rigorous code of fashion will permit, and the same thing equally applies to the dressing of the hair.

"It is, of course, unnecessary to add that all horizontal lines tend towards dumpiness, while perpendicular lines make for willowy slenderness.

"If these rules are carefully observed a girl with a microscopic supply of inches may deceive not merely the unobservant bystander, but the trained eye of a stage manager, into thinking that she is of fair, medium height."

The girl who was the object-lesson from which the above remarks have been studied, fully endorses the truth of them, and lays special stress on having the skirt to fit tight across the hips. She says that when the dressmaker writes down "rather tight" she always makes her scratch it out and substitute "very tight," and certainly, in her own case, the result is remarkable; for anyone would credit her with at least a couple of inches more than she really possesses. This should be good news for all little girls, for surely, to be short, and to look tall, is almost an ideal state of things, as it combines the grace and dignity of the latter with the lovableness and daintiness of the former.

The Old Greeley Coach.

A relic of old times stands, or did stand a few days ago, in front of a carriage factory in Denver, Col., a reminder of the period when days were consumed in going distances over rough and mountainous roads in lumbering stage coaches that are now covered in hours in luxurious and easy running drawing-room cars.

Peculiar interest attaches to this old coach, because it is said on the authority of old residents of Denver to be the one in which Horace Greeley rode on his overland trip in 1859. It has borne many names in the course of its career, as Morning Star, Prairie Flower, Little Pittsburg, and Old Overland, its latest name; but old-timers in and around Denver always speak of it as the Greeley coach.

Old Overland was built in Concord, Mass. There is no doubt of this fact, as it is of the peculiar pattern that made that little manufacturing town well known; but just when it was constructed is not known. The material of which it was built was thoroughly seasoned and perfectly adapted for the strain of use in a rough country. The cost was said to have been $1,100 delivered on the cars at Concord. In all essentials the coach stands to-day precisely as it was in the days when it made its long trips across the plains, having a somewhat weather-beaten and battered appearance, it is true, but still as strong and as serviceable as when first built. Even the leather used to cover the baggage is the same tough bullhide used in the days when the coach was in active service, and the immense thoroughbraces on which the body of Old Overland swings, made of leather, and which gave the coach a forward and backward movement that dulled the strain of days and nights of continuous travel, have never needed repairing of any kind. The trip from the Missouri River to Denver occupied six days and nights, horses or mules being changed every ten or twelve miles, and to reach California by stage required thirty-seven days of continuous travel, and cost $300. The fare from Leavenworth to Denver was $100, and 25 cents a mile was the way tariff.

Another of the fast disappearing relics of the pioneer days of the great West will soon pass into history. What startling and wonderful stories it might tell, if it could, of hairbreadth escapes, for the old coach bears to-day many scars made by bullets; of the hopes and ambitions of young men and of families seeking that fortune in the West that had eluded their grasp in the East; of failures and successes! It will soon reappear on the streets of Denver, reupholstered and painted, and drawn by six horses, carrying parties of tourists to points of interest in that town. It will be the same coach, yet not the same, for it will be so disguised in its new and more fashionable dress as to be unrecognizable as the old Greeley coach.

The Outlook.

Her papa—Yo' aspiah ter marry mah daughtah, sah? H'm! Whad am yo'r prospec's? The suitor (a widower)—Ebery single one ob de pussons fo' whom mah late lamented wife done washin' fo' hab promised ter liberly patronize her successah.—"Judge."

Excited Fisherman (to country hotel-keeper)—There isn't a bit of fishing about here! Every brook has a sign warning people off. What do you mean by luring anglers here with the promise of fine fishing? Hotelkeeper—I didn't say anything about fine fishing. If you read my advertisement carefully you will see that what I said was, "Fishing unapproachable."

"I was a newspaper man," answered the captive.

"An editor?"

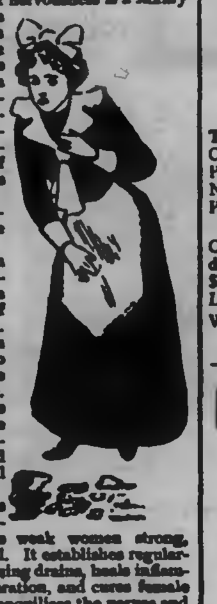
"No; merely a sub-editor."

"Cheer up, young man! Shortly after my chef has finished his perusal of the cook-book you will be editor-in-chief."

Laughing heartily at his bon mot, the cannibal chief wanted to know if the captive had a funny-bone.—"Judge."

STARTLED

By some sudden sound she drops the vase upon the floor. She is nervous and may be told that nervousness is a luxury which only a rich woman can afford to indulge in. Nervousness has cost many a woman her position. Sometimes when women run machinery the price of nervousness is mutilation,—a finger lost or perhaps the whole hand crushed.



Nervousness in women is commonly but a symptom of womanly disease. It is useless in such cases to "doctor" for the nerves alone. Cure the disease which attack the delicate womanly organism and nervousness will be cured also.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong, sick women well. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It tranquilizes the nerves and induces refreshing sleep.

"In the fall of 1899, I was troubled with nervousness, headache, heart trouble and female weakness," writes Miss Blanch M. Bracey, of Sale, Oswego Co., N. Y. "Last summer I wrote you and you advised me to try your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I did so and I began to improve rapidly. Continued taking the medicine, half a dozen each of 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' for the space of five months, and in less than a year had regained my former health."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the muddy complexion.

COMMITTEES.

Moved by Mr. Corkery, seconded by Mr. Rush, that a standing committee consisting of Aldermen Best, Shortly, Morrison, Edgecumbe, and the mover be appointed to strike the standing committees for 1903, to make recommendation in regard to auditors, trustees and Board of Health and to report that evening at eight o'clock.

After some discussion regarding the standing committees, the meeting adjourned until evening.

EVENING SESSION

The Council convened again in the evening at 8.10 o'clock, when there were present His Worship Mayor G. M. Roger, and Aldermen Shortly, Morrison, Rush, Finnie, R. F. McWilliams, Clinkscale, Batten, Best and Edgecumbe.

THE MAYOR'S ADDRESS.

The Mayor opened the proceedings by reading the following address to his colleagues:

Gentlemen of the Council of 1903,—I desire to congratulate you upon the honor which the citizens of Peterborough have bestowed upon you in electing you to the Government of the Town for the current year. With those of you who sat in the Council of last year it is a particular pleasure to be again associated; to those of you who are here for the first time I extend a cordial welcome; and of you all I ask sympathy and support in the effort to worthily fulfil the responsible duties devolving upon me as Mayor of the Town.

The marvellous prosperity which the country is now enjoying, the unprecedented industrial developments which that prosperity is inducing, and the keen competition between Towns and Cities to profit by these conditions, are such, that only by loyal co-operation by close devotion to duty, and by diligence and aggressiveness, can we hope to gain and maintain for the Town that prominent place amongst Canadian municipalities to which its great natural advantages and the enterprise of our citizens entitles us to aspire.

While it may not be necessary to attempt anything like a general review of the field of action before us, there are a few matters of especial interest or urgency to which attention may be profitably directed at the present time.

The increase of $1,000 in the demand of the School Trustees for the current year, combined with the fact that expenditure generally, a large amount of which is not under the control of the Council, has been increasing faster than revenue, makes it compulsory upon this Council to speedily face and settle the year, combined with the fact that expenditure is to be diminished or the rate of taxation increased.

The defeat of the by-law to provide for the borrowing of $20,000 for permanent street improvements submitted at the recent election is not necessarily to be taken as an objection to the measures or principles involved, but may merely be an indication that more definiteness in, or more information concerning, the by-law is required, and it will be for you to consider whether the people should not again be allowed an opportunity to pass upon the matter, when these defects have been supplied.

The expiry this year of the street franchises of the various public electric supply companies, and of the contract under which for some years the Light and Power Company has been lighting the streets of the Town opens for review and rearrangement the whole subject of electric power and light supply for the future, and as cheap and abundant power supply is one of the factors upon which the future prosperity of the Town very largely depends, the subject demands careful and exhaustive consideration, and will repay the employment of expert advice and assistance.

Conditions of sanitation and public health are causing anxiety at the present time, and call for your earnest attention and possibly for some action in support or in stimulation of the Board of Health.

I think that the practice which has grown up of receiving and hearing deputations and applications for municipal grants and privileges in committee instead of before the Council is a mistake, and not in the interests of the public, and I would recommend that whenever circumstances reasonably permit of it such applications should be required first to be made public and should thence be referred for consideration in committee so that the public may be kept fully informed and have opportunity of being heard, and members of Council may have the benefit of ensuing discussion and criticism before final disposition of such matters.

In conclusion, allow me to wish you a pleasant and progressive year of municipal service and to hope that at the end the hearty commendation of your fellow citizens may await you as a reward.

At this juncture the Mayor corrected a statement which appeared in last evening's Examiner to the effect that he had expressed the opinion that Mr. D. O'Connell was disqualified from taking his seat at the Council Board, by reason of his being a Separate School Trustee. He (the Mayor) denied having expressed any opinion on the subject. He had not read the act governing such circumstances, and consequently could not say whether Mr. O'Connell was qualified or not to serve as Alderman.

Ald. Best here referred to the passage in the Mayor's address re the defeat of the permanent improvement by-law. It is now, he said, a question as to who is to pay for permanent improvements: whether we have a right to expend $20,000 on the main portion of the town, and make the same chargeable to the general taxpayers. He thought the objects of the by-law had been thoroughly set forth in the by-law itself, and by him on the public platform.

Ald. Rush on behalf of his colleagues and himself, thanked Mayor Roger for the many kind expressions embodied in his address, and congratulated the Mayor on the honor reposed in him by his fellow-citizens in electing him Chief Magistrate of this town by acclamation.

THE SCOTCH CURLERS.

Messrs. Robt. Neill and G. W. Morrow were invited to address Council on behalf of the local Curling association.

Mr. Robert Neill explained that on the night of the 20th inst., 25 Scotch curlers would visit Peterborough. Amongst these gentlemen are included farmers, doctors, lawyers, and one or two clergymen; all representative men and the choice of 20,000 curlers. The local association are anxious to give the visitors a reception keeping with the importance of the town, and to this end are anxious for the co-operation of the town socially and financially. The morning following the visitors' arrival will be devoted to driving them around town; to points of interest, the afternoon to games on the rink, to be followed by a banquet in the evening.

Mr. G. W. Morrow here pointed out that these Scotch curlers have been entertained by the Mayor and Councillors of the different municipalities visited by them.

The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

IMPROVED APPROACHES.

A petition was received from E. K. Lord and 127 employes of the Canadian General Electric Works, asking for better and safer approaches to the Works in question, and also for an electric light in close proximity to the gates. The present approaches are in a delapitated condition and the nearest light is too distant to be of any service to the employees when going and coming from work in the fall and winter months.

This matter was referred to the Board of Works, and the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From T.A.S. Hay, asking that a representative, including the Mayor, be appointed to the Board of Management of Victoria Museum.

Referred to the Committee on Appointments.

From Mrs. D. Thornton, Aylmer st., asking permission to give meals without taking out a license.—Referred to the License Committee.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

Ald. Shortly submitted the following report:

4. That William G. Ferguson and John Crane be appointed High School Trustees.

5. That James A Hall and George K. Martin be appointed auditors.

6. That a grant of $250 be made to the Mayor to meet the contingent expenses of his office.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Ald. Best asked permission to withdraw from the Chairmanship of the Board of Works. He had held the position some ten or twelve years now and it looked, as though he held a mortgage on the office. He was willing, however, to give every assistance in his power to the Board.

Ald. Morrison replied that the committee felt that no other man could fill the office under the present circumstances as well as Ald. Best and he would therefore urge Ald. Best, to allow his name to remain on the Board as chairman.

Ald. Best, preferred to withdraw, but would abide by the wish of the Council.

The report was then adopted as read.

A PETITION.

Ald. Rush here submitted a petition to the Lieut-Governor, asking his approval of the by-law to borrow $5,000 for the extension of waterworks made last year—Adopted as read.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

A by-law appointing Messrs. Alfred Parker and Robert Neill on the local Board of Health, passed its several readings.

VOTE OF THANKS.

Ald. Morrison moved, seconded by Ald. Shortly, that this Council express its appreciation of the very kindly act of the Rev. J. C. Davidson in inviting the Council and the Board of Health to worship in St. John's Church on Sunday evening last, and for the very able discourse delivered on that occasion.—Carried.

Council then adjourned to Mr. Harry Long's Palm Parlors to partake of the banquet there prepared for them at the Mayor's expense.

SHOT HIS FATHER

A Mere Lad Tried Horrible Murder in Nebraska

Columbus, Neb., Jan. 12.—Johnnie Borchers, aged 8, was yesterday placed on the witness stand to testify against his half brother Herman, who is also a mere lad, being tried for the murder of their father.

The child said Herman had procured the gun at Humphrey for the purpose of killing their father. He said the gun was hidden until the night of the killing, when Herman had brought it out and shot his father in the back of the head while the latter was eating supper.

The boy testified that Herman hauled the body to the straw stack, covered it with straw and set it on fire and said the head and bones found latter by neighbors were those of his father. The child said Herman threatened to shoot him if he told of the crime.

THE MAYOR'S BANQUET

The Council, Civic Officials and Other Invited Guests Entertained by Mayor Roger at Long's Palm Gardens

TIMELY TOPICS DISCUSSED.

By Members of the Council and Prominent Men of the Town—A Very Enjoyable Gathering

At the close of the meeting of the council Mayor Roger entertained the members of the Council, the Civic officials and other invited guests, to a banquet in Mr H. Long's Palm Parlor. Mr. Long excelled himself as a caterer, and everything was served in first class style. The room was tastefully decorated, and the tables presented a most attractive appearance.

It is no wonder that Mr. Long's rooms are becoming so popular for gatherings of this kind.

Besides the Mayor and Aldermen of Peterborough, and the Civic officials, of Peterborough, there were present the Water Commissioners; Messrs. J. Carnegie and W. H. Moore, Town Trust Commissioners; ex-Mayor Stevenson, ex-Mayor Davis, Mr. Geo. K. Martin, Mr. Sheriff Hall, Reeve Adams and Councillors Faint, Scott, Hourigan, and Gibbs, of Ashburnham; Mr. Robt. Innes and others.

After ample justice had been done to the good things provided, Mayor Roger proposed the first and only toast of the evening, "The King." The toast was loyally drunk, and the National Anthem was sung.

Letters were read from Hon. Senator Cox, and ex-Mayor Denne, expressing their regret at their inability to be present.

Mr. D. W. Dumble was then called upon and spoke as follows in regard to "Bonuses":—

MR. D. W. DUMBLE.

Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen,—

I congratulate you, Mr. Mayor, on the position you occupy by the choice of the people as Mayor of this good Town. It is a high position, honorable and responsible, for the good government of the Town which depends on the efficiency of its chief officer. I am satisfied that the people will be well represented by you, and I wish you every success in the administration of your office. I must thank you for the pleasant privilege of supping with you and the new council tonight. I congratulate you on the happy thought of asking from the speakers consideration of subjects which during the year may be of much importance to the people. You have assigned to me of "Municipal Bonuses" and I am glad of an opportunity to discuss this subject, because I am satisfied that there is very much misunderstanding regarding the position of the party asking a bonus and the party from whom it is asked. Now, Mr. Mayor, to commence with, I take the strong position that no manufacturing establishment has the right to ask from a municipality in which it may be situated, a contribution of capital which will not entitle the giver to the same dividends that the other contributors rightfully expect. When a party engages in manufacturing it is a commercial venture in which he puts up his money, expecting by the right use of that money and by his skill and energy to get back good returns, both for his money and for his labor. I am aware that in this new country where every town and village thinks it has before it a destiny to become a manufacturing centre. There are many unnatural and unjustifiable inducements held out to manufacturers to locate in them. The fate of most of these places will be like that of the ambitious frog which burst itself in its effort to be great. To enable a manufactory to succeed there must be facility for getting labor, there must be homes for laborers, there must be schools and churches, water, drainage, and, most of all, cheap power and facilities for receiving raw material and distributing the manufactured goods. Then there must be for the employees municipal government, roads, sidewalks, light and police protection. All these things the Town of Peterborough possesses, and she offers inducements that are of vital consequence to all manufacturers. Now, the establishment that locates itself where there are not these facilities cannot succeed in competition with those more favorably situated, and the natural advantage alone should be an influence to determine any intelligent manufacturer in locating his factory. To ask in addition to these things a contribution of money is not justifiable on strict business principles. It is simply an attempt to get what there is not obligation or duty to give. No manufacturer has a right to demand, and when a municipality grants a bonus it is not because there is a right to the claim, but simply because the location of that manufactory in that Town may be worth to the Town the sum offered. The manufacturer is looking for a site, the bonus may cause him to make his choice in favor of the place granting it. Now Peterborough has been heretofore judicious. The grant we gave to the Edison company has been paid to the Town many times over. The little exemption given to the Cereal Company is a good investment. These grants were given simply to get what we had not, and it does not follow, because a bonus had been given to one manufactory we are under any obligation to give it to another, bearing in mind that a factory has no moral claim, and that no wrong has been done to an existing factory, by giving it to a new factory of a different line of business. There should be no complaint by the existing factory. I am strong on this point because recently one of our councillors in his address stated that the factories already here should be entitled to a bonus as much as a new factory. That is utterly fallacious. We don't bonus factories because they are entitled, but simply because we want to secure them. I even say that as a matter of business of cold dollars and cents basis the Town would be justified in giving a bonus to bring in a new factory, although it might have the effect of placing a small factory at a disadvantage. There is no morality in the matter, it is simply business. This thought should be constantly in mind—that no factory we already have has any claim on the Town. We are not dealing in moralities or abstract principles. Our aim is to get the manufacturers. Our business is to see that we get them for nothing, if possible, and if that is not possible, then at the lowest possible price. It will be urged by the manufacturers that we get certain advantages by increase of population and the expenditure of money for rents and otherwise. That is true, but every increase of population brings its proportionate expenditure of Town money. And while it is no doubt an advantage to get the new manufactory it must be always looked to that we do not pay too much for it. Every little manufactory that we have in Town cannot be bonused. We have them and as we are only justified in paying to get something we had not before, there is no reason why we should give bonuses or remit taxes to establishments already located here and which may or may not be prosperous and making money. A part of the capital invested by any manufactory is the necessary disbursement to carry on the business, and of these disbursements none is a fairer burden than the payment of taxes. To suffer any manufactory to get rid of its share of taxes is to put on the other citizens, perhaps less able to pay them, more than their fair share. An honorable firm should not ask other men to pay their taxes, and I hope that hereafter it will be thoroughly understood that there is no moral claim, and no legal right on the part of anyone to shirk the common duty of meeting our municipal expenditure by the fair payment of fair taxes. It is no use for one manufactory, not exempt, to compare its position in this respect with a manufactory that is exempt. We have the one, we got the other by paying for it. Take the case of the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co., Ltd., the bringing into Town of the Cereal Works and other establishments, has given them very great advantages by increasing their business, and so it is with other establishments we all derive benefits in increased rents, or in increased demands for labor and in increased mercantile business by the introduction of a new factory, and old factories have no right to complain that we do not give new bonuses to these old establishments every time when by a bonus we introduce a new one. I am glad to say that many of our establishments, like the Wm. Hamilton Company, meet the burdens of taxations laid upon them in a fair spirit, and do not attempt to get exemptions because we have given some exemptions to newly introduced concerns.

Mr. Dumble was heartily applauded at the close of his address.

MR. W. H. MOORE

Mr. W. H. Moore was then called upon and spoke in regard to "Municipal Franchises."

He first congratulated the Mayor on his unanimous election, and on his having such an able staff to assist him. He defined a franchise as a right reserved to the people. Until about one hundred years ago the state either gave away its franchise or sold them to its friends, and made no effort to conserve them and derive proper benefit from them.

Necessities should be delivered to people at the lowest possible cost. One of our most important franchises is the right to vote, a most sacred privilege. The government of Great Britain today controls the telephone and telegraph system, and gives a better service than is given elsewhere. Speaking broadly, he said governments should own the railroads, post offices, telephones, telegraphs, and other things of a similar nature. The consequence would be that there would be fewer immensely rich, and many others richer than they are under existing circumstances. Birmingham was cited as a notable example of having municipalities retain their own franchises. Reference was made to the waterworks system of Peterborough, built at first by private enterprise, although some suggested that at first the waterworks should be owned by the town itself.

Public lighting of the town costs at present $6,985 for about 280 nights per year. He claimed this was an excessive outlay. On January 1 next the franchise for public lighting will expire, and he claimed the town should make arrangements to do its own lighting, and he predicted that we would have cheaper and better lighting.

Mr. Moore then referred to the advisability of giving Peterborough and Ashburnham a distinctive name as soon as the two are united, as they eventually will be. Many places have changed their name, and he claimed that Peterborough would benefit by a change of name to that of "Otonabee" or to some other name equally distinguishing.

Prof. Gliddon then favored the audience with a cornet solo, given in his usual excellent style.

Ex-MAYOR STEVENSON

Ex-Mayor Stevenson, who was for over thirty years a member of the council and Mayor for about 16 years, was then called upon. He said that when he was first a member of the council in 1850, that body met in a frame building, standing about between the present Opera House and the Market Building. Later on, they moved to Water street, to a brick building, now pulled down. In those days the sidewalks were made of gravel. Along the west side of George street was a deep ditch, into which unguarded travellers might readily fall. In 1856 the first railway was built into Peterborough, across Rice Lake. Later on, a road was built from Peterborough to Millbrook. He stated that the Trent Valley Canal was first begun at his suggestion, and he urged that we strive to have it completed as far as Lake Ontario. The consequence would be cheaper freight and cheaper commodities. He hoped to see Peterborough and Ashburnham joined.

REEVE ADAMS

Mr. Stevenson was greeted with applause at the close of his address.

Mayor Roger then called upon Reeve Adams, of Ashburnham, to express his views on "Municipal Union."

In doing so, he reviewed the steps that have been taken up to the present in regard to this matter. Personally, he said, he was in favor of union. Ashburnham has a debenture debt of about $10 per head, while Peterborough has a debenture debt of about $64 per head. The most urgent needs of Ashburnham at present are a sewerage system and cement walks. He felt sure the Ashburnham Council were prepared to discuss the question at any time with the Peterborough Council.

Mr. Adams' remarks were much appreciated.

MR. T. F. MATTHEWS

The next speaker was Mr T. F. Matthews, Chairman of the Water Commissioners. He said that they were prepared to give water at lower rates, and also to deal more liberally with manufacturers in regard to water and re-rated. A commencement will be made at this work next week.

Mr. Matthews spoke briefly, and to the point, and was heartily applauded.

Ex-MAYOR DAVIS

next addressed the gathering. He referred in felicitous terms to those who had spoken and congratulated the town on the selection of its present officers.

MR. JOHN CARNEGIE,

was the next speaker. He took the liberty of proposing the health of Mayor Roger, which was heartily drunk. The audience sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and gave three hearty cheers in his honor.

Mayor Roger made a suitable reply after which was called upon. As a stranger, he said he thought Peterborough should have a street railway. He remarked that in Hull the street lights cost only $30 per year. He called Peterborough the Birmingham of Canada.

MR. D. O'CONNELL.

In response to calls from the audience, Mr. O'Connell gave a brief address. He referred to his uncertainty as to his standing as an Alderman, also to the choice of a name for the united municipalities.

MR. W. FAINT,

the next speaker, said that perhaps at some future date Ashburnham might be willing to annex Peterborough.

MR. SCOTT.

Mr. Gibbs and Mr. Hourigan expressed themselves as being quite in accord with the idea of annexation.

MR. SHERIFF HALL

was pleased to be present, but declined to make a speech at such a late hour.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" closed a very enjoyable evening's entertainment.

is told by impure blood, poor digestion, sluggish liver and tired nerves. It is a warning of very serious trouble ahead and should prompt sensible people to take a bracing tonic like Ferrozone, an energetic, invigorant and rebuilder. MAY MARK A NEW ERA IN COAL TRADE

Big Operator to Own His Own Cars and Do Away With Hoppers

The Plan May Revolutionize the Handling of Coal by Leading Dealers

Chillicothe, Ohio, Jan. 11.—It was learned here to-day that T. J. McKell is preparing to carry out a new policy in coal handling from the mines.

The first inkling of what was going on was had by the few who gained knowledge of the fact that Mr. McKell had placed orders for 500 cars and that all the contracts called for the delivery of these cars by April 1, 1903. It was then that the whole plan of Mr. McKell came to light, and the reason for the orders of the cars was made plain. Mr. McKell himself is authority for the statement that the cars are to be used to haul coal, and that as rapidly as they can be delivered they will be started on their mission of delivering coal from the West Virginia mines to points all over the country.

A RADICAL CHANGE.

The decision of Mr. McKell to own his cars means a radical change in the system of operating the transportation of coal from the mines to the consumer. Up to the present time the railroad companies have been the owners of cars, and the consumers are only too familiar with the stories told by the freight agents of inability to secure cars in which to transport coal. It has been the custom to build immense hoppers at the large mines, and the coal was dumped into them and stayed there until cars could be secured to take it away in. It occurred to Mr. McKell that cars would make just as good a storage place for coal as hoppers would, and so when he had everything prepared to build immense hoppers at his mines in West Virginia he changed his mind and decided that instead of building hoppers he would buy coal cars. He accordingly gave an order for 500 of these cars. Of course, it is not known at what price he contracted for the cars, but coal cars cost, on an average, $800 each, and it will be seen that the order given by Mr. McKell means the outlay of $400,000 for cars.

Mr. McKell is one of the best-known coal operators in the United States and one of the richest, and his inaugurating a new system in the conduct of the coal business will be watched with deep interest by the most important capitalists of the country.

He owns 25,000 acres along the New River district, which produces the smokeless coal, and it was over the shipping of the coal from this district that his present suit with the C. and O. arose. At the time the road was built he opened up his mines, and the road contracted to take from him 200,000 tons of coal a year, but later claimed that it could not get the cars in which to transport that amount of coal. The result was the suit now pending in the United States Court in which Mr. McKell seeks to recover $3,000,000 damages because the road did not fulfill its part of the contract. He now proposes to ship his own coal in his own cars over the C. and O. or whatever road he pleases, and he is authority for the statement that after next April he will not be annoyed by any shortage of cars.

TO THE POLE FOR $150,000

If Some One Will Advance That Sum Peary Says He'll Try Again

Philadelphia, Jan. 12.—Despite the fact that he has recently announced his intention of never again attempting to find the North Pole, Robert E. Peary, the Arctic explorer, declared tonight at the conclusion of his lecture before the Philadelphia Geographical Society in Witherspoon Hall, that if any one would place $150,000 at his disposal, he would be willing to undertake another expedition next summer in a final endeavor to reach the Pole.

Mr. Peary said that he believed the discovery of the North Pole was practicable, although it was his opinion that there was no land there, and that the Pole could be reached by the man who could secure a footing on the northern shore of Grinnell Land with proper supplies to enable him to make a dash across the ice packs. He expressed his belief that he had reached the farthest point of land toward the North Pole during his last expedition, and that a trip over the ice to the northward would realize his dream of discovery of sixteen years.

BUSY WITH ESTIMATES

Conservatives are Looking to Have Hon. G. Foster Back

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—The Minister of Finance has notified all the Departments to have their estimates prepared and ready for submission to the Cabinet.

With the return of the Premier, preparations for the meeting of Parliament have been started in earnest. There is no evidence in official circles of any desire to extend the calling of Parliament beyond the usual time. While it is not anticipated that the House will meet before the 19th of February, there does not seem to be any good reason why it should not be called about that time. There is of course a big program to be prepared, but it is now well under way. A member of Parliament said that it was not of much consequence whether the House was called early or late, seeing that the session was going to last all next summer.

The Conservatives hope to have Mr. Foster back, and the fighting qualities of the Opposition will thereby be greatly strengthened.

According to a report brought to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., there is a bed of ore which will equal or possibly excel the great deposit on the Mesaba Range. The discovery was made by men who have been working in the interest of the Clergue companies for the last two years, in exploration of the wild country north of the "Soo" in Ontario. Now the long time spent in careful search by scientists and trained prospectors is to bring its reward. The prospectors are on their way home with the first news of a great deposit of the finest grade of iron ore in the Algoma country, which will soon be within reaching distance of the railway lines of the Clergues.

CHAMBERLAIN IS STATESMANLIKE

Mr. Chamberlain is generally credited with being the cause of war on the Boers and the strongest force in holding his country up to the idea of wiping out the Dutch nationalities in that part of the world. It is his chief title of distinction, surpassing in that respect his dream of imperial federation, which must remain in dreamland, a fading vision at that.

But if Mr. Chamberlain is guilty of evil-doing throughout all the stages leading to the war, a proposition not admitted by his admirers and friends, he is displaying rare wisdom in his treatment of the conquered people. He pays them the courtesy of a visit to their own country to see for himself the situation and what is best to be done for its improvement. He is making addresses couched in the finest spirit and filled with the most conciliatory sentiments. His suggestions for the well-being of the Boers are practical and sensible. He shows a desire to be greatly helpful in healing the wounds left by the conflict and urges the new subjects of the crown to feel themselves on a level with all other African citizens and entitled to share equality of political power with them.

Every word that has fallen from Mr. Chamberlain's lips, and every act of his since the close of the war has been marked with discretion, the appearance of sympathy, and an apparent desire to attach the Boers sincerely to the empire when time shall have done its work of readjustment and developed a new feeling of nationality in place of the old. It is not necessary to approve the former conduct of the Colonial Secretary while admitting his wisdom since the close of the war. Some men are wise at the beginning of an enterprise, but fall off later, and some reverse the process. Only firstclass men keep their head at every stage from the beginning to the end of a policy. Whatever his earlier faults, or crimes, as some call them, Mr. Chamberlain is making a great finish.

CURE FOR SEASICKNESS

Peterboronians who may be contemplating a trip to Europe will be interested to learn that Signor Mayor Des Planches, the Italian Ambassador to Washington, has found what he considers a sure cure for seasickness. Many people who have crossed the ocean a number of times are victims of this distressing ailment, an ailment which detracts from the pleasure of a sea voyage and causes the unfortunate one to undergo a distressful experience. Signor Des Planches declares that he was cured of seasickness by accidentally looking in a mirror. The cure was suggested to a number of the ambassador's companions in the voyage, and in a number of cases it was successful. The Italian diplomat's explanation of the cure is that the constantly changing horizon now far up and then very low, creates a feeling of vertigo. Contemplation of the nearest object at hand may end the attack. There may be something in the mirror cure for seasickness. If anybody from Peterborough expects to be soon on the briny deep, he or she might buy a hand mirror before leaving home, for the purpose of testing this latest recipe.

TURKEY CAUSES AGITATION

Ever since Russia commenced building a navy, she has desired an outlet from the Black Sea to Mediterranean waters. England and other powers which desire to keep the Muscovite where his ships will not be a constant threat to the rich lands along the southern shores of Europe and the northern shores of Africa, secured a treaty in 1841, which declared that no foreign ship of war might enter the Dardanelles except by Turkish consent. This treaty was confirmed by the Paris peace of 1856. Announcement that the Porte has decided to allow four Russian torpedo boat destroyers to pass through the Strait to the Black Sea has caused England and Italy great disquietude. There is now some talk of abrogating the Dardanelles clause of the Paris treaty. Turkey has acted within the provisions of the agreement. Therefore, the powers now manifesting anxiety about the Russian warships should refrain from making any foolish demonstration.

Mr. Russell Sage, the eminent New York capitalist, aged eighty-six, has been induced after earnest persuasion to engage a valet to attend him through the crowded streets and keep him out of the way of automobiles, and remain in the lonely old house on lower Fifth avenue, which Mr. Sage persists in residing, despite that all his old neighbors have moved up town. The old gentleman feels like a youngster still and attends his office regularly. With all his millions he lives as simply as a poor man, and does not relish anybody's assistance in his daily routine. But if he had not agreed to have a valet they would have locked him up after his late illness.

The tramp question bobbed up in a new guise at the Boston meeting of the tax assessors. Instances were related where tramps were hunted up just before election and their poll taxes paid, evidently to secure their votes in local politics. The most serious outcome of such a practice is that, with his poll tax paid, a tramp may claim support as a town pauper, and cost the community hundreds of dollars during the year.

The development of the modern railroad and steamship makes possible a trip around the world in twenty-seven days, as follows: From New York to Hamburg, 4,800 miles, 7 3-4 days; Hamburg to Vladivostock, 7,500 miles, 6 1-4 days; Vladivostock to Seattle, 7,000 miles, 10 1-4 days; Seattle to New York, 3,300 miles, 3 3-4 days—total, 22,600 miles in twenty-seven days.

French newspapers speak of a substance which, when placed upon the roads, does away with mud and dust. The composition consists of a mixture of scoria from a blast furnace, and tar. The preparation, carefully pressed, renders the road impervious to water.

Malt Breakfast Food has passed the stage of infancy; it does not demand hours of thought before it can be used; the ablest medical men and the most noted food experts place it at the head of all grain foods because of its health-giving and energy-producing qualities. A ROMANCE

lowed contentedly all day long. There were extensive pleasure gardens laid out with the rarest skill and most perfect taste. There were marble fountains throwing up their opalescent spray in the sunlight. There was a little lake glimmering like a sheet of silver between the green trees, with white water lilies lying on its tranquil breast.

In this beautiful home the old earl spent most of his time. His cousin, Mrs. Courtenaye, the widow of a famous officer, lived with him. Her son, Cecil Courtenaye, lived in London, but spent a great portion of his time at Locksley Hall.

It was the dearest spot of earth to the earl. Many sweet and sad memories clustered about it. Here all his children had been born; here they had played together beneath the grand old trees in the park. The stately elms, the dark cedars, the flowering chestnuts, the oaks and aspens, had mysterious whispers for him when he walked beneath their majestic shades. They murmured to him of the sweet and noble wife gone before him with all the children of his love. They had left him lonely. No strain of his proud blood ran in the veins of any living being except Mrs. Courtenaye and her son, and the pretty blue-eyed granddaughter his friend, Sir Wilfred Hale, had brought home to him a year ago from America.

This granddaughter would inherit his own princely private fortune, as well as the great wealth that had come to him through his wife. Cecil Courtenaye, who was wealthy, but had no title now, would inherit his title and estates.

The dearest wish of Earl Devon's heart was that his title and fortune should descend together undivided. He had set his heart upon a marriage between his granddaughter and the heir-apparent to the title.

He had talked to Mrs. Courtenaye about it, and she had been pleased with the idea. Now he talked of it to Cecil himself as they walked beneath the shade of the willow trees that fringed the border of the tranquil lake.

"Cecil," he said to him first, "do you realise that I am growing old and weary, and that I shall not stand between you and the earldom much longer?"

Cecil Courtenaye looked at the stern, gray-haired old man in surprise.

"My lord," he answered, respectfully, and even affectionately, "I should be very sorry to realise such a thing. I hope you have many years to remain with us yet."

"Most young men in your place would look forward with impatience to their accession," the old man said, giving him a keen look.

A flush crossed Cecil Courtenaye's fair, handsome face.

"My lord, I hope you do not class me among such," he said, half proudly, half carelessly. "I do very well as I am. I have my own fortune, and I look for no pleasure or benefit that fortune or high birth can give me. I hope to bear your title worthily when it falls to my turn, but I wish the day far off."

Then they walked on silently awhile. The earl was busy with some thoughts he did not know exactly how to put into words.

"I hope to see you married to some fair young girl before I die, Cecil," he said at length, abruptly.

A swift shade of annoyance crossed the proud, high-bred face.

"Thank you," he said, carelessly; "but, as I said before, I do well enough as I am. I am only seven-and-twenty. Time enough to think of marriage when I am through with my wild oats."

"Rumor says that you have not sowed a very large crop of that kind," the earl replied, with a kind smile.

"Rumor is very kind to me," the young fellow replied with a gratified flush.

He was too noble and too proud to throw himself into the vortex of fashionable vices and follies of the day, which other young men of his class and wealth affected, and it pleased him to hear that the world recognized the fact.

"I was no older than you are when I was married," continued his lordship, "and I can assure you I never repented it or thought myself too young. You know what the dearest wish of my heart is, Cecil?"

The young man flushed and looked both annoyed and confused. He did not answer a word, but his firm lip took a more resolute curve under his curling blonde mustache.

"I am quite sure your mother has told you what we both mutually wish," perseveringly. "Has she not, my boy?"

"Yes, my lord," Cecil said, reluctantly.

"And do you not think, Cecil, it would be a pleasant thing to unite the two last descendants of our race in marriage? Who would make a fairer mistress for Lockslev Hall than Florence?"

The blue eyes, under the long, curling lashes, flashed restlessly.

"Florence is very fair," he answered. "I have no doubt she will make a fair mistress for some happy man's home some day. For me, I have no thought of marrying yet."

The old earl's face grew dark with anger. He looked around the fair domain he loved so well—at the broad acres of the woodland, the beautiful park, the picturesque old gray hall, with its ivy-grown turrets, the home where he was born. Must his granddaughter give up all this, and the proud old title to this distant relation whom the mere accident of his own children's deaths had placed in the position of heir-apparent?

"You mean to say that you would never marry Florence?" he asked sharply.

"I am sorry to disappoint your hopes," Cecil Courtenaye answered, courteously; "I would gladly resign the title and estates to Florence were it possible. But I cannot give them to her as my wife. I do not love her."

"Perhaps you love some one else?" the earl cried, annoyed and vexed.

Over the handsome face, turned half way from him, watching the white lilies sleeping on the tranquil lake, a shadow of some intangible sorrow drifted.

"Is it true, Cecil?" the speaker went on, anxiously. "If you love some one else I will not say another word to you about my granddaughter. Tell me, Cecil, have you fallen in love with some other person?"

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 1350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 ton [illegible] re above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works.

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000

Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00

Net yearly profits		$2,045,000 00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is ...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's share common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

BUY ! WHY ?

BECAUSE THE SOUR LAKE OIL CO.

Has placed four-fifths of its stock in the treasury for development work; and because

Oil is reached in less than half the depth required on Spindletop Heights in Beaumont;

The people in Canada are well acquainted with the management, which is in the hands of HON. JOHN L. BITTINGER, United States Consul General to Canada; F. S. Ashley, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Securities Co., and W. L. Marston, Vice-President of the American Union Oil and Refining Co.

These gentlemen have made a dividend payer out of one company and have raised the value of its stock from 5c per share to par value, or 25c, within a very short time;

The company is operating in the Sour Lake field, where fewer wells will tap the oil than at Spindletop; this insures greater flow of oil, and it is of a better quality;

This is the first allotment of shares at the present price of FIVE CENTS PER SHARE; it is the lowest price at which you can buy, and the time left in which to buy at FIVE CENTS is short.

STOCK MARKETS

JANUARY ADVANCE MAKING GOOD PROGRESS.

New York, Jan. 11.—Things marketwise look well for the bullish contingent. It is to be regretted that the public as usual are holding more or less aloof and that they will as usual come in after the best part of the advance has taken place. We said some time ago that money would be easier and that in the middle of last December every stock upon the list was a purchase despite the then existing high rates for money. We did all we could at the time to encourage our clients to purchase stocks, assuring them that we would gladly carry their purchases for them at a rate not exceeding 6 per cent., no matter how high rates might be exacted. The market has since advanced and proved the correctness of our advices. The market is going to advance still further and we consequently still urge you to make immediate purchases. Money has ceased from troubling and from now on will become more easy and more plentiful. The winter wheat crop is progressing most magnificently; its present condition is all that can be desired. The coal outlook is splendid. Granger roads and other western lines are loaded with all the business they can possibly care for. The great industrials are booked away ahead in orders. It is going to be a year of advancing dividends. Car and Foundry has already set the pace. Rates are going up also, and will more than counterbalance the advance in wages. Prices are yet materially down from what they were last September, and should shortly equal, if not excel, the prices of that month. We reiterate the outlook is most encouraging. The recent Reading acquisition was most adroitly managed. By process of control through medium of the Lake Shore and Baltimore and Ohio it obviates its actual control being in possession directly of the Pennsylvania, which might possibly conflict with the laws of Pennsylvania. The combination is impregnable in their position. Considerable short interest exists in the market at present. Many people who were long of stocks at very much higher prices are now short on the market below current figures.

The market opened about par with Saturday's closing prices. Most issues were unchanged, while a few were but fractionally higher or lower. Most of the day's prices endeavored to react and the bears worked industriously but with poor results. It must be acknowledged even by the most pessimistic that operations for the decline are not at all satisfactory or encouraging to the bearish fraternity. Concessions to-day brought a falling-off both in volume of transactions and also of stock offerings. The only result is a placing of buying orders. The present temper of speculation does not favor any declines. The logical and only reasonable argument to be deduced from these facts is that stocks are a purchase upon all weak spots. The trend of prices when accompanied by activity usually indicates the immediate future of values. Present indications based upon this rule argue a higher market. Money closed last loan 5 per cent. Sales [illegible]. Tomorrow's letter outlook bright.

HAIGHT & FREESE.

'Twas Ever Thus.

And there came unto the sage for counsel an anxious mother leading a small boy.

"Advise me, oh, fount of wisdom," spake she, "concerning my child, who has fallen into evil ways. He will not study, but persists in dodging his tasks, that he may idle in the fields and hear the birds sing."

"Alas!" replied he of the perspicacity, "your son has the budding genius microbe in his system. You can do nothing. When he grows up he will cultivate a flowing mane and be a poet. And the public will call him a 'sweet singer' after he has passed away."

Then the woman wept much and bitterly, for it had been her heart's desire that Reginald should follow the gas-fitting trade.—"Judge."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills the Greatest Wonder of the Age

Editor of the Morning Times:

Sir,—I am only too pleased to write a letter to the press, as I firmly believe that all who suffer from rheumatism or any troubles of the blood can get sure and certain relief. I was ill for many years, and am now entirely well. Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are without doubt the greatest wonder of the age in medicine. They cured me, and I know they will cure others who are even worse than I was. I write this of my own accord in the hope that it will do some good. Evans Blair, G. T. R. News Agent, Union Station, Toronto.

A. R. Legge, Stanstead, Que., writes "Six boxes of Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills entirely cured me of indigestion after years of torture."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. REPORT BY EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE

Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Co., Los Angeles, California.

Ballarat, Cal., Nov. 1st, 1902.

Gentlemen,—Your request for my opinion as to the "Santa Rosa" group of mines, and other claims in which you are interested in this territory, to hand, and in reply will say:

The "Santa Rosa" group, which is located southeast of Ballarat some three and a half miles, consists of twelve claims, equal to [illegible] acres. The ledge crops out more or less the full length of these claims, showing the same character and formation of work as where development work has been done. In most of the outcroppings it shows highly mineralized rock, with pyrites of iron, mica, schist, slate, slate porphyry, gouge, quartz and quartzite, all burning more or less. Where work has been done, it shows a very marked improvement in both quantity and quality of gold-bearing rock. Commencing with the surface, the ore shows much iron and copper stain. All mill tests show rich ore commencing with the surface; in fact, I milled for several days and recovered $30 and over per ton, yet the milling process does not pay more than two-thirds of the value of the ore, the tailings ofttimes running as high as [illegible] per ton, and never less than $12.50. To save the entire value of your ore it will be necessary to install either concentrators or a cyanide plant. From careful study and frequent examination of the surface of the ground, and down as far as has been opened below the surface, I am highly pleased with the property. It is certainly a fine property, and as good as any I have ever had the pleasure of examining. Considering your mill site, with tramway facilities added, water, fuel, and cheapness of mining the ore, the Cecil R. will be capable of paying enormous dividends when your capacity for milling is increased to what it ought to be.

Wishing you every success, I remain, Yours very truly,

(Signed) G. W. FLEMING,
Ex-Mine Supt. Cecil R. Gold Mining and Milling Company.

People I Have Met

This is the title of Hon. J. W. Longley's address, to be given next Thursday evening, in the Y.M.C.A., under the auspices of the Fortnightly Club. The lecture is open to the public, and no doubt will be well attended, as the honorable gentleman is capable of handling the subject in a masterly manner.

S. O. E. Funeral

The S.O.E. will attend the funeral of the late George Emmett, whose death occurred on Sunday at the Nichols Hospital. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30, from Mr. D. Belleghem's furniture store, Hunter street, and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery. The deceased had no relatives here, his family residing in England.

Wedding Bells

The Times extends hearty congratulations to Mr. Harry Parker, of North Harvey, and Miss Charity Dowdney, of the same place, who were united in marriage at All Saints' church on Saturday last. The happy couple will spend their honeymoon in Toronto, and on their return will take up residence in Verulam.

The Beautiful Snow

Although the snow has been falling liberally of late, very little trouble has been caused to trains or vehicles, as the snow has been so light and loose. However, if a strong wind arises after a few days' settling of the present downfall, we may look out for blockades. Those who are expecting a supply of wood from the country will be pleased to see the roads remain in good condition.

A Dual Officer

As Mr. D. O'Connell is already a member of the Separate School Board, there was some doubt as to his eligibility as a member of the Council, so he did not take his seat at either the inaugural meeting yesterday morning or the evening session. He has not yet decided what he will do in regard to the matter. We regret that this difficulty has arisen, as Mr. O'Connell would fill both positions with credit.

Got Things Mixed

The Monetary Times evidently got things mixed in regard to Peterborough. In discussing new municipal by-laws passed on municipal election day, it says, "Peterborough defeated a by-law to exempt J. Turner & Sons municipal fuel yard. The town also decided to spend $30,000 for permanent improvements." Of course everybody knows Mr. Turner had nothing to do with the fuel by-law, and that the $30,000 by-law for good roads was defeated.

Trooper Brace

Trooper Brace appeared last night before a large and delighted audience at the Y.M.C.A., and told in thrilling and inimitable style his story of the South African War. He was dressed in the characteristic uniform, and for nearly two hours held the undivided attention of his audience. Lieut.-Col. Miller occupied the chair and made some appropriate introductory remarks, and also referred in felicitous terms to the delightful entertainment and instruction furnished by Trooper Brace.

Joint Installation

The newly-elected officers of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, and of Otonabee Lodge, No. 18, I.O.O.F., will be jointly installed next Thursday evening, January 15, at the lodge rooms, corner George and Hunter streets. It is hoped there will be a good attendance of the members, and any visiting brethren will be most cordially welcomed. Installations at Pontypool and Havelock will probably be subject to local arrangements, while for Norwood no definite plans have been made as yet, but particulars will be announced as soon as the details are completed.

Peterborough Business College

Everything is in full swing again at this popular educational institution, although the Public and High Schools are still closed. Under the able direction of Mr. W. Pringle, Principal, assisted by Miss M. Blois and Mr. Garnett, very satisfactory work is being done in the various departments, and we have right here in the city of Peterborough a commercial college which is second to none in Canada.

Be Sure and See Him

Mr. J. H. Cameron, who is to appear in Bradburn's Opera House, on the evening of Friday, January 23rd, appeared in the Galt Opera House New Year's night at the Knox Church concert. The Galt Reporter had this to say of him: Mr. J. H. Cameron sustained his title to the provincial championship as an entertainer. Though encores were fast and thick, his funny-story warehouse was far from being exhausted. Mr. Cameron as a humorist and dialect monologist, stands on the top rung."

A Sure Cure for Constipation

Some remedies cure this distressing complaint in a day, some in a month, but Nerviline never fails to cure in a few minutes. Just ten drops of Nerviline in sweetened water—that's enough, and away goes the dysentery, cured to stay cured. Nerviline also cures Cramps, Pain in the Stomach, and Sick Headache. It has five times the strength and curative properties of ordinary remedies, and should be in every household. Better buy a 25c. bottle and try it. Nerviline is all right.

Hamilton's Pills for the Liver.

Mr. McGill's Enterprise

Our enterprising Hunter street blacksmith and horse-shoer, Mr. McGill, has had an electric motor installed in his shop, with the necessary shafting attached for running drills, fans, etc. Instead of the oldfashioned hand-power bellows, the forge is now operated by an electric fan. A much stronger and steadier heat is thus obtained, to say nothing of the great convenience of this change. Mr. McGill is now in better shape than ever to cater to the wants of his numerous customers, and we congratulate him on this latest evidence of progress.

Old Settler's Hut

In the window of Mr. Parker's bicycle repair shop, corner of Hunter and Queen streets, may be seen a miniature representation of the log houses erected by the early settlers. The roof is of the dug-out style, and the chinks between the logs are packed with moss, as in the good old days, to keep Jack Frost on the outside. A number of clay figures are grouped around the house, showing the settler and his family, together with their scanty but precious supply of cattle, pigs, etc. The work represents a great deal of care in preparation, and is very skilfully executed. It attracts a great deal of attention from passers-by.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Miss Carrie White, of Peterborough, appeared recently at an entertainment in Omemee, and quite captivated the audience by her clever performances.

—We congratulate Mr. A. C. McCallum on his appointment to the position of Works Engineer of the Canada Foundry Company, Toronto, but we regret that Peterborough is losing such an estimable citizen.

—Mr. Bert Huston, of Cold Springs, Otonabee, who taught the Junior Department of Warsaw Public School in 1902, has been engaged to teach Young's Point School for the present year. Mr. Huston is a good teacher, and will no doubt give first class satisfaction.

The many friends of Ald. Corkery will sympathize with him in the illness of Mrs. Corkery, and will join with the Times in expressing the hope that she will speedily regain her health.

—Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., the popular Rector of St. Luke's church, has been confined to his house with an attack of la grippe. We are pleased to learn that he is recovering satisfactorily, and trust he will soon be entirely convalescent.

THE MYSTERIOUS VISITOR IS NOW INVADING MANY HOMES

It Strikes Young and Old Who Are Physically Weak and Predisposed to Disease

Paine's Celery Compound
Fortifies the Body Cleanses the Blood and Gives Strength to Resist All Attacks

That mysterious visitor "Grip" is now invading many homes and striking down the young and old who are weak or predisposed to disease. It is now well known that the disease spreads rapidly to the various members of the households into which it has been introduced. It accords with the theory of infection, also, that the disease has usually attacked the persons liable to infection. Dr. Richard Sisely, in his book on "Epidemic Influenza," says the disease is almost entirely propogated by infection.

In past winter seasons it has been fully and happily demonstrated that Paine's Celery Compound is a tower of safety when Grip is prevalent. When this scientific and health-giving medicine is used, it strengthens the nervous centres of all the vital organs; it purifies the blood, regulates digestion, gives a healthy tone to the whole system, enabling young and old to feel secure from the ravages of disease. Weak, nervous, dyspeptic and ailing people will find in Paine's Celery Compound a true protector and shield from the dangers of Grip. A trial of one bottle will banish all existing doubts.

The Association will endeavor to lessen the evil of late shopping on Saturday evenings. Arrangements will also be made for systematic visitation of the schools of the town.

ANNIVERSARY OF ALL SAINTS'

Address by Rev. Canon Richardson at Both Services Sunday

Large congregations greeted Rev. Canon Richardson at both services at All Saints' on Sunday, on the occasion of the first anniversary of the parish. Both sermons were exceptionally good, and special music was rendered in a very appropriate manner.

Last night a lecture was given by Rev. Canon Richardson on the subject "From London to London," a review of the Church of England, from the time of the Reformation up to the appointment of Bishop Cronyn, Bishop of Huron, which was very interesting, and thoroughly appreciated by a large and attentive audience which filled the basement of the church to the doors. Rev. W. L. Armitage, M.A., rector, occupied the chair.

After the lecture a musical programme was rendered, consisting of two duets, one by Mrs. Glanville, and Mr. Joseph Legg, the other by Miss Mary Rush and the rector. Mrs. Glanville, who took part in "Hope Beyond," is a most finished singer, possessing a sweet contralto voice, which she uses to the best advantage. Her efforts were ably seconded by Mr. Legg, who has become a great favorite with Peterborough audiences. Miss Mary Rush, who, though young, has already acquired considerable fame in vocal music and possesses a rich mezzo-soprano voice. She, with the rector, rendered very acceptably, "O Salutaria." Mr. Legg also sang a solo. Miss Bullen, who presided at the piano, played the accompaniments with her usual good taste.

At the conclusion a vote of thanks was tendered the reverend lecturer by Mr. J. H. McClelland and Mr. J. Green on behalf of All Saint's church. Refreshments were then served. The rector, who received many encomiums feelingly responded thereto. Rev. Canon Richardson leaves this morning for London.

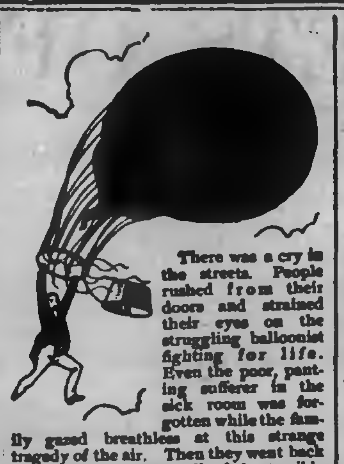
Miss Jones' Voice Greatly Improved

A startling improvement is noticeable in Miss Jones' singing. Her voice is stronger, and sounds clearer and sweeter than before using Catarrhozone, which is a wonderful aid to singers, speakers and ministers. Catarrhozone Inhaler insures absolute freedom from Colds, Coughs and Catarrh, clears nose and throat, and prevents hoarseness and huskiness. Catarrhozone makes the voice brilliant and enduring, and is uncommonly well recommended by Prima Donnas, members of Parliament, Lawyers, Doctors and thousands that use it daily. Better try Catarrhozone. Price $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Hamilton's Pills Cure Constipation.



There was a cry in the streets. People rushed from their doors and strained their eyes on the struggling balloonist fighting for life. Even the poor, panting sufferer in the sick room was forgotten while the family gazed breathless at this strange tragedy of the air. Then they went back to the sick room to tell of the terrible struggle for life they had just witnessed. It did not occur to them that under their very eyes a more terrible, more pathetic struggle was going on daily.

There can be nothing more pitiful than the struggle the consumptive makes against disease. The greatest help in this struggle is gained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures obstinate coughs, weak and bleeding lungs, emaciation, and other ailments which if neglected or unskillfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption.

"In the case of my daughters was suffering on account of a severe cough, hectic fever, wasting of flesh and other symptoms of diseased lungs," writes Rev. Joseph H. Pesperman, of Barium Springs, Iredell Co., N. C. "I promptly gave her Dr. R. V. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with gratifying success, and she now enjoys excellent health. This being true, I hereby heartily endorse your medicines."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery."

SHARP REBUKE GIVEN TO PRUSSIAN POLICE

Minor Officials Charged with the Ill-treatment of Alleged Offenders

Brighter Outlook for Macedonians, Decisive Action Likely to be Taken—Opposition to the Austro-Hungary Compact

London, Jan. 13—The correspondent of The Times at Berlin tells of a sharp rebuke administered to the Prussian police because of the mistreatment of various persons. Several cases of improper use of their powers by the police caused much indignation in Germany last year. The press took up the cases and made warm comments, especially when a journalist who had been convicted of a political offence was conducted through the city streets like a common offender. The Prussian Ministry of the Interior has now sent a circular to the chief police authorities throughout the kingdom, in which it is admitted that the allegations made against the police have been proved substantially to be true. The circular traces the excesses to minor police officials, and say that they have lacked proper supervision from their superiors. The police chiefs are enjoined to prevent the recurrence of such scandals.

Improving Macedonian Conditions.

London, Jan. 13—Indication that decisive action will be taken for the amelioration of conditions in Macedonia is given in a despatch from a correspondent of The Times at Paris. It is probable, he says, that the recent journey of Count Lamsdorff, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the exchange of views on the near Eastern question by some of the powers concerned, will lead to the submission for collective approval of some definite project for improving the condition of Macedonia. This would be followed eventually, by the exertion of further pressure on Constantinople. The idea is gaining ground that the enforcement of present Turkish laws by honest officials, of whom there are plenty in Turkey, would produce rapid and considerable change for the better. This idea will probably form the basis of any future project for improving the administration of Macedonia.

Opposing Austro-Hungary Compact.

London, Jan. 13—In spite of the signature of a financial compact between Austria and Hungary, the Bohemian language difficulty still presents obstacles to the adoption by the National Parliament, says The Times correspondent at Vienna. The proceedings at Prague show that the Czech demands are incompatible with those of the Germans. The resolution adopted, stated that negotiations over the language dispute must not be permitted to influence the Parliamentary tactics of the Czech deputies, simply means that these deputies are not to relinquish their policy of obstruction. As Bohemian Germans are understood to have informed Herr Korber that they will not negotiate except upon the basis of the original memorandum, which the Czechs have already refused to entertain the outlook for a settlement seems hopeless.

French Government Endorsed.

London, Jan. 13—A significant bye-election in Bethune is reported by the Paris correspondent of The Times. Baron D'Ard, who stood for election ostensibly as a Christian Democrat, in reality represented the entire Nationalist Opposition in the constituency. He was beaten, however, by M. Dalalia, who is a declared supporter of the present Government.

PLAIN TALK TO ENGLAND.

The People of the Motherland are Charged with Ignoring Canada.

London, Jan. 13—Sir Albert Rollit has made a preliminary report on the visit to Canada of the British delegates. He speaks in glowing terms of Canadian heartiness and hospitality, and says the deputation gained a most favorable impression of Canada's enormous possibilities.

Strathcona Active.

Every day gives fresh evidence of Lord Strathcona's activities. Despite the inclement weather, his latest engagement is a promise to lay the foundation stone of the Leysian Mission premises, which are being erected by the Wesleyan Methodists in City Road, London, at a cost of £100,000.

Plain Talk to Britain.

Lord Strathcona is expected to speak at the Royal Colonial Institute tonight when a paper is to be read by Albert Hickman, Canadian Government agent, who will charge the British people with neglecting Western Canada more persistently, intelligently and thoroughly than any other portion of the Empire. He believes, however, that, thanks to the energies of such men as Lord Strathcona, a new area has dawned. He ridicules the idea of the "American invasion" involving the slightest danger to British interests. He says the majority of incoming Americans appreciate British institutions and become good Canadian citizens with great rapidity. The investment of so many American millions in Canadian lands is but forging one more chain existing in the informal alliance, the greatest in history, known as the Anglo-American confederation.

Riflemen from Australia.

The Australian Confederation Rifle team is expected at the next Bisley meeting to defend the Kolapore cup and compete for the Palma trophy. The Kolapore cup is now being exhibited at Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane in order to stimulate interest.

The rest of the Canadian members of the South African Constabulary are returning to Canada on Thursday.

Lord Mayors.

The following despatch, published in Australian papers, provokes inquiry whether Montreal or Toronto might not be similarly treated: "The King has been pleased to approve of the title of Lord Mayor being conferred on the mayors of Melbourne and Sydney. Such is the effect of a message received by the Governor-General. In future the mayors will be entitled to be called Right Honorable. The Lord Mayor's wife will be Lady Mayoress."

Grand Trunk Pacific.

In order to meet, the state that the Grand Trunk's financial position will be jeopardized by the Grand Trunk Pacific commitments, it is announced today that the Grand Trunk Pacific will be absolutely a separate corporation, under the control of the Grand Trunk, but not guaranteed financially in any way by the older company. It is added that the form in which the scheme will ultimately go through is probably dependent on the extent of the subsidies obtained from the Canadian Government.

Deafness and impaired hearing are due almost entirely to catarrhal inflammation of the eustachian tubes. Permanent cure is guaranteed to all who inhale Catarrhozone as directed. This vegetable antiseptic is inhaled at the mouth, and after traversing all the air passages of the respiratory organs is exhaled through the nostrils; it completely eradicates catarrh from any part of the system, clears the ears, nose and throat, and allays inflammation, congestion and soreness. PLAGUE TO KILL A PLAGUE

Means Discovered to Destroy Grasshoppers and Locusts

Washington, Jan. 13—Prof. L. O Howard of the Department of Agriculture has discovered a plague to kill grasshoppers and locusts.

The next time a locust or grasshopper plague prevails in any section of the United States tubes of gelatine containing the germs of the plague will be sent to the farmers in the afflicted districts and by the inoculation of a few insects the entire swarm will be destroyed.

Reports have been received from the Philippines and South Africa showing that grasshoppers and locusts have died by millions through the use of the culture sent out by the Department.

The disease is caused by fungi known as entomophthoreae and the cultures and made much more easily than the name would imply.

RUN THE DARDENELLES

British Embassy's Order to an Egyptian Steamship

Constantinople, Jan. 13.—The Porte has not yet replied to Great Britain's pronot yet replied to Britain's protest against Turkey's allowing Russian torpedo No other power has pronounced itself on the question.

After waiting vainly for two years to obtain the same privileges for the Khedival Navigation Company as other companies enjoy, namely, that its ships may pass through the Dardanelles, the British Embassy has determined to wait no longer and has instructed the steamer El Kahira, which sailed yesterday for Alexandria, to pass through the Dardanelles without stopping.

This decision has the effect of ignoring the Sultan's suzerainty over things Egyptian, which restriction now will be removed.

TREASON TRIAL IN ENGLAND

Lynch's Counsel Has to Get King's Autograph Permission to Defend Client

London, Jan. 13.—The Attorney-General's arrangements for the trial for treason of Capt. Lynch, who served with the Boers during the war, and was elected member of Parliament for Galway, revives the ancient usage enforced in all treasonable cases and still maintained.

The counsel for the defendant will have to apply for the King's special permission, which must be given over Edward's autographed signature, before he can defend his client.

In the olden times it was the custom to regard a prisoner accused of high treason as good as condemned already and any lawyer daring to defend him was looked upon as little better than a traitor.

In later days, while the accused was still forbidden either to plead in court or to give evidence, the authorities adopted the custom of assigning him counsel.

In the present case Horace Avory, a leading criminal lawyer, will represent Capt. Lynch at the latter's request, and the authorities have concurred in the arrangement.

TO MINE THEIR OWN COAL

Building Managers of Chicago to Take Action to Avoid Future Coal Famines

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 13.—Coal mines owned by themselves, establishment of their own fuel yards, ample provision for the delivery to their own buildings and a vigorous attempt to compel the railroads to supply plenty of cars for shipment, are the measures which members of the Building Managers' Association contemplate in order to prevent future fuel famines in Chicago.

Tenants of some of the skyscrapers are not only walking upstairs, but finding dark offices when they arrive. Flickering candle lights were seen in several big buildings last night, and it is said many tenants used candles and lamps, the lighting plants having been shut down.

State's Attorney Deneen announced to-day that he had received word from Attorney-General Hamlin that the latter will arrive in Chicago to-morrow and confer with him as the evidence in possession of each.

Scores of damage suits are expected to follow in the wake of the test case to be brought to trial, bitterness having been increased through the failure of the railroads to relieve the situation, although large amounts of coal have been brought in.

LOCKS AT PETERBOROUGH

Largest of the Kind in the World — Photographs of the Work

Ottawa, Jan. 13— Mr. R. B Rogers, engineer in charge of the Trent Valley Canal, yesterday brought to the department a number of photographs of the new hydraulic lift-lock at Peterborough. They show the work of placing the iron superstructure, supplied by the Dominion Bridge Company, to be making good progress towards completion. The lock is a wonder in its way. There are only three other locks in existence constructed upon the same principle, those at Les Fontinettes, in France, La Louviere, in Belgium, and Anderton, in England. But none of these compares in size with the Peterborough lock. It is a double hydraulic lift-lock, designed to convey vessels between the lower and upper reaches of the Trent Canal, which at that point have a difference in level of 65 feet.

The locks are water-tight steel boxes, 33 feet wide, 140 feet long, and containing 8 feet depth of water in the clear. They are raised or lowered by hydraulic rams, and so arranged that when one is ascending the other is descending.

A True Nerve Tonic

Will act, not so much directly upon the nerves as upon the digestive functions and the abundant formation of red, vitalizing blood. Nerves can't be fed on medicine. They can, however, be restored and strengthened by assimilated food.

The marvellous action of Ferrozone arises from its action over the digestive and assimilative processes. When you take Ferrozone the blood is purified, strengthened, and grows rich and red. Then you grow vigorous, healthy and beautiful, ready for work, because you have the strength to do it. No tonic for the brain, blood or nerves compares with Ferrozone. Price 50c., at druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE GOLD IN AUSTRALIA

Precious Metal Found Literally in the Streets

Sydney, Jan. 13.—Gold is to be found in most things, as we now know—even in sea water—but some experiments recently made in Sydney under the auspices of the local Royal Society yielded curious results in this connection. Dust collected from the roof of the Sydney observatory was found to contain cobalt, nickel, and gold, while at the university building—a couple of miles further from building—a couple of miles further away from the sea—gold was also discovered in the dust. The observatory is within a stone's throw of Sydney harbor, with the wharves all around it, and probably the nickel and cobalt are to be traced to the shipments of rough ore brought over from New Caledonia from time to time. But the gold is everywhere, and it was shown to be present in dust collected promiscuously at such unlikely places as Moruya, Menindie, and other towns far removed from the "yellow belt." Possibly, through the agency of some future invention, this common dust may be made to pay for the working, and this would be a helpful new asset for Australia, for there is plenty of it.

SOFT-COAL STRIKE BREWING

Due About April 1, Says an Operator Here—Will Affect New York Indirectly

New York, Jan. 13.—A representative of the Chesapeake and Ohio Coal Company said yesterday that a strike of the Virginia for large advances in wages and that it will probably go into effect on April 1. These miners are not now thoroughly organized, he said, so, the strike will not begin until President Mitchell gets out of the hands of the anthracite commission and can turn his attention to the West Virginia field.

"The output in West Virginia," said the Chesapeake and Ohio man, "is 60 per cent, of the total output of soft coal in the United States. The strike will not affect us here directly. It will affect us indirectly because the New England States will then have to draw on Pennsylvania, which supplies the Eastern cities, for its soft coal, and this will eventually increase the demand for hard coal."

The wages of the soft coal miners employed by the Fairmont Coal Company of West Virginia have been advanced 10 per cent, by President Clarence W. Watson, of that Company. A notice to that effect was posted at the office of the company yesterday.

"We have 11,000 names on our payroll," said Mr. Watson, "and the average wages have been $2.28 a day. Mitchell sent his agents to our mines during the anthracite strike to organize our men. They refused to go into any union saying that the company had always treated them fairly. As a reward for their fealty we now find ourselves in a position to advance their wages."

COBOURG JUNIORS WIN

From the Peterborough Juniors Last Night at the Brock Street Rink

The Cobourg Juniors won the first game of the junior series played in Peterborough at the Brock street rink last night. The game was very closely contested, both teams being about evenly matched. The Cobourg team have a very speedy forward line and did some very neat passing, while the Peterborough team was rather weak on the forward line, and with a little more practice should make the return match warm for the Cobourg seven. The score last night was 2 to 1 in favor of Cobourg.

Peterborough Senior Colts will play at Belleville on Friday, and on Tuesday will play Port Hope here.

Toronto, Jan. 14—The O.H.A Executive has issued instructions to all referees of hockey matches that the games must start on scheduled time There has been a great many complaints in the past because of the late starting of games, owing generally to the failure of one team to arrive at the right time, and the committee is anxious to correct the evil. To accomplish this fines will be placed on the offending teams. Already two O.H.A. teams have been penalized in this manner for being late at matches.

On Saturday night at Hamilton Referee Aleck Creelman fined the Marlboros of Toronto $10 for being late for the game with Hamilton intermediates. The Marlboros did not arrive at the rink till very late, it being nearly 10 o'clock when the game was started. Last night at Orillia, Penetang and Orillia juniors played, the home team winning. The Orillia team was late in going on the ice and Referee Hugh Rose fined the club $10.

Secretary W. A. Buchanan said this morning that neither of these cases was excusable. The splendid railway service between Toronto and Hamilton should prevent any delays in starting a game in either city, and a home team like Orillia last night, should have no reason whatever for not being ready at the appointed time.

Middleweight Championship.

Tommy Ryan, the middleweight champion, has accepted the offer of the International A.C. of Fort Erie, for a 20-round bout between him and Jack O'Brien of Philadelphia. The club will put up a purse of $6,500. O'Brien had already accepted.

Want a Postponement.

Morrisburg Juniors are scheduled to play an O. H. A. game at Kingston on Saturday night, with the Kingston Ramblers, and want a postponement. They have written to Secretary Buchanan regarding it.

Worst Defeat Yet.

The All-Canadian football team met with their worst defeat yet at Mountain Ash, Wales, when the local team piled up a score of 25 to zero. The Canadians were in poor shape and lacked two men, two Swansea players being on the team to fill up.

Lord Minto Will Attend.

Lord Minto will be present at the championship speed skating races at Montreal, February 7. He has so notified the committee.

Notes of the Curlers.

Defeat follows these Scottish curlers with unrelenting persistence. The visitors were again defeated at Montreal yesterday, six rinks playing.

The play in the District No. 2. Cup competition will commence on Wednesday, January 21, at Peterboro, when the following teams are expected—Norwood, Lakefield, Campbellford and Keene.

The following clubs have signified their intention of being present to play against the Scottish curlers during their visit to Peterborough —

Kingston, Cobourg, Port Hope, Orillia and a rink from each of the local clubs.

THE COAL SITUATION A CRUEL CONSPIRACY

Energetic Action Being Taken by United States Authorities

To Crush the Heartless Speculative Movement by the Great Coal Men—Serious State of Affairs

Washington, Jan. 13.—It is becoming clear that the coal men of the United States are in a gigantic conspiracy to fleece the people. The stocks on the market are the subject of heartless speculation in face of immense suffering among all classes, and especially the very poor. It is no alarmist statement that the people are perilously near to famine conditions. Accounts from the mining regions show that although the anthracite mines are working to full capacity, the coal is not going forward. The people of New York city are suffering now as greatly as at any time since the trouble began. As the New York Herald remarks editorially: "There is a movement on foot, a cruel movement, among coal speculators to force the price still higher. They have so tempted some of the independent companies by offers for large quantities of the commodity at advanced figures, that the latter have broken away from the general agreement upon a common fixed price for the joint outfit, and will deliver their coal to the highest bidders."

Action is being taken by Congress to crush this cruel speculative movement. If it does not succeed, the outcry for Government interference may gather irresistible force. But meanwhile the time passes, the colder part of winter comes on, and there is no relief.

UGANDA'S SLEEP OF DEATH

Insidious Disease Devastating the Country of its Inhabitants

London, Jan. 11—The School of Tropical sleeping sickness which is now devastating Uganda. Though it was discovered only a few years ago, it is computed that the disease has already killed from 20,000 to 30,000 people, and is spreading to new areas with increasing virulence.

Its extension to the north will be of the greatest menace to Egypt. Scientific reports made on the spot describe the sleeping sickness as a complaint something like that group of diseases known as meningitis or inflammation of the brain. It begins insidiously with changes in the attitude of the patient. From

The duration of the complaint varies from a month in acute cases to six months more in chronic cases. The disease is practically invariably fatal and, although taking longer to cause death than hydrophobia, may be classed along with the latter as one of the most fatal complaints known to mankind. It is contagious and its spread is assured by overcrowding of many populated areas is making itself felt, and the outlook is very gloomy. The only scheme yet devised for the prevention of the spread of the disease is the isolation of new cases.

OPENS THE EYES OF THE SOUTH AFRICANS

Hon. Joseph Chamberlain Seems to Have Captivated the Hearts of Rebellious Boers

Chicago, Jan. 12—The Record-Herald prints the following special cable from London:

Mr. Chamberlain is making a splendid impression in South Africa. All the despatches from the Cape are agreed as to this. The prophecies of the Liberal and Radical press that he would undo by imprudent speeches all he might have accomplished in his personal interviews have been falsified by events, for it is his speeches that are carrying the day for the Colonial Secretary's programme. Even the Daily News admits that he is showing unexpected tact and astuteness as a pacifier and he has only to continue as he has begun if he would completely revolutionize for the better both Boer and colonial feeling.

Mr. Chamberlain's plan is to convince the colonials and to reconcile the Boers afterwards. The convincing process involves showing the loyal element that their highest and paramount interests are endangered by the fostering of petty local jealousies.

Weak Spot in System.

"Here he puts his finger," says one correspondent, "upon the weak spot in our South African system today. The colonials are not broad-gauged as a rule. Though many of them have traveled far, they are more insular than some Britons who have never crossed the channel. Their loyalty is unimpeachable, but their horizon is narrow and their perspective is false. Mr. Chamberlain's purpose is obvious—to give them a wider prospect by convincing them that local concerns, however important, are dwarfed by Imperial interests, and that intercolonial co-operation is the first thing needed."

That he is working wonders along this line is evident from the changed tone of the press of Natal and Cape Colony. Two months ago The Times of Natal reflected the local opinion in a slashing article, commenting unfavorably upon Lord Milner and the Colonial Office.

View is Changed.

Only two days ago, however, the same influential organ took an entirely different view of the Methods of the High Commissioner and the Colonial Secretary. "Perhaps," it said, the most salutory result of Mr Chamberlain's visit will be found in the lucid explanation he is giving of Imperial policy in South African consolidation and reconstruction. He has cleared up many matters as to which the colonies were long and painfully perplexed.

"Far be it from us not to respond to his appeal for greater readiness to give and take in intercolonial relations."

Cape Colony opinion has undergone much the same transformation in less than a fortnight, and the wisdom of Mr. Chamberlain's visit is demonstrated by the increasing tendency in loyalist circles everywhere to adopt a more reasonable attitude toward intercolonial controversies and to the general programme of reconciliation between Boer and Briton.

Revulsion of Feeling.

"Mr. Chamberlain's frank way of taking his hearers into his confidence and his perfect willingness to answer any proper question put to him," says the Cape Argus, "is giving South Africa a different notion of him from the one promoted here and in England by his personal and political enemies. Henceforth all his proposals and acts will be viewed at the Cape in a more rational light."

Immense importance is attached in London to this revulsion in colonial feeling. Lord Milner has repeatedly declared that he has found the loyalists as hard to cope with as Lord Kitchener found the Boers. Their principal military grievance has been the uncertainty as to the willingness of the Imperial Government to recognize receipts for property taken or much the same transofrmation in less destroyed during the conflict. Great pressure has been brought to bear upon Lord Milner in this connection and his inability to furnish favorable assurances has been a barrier between him and the colonials, not to mention the friction with the Home Government.

This has at times been so keen that Lord Milner has with difficulty been dissuaded from resigning.

Mr. Chamberlain's announcement at Ladysmith that all military receipts would be recognized is considered the most important since the announcement of peace. It clears the air. It is bound to raise a wave of pacification that will sweep away a score of minor grievances.

(Toronto News.)

It is hard to imagine a more difficult mission than that upon which Hon. Joseph Chamberlain is now engaged in South Africa, and, if the reports are to be relied upon, the results he is accomplishing, stamp him as a diplomat of the highest order.

The Government of Great Britain was warned, when the generous terms of the Vereeniging surrender were under discussion, it was a mistake to imagine that the Dutch burghers in South Africa would be grateful for any generosity at the hands of their victors, and that kindness would be regarded as a sign of weakness. Those who knew the Boer character best were compelled to admit that there was this criticism was it was absolutely correct. The lenient treatment accorded the belligerent Boers, many of whom were rebels from the Northern districts of Cape Colony and the Colony of Natal, raised a perfect storm of resentment among the loyalists in both these colonies, who felt that justice was not being done them when what they regarded as a premium was placed by the British Government upon rebellion. Added to the resentment of the loyalists of Cape Colony and Natal, was open dissatisfaction with the terms of the Vereeniging surrender by the Dutch burghers of the Orange Free State and the Transvaal. The situation was becoming decidedly serious, and Lord Milner openly admitted his inability to cope with the situation.

This briefly was the condition of affairs in South Africa, when the Colonial Secretary was commissioned to visit the country and endeavor to bring about peace and harmony. In a few short weeks he has succeeded where Lord Milner failed in reconciling the loyalists of Cape Colony and Natal. In the latter colony, he was cheered when he explained how the government intended to tax the people of that colony to pay its fair share of the war debt. In two short weeks this remarkable man worked a revolution of feeling among the loyalists of the two colonies which suffered most because of the war.

Having completed this part of his mission successfully, Mr. Chamberlain proceeded to Pretoria, where he was met by a large deputation of Dutch burghers, who, in polite language, informed him that, unless the British Government acceded to the original demands of the burghers for complete amnesty and larger money grants, there would be no hope of ultimate peace in the country. It was then that the strength of the man appeared. He had sized up the Boer character better than those who had criticised him. There was no attempt at conciliation, but, in decisive language, he told the burghers gathered at Pretoria that they had gotten all they were going to get, that all the world knew they had been generously treated and that there could be no going behind the terms of the Vereeniging surrender.

Mr. Chamberlain has begun the second half of his mission in the right way, and it will be interesting to watch for the time when he will be cheered in Pretoria, by the Dutch burghers, for his firmness, as he was in Natal, by the loyalists, for his consummate tact and conciliatory methods.

HYDROPHOBIA MICROBE

Italian Professor Says That He Has Discovered It

St. Petersburg is fighting a rat plague of tremendous proportions. For three successive days rats wandering to the river to drink have stopped early morning trains on the suburban Newski railway. The police are distributing rat poison to all householders free of charge, and soldiers, armed with sticks, watch the road to the river where the rats procure their morning drink.

MORE TROUBLE SAID TO BE BREWING IN CHINA

Reasons Why a London Paper Thinks War is Sure to Come

London, Jan. 13.—There are several indications that China is not pacified to stay pacified. The London Standard's Tientsin correspondent notes the development of a policy in Chinese court circles which, he thinks, is destined to have serious consequences. The object of it is to "replace the Boxers by Manchus." For some time the influence of the Manchu statesman Yung Lu has been increasing rapidly, and he now has entire confidence of the Dowager Empress. Latterly there has been incessant drilling among Manchu officials. All this, thinks the correspondent, really means putting in motion two opposing forces, between which both the dynasty and China's independence stand a good chance of falling to the ground. Since the conquest of China by the Tartars, the Manchus have quietly fallen back into the apathetic condition from which they were temporarily aroused, and they have made but little impression on the country outside of Pekin. Manchu officials have been scattered throughout the country, side by side with Chinese, and their identity has been largely swallowed up by office. "Put all this aside, place them in command of the army, 'because Chinese officials cannot be depended upon,' and a new era dawns immediately. Directly the true state of things becomes apparent the Chinese will rebel against the Manchu yoke, and then the tussle of Chinese versus Manchu troops begins." The correspondent adds that China, especially in the south and centre, is ripe for mischief

The Ice Harvest

The Little Lake is beginning to present an animated appearance, several gangs of men being engaged in harvesting the ice crop for use next summer. Messrs. J F. Allin, Thomas Rehill and William Curtis each have a number of men employed at present. The ice seems to be of good quality, and the recent cold weather is making it of a desirable thickness.

Lost an Eye

Mr. Chas. Gramesault, who, with his family, resides on Robinson st., Ashburnham, had the misfortune to lose an eye a few days ago, while operating a reamer at the lift lock. A piece of steel struck him in the eye, injuring that member to such an extent that, in his removal to St. Joseph's Hospital it was found necessary to remove it. Fears are entertained that the other eye will also be affected. He is still confined to the Hospital He recently removed here with his family from Montreal. Much sympathy will be extended to them in this unfortunate affliction.

HOUSE NUMBERING IN ASHBURNHAM

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—Now that we have a new council, it is hoped they will take the necessary steps to have the houses in the village numbered, and where necessary, name boards placed on the street corners. The cost would not be very great, and the resulting advantages would be considerable.

At present it is a very hard matter to direct strangers, and mistakes are continually occurring in the delivery of parcels and a great deal of time is unnecessarily wasted, owing to the lack of numbers on the houses. The matter has frequently been discussed but nothing definite has come of it. The action or inaction of the present council will be awaited with interest.

Yours truly,

ASHBURNHAM.

Skate Sailing

Probably the most delightful form of either skating or sailing, lies in the combination of the two and known as skate-sailing. In Switzerland and Germany it is a universal means of winter amusement and in Canada it is in general use more particularly from Toronto to the Atlantic seaboard. In Peterborough it is practically unknown, and when it is considered how inexpensive and yet exciting the pastime is, it is a matter of surprise that it should be so. A small sail fastened to the waist and guided by the arm, is all that is needed. A speed of forty miles an hour is easily and safely attained with the sweep of wind possible on Little Lake, and the general solidity of the ice there and boys ought to enjoy themselves to their heart's content. A few letters to the sporting or boy's corner of the leading papers would give all the required information respecting this most delightful and healthful form of winter amusement.

LINDSAY HOTEL KEEPER FINED

For Selling on Sunday a Penalty of $80 and Costs is Imposed

The case against Mr. Wardrobe, of the Benson house for having sold Albert Duffy, J. Williamson and P. Welsh liquor on Sunday, November 9th, 1902, was finally finally disposed of after several adjournments had been made owing to the severe illness of the defendant. The charge was for selling liquor on Nov. 16th, but it was clearly proven that it had been sold on the previous Sunday, Nov. 9th. His Worship said that it was not the first offense lodged against Mr. Wardrobe, and although he did not blame him personally, still he had men in his employ who were, constantly violating the Liquor License Act. He thought selling liquor after hours and, on Sunday was being conducted in a systematic way by the barkeeper. If some of the hotelkeepers of Lindsay can afford to sell and violate the act, then they can afford to pay heavy fines. He was determined to put a stop to selling on Sundays, and would impose the heaviest fine against Mr. Wardrobe. His Worship further said that in future, in the case of any hotelkeeper, who had broken the law, he would not only impose a heavy fine but would apply to the Provincial Secretary to have that hotelkeeper's license cancelled for the next year. Mr. Wardrobe was fined $80 and costs, amounting to $118 in all. Mr. Hugh O'Leary K.C., appeared on behalf of Mr. Wardrobe, and Mr. P. A. Devlin was present in the interests of the Crown. Dr. Herriman, Rev. Mr. Henderson, Inspector Short, S. Oliver, M. Cudrue and others were present.

MECHANICAL READERS

Fail to Apply to Themselves the Facts They Read

"I am a proof reader and have come into almost daily contact with your advertisements of Postum Food Coffee since they first appeared," writes Mr. W. H. Stamey of Louisville, Ky., "but never paid any attention to them until about 18 months ago when my daughter, who was a great sufferer from gastritis indigestion and its natural results, stopped coffee and used Postum. She had been growing thin and weak daily.

"After a few week's trial of Postum, she regained her health and strength and now is completely restored to her former self. Noting the effect of changing from coffee to Postum in her case, I concluded to try it myself. My habits are sedentary, sitting and reading from six to eight hours each day. I had been subject for 25 years to sick headaches and indigestion and lost on an average of one day of each week from my work. I was weak and weighed only 140 pounds and was losing strength and energy all the time. I dropped coffee and had the Postum made strictly according to directions.

"I liked the change from the start and have kept up the use of Postum with the result that I have not had a headache in over a year and have not lost a day on account of sickness in that time; have gained strength steadily and now weigh 160 pounds.

"Before I commenced Postum I was a good customer for the adjacent drug store for headache powders and dyspepsia remedies, but have used neither for over a year and can now eat anything without ill effects.

"If every one could have my experience of the last few years, cultivation of the coffee bean would soon become a lost art, for, no one ever suffered more from coffee than I have, and I can heartily give all the credit to Postum for my health and strength."

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL

Initial Meeting of the Newly Elected Civic Directors for the Coming Year

The village Council met yesterday evening in the first regular session for 1903. All members were present, with Reeve Adams in the chair. The first item attended to was the singing of declarations of qualification, etc., after which the Reeve briefly addressed the board, welcoming the new members to the Council, and stating the business which will likely come before the Council for consideration this year. Among these was the question of granolithic walks, regarding which Mr. Adams remarked that as it seemed the unanimous opinion of those experienced in the matter that they were much superior to board walks, he would advise the early discussion of the subject by the Council. Also with regard to sewerage in the village. In order to obtain the full advantage of the waterworks in the village it would be necessary to obtain a sewerage system, but this would not be taken in hand for some time, as nothing would be gained thereby.

A. Stevenson, secretary of the Peterborough Light and Power Company wrote asking the Council to notify the tax collector of their agreement with the village remitting the customary tax on lines on the streets of the village.

An application was received from Mr. Jas. Drain for the position of auditor.

A by-law was passed appointing Messrs. Jas. Drain and John Milan as auditors for the year 1903, $3.00 being allowed for same.

A statement of receipts and expenditures was received. The former amounted to $195.58 and the latter $1263.37.

On motion of Messrs. Hourigan and Gibbs, the following accounts were ordered to be paid:

J. Wood	$24.50
T. B. Maniece	5.00
Peterborough Review, acct	7.25

Also that the treasurer be authorized to pay the School Board $300.00 on account of 1902 taxes.

Messrs. Scott and Gibbs were appointed to attend the charity orders south of Elizabeth street, and Messrs. Faint and Hourigan for the north.

A by-law was passed appointing Messrs. W. H. Thompson and Geo. McWilliams as assessors for the year at a salary of $45 each. Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald was appointed road inspector, truant officer, constable, and sanitary inspector, at a salary of $375.00, and Dr. Amys as Medical Health Officer at a salary of $50.00.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Rev. Canon Richardson, M.A., of London, who was the guest of Mr. J. H. McClellan while in town, returned to his home yesterday.

—Mr. John M. Rossel has been successful in passing the higher grade civil service examination, which he tried recently. We extend congratulations.

—Mr. F. D. McKay, formerly editor of the Peterborough "Review," was in town yesterday. He is meeting with good success in his new undertaking.

The many friends of Mrs. Louis Dowsar, of Cold Springs, Otonabee, will regret to learn that her health is not improving. She is still confined to bed, and appears to be gradually weakening. We trust she will soon be restored to good.

—Mr. Adam Dawson, who was injured some time ago by slipping on the icy pavement, is still suffering from the effects of the fall. Mr. Dawson is not alone in thinking that it would be better to leave a portion of the snow on the sidewalks to prevent their being so slippery.

—The police have a small pocket book, picked up on Perry street, for which they would like an owner.

—The Berlin German Boys' Choir will appear at the Y.M.C.A Convention, to be held here Feb. 6 to 8. This will prove a strong attraction.

—The new wood splitting machine of R. Hicks and Co., is working very satisfactorily. It will no doubt be appreciated by their numerous customers.

—Workmen were busy yesterday replacing a large plate glass front in the south window of Denne's flour and feed store. The goods in the window have been arranged in a very attractive manner, Cereal foods being much in evidence.

—In our report yesterday of the Public Library, through an error, it was stated that Mr. H. S. Macdonald was appointed Secretary-Treasurer. This is incorrect, as the Board will meet soon and elect a President and Secretary-Treasurer.

—The sympathy of the many friends of the family will be extended on the occasion of the death of the six months' old child of Mr. Geo. Dowser, Rink street. The funeral took place from the family residence yesterday afternoon.

—An esteemed contemporary, whose editor must have inadvertently wandered into church the other Sunday, says there were three women present to every man, and wonders why it is so. This g. f. j. gives it up for it has puzzled theologians since the beginning of time; although the women do not need religion half as badly as the men do.

—On exhibition in the Times Bookstore window there is a beautiful picture of "His Holiness, Pope Leo XIII" This picture is the same as agents are selling around town and through the country for 75c. Our price while they last is only 30c. Sent by mail for 5c extra. Order early to secure a copy.

—We thank the Dominion Brewery Company for a copy of the Reference Annual of the Dominion Brewery Co., Limited, for 1903. It contains records of twenty different branches of sport, the game laws of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba and the population of Canada, according to the census of 1901, and in seven previous decades. Parliamentary information, rates of postage, and other useful business information. This progressive company is always up-to-date.

Brides

Are always "beautiful" and always "happy" according to the society reporters, and in this case the report is mostly true. There may be unhappy brides in fiction, but there are few in real life. But how hard it is to look upon many of the wives we know and believe that they were once beautiful and happy. Pain, the result of womanly disease, has marred beauty and undermined happiness.

Beauty and happiness are both restored to the sufferers from womanly disease by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures the pain-producing ills peculiar to women, establishing regularity, drying weakening drains, healing inflammation and ulceration, and curing female weakness. It restores roundness to the sunken cheek and plumpness to the shrunken body.

"I have thought for some time I would write you and tell you of the great improvement in my health since taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" says Mrs. [illegible], of [illegible], N. C. "When I began its use I was a physical wreck and had despaired of ever having any health again. Could not sit up all day, and was so weak I could not walk one quarter of a mile. I noted a great improvement in my health before the first bottle was used. Was suffering with almost every pain that a woman is subject to; had inflammation of ovaries, painful and suppressed periods, and other symptoms of female disease. After taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' I felt like a new person. Can ride horseback and take all kinds of exercise and not feel tired."

If you are led to the purchase of "Favorite Prescription" because of its remarkable cures of other women, do not accept a substitute which has none of these cures to its credit.

If you are looking for a perfect laxative try Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

NEW TELEGRAPH FACILITIES TO BE ADDED

One Hundred and Sixteen New Locomotives to be Purchased

Over Eighteen Million Bushels of Grain Shipped Since Close of Navigation

Winnipeg, Jan. 14.—Mr. D. McNicoll, second vice-president and general manager of the Canadian Pacific, is not expected back from his western tour of inspection before next month. He was still at Winnipeg last week, where he was interviewed regarding the lack of motive power and rolling stock. "We have," he said, "placed orders with firms in Glasgow and Germany for locomotives, because we cannot purchase a locomotive in the United States today, or this year, and we are advised there will not be one available until 1904.

"The C.P.R. has done everything possible to secure the necessary rolling stock, and has spent a vast amount of money towards that end. They added 98 locomotives to their stock during the year just closed, and have orders placed for delivery in the spring before the next crop is due, for 116 additional locomotives of the largest and most approved type. These orders are placed in Canada, the United States, Scotland and Germany.

"Not only are we building cars at our own shops at Perth, Farnham, and Hochelaga" Mr. McNicoll continued "but we have firms engaged building for us at Sault Ste. Marie, Cobourg, Ont., and Amherst, N.S. Our Montreal shops are building engines at the rate of one a week. Passenger coaches are also under construction at Montreal, Amherst, N.S., Pullman, Ill., and Dayton, Ohio.

Speaking of other improvements, Mr. McNicoll said the company was adding largely to its telegraph facilities. An additional copper wire had been put in between Fort William and Swift Current and another is to be put in between Calgary and Edmonton. The company had commenced tearing down at Winnipeg to make room for the new station there. Up to January 6th the company had put through its elevators 18,329,000 bushels of grain, of this 1,500,000 had gone all rail since the close of navigation.

Mr. McNicoll proceeded west on Friday.

ALL RAIL TO DAWSON

A Road to Be Built From Port Valdez to Dawson

THROUGH HEART OF ALASKA

A Country of Marvellous Wealth and Resources to Be Opened Up

Mineral and Farming Regions to be Developed in the Arctic Regions—Capable of Sustaining Large Population

New York, Jan. 14.—The great project of building a railroad from Port Valdez up the Copper River to Eagle City on the Yukon and thence to Dawson is to be carried out at once. This will be the all United States line through the heart of Alaska.

The contract has been awarded to J. R. McDonald, of New York, who is to complete the line in three years. The company organized to build the road will send 6,000 men north next spring and summer to begin the work. The first lot of rails is ready for shipment.

The determination to build this line has grown out of the exploration of the country along the Copper River to the Yukon since 1898. Previous to that time very little was known of the Copper River except from a few Russian and native reports.

In 1898 Capt. W. R. Abercrombie led a party of explorers from Port Valdez along the Copper River Valley. His report on this reconnaissance survey excited great interest.

On all the tributaries of the Copper River he found fine or flour gold. He brought home facts which seemed to show that there are very rich placer deposits in the foothills of the Copper River Valley. He found evidences also of large iron deposits and coal beds.

He saw fragments of coal in the hands of the Indians and his horses were shod with the use of coal taken from this district. Ore containing free copper was also discovered. It was very evident that the Copper River region is one of the most highly mineralized regions of Alaska.

On his return Capt. Abercrombie said that an all United States railroad through Alaska to Dawson City could undoubtedly be laid out from Port Valdes up the Copper River Valley. The present steam route by rail and river from Skagway to Dawson is 575 miles long and has the disadvantage of running in part through foreign territory. The water route from Port Valdez to Dawson City will be less than 400 miles long, a difference of more than 175 miles in favor of the Valdez route as compared with the Skagway route.

The Copper River Valley, it was discovered, has large agricultural possibilities. A recent despatch says that Capt. Healy, who has the contract to feed and clothe the railroad hands, predicts that 1,000,000 persons engaged in agriculture and mining will live there within a few years.

This is certainly a glowing prediction; but Capt. Abercrombie expressed the opinion in 1898 that the Copper River Valley would produce all the cereals, garden truck, and fruits and much other food that will be required by the mining population which may settle along the Copper and Tanana Rivers and in the Forty Mile District of Alaska. He found the soils of the valley largely of vegetable origin, very rich, and from three to eight feet in depth.

The few white men who had preceded him on the river had raised excellent crops of all the common garden vegetables. He measured turnips four inches across, found peas well podded, lettuce, onions and other vegetables were thriving and there were thousands of acres that might raise wheat. Kernels of oats and other cereals that had fallen from the packs of horses had germinated, and the stalks were three or four feet high, the heads being filled out with plump grain.

This valley, he said, would also supply all the beef required. There were many thousands of acres of the finest bunch grass which was eagerly cropped up by the animals of his pack train. He also found an abundance of timber for fuel and ties.

The Copper River includes among its fishes all the salmon family and grayling. The salmon is one of the chief articles of food for the natives.

The proposed line of the railroad involves no great engineering features. The line may be cheaply built and all the problems connected with it may be solved with comparative ease.

During the summer of 1899 Capt. Abercrombie resumed his explorations in the same region with a force of twenty men. He confirmed the favorable information he had brought home in the previous year and made most important discoveries as to the prevalence of copper. He obtained a large number of samples of average ore which, upon assay, showed the presence of from 16 to 81 per cent. of copper, with traces of gold and silver.

The railroad will run a little to the south of the Wrangell group of mountains, which are believed to contain concentrated copper varying in size from bird shot to pieces weighing many pounds.

Cinnabar, galena, gold, silver and iron ore were found in many places. Placer deposits carrying gold as coarse as corn kernels were discovered in several localities. The pay gravel on the Chestochena, a tributary of the Copper River, was running from $1 to $35 a cubic yard. The coal deposits found in three localities were of a very high order of lignite and of economic value.

BRITAIN ON THE ALERT FOR ALL CONTINGENCIES

Britain's Wars Continue of Which She Has Several on Hand

New York, Jan. 14—A special cable to the Post from London says—

"For an empire whose chiefest interest is peace, the British Empire cannot be said to open the year well. The South African war is hardly over; at least a large number of troops are still needed to garrison the acquired territories; yet the British army and navy are already on the alert, if not actually engaged, in or off Venezuela, Nigeria, Somaliland and Morocco.

As regards Venezuela the most interesting suggestion of the moment comes from a distinguished French diplomatist in close touch with the French ministry, who indicates the futility of the Hague arbitration unless means be taken to compel Venezuela to execute the award. He suggests that The Hague Tribunal invite the interested powers to establish an international commission of financial control, similar to that created in Greece. The commission, of course, would be temporary and its task limited to the payment of The Hague awards, but the effect would be most wholesome upon other South and Central American States who will act in the future under the shadow of the possibility of similar treatment. Seeing the source of this proposal, the significance of it is undoubted.

A Perplexing Nightmare.

As regards Morocco England is not so much entangled elsewhere as to allow France or any other power to secure a dominating footing there. She feels that her position at Gibraltar would be best secured by a strong native ruler on the other side of the Straits. As Englishmen read the latest news, Morocco will not yet be added to the chain of Eastern questions which, as one journal declares today, link Egypt, Turkey, Persia, Siam and China in one perplexing nightmare.

Transvaal Has Surplus.

As an empire credit item must be noted the fact that the Transvaal shows a surplus of $1,500,000 on the first financial year, though, of course the cost of the garrison is still paid by the British taxpayer.

CAUSED SEVEN DEATHS

Awful Distress Reported on Account of the Scarcity of Coal

Chicago, January 14—Seven deaths are reported due to exposure, resulting from the coal famine. It was 6 degrees below zero last night. To-day the thermometer stood at zero. From ten to fifteen thousand cars of coal are being held by dealers just outside the city, according to agents fo the Illinois Manufacturers' Association. Robert Rose walked the streets all night, and died soon after entering a lodging house. C. G. Pool, of Manila, Ia., a cook in a dining car, was frozen to death. Many other deaths are reported.

ATTEMPTED MURDER

Four Young Citizens of St. John Got Into Trouble Through a Spree

St. John, Jan. 13—Four young men named Carlin, Frederick King, Theodore Morrison and Samuel Stone had a dispute on the evening of Jan. 3rd in a beer shop with the proprietor, a man named Peterson. The latter hit Morrison on the head, knocked him down and threw him out. The other three went away but returned and threw Frederick J. Globe, who had gone to Morrison's assistance in the meanwhile, over the wharf into the harbor. Globe was rescued and the four assailants arrested. Yesterday the Grand Jury found a true bill against them in the charge of attempting to murder Globe. The prisoners say that they were all intoxicated, and mistook Globe for Peterson.

ROTTERDAM RESCUED THE CREW OF THE PIONEER

For Two Weeks The Men on Board Were Buffeted in Mid Ocean in Great Danger

New York, Jan. 13—The crew of the schooner Pioneer has been rescued in mid-ocean by the s.s. Rotterdam, according to a detailed message received here today. The Pioneer, on Dec. 4, left Exploit Harbor, Nfld., for St. John's, Nfld., and with a cargo of wood on board was blown out of her course and disabled. For two weeks she drifted, her crew living in light rations of fish and flour, till her distress signals were seen by the Rotterdam. The latter ship lowered a boat at a great risk, and brought on board the captain and crew of the Pioneer. The schooner, being a menace to navigation, was set on fire by the crew of the Rotterdam, which then proceeded on her voyage, and landed the rescued men at Rotterdam Christmas eve.

CHASES FAITHLESS WIFE

Rainy River Woman Leaves Her Home and Goes South with a Printer

Rainy River, Jan. 14.—Rainy River has had a sensational occurrence, which has caused considerable excitement in the town. The wife of a well known painter became enamored with a printer and left her home and husband to fly with the second love.

It appears that affairs matrimonial, were not any too smooth between the painter and his wife, owing to her decided liking for the flattery and company of other men. The climax came on Thursday of last week, when the wife left for Winnipeg. On Saturday, the printer followed and joined her there. They left together on Sunday, for the south, and it is generally believed that they went to St. Paul or Minneapolis.

The infuriated husband came on to Winnipeg on a freight train on Monday and being unable to locate the couple, called on a detective to try and locate them. In the meantime, he heard that they had left for the south, and he immediately followed in that direction.

Speaking to a friend in the city, the husband said that his only object in trying to locate the erring couple, was to try and influence his wife to come back home as he dearly loved her and would forgive everything if she would but return with him.

PEOPLE OF FEZ ARE IN REVOLT

Despatch From Madrid Says They Have Risen Against Sultan

Madrid, Jan. 13—Fighting is proceeding between the troops of the Sultan of Morocco and the forces of the Pretender to the throne, according to a despatch received by The Globe from Fez. The followers of the Pretender are said to be overcoming the Imperial troops.

The correspondent of The Globe adds that the inhabitants of Fez have risen against the Sultan, and that anxiety reigns at Rabat, where the Europeans are in fear of an immediate attack by the pretender's forces.

The Sultan's representative at Tangier has been ordered to seize cattle, and to despatch reinforcements to the Sultan.

WILL THE DOUKHOBORS MARCH AGAIN IN THE SPRING

Report Says the Coming of Peter Veregin May Have such a Result

Winnipeg, Jan. 14—Amos Wright, of the Yorkton district, is in Winnipeg on business. To a reporter for The Times yesterday he said: "The Doukhobors are quiet at present and their recent fanaticism appears to have almost wholly died away. They go about their work, however, chanting their wild prayers and dirges, and I think it would be easy to start them on another wild march in search of the Saviour.

"Peter Veregin, whose arrival was anticipated with great rejoicing, has dropped into their colonies without making any noticeable difference in their behavior. What effect he will have on them I cannot say. Their joy on his arrival was more of a demonstration of gladness on his being released from Siberia than of welcoming a prophet. He is undoubtedly revered by many of them, and could become as great a menace to their quietness as the fanatic "John the Baptist."

"The people of the district look for another trek in the spring and until then Veregin's influence for good or bad will not be felt. The Doukhobors say that when the government agents sent them back to their homes they promised that they would be removed to a warmer country after the snow in starting a Crusade in either case, and and cold had gone."

ENGLAND BEGINS TO GROW FAITH IN THE DOMINION

London Papers Deal with Canadian Subjects in Laudatory Notes

London, Jan. 14—Lord Strathcona, speaking at the Royal Colonial Institute last night, humorously protested against the phantasies published about himself, alluding especially to Beckles Willson's account of his life. He said many conversations related in that book never did, nor never could, take place. He contended that with the grain supply of the Northwest and an efficient navy, which everyone in the Empire desired, Britain could not be starved in six weeks, months or years. He asserted that Americans settling in the Northwest become as good British subjects as any in Canada or London. He also deprecated the application of worthy Canadian clergymen for English contributions to Canadian churches, and said Canadians were quite as capable of supporting their own churches as Englishmen were. He had heard clergymen say that it was quite unnecessary for any Canadian to beg aid in this way.

Other speakers, including Thompson of Ogilvie's, Preston and Faithful Begg, begged Englishmen to take greater practical interest in the settlement of Canada's vacant lands.

Today's journals commenting on the lecture, and inclined to make fun of Hickman's assertion that the time has come when agriculture can be successfully carried on as far north as great Slave Lake. The Financial Times says in that program is realised the question is whether the Grand Trunk Pacific is being laid out far enough north, and adds, "We shall at least have to admit its payability."

The St. James' Gazette says: "Canada has undoubtedly been badly ignored in the past, but the Old Country shows signs of wakening up to Canada's chances and merits. Meanwhile, the fact that Americans have invaded it is no bad thing either, according to Hickman, who looks upon their presence as one more chain forged in the Anglo-American confederation."

NO APPARENT DANGER TO INTERNATIONAL PEACE

Powers Can Easily Extricate Themselves From Any Difficulty Which May Arise in Morocco

London, Jan. 13—There is at present no apparent danger of international complications in Morocco, although the situation is more serious than shown by the accounts of the defeat of the Sultan's forces, which forces are unreliable, and come principally from Tangier, where intrigue and treachery are rampant. Even if the Sultan be forced to retreat from Fez and appeal to the powers for assistance, it is not probable that they can be drawn into a dangerous entanglement. They can readily accommodate themselves to a change of rulers in Morocco, when it is inconvenient for any power to assume the responsibility to restoring order among the barbarous tribes. Excitement is not increasing at Madrid or Paris, and neither German nor British intervention is probable.

ORDERED UNION JACK TO BE HAULED DOWN

Cork Board's Method of Protesting Against Imprisonment of Irish

London, Jan. 14—The Times correspondent says that at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Lunatic Asylum, County Councillor O'Neil moved that the Union Jack be hauled down from the asylum flagstaff as being unsightly. Councillor Cronin said they could do business without the emblem of British rule, and that they should not fly it while some of their best people were imprisoned. The resolution was passed, and the flag was hauled down.

Four Peterboro' Teams Play To-morrow Night

Seniors Play at Belleville and T. A. S. Play at Home

Peterborough will have four hockey teams out for victory Friday evening the seniors will play at Belleville the juniors will play at Port Hope, the "Cubs" at Fenelon Falls, and the T.A.S. will play Lakefield at home on the Brock street rink.

—The T.A.S. will put a strong team on the ice to-morrow night against Lakefield, and a very interesting game can be looked for. It will be about the same team that defeated Bobcaygeon on Saturday evening.

Trent Valley League.

Bobcaygeon played at Lakefield last night and were defeated by 15 goals to 2.

Port Hope will play the senior Colts here on Monday evening.

The Juniors.

Port Hope Guide — The Peterborough Juniors play here on Friday night with the II Ontarios. The II team showed up rather slow in their game with Cobourg but since then the team has been strengthened considerably and no doubt they will make a creditable showing on Friday night against the fast Peterborough Colts.

The O.H.A. is to be commended upon fining teams for lack of punctuality in appearing on the ice to play championship games.

The hockey public must always be taken into consideration. They pay their money to see the game and when they arrive on the advertised time the teams should be ready to proceed with the play. Too often it is the case that there is a long delay before starting, while the enthusiasm of the spectators gets chilled and their feelings rise.

It is to be hoped that the firm stand taken by the O.H.A. in this matter will have a good effect upon the clubs. All games should commence promptly on time, and if a club offends a fine should be its portion.

Ban on Pittsburg.

New York, Jan. 14—The Amateur Hockey League has put the ban on all Pittsburg hockey teams, and has declared the organizations of the "Smoky City" to be professional organizations, and all members of the teams professional players.

One of the members declared the Amateur Hockey League had come to realize that the Pittsburg players were paid regular salaries for playing hockey.

In order that the locals should not get entangled the officers of the Amateur Hockey League decided to bar any of the local teams competing against the Westerners. A game with the Pittsburgers would, of course, make the competitors professional.

A Difference of Opinion.

The Winnipeg Victorias, beaten twice by the Winnipeg Rowing Club, will have a lot of nerve if they come east to play the Montrealers for the Stanley Cup. The Winnipeg people, if the Vics are defeated by Montreal, will say, "Well, they are not our best team by a long way."—Ottawa Citizens.

A Difference of Opinion.

Charles Rankin, of Stratford, gave good satisfaction as referee, but the Woodstocks claimed 3 goals which they contended were not scored on offside, although Mr. Rankin thought so.

Pittsburb Hockey League will soon be occupying a position of "splendid isolation."

Wrestling.

The McDonough-Gauthier wrestling bout has been arranged for the evening of Saturday, Jan. 24th.

Notes of the Curlers.

Montreal ladies, playing with half-weight irons, beat the Scotchmen yesterday by 46 to 32 shots.

The Scottish curlers scored their first victory at Montreal yesterday, against the St. Lawrence rink by the handsome majority of 17 shots in a game of 18 ends. They had the usual advantage of playing with granites, to which the local men are not accustomed, as Montrealers use irons, and it is evident that the visitors are learning the peculiarities of keen ice and indoor lights.

The Port Hope Guide says: Mr. J. H. Magill, secretary of the Port Hope curling club has received a letter from Peterborough inviting a rink from Port Hope to come out and take part in the game with the Scotch curlers. Mr. Magill sent a reply to-day accepting their offer, and thanking them for their kind invitation. Mr. Burton was chosen skip and a team from here will go to Peterborough, on Tuesday, the 20th, and try their luck with the Scotch curlers.

Jim Jeffries says that Jim Corbett will be down after one good stiff punch. Then why does the champion side step such an easy proposition? He can get $15,000 of that $20,000 for delivering that one good, stiff punch.

The Fergus Thistles will play lacrosse in New York on the 13th of June. They will take along 13 players, and will walk under all the ladders in the new subway. They're not a bit superstitious, are they?

Baseball.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 13—Winnie D. Mercer, a pitcher of the Detroit American League baseball team, was found yesterday asphyxiated in his room at the Occidental Hotel. He had inhaled gas through a rubber tube. The cause is not known.

Mercer for years was considered one of the best pitchers in the National League, and last year was one of the stars of the American League. He was connected with the Washington for a long while and at the close of last season managed the tour of the all-American and all-National teams, the trip winding up in California. He had been appointed manager of the Detroit club for next season.

PETERBORO'S SUGAR BEET FACTORY

Good Progress is Being Made in Securing a Good Acreage For Beets

The Promoters of Peterborough Beet Sugar Factory are meeting with good success in arranging with the farmers to grow beets. As it has been shown conclusively that the district around Peterborough is eminently fitted for growing sugar beets, we have no doubt the farmers will avail themselves very largely of this opportunity of engaging in a very profitable business

A return of $50 to $70 an acre may be expected by those engaging in the culture of beets, and this is much better than the results from any other kind of crop. As the company will furnish each farmer with seed to be paid for when he sells his beets he is practically called upon to make no outlay, except for the cultivation of the crop.

PETERBOROUGH, JAN. 15, 1903.

THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

Why the Town of Peterborough and the Village of Ashburnham do not combine together, to form the City of Peterborough it would be hard to say. Reeve Adams expressed the opinion at the Mayor's banquet that the people of the village were quite willing to discuss the matter at any time. What then is the stumbling-block? We have been treated at various times to a painful variety of attempts to advertise the town, but surely nothing is at once so satisfactory and so legitimate in this respect as an announcement that Peterborough has been able to outgrow its baby clothes, and has become a city. There is nothing of course in the name beyond ranking in the list with the most important of Canadian municipal centres, but surely this is something, and we doubt if anything causes more surprise outside the town than its failure to make its blowing good by becoming a city. Let Mayor Roger see to this, and he will have done something to get us out of the state of backwoodsness which has been so detrimental to us both as a people and a municipality. There is no recognised centre back of the main line of railway skirting the lakes, Peterborough may become that in a single word. We have been off the highway of civilization and broad highway of civilization and broad ideas parochialism, village politics and mutual backscratching.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Pierpont Morgan is undoubtedly the most fascinating figure before the world to-day. "Mr. Morgan, His Advisers and His Organization" are discussed at length in the January Cosmopolitan by John Brisben Walker, who spent ten days between Mr. Morgan's and Mr. John Mitchell's offices, in September, in the attempt to settle the coal strike.

Lord Curzon, the Viceroy of India, has ordered the heads of the veterinary, survey, forest and meteorological, geological, agricultural, and botanical departments of India to form a board of economic inquiry, which shall meet twice annually to formulate a programme and to review past work. The board is also to act as an advisory committee to the Government.

The Italian Government refuses to accept type written documents for public records on the ground that they will not stand the wear of time. But according to the Boston Herald, an experiments was tried by Dr. B. F. Davenport, an expert on inks, with regard to some of Massachusetts' public records. Samples of all this work so far as it was known, were obtained, and they were exposed to direct sunlight for six months. "There has been no perceptible fading of any of them, some from the larger size of the type or harder impact with the paper being originally and now a little darker than others."

Tom Barton, an Ontario lumberman, has surprised London by drifting on a log nine feet long, and one foot in diameter, down the Thames, from Battersea bridge to Tower bridge, a distance of five and one-half miles. He had a chair to sit upon and a long balancing pole with which to steady himself. He made the drift successfully in two hours and a half, passing on the way under Albert bridge Chelsea bridge Vauxhall bridge Westminster bridge, and London bridge, and these structures were crowded with people to wonder at him. At London bridge a boat of the Thames Conservancy, which has control of the river, wanted to hold him up and charge him a fee for the use of it, but finally allowed him to proceed, after taking his name with the understanding that the conservators will later decide what relation a log nine feet long and one foot in diameter is to a barge.

The profit-sharing or stock-distributing plan of the Illinois Central railroad has not been particularly successful. In other words, it is not being availed of generally by employes. It was instituted in 1893, and and in 1899 only 760 employes had taken stock, and then only to the extent of 2,500 shares altogether, or an average of a little over three shares per man. Since 1898 the annual report of the road has ceased saying anything about the experiment, which would indicate that stock purchases by employes have not been increasing greatly. Reports concerning the United States Steel Company's plan are that it is already meeting with marked success.

According to the Railway Age, oil as a fuel continues to prove successful on all the lines of the Southern Pacific, and it is understood that general orders have recently been issued for the conversion of all the engines into oil burners as soon as possible. Coal will be abandoned absolutely, and within a year the Southern Pacific system will be on an oil basis solely, the order affecting all the divisions of the company. The "western" division of the road now has sixty-three oil-burning engines and eighty-three coal-burners. It is estimated that within eight months all the engines will have been converted and the use of coal on this division permanently abandoned. It required on an average 1,000 gallons, or about twenty-four barrels, of oil for every 100 miles, as compared to five tons of coal, the saving on every 100 miles by using oil ranging from $16 to $20. The total saving for the 250,000 miles travelled by oil-burning engines represents from $36,000 to $40,000 per month.

A land cable is to be used instead of an overhead wire for the Yukon telegraph line. In the original construction where trees could be utilized the wires were attached to them, but in districts in which trees were not available poles were taken. In many cases owing to the rocky character of the country these poles were simply placed upright and supported by a cabin of stones or rocks at the base. These cabins were often displaced by the boulders from the mountains, the poles fell, wires broke, and then for days communication was interrupted. The original cost of construction was about $120 per mile, but the change will involve an expenditure of $600 or $700 per mile for fully 600 miles between Manson and Telegraph Creek. The cost of the deep sea cable between Bamfield and Fanning will average $1,100 per mile, but the land cable will not be as expensive, as it will not be as thick as the Pacific cable. Land cables have worked well in the interior of Africa.

Brunette and Blonde

A ROMANCE.

ery, that provoked a smile on the lips of Cecil Courtenaye, who thought it no inapt imitation of Florence.

She came up to them with a dazzling smile on her crimson lips. The earl wondered if Cecil would not be impressed by her beauty, she looked so fair with the sunshine brightening her golden locks, and showing the fineness of her complexion and the soft brightness of her blue eyes.

"I saw you through the trees walking by the lake," she said. "I would have come down to you, only I thought it too warm for exertion. Mr. Courtenaye, I wish you had brought me some water-lilies."

"I did not think you cared for flowers," Cecil replied, looking at the jewels she wore.

"Why should you think so?" she asked, poutingly.

"I never see you wear any," he replied, carelessly.

"That is because they wither so soon," said Florence. "I admire them very much, but I like to wear jewels just because they retain their beauty always."

She was vexed that Cecil did not go back and get the lilies for her. She would have liked to see some sign of power over him. She loved the handsome, careless young heir as much as her vain and shallow nature could allow of her doing, and her heart was as much set on marrying him as the earl could have desired.

But Cecil did not offer to gratify her whim. He stood carelessly twirling his light walking-cane, and looking out over the beautiful tranquil scenery that would one day be his own. Even the earl was annoyed that Cecil did not give Florence a chance to win him. He would not look at her. He was as indifferent to her beauty as a stick or a stone. Yet other men admired her. Last winter they had spent the season in London, and the vivacious blonde had been called beautiful.

"Grandpapa," she said, "Mrs. Courtenaye had a letter this morning from Sir Wilfred Hale's sister. They have returned from their American trip, and are in London."

The earl looked pleased.

"I hope they will come down soon and see us," he said.

"They are coming— to-day," said Florence, "Lady Leigh said that her husband could not come down with her, but that she would take the liberty of bringing her guest with her —a young lady whom she is chaperoning for a while."

"Any friend of Lady Leigh's will be most welcome," her grandfather said, graciously.

Lady Leigh was a favorite with him. She had been the girl friend of his youngest daughter, whom he had disowned and disinherited for marrying Guy Aylesford.

"I hope Sir Wilfred is coming, too," said Cecil, looking around.

"Lady Leigh said that he would," Florence replied.

"I am going in. I have some letters to write," said the earl. "Cecil, you may stay and finish your walk with Florence."

He went in, and Cecil walked along by his companion's side, and tried to take an interest in her girlish chatter. He would have liked to gratify the dearest desire of the old earl's heart if he could have found anything about Florence that was lovable. But she was vain and selfish to her heart's core, and Cecil Courtenaye, who was fastidious and proud to the last degree, saw through her flimsy mask of girlish innocence and arch coquetry so plainly that he was more and more disgusted with her. He saw that she was utterly unlike the noble race of Lornes, and once or twice a dim fancy had crossed his mind that Mr. Aylesford had perpetrated a fraud upon them, and that the dark-eyed, brave little Hilda might possibly have been the true heiress.

"Can you imagine what young lady Lady Leigh is chaperoning?" Florence asked him.

She was vexed at heart that a young girl was coming to Locksley Hall. She dreaded a rival.

"I have no idea," he replied, carelessly. "She almost always has some one with her. She has no children of her own, and she is very fond of young girls."

"She did not seem very fond of me when I was in London," said Florence, unconsciously giving vent to a feeling of pique she had secretly cherished ever since last winter.

"Did she not?" said Cecil, surprised, "I should have thought that Lady Leigh would love you dearly. Your mother was her dearest friend."

"Your mother told me that," said Florence, coloring suddenly, "and I was prepared to love Lady Leigh very dearly for poor mamma's sake. But from the very first she was distant and cold to me. I suppose she had a spite against me because I was papa's daughter. Mrs. Courtenaye has told me that mamma was to have been Sir Wilfred's wife if she had not eloped with papa."

"It is true," said Cecil, "and has remained single all his life for her sake."

"I suppose you are very glad that another young lady is coming," remarked Florence in a tone of pique. "She may, perhaps, amuse you more than I have been able to do."

"I am quite ready to be amused by any one who will take the trouble," said Cecil, with provoking carelessness.

Florence bit her lip as she looked at him, and realised how little power she had over him.

"For my part I am very sorry they are coming to Locksley Hall," she said, pettishly. "I hate to have our pleasant little family party broken in upon by strangers. I am perfectly happy here with grandpapa and Mrs. Courtenaye and—you."

"As for me, I am going back to London to-morrow," answered Cecil, quickly, vexed at her slight air of proprietorship in him, and at her affectionate tone.

The guests of the earl arrived while all the family were in their rooms dressing for dinner; and the housekeeper, acting upon Mrs. Courtenaye's orders, showed them to their respective apartments to remove the dust of travel and prepare for dinner.

As might have been inferred from the earl's remarks, Mr. Aylesford had fastened himself upon Florence like a leech and there was no getting rid of him. He veered to and fro between London and the country, but managed to spend the greater part of his time at Locksley Hall, relying upon Florence to make his welcome sure. To the old earl the sleek hypocritical villain was a terrible bore and nuisance, but Florence pleaded her grand-

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under C[illegible] Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 ton[illegible] above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6⅔ years	$670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's share common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

The Greatest Mining Proposition of Modern Times

This company has demonstrated its ability to produce ore at a profit and pay regular monthly dividends under the most adverse circumstances. Only the highest grade could be shipped and cost upwards of $25 per ton. With a mill it can be treated at less than $3 per ton. The company has nearly enough money to pay for the mill, which they promise to have in operation by April 1st, 1903.

BOUND TO BECOME ALLIES.

New York, Jan. 14.—An old saying is, politics makes strange bed-fellows. Equally so does location of times bind the interests of two or more roads together in such a manner as will cause them to become allies, not only in the territory they serve, but their influence is cast in the interests of each other everywhere. Both the Atchison and Rock Island have been building lots of new extensions. They have both been creeping down into Texas and tapping the various points carefully, not duplicating too much upon one another. Their action indicates absolute harmony between the two systems, and they will from now on be found side by side working together. The Pennsylvania is bound in the natural course of events to be extremely friendly to this combination. Both the Atchison and Pennsylvania come into the same terminals at Chicago, and from there on west the Atchison is the only line running over its own tracks all the way to the Pacific coast. The North West and St. Paul are compelled to run west via the Union Pacific. The Pennsylvania can run through west via the Atchison, and this gives it a through line from ocean to ocean. We are of the opinion that the Pennsylvania will ultimately control Atchison. We are also confident that Atchison and Tock Island will be found in mutual ownership. What a wonderful line these three will make. Modern American railroading and the modern community of interest so rapidly being carried out in this country make it most likely that the Pennsylvania will shortly come into control of these two lines. It will cause them all to sell very high if it comes about. The Berwind party are as bullish as ever upon Atchison issues, and again are predicting par for the common stock. The Rock Island party never held more of that specialty than they do at present. Both roads are earning more money than ever before in their history. The Pennsylvania stock will more than likely sell at 200 or its equivalent this year. They are all good to buy into: we are exceedingly bullish upon all three. The general market may make somewhat of a rest around current figures, one or two stocks at a time being taken specially in hand and advanced sharply. When you see an issue commence to jump upon fairly large transactions, jump in and buy some of it for 2 to 3 points profit.

Summary—A comparatively quiet and more or less indecisive market was in evidence today. Movements were more or less erratic. Manhattan was again taken in hand and further bid up to 156 1-2. It fell about a point below the opening price later, then partially recovered. The same brokerage house has been identified with the manipulation of the stock for some time past continued in control of the stock movements. It looks like going higher. Stocks were strong then somewhat depressed. Cumulative buying continued in Erie, and the buying of Reading was considered good. The market is taking a breathing spell renewed activity will more than likely be accompanied by advancing prices. Money last loan 3 1-2 per cent. Sales 778,000.
